GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

PROPOSING A PLAN, WHICH HAS BEEN approved by financiers of the nation, to ease the credit situation, President Herbert Hoover issued a statement October 7 in which he said: "The prolongation of the depression . . . has produced in some localities in the United States an apprehension wholly unjustified in view of the thousand-fold resources we have for meeting any demand. . . .

"The times call for unity of action on the part of our people. We have met with great difficulties not of our own making. It requires determination to overcome these difficulties and above all to restore and maintain confidence. Our people owe it not only to themselves and in their own interest, but they can, by such an example of stability and purpose, give hope and confidence in our own country and to the rest of the world."

Condemning the "sentimentalism in some people which makes popular heroes out of criminals," the President, in a radio address October 12, said:

"If the police had the vigilant, universal backing of public opinion in their communities, if they had the implacable support of the prosecuting authorities and the courts, if our criminal laws in their endeavor to protect the innocent did not furnish loopholes through which irresponsible, yet clever, criminal lawyers daily find devices of escape for the guilty, I am convinced that our police would stamp out the excessive crime and remove the worldwide disrepute which has disgraced some of our great cities."

Without any doubt, the Federal Congress which convenes in December will be requested to grant immigration quotas to Japan, China and other Oriental nations. And the powerful influences of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the World Peace Foundation, the Federation of Churches of Christ in America and other pro-Jap agencies will be exercised, to the end that the request will be heeded. These agencies are being aided by a nation-wide chain of newspapers, which give their propaganda much prominence.

The scheme has faithful backers, also, in California, among them the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and the Southern California Methodist Ministers Association. During the past month, too, the Pacific-Oriental Trades Association was organized to labor and lobby for nullifying the Exclusion Law by granting the quota. Prominent in this latter outfit are William May Garland, William Lacy, Arthur Bent and Orra Monnette of Los Angeles, and William Woods of San Francisco.

The claim being advanced that "sentiment in California now favors a quota for Japan" is a deliberate falsehood! The quota is favored by but a few residents of this state who are apparently more interested in yellow-dollars than the welfare of the White race. The people of California are almost unanimously against the proposed quota, and with all their power the pro-Japists could not muster sufficient encouragement to warrant introduction of a resolution favoring it in the 1931 State Legislature.

On the other hand, the State Legislature of 1923 passed, unanimously, a resolution demanding exclusion of ineligible-to-citizenship aliens. And in 1929 it passed, also unanimously, another resolution opposing the quota. What better evidence that the sentiment in California has not changed?

The Congress, if it considers carefully the welfare of the nation, and particularly the Western states, will not only refuse to grant the quota to Japs and other ineligible-to-citizenship aliens, but it will close the present loopholes through which far too many of them are gaining entrance into this country.

The world suffered a distinct loss when Thomas Elva Edison, the great inventor, died at his West Orange, New Jersey, home October 18. This tribute came from Lee De Forest, inventor:

"In the passing of Thomas Edison humanity has lost its greatest single benefactor since the dawn of history. No individual has ever given himself so continuously, so prodigiously, so beneficially as did Edison. The giver of light and power, he has added infinitely to the light of our intellect and soul and to mankind's power to swiftly progress toward its loftier goals. Were all the world's light and power supply cut off tonight for a single hour in reverent commemoration of its debt to Edison we might perhaps glimpse some faint appreciation of the immeasurable debt we owe to that glorious immortal."

The United States had a Jap population at the time of taking the 1930 census of 138,834; in 1920 they numbered 111,010, a percentage increase of 25.1. Most of them are planted in the Pacific states, where their numbers increased from 93,490 in 1920 to 120,251 in 1930. Their California increase was from 71,952 in 1920 to 97,456 in 1930. The Jap-population figures for this state's cities of 100,000 or more population are quite interesting: Long Beach, 375 (1920), 596 (1930); Los Angeles, 11,618 (1920), 21,081 (1930); Oakland, 2,709 (1920), 2,137 (1930); San Diego, 772 (1920), 911 (1930); San Francisco, 5,358 (1920), 6,250 (1930).

Los Angeles City, incidentally, is pictured in the 1930 census returns as the chief California nesting-place for undesirable ineligible-to-citizenship aliens: 97,116 Mexis and 21,081 Japs. In Sacramento County, the number of Japs jumped from 5,800 in 1920 to 8,114 in 1930.

Do not, for one moment, think that the Japs have congregated at strategic points by accident. They have been put there by Japan for a purpose, which will be impressively evident in the not-far-distant future. It will not be long now until Japs, from certain districts, are members of the State Legislature and representatives in Congress from California.

An effort is being made to stimulate home owning, as it is conceded that the most substantial citizen of any community is the home owner. Not much progress will be made, however, at least in California, until such time as the confiscatory tax burden is very materially lightened.

The tax burden is made up not only of the cost of government, but of special assessments, designed to aid the paving and other trusts. Hundreds of people have lost their homes because of these unjust, if legally lawful, special assessments.

We hear repeatedly that "prosperity is just around the corner." Governor James Rolph could hasten California's negotiation of that corner by calling a special session of the State Legislature to abolish the special assessment evil. When that is done, and not before, there will be a "boom" in home owning.

"The Mexican element in the population has increased very rapidly in certain parts of the United States during the past ten years," says a recent report of the Federal Census Bureau. "By reason of its growing importance it was given a separate classification in the census returns for 1930, having been included for the most part with the White population at prior censuses. The instructions given the enumerators for making this classification were to the effect that all persons born in Mexico or having parents born in Mexico, who are not definitely White, Negro, Indian, Chinese, or Japanese, should be returned as Mexican. Under these instructions, 65,965 persons of Mexican birth or parentage were returned as White and 1,422,533 as Mexicans."

So, a vast majority of the Mexis are considered NOT of the White race. Their numbers in this country increased from an estimated 700,541 in 1920 to 1,422,533 in 1930, a percentage increase of 103.1. The percentage increase in the White population for the same period was but 14.8.

The Mexis who come to this country, being not of the White race, are ineligible for American citizenship. They are not wanted here, except by the interests who employ them at starvation wages, and are not needed. They constitute a decided, and ever-increasing, menace. They have colonized mostly in Texas, California and New Mexico which, at the time of taking the 1930 census, had Mexi populations of 683,681, 368,013 and 114,173, respectively.

In view of the facts revealed by the census, and in order that another color-tragedy may be prevented in this country, the Federal Congress should adopt legislation definitely applying the provisions of the Exclusion Law to Mexico.

United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, a most valued member of the national lawmaking body, is, like most real Americans, opposed to the slashing of the navy and the reduction of the armaments of the country. In the course of a forceful Navy Day address at San Francisco, he said:

"The cheapest politics today is the politics which raves of peace and yet would take this great nation into any organization abroad from which might spring wars of no concern to us; which bellows of a naval holiday, knowing our absolute inferiority in naval equipment, and would leave us at the mercy of any other first-class power were trouble to arise; which shouts disarmament and means disarmament for us alone, while others continue to arm."

Thursday, November 26, will be Thanksgiving Day. While the people of these United States are having their troubles, they also have much for which to be thankful. Thanks for the numerous blessings should be given the Master Ruler.

The American Legion of Martinez, Contra Costa County, is demanding the immediate dismissal from public service of all married women. Hurrah for the Legion! In this demand, it should have wholehearted support.

The policy of giving employment to married women with able-bodied husbands is all wrong, and is in no small measure responsible for the economic ills so much complained about.

Now is the most opportune time to put a stop, once and for all, to the practice. The American Legion, the Native Sons and other organizations should unite forces and wage a campaign to that end in every county of the state. Such a campaign will be successful, and California and its citizenry will be benefited immeasurably.

In an address at Sacramento October 15, Professor Paul Tanner of the University of Hawaii, Honolulu, declared 72 percent of the Island of Hawaii's population is Japanese, and their number is growing steadily. The public schools are attended only by Orientals; White children are sent to private schools.

THE BRODERICK-TERRY DUEL

Peter T. Conmy, M.A.

(Historian Golden Gate Parlor N.S.G.W.)

There has been considerable recent discussion in the daily press regarding the site of the Broderick-Terry duel, famous in California history, the question at issue being whether the site is in San Francisco or San Mateo County. The accompanying article, prepared by Peter T. Conmy, M.A., historian of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29, N.S.G.W., San Francisco, is interesting and enlightening.—Editor.

IN THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES the decade from 1850 to 1860 was characterized by repeated attempts of the South to secure the extension of slavery into the Middle West and Far West. In 1850, when the Northern and the Southern forces were deadlocked in Congress over this matter, the intensity of the situation was broken by a compromise by Henry Clay that admitted California as a free state. In 1853 the Southern element succeeded in breaking down the old Mason-Dixon Line that had for so long separated the slave and the free soil by the Kansas-Nebraska Act, which permitted the territories of Kansas and Nebraska to determine for themselves whether or not they should have slavery. This matter was called to the attention of the nation in a very striking manner in 1858, when it was debated by Lincoln and Douglas in Illinois. This issue, namely, the question of extending slavery into Northern territory, manifested itself in California politics as it had in those of every other state. At that time the Democratic Party was, for all practical purposes, the only party in American politics. The Whig Party was fading out of existence after 1852, and the new Republican Party was not yet of much importance.

In California, as in all other free states, the Democratic Party was divided into two opposing factions—the slave faction and the free-soil faction. Those in favor of extending slavery were known as Lecompton Democrats, and those opposed were called anti-Lecompton Democrats. The leader of the anti-Lecompton group in California was David C. Broderick, a sturdy, self-made young man, born in Washington, the son of an Irish laborer who had worked on the capital building. Broderick had lived in New York City, whence he migrated to California in 1850. The leader of the slave faction was William M. Gwinn, incumbent United States Senator, who had come to California from his home state, Tennessee.

In 1857 Broderick was elected United States Senator from California for a full term. Gwin was re-elected with Broderick's support, but for an unexpired term. In 1858 an attempt was made to carry the state for the Lecompton standard. Broderick toured the state, making speeches everywhere in opposition to the extension of slavery. As the campaign became more intense and more and more bitter, Broderick thought it necessary to unmask the true character of Senator Gwin. To do this, he made public the "scarlet letter," a communication which Gwin had written to Broderick, implying that if Broderick would support his re-election he would not exercise his right to dictate patronage appointments to the president. Broderick supported Gwin's re-election, but Gwin immediately broke his promise. In Washington, Gwin turned the favor of President Buchanan away from Broderick, and as a result Broderick became a strong opponent of the presidential administration. So strong was his opposition in the Senate to the extension of slavery that Southern leaders became most hostile to him.

As a result of this violent opposition to the powers that were, the leaders of the Lecompton group in California marked Broderick as a man to be gotten rid of. Senator Gwin and his friends, who were both ashamed and indignant over the expose of the "scarlet letter," also acquiesced in this. To the honor of these old Californians, it must be said that no attempt was made to murder Broderick. They at least gave him an open chance to defend his life. David C. Terry, a justice of the Supreme Court, challenged Broderick to a duel. After months of letter writing the date was set for September 12, 1859. Terry predicated his challenge upon grounds of certain derogatory remarks about him made by Broderick, but it was an open secret that Terry was really the avenger of his friend, Senator Gwin, and of the Lecompton party.

The duel was to have taken place on Davis Ranch, in San Mateo County. Friends of both men who wished to prevent bloodshed procured warrants from a San Mateo magistrate for the duelists' arrest. The peace officers, in serving the warrants just as the duel was about to start, prevented the shooting. The next morning there was no legal process to interrupt the combatants and they fought it out on the shores of Lake Merced, then in San Francisco but now in San Mateo County. Broderick was mortally wounded and expired three days later. In the passing of David C. Broderick, California lost one of its most able men. His death in the thirty-ninth year of a very promising career was indeed a catastrophe, and public sentiment was so aroused against the Lecompton Party, after the death of Broderick, that the movement for the extension of slavery was lost from then on, in California. During the Civil War this state was one of the most loyal to the Union. Broderick was the first great martyr for the abolition of slavery; Lincoln was the second.

It has long been thought that the Terry-Broderick duel took place on the shores of Lake Merced. In 1917 the N.S.G.W. Historic Landmarks Committee erected a tablet at the site where the duel is believed to have taken place. The spot marked by the committee is in San Mateo County, a few hundred feet over the boundary line between San Francisco and San Mateo Counties. At the time that the duel was fought this spot was in San Francisco County. The San Francisco-San Mateo boundary was fixed in 1856 and amended in 1857. At that time the end of Lake Merced abutted the boundary line. In 1899, by mutual consent of the two counties and with the approval of the State Legislature, the San Mateo area was extended north six or seven hundred feet, so that the location of the duel was put in San Mateo County at that time. Notwithstanding the fact that the place marked by the committee was originally in San Francisco, there is strong evidence to indicate that the duel took place further down in San Mateo County. I have investigated this, in the archives of the Bancroft Library at Berkeley, and find that the newspapers, "Daily Alta" and "Bulletin," in accounts of the duel state that it took place on a ravine in Davis Ranch in San Mateo County about a mile and a half or two miles south of Lake Merced. This would unquestionably indicate a location different from the one marked by the committee. This evidence is not accepted as conclusive, however. In law, a written document is stronger evidence that human testimony, but writers on historical method are unanimous in urging that written records are to be given precedence over tradition. In spite of this, however, this would seem to be a case where the oral account should be accepted as preponderating the written. The committee employed Herman Schulesler of the Spring Valley Water Company, to whom the land belonged, and he made an exhaustive study of all the records of the company. After he had selected the present place, which is also the traditional spot, he consulted Geo. Green, whose father was keeper of the old Lake Merced boathouse, an eyewitness to the duel. He led Schulesler to this location, saying that his father had years before pointed it out to him as the place where the duel was fought. My personal theory is, that the newspaper reporters confused the duel which was stopped by the peace officers with the one actually fought. Gertrude Atherton says the duel was fought on the shores of the lake, and was witnessed by some seventy-five persons who had journeyed there in wagons, left parked on the shores of the lake. I have visited the monument and studied the contour and vicinity. My inspection convinces me that the water of the lake extended almost to where the monument has been placed, because the soil is marshy nearby and must have been the bed of the lake seventy-two years ago. Unless stronger evidence is found, it is my opinion that the findings of the committee, made in 1917, should stand. The evidence shows that it was intended to fight the duel further down in San Mateo County, September 12, 1859, but the peace officers stopped them; and so the next morning they fought it on the shores of Lake Merced, then in San Francisco County but, since 1899, in San Mateo County.

LIFE IN OLD PUEBLO DAYS

DAYS OF UNTROUBLED HAPPINESS and ease, riding over boundless domains or lounging lazily by the adobe walls of the patios; nights of unrestrained but simple gaiety, singing and dancing under the stars—such was the life in early California. This Utopian land has been much eulogized in song and story, for as one writer has commented, "it would be difficult to find in any age or place a community that got more out of life, and with less trouble, with less wear and wickedness than the people of pastoral California."

Regarding amusements among the utilities of life, the early Spaniards devoted a great deal of their time to pleasure-seeking, dancing, horse riding and racing, cockfighting, bull and bear fights, and hunting. For any excuse whatever a fiesta was celebrated with all its various diversions. "Absolutely unconfined, socially and politically, masters of all their eyes surveyed, the beautiful earth and its fruits as free as the sweet air and sunshine, lands unlimited, cattle on a thousand hills, with ready-made servants to tend them, basking here with none to molest or make afraid . . . how should they be else than happy, than lovers of home and country?"

Life was centered on the ranchos, where in the rambling comfortable haciendas hospitality was unlimited. There the caballeros with their families lived a happy life, spending fully half of their time on horseback. Pastoral California was the day of the horseman, for then it was that the Spaniard and his horse were inseparable companions. The cattle industry greatly encouraged this practice; even the women became adept in riding, throwing the lasso and shooting. Training in horsemanship began at an extremely tender age, children of four and five years often being placed on horse and taught to ride at breakneck speed. "Unhorsed, a Californian considered himself but half a man, and he who was not a skilled rider was looked upon with contempt."

Naturally, the Californians developed forms of amusements that could be enjoyed on horseback. One of these was known as "carrera del gallo," or race for the cock, and was one of the most exciting and lively of the games. "A live cock was buried with the head above ground. At a signal a horseman would start at full speed from a distance of about sixty yards, and if by dexterous swoop he could take the bird by the head he was loudly applauded. Should he fail, he was greeted with derisive laughter, and was sometimes unhorsed with violence, or dragged in the dust at the risk of breaking his limbs or neck. Another amusement was to place on the ground a rawhide, and riding at full speed suddenly rein in the horse the moment his forefeet struck the hide."

One of the most popular sports of the day was horse racing, not only for the participants, but for the onlookers as well, who won and lost many a fortune in the betting. There were likewise bull fights and bull and bear fights, but neither of these were as dangerous sports as those enjoyed in Spain or Mexico. In the bull fights no horses were used and the bull was very seldom killed. In the bull and bear fights both animals were fighting animals.

Strength, dexterity and bravery were required and naturally developed in the early colonists, even in their amusements. One game especially requiring these was the "juego de vara," or the game of rods. "The players formed in a ring, the horses facing inwards. One of the number then rode around the circle, having in his hand a stout rod of quince or other similar wood, which he gave from behind to one of the players. He who received the rod pursued the giver, directing blows at his shoulders which the latter by the exertion of skilful horsemanship endeavored to elude, until by gaining a vacant place in the circle he was exempt from further persecution. This sport was continued for hours, and he who was not a skilled horseman received a good drubbing."

A vital factor in all forms of the Spaniards' amusement was music. "There were songs of the soil, and songs of poets and of troubadours, in this far, lone, beautiful, happy land; and songs that came over from Mother Spain and up from Stepmother Mexico. But everybody sang; and a great many made their own songs, or verses to other songs. Not being musical critics, they felt music, and arrived at it; and the folksong of Spanish America is a treasure of inexhaustible beauty and extent. . . . Song then was born of emotion, and never of the commercial itch. It

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THANKSGIVING DAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1881, was observed in California, alike by the godly and the ungodly, with church services, turkey shoots, sporting events and grand balls in many cities and towns. All the saloons did a rushing business; they dispensed "tom and jerry" for coin of the realm, and served free to all imbibers a roast turkey lunch.

Prices of eatables were reasonable: turkeys, 20 cents pound; chickens, 50 cents each; mallard ducks, 50 cents brace; quail, 75 cents dozen; vegetables, 1 cent to 1½ cents pound; apples, 75 cents box; butter, 35 cents pound; eggs, 35 cents dozen; artichokes, 25 cents dozen. Wheat was selling for $1.67 and barley $1.50 a cental, while hay was $12 a ton.

Eighteen eighty-one was a prosperous year for the state. There was no unsalable surplus of products, and no dearth of employment. Everybody was apparently happy. But there was a foreboding of trouble, as the year drew near its close, for those in certain lines of endeavor.

The California Supreme Court decided the state's Sunday closing law was constitutional, and a new movement, backed by the Good Templars and the churches, was organized to see that it was strictly enforced. But one saloon in Sacramento City closed, however, and in Los Angeles, Stockton and San Francisco the booze emporiums defied the law by keeping open on the Sabbath. In the latter city the wholesale liquor dealers organized a "League of Freedom" to fight for "the liberty of the individual."

In some places those seeking to enforce the law went to extremes; for example: At Watsonville, Santa Cruz County, Edward Martin was arrested and found guilty of selling a San Francisco newspaper on Sunday, and Miss James, a telegraph operator, was arrested for keeping the office open two hours on Sunday.

Then, to add to the Sunday closing turmoil, the lowlands met the highlands in court, in injunction array. Farmers on the east side of the Sacramento Valley proceeded to shut down all the hydraulic mines on the tributaries of the American, Yuba, Bear and Feather Rivers. Suit had been brought in Sacramento County against them, and the famous trial of The People versus the Gold Run Hydraulic Mining Company got under way.

Thousands of men in Placer, Nevada, Sierra, Butte and other counties were thrown out of employment, and business became badly depressed. Many families were reported to be emigrating from the hydraulic mining counties. And so began contests between neighboring communities and citizens of the state that became financially hurtful, and trouble loomed large on the horizon.

CHICAGO IMMIGRANTS BRING SMALLPOX.

Burdette Chandler, boring for oil on the Puente rancho in Los Angeles County, struck a gusher at a depth of 165 feet that was yielding a barrel of "black gold" a minute.

A new town, to be named Crockett, was this month laid out in Contra Costa County on the south shore of Carquinez Straits. It is quite a town now.

R. Nadeau of Los Angeles was preparing an acreage for the planting of 1,000,000 grapevines next season.

Pinkeye broke out among the horses of San Francisco, and 200 of the animals were killed in one day.

A band of gray wolves appeared near Sherlock, Mariposa County, and began subsisting on the goats in that vicinity.

The State Health Board decided smallpox was being brought into California by immigrants coming from Chicago via the Central Pacific. Eleven cases, coming from that city during October, were discovered in California North. The board ordered that all cars be inspected in Placer County in future.

Twelve fire companies from adjacent communities participated in a tournament at Hollister, San Benito County. The Pioneer company of the host-town won the first prize.

The Los Angeles District Fair opened November 1 at Los Angeles City. Although the last of the state's numerous district expositions for the year, it was not the least in exhibits, horseracing or attendance.

A Red Bluff, Tehama County, newspaper reporter, writing an account of a fashionable church wedding there, said: "The bride's dainty feet were encased in fairy-sized white slippers." As published the reference read: "The bride's dirty feet," etc. The reporter, of course, had to leave town.

A cloud of cobwebs, about thirty feet above the ground and extending upward about five hundred feet, passed over Nevada City, Nevada County, November 1 and filled the air with gossamerlike threads. Whence it came and whither bound were unknown.

The Marysville, Yuba County, Savings Bank, to the consternation of the citizens, failed November 8. Its liabilities were $446,000 and its paper assets about the same.

G. Barth of Napa City departed for parts unknown November 16, and with him went some $30,000 left with him for safekeeping by confiding friends.

Because he could not read it, the Timbuctoo, Yuba County, postmaster refused to forward a postcard mailed at his office. It was written in Gaelic.

A transit of Mercury, beginning at 2:07 p.m. of November 7, required five hours and twenty minutes for the planet to cross the sun's face. To the skygazers, it looked like a black walnut moving slowly. As far as California was concerned, the show was a success.

UPPER-LIP ADORNMENT CULTIVATED.

The stage from Sonora, Tuolumne County, to Milton was stopped near the former place November 7 by four masked men. They got $3,200 from the express box and robbed the passengers, getting from one $500.

The stage stables at Susanville, Lassen County, burned November 6 and sixty horses were cremated. A loss of $25,000 was sustained.

An Oakland, Alameda County, fire November 8 caused a $50,000 loss, and one at Modesto, Stanislaus County, November 10, in which one man was cremated, caused a $10,000 loss. Several buildings were destroyed by fire at Anaheim, Orange County, November 15. The Wagner House at Coulterville, Mariposa County, burned November 29; loss $10,000.

During the month fires in San Francisco destroyed eighty-two buildings. The losses, totaling $154,000, were fully covered by insurance.

Captain Edward A. Poole, who came from New Jersey in 1849, died at San Francisco November 8. He established a steamboat line from San Francisco to Sacramento and for many years captained the well-known "Chrysopolis."

An Oroville, Butte County, maiden, being called on at a social function to recite a proverb, gave this: "A kiss untickled by a moustache is like an egg without a yolk." The town's young blades immediately began cultivating an upper-lip adornment.

William H. Patterson, who came in 1857, died at San Francisco November 14. He was a leading attorney.

Dan A. Rice, one of the first locators on Rattlesnake Bar in the '50s, died at Newcastle, Placer County, November 26.

Frank Hudson, a 14-year-old Grass Valley, Nevada County, lad, was killed by the accidental discharge of his shotgun while hunting quail.

Engineer James McGregor was killed at Plymouth, Amador County, November 5, when the boiler at the Empire mine exploded.

CALIFORNIA'S TAXABLE WEALTH

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

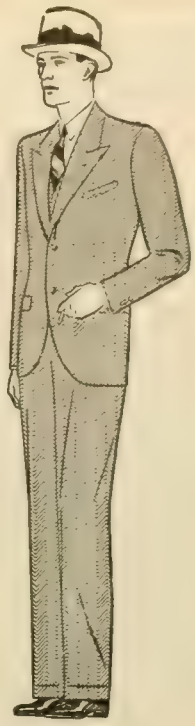
THE GRAND TOTAL 1931 ASSESSED value of all taxable property in the State of California is, according to a statement of State Controller Ray L. Riley, $9,402,188,441, a decrease, compared with the 1930 value, $10,203,866,630, of $801,678,189. The total indebtedness of the fifty-eight counties of the state went up from $188,866,324 last year to $201,724,158 this year, an increase of $12,857,834. Here are other comparative figures:

Value of real estate: $3,867,173,026 (1930), $3,786,492,171 (1931); a 1931 decrease of $80,680,855. Value of improvements on real estate: $2,143,372,981 (1930), $2,191,885,304 (1931); a 1931 increase of $48,512,323. Value of personal property: $962,028,425 (1930), $764,220,678 (1931); a 1931 decrease of $197,807,747. Money: $2,591,679 (1930), $2,762,926 (1931); a 1931 increase of $171,247. Solvent credits: $499,841,574 (1930), $358,227,892 (1931); a 1931 decrease of $141,613,682. Stocks, bonds, notes, etc.: $1,334,481,852 (1930), $874,496,022 (1931); a 1931 decrease of $486,985,830.

It will be noted from the figures above that, while the 1931 real estate assessment is decreased $80,680,855, the improvements assessment is increased $48,512,323, so the net decrease on real estate and improvements is but a paltry $32,168,532. On the other hand, the personal property assessment is decreased $197,807,747, the solvent credits assessment $141,613,682, the stocks, bonds and notes assessment $486,985,830, a grand total for these three sources of tax revenue of $826,407,259. From these facts, it is plainly evident that realty is unjustly discriminated against — shamefully and ruinfully tax burdened!

Value of non-operative property: $8,809,489,537 (1930), $7,951,084,993 (1931); a 1931 decrease of $858,404,544. Value of property assessed on operative roll: $1,059,392,248 (1930), $1,134,632,514 (1931); a 1931 increase of $75,240,266. Value of railroads, as assessed by State Board Equalization: $334,984,845 (1930), $316,470,934 (1931); a 1931 decrease of $18,513,911.

Los Angeles continues as the richest county, according to assessment figures, in the state. Its 1931 grand total of all property is $3,943,778,468; the 1930 total was $4,514,261,968; a 1931 decrease of $570,483,500. The peak-year in this county was 1929, when the assessment totaled $4,522,926,824; in two years, therefore, the assessment-figures show a decrease of $579,148,356. The county's indebtedness has increased from $9,952,188 in 1930 to $10,324,601 in 1931. The county's tax rate has been lowered from $1.369 (inside) $1.619 (outside) in 1930 to $1.334 (inside) $1.484 (outside) in 1931. This tax rate, it should be borne in mind, is for Los Angeles County; the total Los Angeles City tax rate for 1931-32 is $4.27 per $100 valuation; for 1930-31 it totaled $4.28. The county has 1,278,434 acres of assessed land. More than 41 percent of the whole state's taxable property is in this one county.



San Francisco, the only combined city-and-county subdivision of California, is the next richest. Its 1931 grand total assessment, $1,640,760,958, is a decrease of $101,698,785, compared with the 1930 total of $1,742,459,743. Last year was San Francisco's peak-assessment year. Its indebtedness has increased from $137,729,400 in 1930 to $152,599,300 in 1931. This year's tax rate, $4.04, is the same as that for last year. San Francisco has but 29,888 acres of assessed land.

County	1931	1930
Alameda	$587,867,173	$602,733,625
San Diego	253,647,549	278,043,620
Kern	216,814,425	221,391,937
Fresno	204,589,219	211,437,014
Orange	187,226,048	206,832,045
Sacramento	176,771,004	178,394,240
Santa Barbara	156,940,051	160,908,377
Santa Clara	145,812,454	146,760,202
San Bernardino	136,033,314	140,025,917
San Joaquin	134,198,792	149,870,943
Ventura	119,181,867	124,720,684
Contra Costa	112,641,523	116,053,724

All these counties show a decrease for 1931, compared with 1930: Alameda, $14,866,452; San Diego, $24,396,071; Kern, $4,577,512; Fresno, $6,847,795; Orange, $19,605,997; Sac-

Native Daughters of the Golden West

HOLLISTER — THE TENTH ANNUAL district meeting of the Parlors of Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Benito Counties at Happy Valley, near Santa Cruz, September 19 and 20, was an outstanding event in the circles of the Order. All the Parlors were well represented. The gathering opened with a Saturday evening dinner at which Supervising Deputy Rose Rhyner was toastmistress. The tables were charmingly decorated in Hallowe'en colors by Santa Cruz No. 26. Each Parlor had been asked to prepare an original "booster" song setting forth the Order's achievements and purposes. These showed great ability on the part of the composers, that submitted by San Juan Bautista No. 179 being particularly well received. An informal meeting followed, and among the speakers were Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs, District Deputies Blanche Taix, Pearl Reid and Alta Macaulay.

Adjournment was then taken to the dance hall, where the principles and projects of the Order were presented in pageant form. Copa de Oro No. 105 exemplified the principles upon which the Order is founded—"Love of Home, Veneration of the Pioneers, Devotion to the Flag, and an Abiding Faith in the Existence of God." San Juan Bautista No. 179 exemplified the work the Order is doing in the way of preserving and restoring historic landmarks, directing particular attention to the landmarks of San Benito County. Aleli No. 102 presented Mary E. Brusie, engaged in the splendid work of caring for homeless children; members of the Parlor represented adopted children who have been carefully reared in the homes of foster parents; a wonderful box of dainty garments, made by Aleli girls, manifested keen interest in doing their bit to provide for helpless little tots. Santa Cruz No. 26 exemplified the great work it is doing to assist in caring for veterans of the World War. Games, dancing, a "midnite feed" and the usual serenade during early morning hours closed a happy evening. Sunday opened with a pajama breakfast, after which sports were enjoyed until noontime. During luncheon Grand President Carlson gave a brief talk and commended the Parlors of the district for their activities. Story telling and community singing by the eighty-two in attendance added to the happiness of the occasion.

Assists at Neighbor's Reorganization.

Sierraville—Imogen No. 134 had its annual reunion recently for the Pioneers, whose ranks are fast thinning. The guest of honor was "Grandma" Emma Perry, 90 years of age. The festal board was beautifully decorated in a rose-colored scheme. Among the speakers were Past Grand President Emma Lou Humphrey and two of Sierra Valley's Pioneers. Many of the members appeared in old-fashioned garments, ransacked from local storerooms, thus giving an early-day atmosphere to the occasion.

Sixteen members of the Parlor motored to Downieville October 2 to assist in the reorganization of Naomi No. 36. Fifteen candidates were initiated, the officers of Imogen exemplifying the ritual. Officers of Naomi were installed by District Deputy Neva McMahon, Irene Carter becoming president. A chicken supper was served. A color scheme of green was carried out, with a corsage of rosebuds and maidenhair fern at each place. The decorations and corsages were the gift of Past Grand President Humphrey. Thus came to a perfect end a beautiful Indian summer day.

New Parlors in Prospect.

San Bernardino—Lugonia No. 241 had a large attendance at its pot-luck supper October 14. Among the visitors were District Deputy Hazel Hansen and a delegation from Verdugo No. 240 (Glendale). Entertainment followed the dinner, and at the Parlor meeting Mrs. Hansen, who is also vice-chairman of the Grand Parlor Extension of the Order Committee, announced that plans are under way for the formation of parlors in Ontario, Chino, Redlands and Riverside.

October 24 Lugonia had a bridge tea and fashion show for the benefit of its Loyalty Pledge fund; Gladys Baker was in charge. October 28 several candidates were initiated, committees were named for the annual Christmas children's party, and plans for 1932 activities were formulated. The parlor was represented in the October 30 mardigras by a float of humorous nature; a committee headed by Rhoda Smith had charge.

State Flag Given School.

Oakland—The monthly whist of Aloha No. 106 October 13 was largely attended and greatly enjoyed; refreshments were served; Irma S. Murray was chairman of the committee. A tea was sponsored October 24 at the home of Jennie Peterson for the benefit of the Luther Burbank foundation fund. The Parlor joined with Athens No. 195 N.S.G.W. October 27 for a Hallowe'en party; entertainment and refreshments were in keeping with the occasion.

October 16 Aloha presented a California State (Bear) Flag to the Jefferson school in East Oakland. Gladys I. Farley was chairman of the day, and Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler made the presentation address. The Parlor has under way plans for an Armistice Day dance November 10, and a dinner at the home of Mary Dowd Reardon November 16.

The Perfect Meeting.

San Jose—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson was royally received by Vendome No. 100 October 7, the occasion of her official visit. Members of the past presidents club and officers of the Parlor acted as a reception committee. The latter wore white evening gowns and carried arm boquets of long-stemmed yellow chrysanthemums. The Grand President's party included Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Grand Trustee Ethel Begley, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Past Grand President Emma G. Foley, Supervising Deputy Clara Gairaud, District Deputies Ida Sweeney, Catherine Derry, Geraldine Brown, Marie Buck, Catherine Keating, Emma O'Meara, Pauline Cleu, Ada May Silva, Augusta Huxol. It was one of the most brilliant affairs in the history of the Parlor, with a record attendance of visitors. Delegations from fifteen Parlors were present, among them being the surprise delegation from the Grand President's Parlor, Dolores No. 169 (San Francisco). Mrs. Carlson was the recipient of gifts and flowers. A dinner preceded the official visit, and refreshments were served at the close of "the perfect meeting," the verdict of those present. Vendome expects to receive a large class of candidates before the close of this term.

The Santa Clara County Pioneer Association was entertained by the Parlor September 30. Luncheon at noon was followed by a program presented by Clara Gairaud and Tillie Brohaska. Dorothy Lorentz, Hazel Haub and Gertrude Mathers were the soloists, while Congressman Arthur Free (Observatory No. 177 N.S.G.W.) and Judge Urban Sontheimer (San Jose No. 22 N.S.G.W.) were the principal speakers. A round table of reminiscences, during which the Pioneers took part, proved extremely interesting. Mrs. Julia Waddington was in charge of the luncheon. A card party was held October 14, with Gertrude Musser as chairman. Hazel Haub was chairman of the annual Hallowe'en party. The one hundred dollar Christmas gift party will be held early in December; Clara Gairaud is the general chairman, and a large crowd is expected.

Contest Losers To Serve Dinner.

Santa Ana—The first of a series of winter Santa Ana No. 235 card parties was given September 22 at the home of Mrs. Wm. West, who was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Mize. A silver offering social, the proceeds to go to the fund for the preservation of the Luther Burbank home, was held September 29 at the home of Mrs. Walter Hiskey; bridge and five hundred were played. The Parlor presented a silver cake dish to its recent bride, formerly Marjory Reed, now Mrs. Marjory Hall.

District Deputy Hazel Hansen was a visitor at the September 28 meeting, when announcement was made that the losers in a membership contest would give a dinner for the winners November 1; Mrs. Gertrude Carter is chairman of arrangements. Mrs. Genevieve Hiskey was appointed chairman of the thimble club.

Service One of Life's Highest Goals.

Willows—Youth and age alike enjoyed themselves at Berryessa No. 192's annual entertainment for the oldtimers September 28. The guests were given a warm welcome and were seated at tables attractively decorated with flowers. President Aileen Murphy presided, and Mrs. Edna Knight was the speaker of the evening. "Service for one's fellowman is one of the highest goals one may have in life," said Mrs. Knight, who compared the life led by Father Junipero Serra to the lives of the later Pioneers of California.

After the dinner a puppet show, "Red Riding Hood," was presented under the supervision of Mrs. Marvin Deter, who was assisted by Frances and Vivian Turman, Maxine Jansen, Betty Sanderson and Irene Boyd. Other entertainment features, all of which were greatly enjoyed, were presented by "Chiquita," Edith Smith, Mrs. Frank Turman, "The Victorians," Mrs. Norma Snowden and Mrs. Laura Cummins.

Hotel Information
In SAN FRANCISCO the POWELL HOTEL, 17 Powell Street at Market, is in the center of convenience. Room rates per day are from $2 to $3.50 for one person, and $2.50 to $4 for two persons. Special weekly and monthly rates.
On arrival in LOS ANGELES start right—at STILLWELL HOTEL, 836 South Grand Avenue. Fireproof, all outside rooms. Most convenient in shopping and theatrical district. Rates per day: one person, $2.00, $2.50; two persons, $2.50, $3.50.

179 sponsored a delightful surprise party October 7 in honor of Past President Catherine Breen Nyland's golden wedding anniversary. The color scheme of gold was carried out in every detail. Following delicious refreshments, toasts, presentations of gifts and the singing of songs popular fifty years ago rounded out a happy occasion. Mrs. Nyland, a member of the Parlor, is a daughter of John Breen, who came to California with the Reed-Donner Party.

Mrs. Charlotte Breen-Obenchain, sister of Past President Nyland and Recording Secretary Gertrude Breen of the Parlor, passed away October 15 at Medford, Oregon.

Past Presidents and Grand Officers Guests.

Sacramento—Sutter No. 111 entertained October 6 its past presidents and some of the grand officers. Each past president received a token, and the following grand officers received gifts and flowers: Grand Trustee Edna Briggs, Supervising Deputies Bessie Leitch and Ethel Ludwig, District Deputies Mayme McCormick, Nellie Nordstrom, Doris Fisher and Sadie Brainard. President Lorene Patterson presented to the Parlor a California State (Bear) Flag and fittingly commented on the flag's history. A program was presented by Velverine and Viola Steen, Emilie Lachmann, Ida Merwin, Margaret Nix and the Sutter Parlor glee club.

Lorraine Williams was chairman of the banquet which concluded the occasion. She was assisted by the following hostesses, each of whom presided at a table on which a different color scheme was used in the decorations: Ida Merwin, Lily Tilden, Audrey Brown, Dora Hubert, Hazel Wygant, Emilie Lachmann, Lorene Patterson and Lavinia Bennetts.

New Entertainment Feature.

Oroville—Short talks on the history of California's pioneer families by Mms. Maggie D. Bowers and Sonora Steadman were given at the October 7 meeting of Gold of Ophir No. 190, thus inaugurating a new departure in entertainment features planned by President Jessie Hoover. One candidate was initiated and refreshments were served.

Butte County Past Presidents Association was entertained at the home of Misses Mattie and Irene Lund October 2. In recognition of her fifty-third wedding anniversary Mrs. Mattie Kesselring was presented with a gift, Mrs. Margaret Hudspeth making the presentation on behalf of the association. The annual banquet of the association will be held at Richardson Springs November 4.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of November, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

2nd—Oakdale No. 125, Oakdale.
3rd—Veritas No. 75, Merced.
4th—Eldora No. 248, Turlock.
9th—Eschol No. 16, Napa.
11th—Placer No. 138, Lincoln.
12th—Eltapome No. 55, Weaverville.
14th—Lassen View No. 98, Shasta; Camellia No. 41, Anderson; Hiawatha No. 140, Redding; Berendos No. 23, Red Bluff; jointly at Redding.
16th—Palo Alto No. 229, Palo Alto.
17th—Richmond No. 147, Richmond.
18th—Minerva No. 2, San Francisco.
19th—Santa Rosa No. 217, Santa Rosa.
24th—Bret Harte No. 232, San Francisco.
30th—San Francisco district meeting.

"How a Woman Keeps a Secret."

Oakland—Piedmont No. 87 September 24 had what it terms "oldtimers night," an evening annually set aside by the Parlor to entertain, in particular, the older members. At the close of the meeting the committee presented a one-act play, "How a Woman Keeps a Secret;" from its title, one may easily judge it was a comedy. After this a mystery bag was set up, and from it a lot of fun was derived. Rose Martinelli and her committee then invited all to the banquet-room, to feast on spaghetti, french bread and home-made cakes.

Interest in Membership Drive.

Fullerton -Grace No. 242 is having a drive for new members. The entire membership is divided under two captains, and much interest is manifest. The losing side will entertain with a dinner at the close of the contest. The Parlor had a public card party October 1, sponsored by the ways and means committee. It was a success, both socially and financially. District Deputy Ora Evans and party from Californiana No. 247 (Los Angeles) were present.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

FASHIONABLE GIRLS LIKE THE SIMple coats. First of all, comfortable and warm coats that they may thoroughly enjoy. For girls from six to fourteen coats are made of tweeds, chinchillas, camel hair, fleeces and some suede-finished fabrics. But in girls' coats, as well as those for adults, the rougher surfaced fabrics are the most fashionable. Sometimes they are fur-trimmed, and sometimes they are not so adorned. Usually durable furs like racoon, opossum, nutria and beaver are used, but occasionally squirrel trims a dressier coat or a tiny touch of leopard is used on the sporty model.

The older girl wears much the same style coat as that of her mother—a monotone tweed with a shawl collar of racoon. The dark tones of the fur blend nicely with brown and biege diagonal tweed. Sometimes the coats are cut with the new deep, roomy armholes. They are dress length, and belted snugly. Some have raglan sleeves, some set-in, and a few, mostly for the bigger girls, have the new dolman sleeve. Some of the sleeves have fullness at the elbow or below, just as do grown-ups' coat sleeves. There are lots of buttons on girls' coats—another good adult fashion for girls, as is the belt. If you want your young daughter to look like the Empress Eugenie, as do many mothers, there are dressy coats with little capelets that look like the tiny capes and yokes that were worn in those days for school wear.

The brown jersey frock for utility is worn beneath the tweed coat and has a pleated skirt and a blouse with detachable collar and cuffs. A bolero frock of crepe-de-chine is equally smart, with its velveteen bolero or without it. Fagoting is used to trim this dainty dress.

Taffeta has an important air, and little girls love to wear it. A dress of this material has a circular skirt with a long-waisted bodice. The joining has a diagonal line finished with two circular tiers at the hip-line. The sash and shoulder bow match the rosebud printed silk. Of course, the little party dresses are adorable with the new puffed sleeves now being worn. Many clever ideas are worked out for the little ones. There is the seamless bolero, which is cut like a bed coat. It adds charm to the youngster's dainty frock. Taffeta not only rustles by itself in frocks for the small child, but is also used under lace for the debutante.

When the new hats first appeared everyone agreed that they would call for special clothes. Period styles have appeared, mostly for evening dresses. Something else happened, also, to make the new clothes look right with the new hats, so wide sleeves came in—the big surprise of the season.

Sleeves are very elaborate, with cuffs applied at any hight. While elbow puffs are on many models, some have detachable sleeves, the removal of which entirely alters the frock. The coat dress is with us again, and may be created of canton crepe or silk-and-wool combination, a splendid style for the stout figure.

It is just a matter of selecting, from all the fashionable things, those that do not emphasize oversize. There is no need for any woman to look as though she had suddenly gained flesh when she puts on this fall's clothes. Some of the styles play into the hands of the large woman. The silhouette is not necessarily very slim. As a matter of fact, it has more curves than it has had for a long time, and wider shoulders.

The smart, large woman, like the women of every size, this year starts selecting her dresses by buying, first, a new corset—one that makes her figure. Then she can wear the new coat dress, the convenient one that goes on and fastens like a coat. It is adjustable and may be wrapped as tight or as loose as is becoming. The smartest coat dress is the one that fastens over in the diagonal closing, and it happens to be the best type for the large woman. The one-sided rever is another smart idea for the coat dress, as it breaks the line at the bust.

The wide crushed belt may be worn when it is the same color and material as the dress. Don't wear contrasting colors in your belts. They emphasize the waist-line and the difference in size. Narrow banding of flat fur is a good trim, because of the soft line it gives around the neck. Avoid wide fur banding or furs that add bulk, as they make one seem heavier. And there are many kinds of new sleeves that help to equalize or balance large parts of the figure, making less marked the difference in sizes between waist, hips and bust.

Smartest new woolens are sheer and fine. Smartest silks are dull finished. Thus they are both helpful to the large figure. Skirts long enough to cover the most of the leg are what every woman wears, whether she be large or small. Satin is a fabric that plays an important role in groups, and while the shiny surface is frequently chosen for the entire frock, there are many examples of the use of crepe satin with both dull and lustrous surfaces. This combination of the two is offered in interesting fashion with alternate bands and curved panels. Often the dull surface is introduced in a yoke that forms the hip-line and waist-line section of the frock, thus giving a slender appearance at that portion of the figure.

Colors are richer. Fewer pastel shades are being worn, the general taste running to wines and carmines, a new bright blue and browns of every hue. Brown combined with fall oak-leaf tones is the principal shade this season for women's suits, dresses and coats. Next in preference is black, green or dark blue.

Coats are plain, and adaptable in soft tweeds with fur trimmings. The line is very neat and the material often contrasts with the material of the dress or hat with which it is worn.

Hats are small but usually have a tiny brim, either turned up cuff-like against the crown or slightly drooping or sloping over one eye. Several models suggest Tyrolean inspiration. Because of this feature, we see the brush and small quill ornament poised high at the side back crown. All felts used are thin, supple and usually plain. Crowns are still shallow and close to the head, and are often fitted with darts or raised tucks.

All trimming motifs are small and perky, ranging from crisp, pointed quills to odd-shaped motifs in flat fur. Broadtail or galyok and ostrich feathers are not only coming into their own again on hats, but are used for fans.

If your new fall dresses don't look good on you, look to your lingerie. It is almost as disastrous to wear last fall's lingerie as last year's dresses. The new lingerie is cut to fit like the new dresses—smooth and sleek. Hips are smoother and narrower, with the fullness taken out. New chemises, slips and panties are cut on the bias and seamed diagonally. They hug the outlines of the figure almost as close as your own skin, and without the use of elastic.

Some of the new panties, in fact, have no fullness, but fit the thighs and are made with flat yoke all around or flat waistband. Chemises and slips are designed much the same through the waist section, with V-shaped cutting and seaming.

BOOK REVIEWS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

"SWINGING THE CENSER."
By Katherine M. Bell; Finlay Press, Hartford, Connecticut, Publisher; Price $2.75.

"Swinging the Censer" is a collection of selected reminiscences of Old Santa Barbara related by Mrs. Katherine M. Bell, who was born there July 22, 1844, and passed away June 9, 1926. All her life having been spent in that city, she had first-hand knowledge of the events and the personages referred to. Mrs. Bell was the daughter of Dr. Nicholas A. Den, a native of Ireland who reached Santa Barbara July 8, 1836, and Rosa A. Hill, daughter of Daniel Hill, a native of Massachusetts who came to California in 1822 as first officer of the sailing vessel "Rover," and Rafael Luisa Ortega, direct descendant of Jose Maria Ortega who, as commander of Spanish soldiers, came to San Diego in 1799. "Never was Irish, Spanish and Puritan blood better blended than in Katherine M. Bell," writes C. A. Storke.

The volume deals in a most pleasing way with history and romance of early California, particularly that associated with Santa Barbara. Homage is paid to Concepcion Arguello ("La Beata")—San Francisco heroine of a romance of 1806 immortalized by Bret Harte in his poem, "Concepcion de Arguello,"—for some time a resident of Santa Barbara and who the author, "as a child, knew and loved." "Dark Transition Days, Black Pages in the History of Santa Barbara," tells of the career of the notorious Jack Powers and his lawless band. "Santa Barbara's Royal Sunday, October 12, 1919," appeared originally in The Grizzly Bear. Among the many other reminiscences are: "Santa Barbara's First Circus," "A Midnight Reverie," "Memories of Far-off Days" and "The Story of Manuelita, a True Romance of Old California."

Mrs. Bell dedicated these reminiscences to her grandchildren, and her children—Katherine Bell-Cheney, Caroline Bell-Luton, Mary Bell-Cheney and Charles Den Bell—in turn dedicated "Swinging the Censer" to her memory. The memorial volume is embellished with drawings by Margaret Webb and portraits of the author in costumes of various periods.

WINTER VINEYARD

(TED ROBINS.)

As to cold sky the impotent mother lifts
Imploring arms in confident despair,
So the gray earth breaks somnolence with prayer,
Raising her dark dry vines. The pale sand sifts
Through the gnarled fingers and in sullen drifts
Covers the iron-strong wrists, the rusty hair
Of summer grasses. The resentful air
Mourns drowsily late autumn's vanished gifts.

Where is the fire of the grape, the gleam
Presaging passion, the virility
To still the whimpers of the winds that grieve?
Waked from the twilight of a somber dream,
Forced by the sun to new fertility,
The earth, like some lean Sarah, must conceive.
—University California Chronicle.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT DEVELOPS NEW FROZEN FRUIT PRODUCT.

A new and delicious type of frozen fruit product has been developed by experiments in the United States Department of Agriculture and offers new possibilities for the utilization of various fruits, according to Dr. F. C. Blanck, in charge of the food research division of the bureau of chemistry and soils. Experiments at the bureau's laboratory of fruit and vegetable chemistry in Los Angeles, have included peaches, apricots, plums, cherries, pears, raspberries and strawberries.

"By pulping the pitted fruit, adding a sugar syrup of proper concentration, mixing it thoroughly, and then freezing it at very low temperatures, department chemists have developed a frozen fruit product with a remarkably smooth texture and with the full retention of the original flavor which makes it suitable, and acceptable for direct consumption," says Dr. Blanck.

"If the results measure up to their present promise, this new type of frozen product will offer a new outlet for the fruit grower and packer, besides furnishing the ice-cream manufacturer and soda-fountain operator with a new and highly desirable fruit base, as well as a new frozen fruit product for direct consumption in the frozen state."

AUBURN—THE OLD EMIGRANT TRAIL from Auburn to Lake Tahoe—a line of march vividly reminiscent of the early California rush period, when wagons of emigrant trains crossed the summit of the Sierra at an elevation of more than 8,000 feet to seek the fertile valleys of the interior or to search for gold in the rugged mountains,—has been marked by an expedition sent out on horseback by Auburn No. 59, consisting of Wendell T. Robie, who was in charge, Earl Lukens, Dr. Conrad Briner, Lavelle Shields, William Patrick and Supervisor M. C. Langstaff. Four days were required for the jaunt.

At the summit the party placed a Flag of the United States of America on the monument erected by Robert "Bob" Watson, 80-year-old Tahoe City constable, who made the last two days of the trip, from Robertson's Flat to Tahoe City, with the party. The trail is now marked so clearly that parties desiring to retrace the steps of the hardy Pioneers would have no difficulty in following it from Auburn to the lake. It is a beautiful trip, too, and presents some of the most naturally wonderful views in California.

A committee from the Parlor—Alvin Waddle, Arnold Dorer, Matt Langstaff and Wendell Robie—went to the Placer County Big Tree Grove October 4 and planted several sequoia gigantaes. These California big trees are found only in a few isolated groves. The Placer County grove, the most northern, contains eight mature standing trees, but they are not reproducing themselves.

Admission Day Parade Awards.

Los Angeles—Winners of awards in the Admission Day parade were announced October 13 by Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger as follows:

Most authentic and beautiful float with best presented marching unit—San Francisco Parlors N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W., and Santa Barbara County Parlors N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W., grand sweepstakes.

WE REALLY OUGHT TO GO.

There is a brother, O, my brother,
Whose pulse is sinking low;
It is now we ought to see him,
And we really ought to go.

We might be down with sorrow
'Till our backs begin to bow,
But let us see our brother,
For we really ought to go.

For if there comes the reaper
And his life would choose to mow,
We would be very sorry,
So we really ought to go.

And a very little visit
Might cheer a heart that's low
And perhaps would cast some sunshine;
O, we really ought to go.

Let's not sing in sorrow
In the yard where poppies grow,
But at once to see our brother
O, God, do let us go!

And when I get to Heaven
I really want to know
That I've often seen my brother,
For I really ought to go.

There is a place in Heaven
Where the good are known to go
And I am sure it there is written,
You really ought to go.

(The above is published at the request of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. It was written by Owen S. Adams, second vice-president, and by him read before the Parlor at a recent meeting.—Editor.)

Public School Dedicated.

Antioch—Under the auspices of General Winn No. 32 the grand officers dedicated October 11 Antioch's new $145,000 high school in the presence of 500 people. A program was presented, including vocal and instrumental selections, and addresses by Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand President; William H. Hanlon, superintendent Contra Costa County schools; Mrs. R. L. Knight, president Antioch-Live Oak P.T.A.; Lester J. Bower, commander Harding Post American Legion; Judge Fletcher A. Cutler, Past Grand President.

Commander Bower, on behalf of the American Legion, and Judge Cutler, on behalf of General Winn Parlor, presented, respectively, to the school United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags. They were accepted by Miss Verna Marchetti and Miss Emma Dragon of the student body.

Humboldt Past Presidents Organize.

Ferndale—Humboldt Past Presidents Assembly No. 13 was instituted at Eureka by officers of the General Assembly. A banquet attended by past presidents of the Humboldt County Parlors—Humboldt No. 14 (Eureka), Arcata No. 20 and Ferndale No. 93—preceded the ceremonies. R. H. Flowers of Ferndale became the first governor. The Assembly meets monthly, alternating between the three Parlors. The next meeting will be at Eureka, with Humboldt No. 14.

A whist tournament between Ferndale and Humboldt has been arranged for the winter. A series of basketball games will be played by Arcata and Ferndale; these contests promise to be big drawing cards.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1931, as follows, together with their membership figures October 20, 1931:

Parlor	Jan. 1	Oct. 20	Gain	Loss

Initiation at Historic Shrine.

Sacramento—Sacramento No. 3, Sunset No. 26 and La Bandera No. 110 N.D.G.W. had a Hallowe'en party October 16 in honor of La Bandera's drill team, which made its first public appearance. Hallowe'en motifs were used in the decorations. Cards and dancing were in order, and refreshments were served.

Under the auspices of General John A. Sutter Assembly of Past Presidents, the Sacramento County Parlors of Native Sons will conduct a joint class initiation at Sutter Fort, Tuesday night, November 10.

November 14 the Sacramento City Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters will have their annual charity ball, for the benefit of the homeless children, at Memorial Auditorium. A. W. Katzenstein heads the general committee of arrangements.

"Days of '49" Celebration.

Sonoma—Sonoma No. 111 will stage its annual "Days of '49" celebration November 13 and 14. Friday night will be given over to a banquet for men only. Saturday night a dance will be featured. Other events, to round out a most complete program, are being arranged, and the carnival spirit will reign throughout the celebration.

The committee in charge is composed of C. E. Bacigalupi (chairman), Emil Andrieux, David J. Eraldi, Joe Andrieux, A. Barrachi, Fred Batto Jr. and Joe Keiser.

Library Gets Valued Gift.

Livermore Las Positas No. 96 has presented to the California history section of the local public library an illustrated bound volume of fifty-three typewritten pages dealing with the history of the Livermore Valley. It is a compilation of the essays written by the history students of the Livermore high school in competition in the annual contest sponsored by the Parlor.

The volume is dedicated to Robert Livermore, after whom the valley was named: "In reverent memory of him who had courage to brave the unknown, perseverance to hold his own, willingness to do the right, friendliness for all in plight—Robert Livermore."

Ritual Contest Beneficial.

San Rafael—Marin County Past Presidents Assembly was reorganized through the untiring efforts of James F. Stanley October 5. Ten candidates were initiated by San Francisco Assembly No. 1, Jos. S. Rosa becoming governor. The reorganized Assembly meets alternately, beginning October, the first Monday at the hall of Mount Tamalpais No. 64 in San Rafael, and the first Wednesday at the hall of Sea Point No. 158 in Sausalito. Mount Tamalpais' drum and bugle corps won first prize at the San Francisco Columbus Day celebration October 11.

Much interest is manifest in the ritual contest between Mount Tamalpais and Sea Point, to be held November 17. The trophy, a gavel block surmounted by a bronze bear, is now in possession of the former Parlor. To hold the trophy either Parlor must win two out of three contests. Much interest has been stimulated by these contests, which have been held annually the past four years, and through them an unusually high standard of ritual efficiency is maintained.

Thanksgiving Eve Ball.

Colusa—Colusa No. 69 entertained a large number of guests September 28, including Native Sons and Daughters of Sutter City and members of Colusa No. 194 N.D.G.W. The hall was attractively decorated with the Order's colors. The evening was spent at cards and dancing, after which refreshments were served.

Thanksgiving Eve, November 25, the Parlor will sponsor a dance, proceeds from which will go to the fund being raised to erect a memorial in Will S. Green Park, Colusa's largest public square. The arrangements committee includes Phil Humburg Jr. (chairman), Percy Cooke, Will L. Ash, S. A. Ottenwalter and Erwin Burtis.

Charter Member Dead.

Napa City—Robert Parker Lamdin, a charter member and for forty-six years the treasurer of Napa No. 62, died September 25 survived by a wife. He was born here September 19, 1860, and was one of the best-known and most-respected citizens of Napa County.

Opinions Which Should be Heeded.

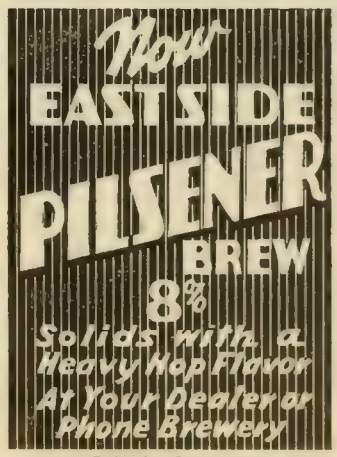
Madera—Madera No. 130 entertained San Joaquin Past Presidents Assembly No. 7, September 24, and members of the Order from Fresno, Merced and Madera were present in goodly numbers. A roast pig banquet was served. Great satisfaction was expressed for the wholesome reception given the visitors.

W. J. Mitchell (Fresno No. 25) was the toastmaster. The various speakers expressed the opinion that Native Sons should be foremost in endeavoring to impress on eligibles their duty to California through affiliation with the Order; also, that efforts should be consolidated to impress on members the importance of attending their Parlor meetings and taking an active interest in the Order. At the conclusion of the feast the Assembly had a business session.

Good Cause.

Menlo Park—Menlo No. 185 and Menlo No. 211 N.D.G.W. sponsored a garden party October 18 at the home of Mrs. Peter E. Bush for the benefit of the unemployment fund of Menlo Park. The sale of candy, ice cream, cakes, etc., helped to swell the fund. Prominent among those working for the good cause were Harry Weeden, C. T. Maloney, Phil Blanchard, Eugene Crane, E. J. Derry, Frances Maloney and Catherine Derry.

PINK LEMONS GROW IN CALIFORNIA.



Pink lemons have been found growing on a tree at Burbank, Los Angeles County, according to an announcement of the Federal Agricultural Department. "However, the tree is a rare specimen, and there is little chance of the pink lemonade industry switching to the new lemons for raw material. The tree is a bud sport (or freak) of the variegated Eureka lemon, which was developed from a limb variation of the Eureka lemon, discovered in 1911."

SAN FRANCISCO

THE BIG CITY  THAT KNOWS HOW

NAPA CITY—THE ELEVENTH ANNUAL session of the General Assembly of the N.S.G.W. Past Presidents Association was held here October 11, under the auspices of Napa-Solano Counties Assembly No. 11, with fifty officers and delegates in attendance. The reports of the officers showed that during the year Humboldt County Assembly No. 13 had been instituted and Marin County Assembly No. 5 reorganized. Total membership of the General Assembly, as of June 30, 1931, was 829, a gain of twenty-six for the fiscal year.

Resolutions pertaining to immigration were adopted, among them one opposing application of the quota to Asiatics. Sacramento City was named as the meeting place of the 1932 session of the General Assembly, the date being October 15. The following officers were elected:

Louis J. Erb (San Francisco Assembly No. 1), governor general; Arthur J. Cleu (East Bay Assembly No. 3), junior past governor general; J. J. Longshore (General John A. Sutter Assembly No. 10), lieutenant-governor general; James F. Stanley (San Francisco Assembly No. 1), director general; John T. Regan (San Francisco Assembly No. 1), secretary-treasurer general; Frank Roemer (East Bay Assembly No. 3), marshal general; Frank Harrison (Napa-Solano Assembly No. 11), guard general; Frank Wilhelm (San Francisco Assembly No. 1), sentinel general; R. L. P. Bigelow (Fred H. Greely Assembly No. 6), W. A. Strong (San Joaquin Assembly No. 7), A. Gudehus (San Francisco Assembly No. 1), trustees general.

At the conclusion of the business session a banquet was served, with George Wineger as the toastmaster. Speakers included Louis F. Erb; Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig and Grand Trustee Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., representing the Order of Native Sons; Arthur J. Cleu, J. J. Longshore, James F. Stanley, John T. Regan, Ed. L. Webber and Lowell Palmer. Splendid entertainment features were introduced.

The Past Presidents Association started in San Francisco about thirty years ago, and in time similar organizations came into being in various counties of the state. In 1921, at the suggestion of the parent body, the General Assembly was organized and it now has thirteen subordinate assemblies, all doing effective work for the advancement of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

SALUTES TO ARGONAUTS.

To perpetuate in public interest the achievements of those Argonauts who originated the Society of California Pioneers in San Francisco, the society has arranged a series of salutes. Membership in the society was limited to those Pioneers who arrived in California prior to January 1, 1850. Of the founders, but five are alive—Jules Aroudou and J. H. P. Gedge of San Francisco, Frances Doud of Monterey City, and Sam Brannan Jr. of San Diego City.

The first salute, October 15, honored Louis Sloss. A native of Germany, he arrived at Sacramento in August 1849 and conducted a wholesale grocery there until 1862, when he took up his residence in San Francisco, where he died in 1902. Thirty-six of his descendants attended the function. Among the speakers were Judge M. C. Sloss, C. C. Moore, James N. Gillett, Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, Leland W. Cutler and Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand President N.S.G.W.

HOMELESS CHILDREN BENEFIT.

The San Francisco N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Homeless Children Committee will hold its annual benefit ball at the Civic Auditorium Thanksgiving Eve, November 25. Officers of the committee have been elected, as follows:

James L. Foley, chairman; Cora Stobing, vice-chairman; Edna A. Urmy, recording secretary; Bertha Mauser, financial secretary; Chas. A. Koenig, treasurer.

HISTORIC SITE MARKED.

Tamalpais Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, October 3 unveiled at Clay street and Grant avenue a marker designating the site of San Francisco's first residence. Among the speakers were Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, Police Chief John R. Quinn and Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington of the Native Sons, and Mrs. Frank Phelps Toms, state regent of the D.A.R.

According to the organization's records, this residence was erected in 1836 by Jacob Primer Leese, a native of Ohio who came to California in 1833. The Flag of the United States of America was hoisted over the place—the first time this country's flag was raised in San Francisco. In this residence, too, San Francisco's first White child, Rosalia Vallejo Leese, was born, April 15, 1838.

PERPLEXING QUESTION SOLVED.

Alta Parlor No. 3 N.D.G.W. happily solved the perplexing question of delinquent members by establishing October 12 a relief fund, the nucleus of which is the $35 refunded by the fiesta committee. Under the efficient guidance of District Deputy Annie Franzen the Parlor is preparing for initiation.

Alta has just made a substantial payment on its Loyalty Pledge and plans to complete it before the 1932 Grand Parlor. The Home is a hobby with Grand Trustee Annie C. Thuesen and Elizabeth F. Douglass. Another ardent worker for it is Second Vice-president May L. MacDonald, whose latest donation is a beautiful throw to adorn the baby grand in the lounge of the imposing edifice.

GLEE CLUB ENTERTAINS.

Fremont Parlor No. 59 N.D.G.W. entertained October 6 Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, who spoke on the homeless children and the Loyalty Pledge. She was handed a check for $100 for the Parlor's pledge. Supervising Deputy May C. Boldeman also spoke, and Grand Organist Lola Horgan and her glee club furnished entertainment. Supper was served to 200 members and guests, the banquetroom being beautifully decorated in red, white and blue.

The arrangements committee included Ella Tait, Katherine McGrath, Julia McDermott, May Grantley, Margaret Carter, Ella Herd, Anita Johnson, Louise Adami, Ella Becker, Hannah Collins and Abby Groom.

SURPRISE FOR ENCOURAGEMENT.

The newly-installed officers of Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 N.D.G.W. were so well pleased with the large number of members that attended the first meeting at which they presided decided to encourage them to come often and gave a surprise party. Mrs. Ruth Koler was chairman. Chicken patties, coffee and delicious homemade cake were served.

Gabrielle, together with Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S.G.W., had a Hallowe'en party October 28. A Christmas whist party will be held December 7; proceeds are to go to the Loyalty Pledge fund of the Parlor.

UNUSUAL OCCASION.

September 24, El Dorado Parlor No. 52 N.S.G.W. held a ceremony unique in the annals of the Order. It was "Jack Thomas night," in honor of Jack Thomas, a past president and member of Quartz Parlor No. 58 (Grass Valley) for some thirty-three years, but who, during the twenty years he has lived in San Francisco, has faithfully and regularly attended the meetings of El Dorado. Thomas has served on No. 52's committees and has visited its sick time and time again.

In honor of the occasion, National No. 118 and Olympus No. 189 Parlors came in a body. Frank I. Butler extended greetings on behalf of Olympus and President William Brennan expressed the sentiments of National. Past President Robert Donohue made the principal address and presented Jack Thomas with a pen and pencil on behalf of El Dorado. Following this, Secretary Frank A. Bonivert read a communication from Quartz Parlor extending congratulations. Accompanying the letter was a nugget ring of Nevada County gold, a gift to Thomas from his home-Parlor in appreciation of his loyalty to it. Addresses were also made by Past Presidents John Hauer and A. B. Chaquette of El Dorado and Historian Peter Conmy of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29. Following the meeting a midnight supper was enjoyed.

13TH LUCKY DAY.

Presidio Parlor No. 148 N.D.G.W. was honored October 13 by having Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson pay her official visit. So hereafter the members will consider the 13th a lucky day. The Parlor's drill team most colorfully added to the entrance march, and later escorted the Grand President to a seat of honor. Large palms at various points in the room added both color and beauty when intermingled with the flags.

Among the other grand officers in attendance were Grand Trustees Ethel Begley and Anna Thuesen, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda G. Giannini, Past Grand Presidents May Boldeman and Margaret Grote-Hill. Grand Organist Lola Horgan, accompanied by the Native Daughter choral, contributed their talents, much to the success of the evening. Visitors from many Parlors were present. Grand President Carlson especially complimented Presidio for its wonderful war veteran welfare work; she also praised the officers on the initiatory and floor work.

SECRETS OF FUTURE REVEALED.

Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W. had a Hallowe'en party October 26 and great interest was taken in the various styles of costumes worn. Many secrets of the future were revealed by a crystal-gazer. Members are busy working on a layette for the homeless children committee.

A few months ago the Parlor paid $200 toward its Loyalty Pledge. Since then good progress has been made in accumulating the balance, which will soon be paid.

HALLOWE'EN PAJAMA PARTY.

The Native Daughter Home was the setting of a delightful luncheon and bridge October 1, given in honor of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson by Mrs. Hazel Nelson of Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D.G.W. Those present were Irene Stelling, Clara Casella, Amelia Silva, Millie Ghirardelli, Erna Lazarus, Emma O'Meara, Mary Krause and Edna Gunther. Two candidates were initiated October 14; dainty refreshments were served.

A picnic was held at New Portola Park October 18 by the Parlor and Dolores Parlor No. 208 N.S.G.W.; games and races were enjoyed. October 20, the Dolores girls were guests of the Dolores boys at a Hallowe'en pajama party. No. 169's sewing club is planning to give a luncheon at the Native Daughter Home Wednesday, November 18.

PLEASING MEMORY.

The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to James Lick Parlor No. 220 N.D.G.W. September 30 is a pleasing memory. Preceding the meeting Mrs. Carlson, Supervising Deputy Mae Boldemann, District Deputy Loretta Cameron, her mother and five candidates were honored guests at a delightful dinner. Elizabeth Richards was chairman of the evening. The meeting was very impressive, with decorations of gold stars on larger pastel stars amongst the foliage. Each officer carried an old-fashioned boquet in blue and gold. Many grand officers, deputies and members visited.

Vocal selections were rendered by Adeline Dryer, and President Lyda Woods presented Grand President Carlson with a boquet of roses. The ritual being exemplified, the Grand President rejoiced over the Parlor's giving $50 toward its Loyalty Pledge and its co-operation in the membership drive. Other grand officers added much to the evening with pleasing remarks. Refreshments were enjoyed after the meeting. The Parlor has in preparation a baby shower for the benefit of the homeless children. An enthusiastic Hallowe'en party was enjoyed under the supervision of Irma Collins.

BRIDE-TO-BE SHOWERED.

Honoring Miss Hilder Nelson of Bret Harte Parlor No. 232 N.D.G.W., fiancee of Christian Eggers, a surprise miscellaneous shower was given October 7 at the home of Mrs. Pearl Wedde. The bride-to-be was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

OLD-LINE PRINTER DEAD.

Thomas C. Russell, one of the last of the old-line printers who used nothing but hand-set type, died at his San Francisco home September 25. At infrequent intervals he issued limited editions of California history works which are gems of the printer's art and have a considerable value.

STATES EXPEND VAST SUM FOR HIGHWAYS; SURFACED MILEAGE INCREASED.

The mileage of State highways in the United States surfaced during 1930 was 27,464, an increase over the preceding year, and state highway departments expended $980,000,000 on roads in the year, an increase of 22 percent over 1929, according to the Federal Agricultural Department's public roads bureau.

Total state income for highway purposes during the year was $1,136,673,437, and only nine states showed a decline in that income. The figures do not include work by counties, townships or other jurisdictions.

Approximately $37,200,000 will be spent on state highways in California during the year 1931, according to data compiled by the State Division of Highways. During the first seven months of this year, contracts were awarded for road construction amounting to $14,400,000. The corresponding figure for 1930 was $11,000,000.

ramento, $1,623,236; Santa Barbara, $3,968,326; Santa Clara, $947,748; San Bernardino, $3,992,603; San Joaquin, $15,672,151; Ventura, $5,538,817; Contra Costa, $3,412,201.

But ten of California's fifty-eight counties show an increased grand total assessment for 1931, compared with 1930: Amador, $8,750,292 (1931), $8,575,305 (1930); $174,987 increase. Calaveras, $9,569,959 (1931), $9,557,105 (1930); $12,854 increase. Imperial, $56,029,605 (1931), $55,893,588 (1930); $136,017 increase. Inyo, $19,988,564 (1931), $19,694,765 (1930); $293,799 increase. Kings, $46,172,072 (1931), $44,248,847 (1930); $1,923,225 increase. Lassen, $26,416,117 (1931), $23,918,890 (1930); $2,497,227 increase. Mono, $6,823,360 (1931), $6,624,202 (1930); $199,158 increase. Placer, $29,766,132 (1931), $29,721,674 (1930); $44,458 increase. Riverside, $94,936,951 (1931), $84,675,560 (1930); $10,261,391 increase. Tuolumne, $12,543,652 (1931), $12,396,544 (1930); $147,108 increase.

Alpine County, with 50,827 acres of assessed land, stands alone in the six-figure grand-total class. Its 1931 assessment, $887,332, is $13,727 less than that of 1930, $901,059. Its indebtedness of $16,000 last year has been reduced to $14,000 this year. It has a tax rate of $2.

Kern County has the largest number of acres of assessed land, 3,847,296. San Bernardino County comes next, with 2,742,828, and then comes Fresno County, with 2,178,000.

The following counties are free of debt: Amador, Calaveras, Humboldt, Inyo, Madera, Mariposa, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Tuolumne and Yuba.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Henry T. Showler of Sacramento was accidentally killed while duck hunting November 27.

A cave-in November 29 at the Wakeshaw mine at Ruby Hill, Nevada County, carried William Roberts into a flume, where he drowned.

John M. Boyles and Hugh Galway, old residents of Gridley, Butte County, had an altercation November 5, and Boyles stabbed Galway to death with a pocketknife.

Herbert Osborne, ranch employe of Mrs. Prince, a divorcee, at Marshall Landing, Sonoma County, November 12 beat her to death with a flatiron and then killed himself.

Lawrence Melchor and R. Smith, playing cards in a San Francisco saloon November 24, got into a quarrel, and Melchor shot Smith dead.

RUST ON SNAPDRAGONS.

Snapdragon rust is caused by a fungus that is hard to combat; it is far easier to prevent the rust than to cure it, although not always is either possible. Plants where this rust is liable to occur, such as damp localities along the coast, should be given fertilizer and care to make them as thrifty as possible to resist the disease. Whenever damp weather seems imminent, dust with finely ground sulphur, once every two weeks, or spray with Bordeaux. Snapdragons should be planted where they will get plenty of sun and where there is good air drainage.

"Content is the philosopher's stone that turns all it touches into gold."

NATIVE DAUGHTER NEWS

The homeless children's sewing circle of No 242 is now meeting twice a month Mamie Hirigoyen and Christine McFarland were October hostesses. The latter was an all day meeting, with pot luck luncheon at noon The Parlor is planning a bazar and a rummage sale in the near future

Anniversary Celebrated.

Woodland Woodland No. 90 celebrated its thirty-fifth institution anniversary October 13 with a "kid" party A covered dish dinner was served, and games were the principal entertainment feature. Hallowe'en decorations prevailed Mrs May Worley, the first president, presided at the meeting, and other charter members in attendance included Mms May Hutchings, Sadie Clements and Mattie Zimmerman, and Miss Harriett S. Lee Grand officers present were Grand Vice-president Anna Mixon-Armstrong, Grand Trustee Edna Briggs, Past Grand Presidents Dr Eva Rasmussen and Louise C Heilbron, Supervising Deputy Edna G Richter, District Deputies Emma Bloom, Doris Fisher and Wanda Abele The charter and veteran members of the Parlor were presented with gifts.

Close to five hundred people had a gay time dancing and playing cards October 3 at the Yolo County Fliers Club, at an affair sponsored by Woodland for the benefit of the Native Daughter Home. Refreshments were served, and a substantial sum was realized.

Anniversary Meeting.

Stockton—The seventeenth anniversary meeting of Caliz de Oro No. 206 was held October 6. An italian dinner was in charge of Henrietta Quevillon. President Ada Javete presided at the business session, at which the high jinks of October 20 was announced. Three candidates were initiated.

Eda Cunningham was in charge of the program, which presented a clever mock stunt. Among those who took part were Buelah Grattan, Clarice Cook, Kathryne Wilde, Roberta Foley, Christene Neeley, Emily Champreux, Maybell McDonald, Florence Carlson, Francis Germain and Ida Stuart. A beautiful basket of chrysanthemums was received from Joaquin No. 5.

Donation for Good Cause.

Hollister—District Deputy Blanche Taix installed the officers of Copa de Oro No. 105 September 24, Elma Chandler becoming president. Community singing was enjoyed and refreshments were served at prettily decorated tables. Ten dollars was donated to the fund being gathered by the local American Legion for the purchase of an inhalator and resusciator for use of the residents of San Benito County. During the evening gifts and flowers were presented District Deputy Taix, President Chandler, Junior Past President Mayme Moran, Josephine Winn and Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs.

Bride Honor Guest.

Colusa—Mrs. Wm. C. Stokes Jr., a recent bride, was honor guest of Colus No. 194 October 5. A banquet was served, the table being decorated in pink and white; place cards were little brides adorned in most attractive raiment. On an adjoining table was a cottage love nest, built for two, with curtained windows and landscaped yard; a little bride and groom stood guard at the portals. Inside was the Parlor's gift to Mrs. Stokes. There was a wonderful wedding cake, also, from which Freda Yopp drew the hidden wedding ring. Mrs. Warren G. Davison, county chairman California history, reported on the history of Colusa County The committee in charge for the evening included Ruby Humburg, Vera Jobe and Lillian Clement.

Colus entertained members of Colusa No. 69 N.S.G.W. and their wives at a dance and card party October 12. Stella Bond, Martha Humburg and Christine Humburg had charge.

Three Initiated.

Monterey—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson was an honored guest of Junipero No. 141 October 9. The ritual was exemplified in a very creditable manner and three candidates were initiated, which makes eight new members this term. Visitors were Mms. Marguerite Sullivan and Marguerite Brown of Alta No. 3 (San Francisco), and Mms. Louise Hattan and Rose Rhyner of Aleli No. 102 (Salinas). A banquet was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

Homage to Oldtimers.

Middletown—Clear Lake No. 135 paid homage to the oldtimers of this section at a very enjoyable affair October 10. The hall was beautifully

In Memoriam

CLARA MITCHLER.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late beloved sister, Clara Mitchler, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has again entered our Parlor and taken from our midst our beloved sister, Clara Mitchler, we deeply feel the loss of her whose kind and genial manner won the love and esteem of all who knew her, and we realize the still greater loss of those who were nearest and dearest to her. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Murphys Parlor No. 46 N.D.G.W., extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, that a copy be sent to the family of our deceased sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

EVA C. CARMICHAEL.

To the Officers and Members of Forrest Parlor No. 86 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of Eva C. Carmichael, submit the following:

Whereas, In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and sister, and of the still greater loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to her, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say, that in regretting her removal from our midst we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard; resolved, that we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are meant in mercy; be it further resolved, that the charter of our Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, that a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and one to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

MARY RUPERT.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late beloved sister, Mary Rupert, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has again entered our Parlor and taken from our midst our beloved sister, Mary Rupert, we deeply feel the loss of her whose kind and genial manner won the love and esteem of all who knew her, and we realize the still greater loss of those who were nearest and dearest to her. She has been called from our midst, her body has been returned to the soil of California, and her spirit has been called into the presence of Him, but with us remains the memory of her devotion to our Order. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W., extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family in the loss of a loving wife and mother; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be sent to the bereaved family of our deceased sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT P. LAMDIN.

Napa Parlor No. 62 Native Sons of the Golden West deeply regrets the death of Brother Robert P. Lamdin, a charter member of the Parlor, and one of the outstanding Native Sons of Napa County. His many good qualities of mind and heart and his kindly spirit will long be remembered by the members of this Parlor. His attention to his brothers in time of sickness was always keenly manifested by many acts that exhibited his wonderful sympathetic and fraternal spirit. He was always among the first to offer consolation and advice and to extend the hand of brotherly love in time of trouble. In and out of the lodgeroom, his genial spirit was one to cheer the brothers in their fraternal and civic duties, and ever made them appreciate the true spirit and force of brotherly love.

Brother Lamdin had been the treasurer of Napa Parlor for forty-four consecutive years, and during all that time was regarded as one of the stanchest and most painstaking officers which the Parlor had ever honored with official station. It was rarely that he was absent from his post of duty during all of these years, and not until illness overtook him was he compelled to forego the performance of his duties.

Naturally of a most kindly disposition and lovable nature, Brother Lamdin builded among his brethren and in the community a character which distinguished him as a man of the broadest humanitarian ideals, objects and purposes. His noble qualities will always be remembered and cherished by all whose distinction it was to know him; and this community, in which he was born and in which he grew to manhood, will miss him as the years go by.

In all of the affection and kindness which he bestowed upon his friends and brothers, there was always most noticeable that deep devotion which he bore toward his loving wife, for whom he was always solicitous and to whom he gave his undying love and affection unto the day of his death. And it is in this hour of her deep affliction that we extend to her our sympathy and condolence. To her, as well as to his sister and brothers and other relatives, we desire to express our deepest sorrow and extend to each and all of them our sincerest sympathy. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Robert P. Lamdin the members of Napa Parlor No. 62 have sustained an irreparable loss of a dear friend and associate, and a place has been made vacant in the community by his passing that will be hard to fill, and he will ever be lovingly remembered by all who knew him.

KATHERINE DOLORES HEALY.

To the Officers and Members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our dearly beloved sister, Katherine Healy, do respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, to release from suffering and remove from our midst our beloved sister, Katherine Healy, whose cheerful smile, loving ways and happy disposition we hold in fond memory; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W., extend our sincere sympathy to the faithful husband and family; be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be forwarded to the family of our deceased sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

SARAH KENNEDY.

To the Officers and Members of San Andreas Parlor No. 113 N.D.G.W.—Your committee appointed to prepare resolutions, expressing the sentiments and a deep-felt sympathy of the members of this Parlor on the death of our sister, Sarah Kennedy, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, By the dispensation of a Divine Providence the angel of death has taken our beloved and esteemed sister, Sarah Kennedy, and summoned her to realms of higher activities; and whereas, our sister has answered the final roll call, leaving her sister members to mourn the loss of one of our devoted and faithful members;

Resolved, That San Andreas Parlor No. 113 N.D.G.W. in the death of our sister has lost one of its honored and respected members, and the community has lost an honest and esteemed neighbor; resolved, that we tender to her family and relatives our heartfelt sympathy in this, their sad hour of affliction; and it is further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and a copy be sent to the family.

Respectfully submitted,
TILLIE GETCHELL,
GRACE TISCORNIA,
KATE LOEFFLER,
Chairman.

San Andreas, October 3, 1931.

FRANK A. BONIVERT.

Whereas, Our Almighty Father has seen fit to call to the Heavenly Parlor on High our beloved brother, Frank A. Bonivert; and whereas, Brother Bonivert has been an active worker for our Order and our Parlor and has ably filled the office of recording secretary of our Parlor for the past twenty-one years; and whereas, we feel and know that not only El Dorado Parlor, but the entire Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, has by his death lost a loyal and earnest member; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That El Dorado Parlor No. 52 N.S.G.W. feels most deeply the loss of our brother and extends to his family our heartfelt sympathy; be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the family of our departed brother, that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

EUGENE HERZOG, President,
ALFRED VLAUTIN, Acting Secretary,
WILLIAM THOMAS, Treasurer.

San Francisco, October 15, 1931.

JASON D. WHITE.

Whereas, It has pleased the Divine Providence to call to his eternal home our beloved brother, Jason D. White; and whereas, this Parlor has sustained the loss of a faithful member, his country a patriotic citizen, and his family a kind and loving father; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Parlor do extend to his family our most sincere sympathy in their bereavement, and that we most earnestly pray that the Merciful Father may help them bear their loss with Christian fortitude; be it further resolved that, in respect to the memory of our late brother, the charter of this Parlor be draped for a period of thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, a copy be forwarded to the family of the deceased, and also a copy to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Committee on Resolutions.

Adopted by this Parlor Monday evening, October 19, 1931. M. A. ANDRADE, Recording Secretary.

FRANK A. BONIVERT.

To the Officers and Members of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 N.S.G.W.—The undersigned respectfully submit the following resolution and move its adoption:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to call from our midst on Monday, October 12, 1931, Frank A. Bonivert, a member of El Dorado Parlor No. 52 N.S.G.W., its recording secretary and a past president thereof; and whereas, during the past twenty-one years that Brother Bonivert was a member of El Dorado Parlor he has been one of the stauchest supporters of all the activities of this Order in San Francisco—as an officer of his own Parlor, as an inter-Parlor committeeman, as a delegate to the Grand Parlor, and as a district deputy grand president—to the extent that he was regarded as an outstanding Native Son; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Golden Gate Parlor express and hereby does express sympathy to El Dorado Parlor No. 52 in the terrible loss they are sustaining, and also to the sorrowing family; and be it resolved further, that the regular meeting of Golden Gate Parlor, held this 12th day of October, 1931, be declared closed in respect to the memory of the late Brother Frank A. Bonivert of El Dorado Parlor No. 52.

Respectfully submitted,
THOS. C. CONMY, Past President,
CHAS. A. KOENIG, Grand Third Vice-pres.
PETER T. CONMY, Historian.

The above resolution was unanimously adopted at regular meeting held October 12, 1931, and ordered published in The Grizzly Bear.—ADOLPH EBERHART, Recording Secretary.

ANNA BELLE D. CHAPMAN.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W., in the passing of Anna Belle D. Chapman, has lost a very loyal Native Daughter and a true Californian. Her demise has left a void in the hearts of those nearest and dearest to her. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That Los Angeles Parlor extends sincere sympathy to her husband and bereaved relatives; and further be it resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be sent to the family of our dear sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

EDITH B. SCHALLMO,
Committee.

Los Angeles, October 17, 1931.

THOMAS H. McCOY.

General Winn Parlor No. 32 N.S.G.W.—Brothers: Your committee, appointed to draft resolutions of respect and condolence in the passing of our brother, Thomas H. McCoy, beg leave to submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Father, to whom the ranks of life report, to remove from our midst our dearly beloved brother, Thomas H. McCoy, to the realm above where beauty, valor and goodness dwell forever with the unnumbered brethren. Mindful of service nobly done, He has called him to everlasting rest. With the faded blossoms of springtime and the withered leaves of autumn He has called him to eternal peace to dwell with the loved ones who have gone before. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the loss has been great to us, and yet, greater to those of his family. At this time let us pause and bow to our Maker with reverent hearts and in sublime faith, praying that He now hear the sorrow of those who mourn and touch their tired hearts with healing, protecting them with His holy care and keeping clear and bright in memory the splendid flame that now has flickered out. Resolved, that we feel this Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West has suffered an irreparable loss; and therefore, be it further resolved, that we extend to the relatives of Brother McCoy our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement; that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of General Winn Parlor No. 32 N.S.G.W.; that a copy be sent to the relatives of the deceased, and that a copy be forwarded to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication; and be it further resolved, that the Parlor charter be draped in mourning for thirty days.

REDWOOD, CENTURIES OLD, UNEARTHED.

Watsonville (Santa Cruz County)—A redwood, seven feet in diameter and in a perfect state of preservation, was recently unearthed here by a well driller at a depth of two hundred feet. The forest giant was encrusted in clay.

It is recalled that the California redwoods first were seen in the Pajaro Valley, and it is believed this particular tree fell untold centuries ago. The ocean, which at one time covered this section, is believed to have left deposits over the giant and the shifting top soil did the rest.

School Bonds—Voters of Vallejo, Solano County, have approved a $230,000 bond issue for a new junior high school.

GEOLOGIC HISTORY YOSEMITE VALLEY

FEW VALLEYS OR CANYONS ELSEwhere on the earth have aroused more widespread curiosity or have given rise to more speculation and dispute as to the secret of their origin than California's Yosemite Valley. So extraordinary is the valley's appearance, with sheer monumental walls and massive rounded domes, lofty swaying waterfalls and level parklike floor, that it seems in a class by itself, created in some unusual way.

The layman's inclination, not unnaturally, is to appeal to a dramatic, violent cause. Some of the earlier scientists also supposed the strange chasm to have been formed by nothing less than a cataclysm, such as the caving in or rending apart of the earth's crust. Others, however, recognizing on its walls the marks of glacial action, conceived the valley to have been excavated and scoured out by a powerful glacier of the ice age. John Muir, the famous west coast naturalist, was the foremost of these. Still others, denying that glaciers have any notable excavating power, have contended that the Yosemite is primarily a stream-worn canyon, but slightly modified by glacial action. How much of the excavating was done by the Merced River, which flows through the valley, and how much by the ancient glaciers is, indeed, the crux of the Yosemite problem.

This much mooted question is the subject of a publication of the Federal Interior Department entitled "Geologic History of the Yosemite Valley." It is illustrated by numerous photographs showing the striking features of the Yosemite Valley and by several maps, including one on which the ancient glaciers are shown restored. A series of four perspective views helps the reader to visualize the form and character of the valley at each stage of its development. The publication embodies results of investigations begun some years ago, primarily in response to popular demand for information concerning the way in which the beautiful valley was formed. It is from the pen of Francois E. Matthes, also the author of the detailed topographic map of the valley that accompanies the volume. A special chapter on the granitic rocks of the Yosemite region is contributed by Frank C. Calkins.

The new investigations have, in the first place, removed the uncertainty that has always existed as regards the extent and magnitude of the ancient Yosemite Glacier. They have shed new light on the glacial history of the Yosemite region, showing that that region and a large part of the Sierra Nevada were glaciated at least three times, at long intervals, during the ice age. Three important chapters of the preglacial history of the Yosemite Valley, which heretofore has been a sealed book, also stand revealed.

The valley was cut to successively greater depths by the Merced River in consequence of succesive uptilting, amounting to thousands of feet, of the vast earth block that constitutes the Sierra Nevada. The depth of the valley at each of these earlier stages has been determined within narrow limits. The chasm, it is now clear, already had a depth of 3,000 feet when the first glacier invaded it, and so there is fairly definite basis for estimates of the amount of excavation accomplished by the Merced River and the Yosemite Glacier, respectively. The remarkable configuration of the valley, finally, is explained by the fact that the excavating action of the glacier was controlled by the jointed structure of the granite, which is extremely varied.

These general facts and explanations, and many of a more detailed nature relating to individual features of the Yosemite Valley, such as the famous Half Dome, the cliff of El Capitan and the Yosemite Falls, are set forth in language simple enough to be understood by one having no geologic training, yet in sufficient fullness to leave no doubt in the critical reader's mind as to the foundation of observed facts or as to the processes of reasoning whereby the conclusions are reached. Of the nearly half a million people who visit Yosemite annually probably few have failed to ask such questions as are answered in this volume.

decorated with ferns, autumn leaves and flowers, and delicious refreshments were served. Among the guests were the following, with the year of their arrival in California: Mrs. Maggie Mann (1852), Mrs. Martha Copsey (1856), Mrs. Thomas Parker (1864), Mrs. A. S. Armstrong (1863), Mrs. E. Nay (1862), and Thomas Parker (1863). Mrs. C. M. Young (1851) was unable to be present, but was remembered by the Parlor. Charter members in attendance were Ella Parker, the first president, Cora Herrick, Addie Penny, Bertha Brookins and Angie Nelson.

President Florence Elliott extended a welcome to the oldtimers and presented to them tokens of remembrance, twenty-four members of the Parlor appeared in a drill, and a program of songs and readings was presented by Clara Hunt, Merle Bohn, Florence Elliott, Mrs. Jas. Kesey and Belle Farmer.

Pajama Party.

Petaluma—Petaluma No. 222 had a pajama party October 6 and all joined in the fun. Cards were played and refreshments were served. Vacations being over, more activity is apparent and some very interesting meetings are being held. Captain Annie Dickson is busy with the Parlor's drill team, which will take part in the Armistice Day celebration at Santa Rosa.

Officers Praised.

Menlo Park—Menlo No. 211 had the pleasure October 12 of entertaining Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, who was loud in her praise for the perfect manner in which the Parlor officers presented their charges. The halls were prettily decorated with red and yellow berries, and the officers made a pleasing picture in pastel shaded evening gowns. Among the many visitors was Past Grand President Margaret Grote-Hill.

Grand President Carlson was the recipient of a gift of china, and remembrances were presented Supervising Deputy Rena Mathias, District Deputy Margaret Malone, Emeline McDonald and Past President Laura Bartels.

Promoting State Park.

Alturas—October 1 heralded the opening of Alturas No. 159's social season, and a large group of guests enjoyed the hospitality of the Parlor at bridge. Some time ago the Parlor proposed to the State Park Commission that Blue Lake, situated in the Warner Range between Lassen and Modoc Counties, be made a state park. The commission recently notified Grand Marshal Irma Laird the project had been given favorable consideration and that the state would contribute one-half the $12,000 which the owners of the property are asking for such of their holdings as would be included in the proposed park if Lassen and Modoc Counties would contribute the balance.

The Lassen County supervisors are favorably disposed toward the project, and the Parlor, through a committee headed by Grand Marshal Laird, is urging the Modoc County supervisors to make the necessary contribution. Civic and fraternal organizations are endorsing the project, as is also the U. S. Forest Service. On the occasion of the visit of Governor James Rolph and party to Alturas, October 14, members of Alturas were present to welcome them.

LOS ANGELES

CALIFORNIA'S WONDERLAND

CITY AND COUNTY

COSMOPOLITAN LOS ANGELES HAS OFfered a fruitful field for the nutrition worker of the American Red Cross. The city presents more vivid problems to the nutritionist than other large centers of population. Like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other metropolitan cities, it has the ever-present poor, and the ever-present rich who, although it is almost unbelievable, are often as untutored in food knowledge as the poorer classes. In addition to metropolitan social and health problems, Los Angeles, because of its geographic proximity, is invaded by Mexicans and Orientals who contribute their problems to the nutritionist to solve. The nutritionist must spend much energy in an educational program and top her obstacles only through the most clever psychology in overcoming emotional and traditional reactions to the new country's new foods.

But the pioneering nutritionist is a courageous soldier. She finds the lair of those who need her most and invades it despite the terrific task it promises. In the Soto-street district of Los Angeles are many Mexicans. The Red Cross nutritionist of the Los Angeles Chapter organized a nutrition class for Mexican mothers in the school of the district as a part of the regular home and americanization program. The Red Cross has conducted three nutrition classes in this school. Two members of the 1930 class attended all the courses. One woman, a Mexican who understood but little English, was given a statement saying that she had attended all the sessions. She was as proud of this statement as any college graduate with her first diploma. The nutritionist in charge had an extra handicap because so few of the Mexican women had a knowledge of English. However, one of the students was a high-school graduate and acted as interpreter for the entire course of eighteen lessons. A volunteer chapter worker also helped by translating the examination questions into Spanish, with which the Mexican women were conversant. A nutrition class was also established at the Frances DePauw school, a school for Mexican girls under the direction of the Methodist Home Mission Board.

Nutrition service in many localities may well be said to meet an emergency situation, for malnutrition in a community is a distinct emergency. The scope of nutrition service in all communities covers prenatal and preschool instruction to mothers and expectant mothers as well as older girls, school nutrition instruction, and teaching adults and teachers. The demands upon the Los Angeles nutrition service caused it to expand rapidly to include all the ramifications sponsored by the national headquarters.

The nutrition service of the American Red Cross is traceable as far back as 1908, when instruction for women and girls in "dietetics and household economy" was authorized. The work was organized and handled through the bureau of dietitian service, then a part of the Red Cross nursing service. The World War gave the work impetus and additional importance in 1917 for, in the words of Miss Clara D. Noyes, national director of Red Cross nursing service, "nutrition workers were a part of Red Cross equipment overseas."

Nutrition left its mother cradle in nursing service and assumed its own separate identity in July 1921. Eleven years after the founding of the Los Angeles Chapter of the American Red Cross in 1916, the chapter established its nutrition department. Like the mother service at national headquarters in Washington, D. C., the Los Angeles nutrition department has been an eager pioneer in a field rich in possibilities—one might say, almost crying out its need for beneficial instruction in foods.

Nutrition is only one of the many services which the American Red Cross extends to the public. It conducts public health service, nursing service, first-aid and life-saving, home hygiene and care of the sick, volunteer service, disaster service and service to war veterans.

The Red Cross got its first impulse nearly three-quarters of a century ago when Henri Dunant, a young Swiss idealist, viewed the battle of Solferino in Lombardy and was moved to compassion by the agony of the wounded and dying. Before the smoke had cleared away the young Swiss determined to administer aid to the dying soldiers, regardless of their nationalities. Hurrying to a nearby town, Dunant summoned all available men and women and appealed to them to join him in his humanitarian mission to the battlefield. Under his leadership the small group labored over the fallen warriors for many hours after hostilities had ceased.

In the years that followed, Dunant devoted his life to the work of awakening Europe to the need of humanitarian service in time of distress. The movement crystalized in 1864 and the Red Cross was founded at Geneva. Finally, May 21, 1881, the Red Cross came into being in this country. Miss Clara Barton, widely known for her unselfish service to soldiers during the Civil War, founded the society at a meeting in her Washington, D. C., home. Fifty well-known men and women attended the organization meeting and elected Miss Barton as the first president of the Red Cross in America. The Federal Government gave its full support to the movement and, in 1905, Congress granted the charter under which the Red Cross operates today.

This year, the fiftieth anniversary of the American Red Cross, marks the twenty-sixth year that Miss Mabel T. Boardman, the director of its volunteer services, has served the organization, and for twenty years she has been national secretary. Judge John Barton Payne, the eminent jurist, has served as national chairman for more than a decade without remuneration. Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, is the society's president.

Since Dunant's service to the wounded in the battle of Solferino, throughout the administration of Clara Barton, down to the present time, the Red Cross has been carried forward by volunteers. All the society's activities have been made possible by individual memberships. There are now more than 4,000,000 members enrolled.

Due to increased demands in the last fiscal year, ended June 30, the Red Cross needs membership more than ever before. That thought will be in the minds of a quarter-million volunteer workers when the annual roll call opens Armistice Day, November 11. The campaign will end Thanksgiving Day, November 26. Between those dates every citizen in the nation will be invited to become a part of the society.

INTERPARLOR DANCE.

The Interparlor N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Committee is sponsoring a series of dances at the Goldberg-Bosley Ballroom, Venice boulevard and Flower street, the proceeds of which will be used toward defraying expenses of Admission Day celebrations and other joint activities of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. The admission fee has been fixed at one dollar per couple.

The first dance will be held Friday, November 6. The presidents of all the Parlors affiliated with the Interparlor Committee will be guests of honor, and special entertainment features will be introduced.

The sub-committee in charge of these dances —Mary Noerenberg (chairman), Grace Norton, Beulah VanLuven, Andrew Vaughn and Eldred Meyer—urges the membership of both Orders to give these dances their wholehearted support.

TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. will celebrate the forty-seventh anniversary of its institution with a dance November 12. All Natives and their friends are invited. Refreshments will be served. November 19th has been set aside for initiation. At the conclusion of the ceremonies a musical program will be presented under the supervision of Organist Roger Johnson and Anthony Pierce. No meeting November 26th, Thanksgiving Day.

"WORKING TOGETHER IS SUCCESS."

The pot-luck dinner of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. October 7 was thoroughly enjoyed. The second party of the bridge tournament October 14 was largely attended; Grace DuCasse was in charge. The officers of the Parlor went to Ocean Park October 19 and initiated a class of candidates for Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245.

The rummage sale conducted jointly with Verdugo Parlor No. 240 October 15, 16 and 17 was well attended; Ruth Ruiz, the chairman, was assisted by Gertrude Allen, Ann Schibusch, Flora Holy, Adeline Waite and Mrs. R. F. Bird. At the invitation of Mrs. Mattie Gara, Mrs. Fuller gave a most interesting talk October 21 on "Desert Wild Flowers." The Hallowe'en dance October 28 was a delightful affair. Good music was supplied and beautiful prizes were awarded. Many of the dancers were in costume. The hall was attractively decorated in conformity with the occasion, and jollity reigned supreme. Leone Clos was chairman of the committee in charge.

"Coming together is a beginning, keeping together is progress, working together is success," says Gertrude Allen, president No. 124. The Parlor's November calendar includes: 4th, initiation large class of candidates. 11th, card party, third in bridge tournament; Mrs. Adeline Waite, chairman. The 25th being Thanksgiving Eve, the hall will be dark.

SEW FOR NOVEMBER BAZAR

Long Beach—Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. entertained October 1 the grandmothers, each of whom was asked to tell one cute saying of her grandchild; much merriment ensued. Delicious refreshments were served. Mrs. Genevieve Dalton was chairman of the occasion. The sewing club of the Parlor met October 8 at the home of Mrs. Gussie Taber. A covered-dish luncheon was served, and the members sewed on articles for the November bazar.

October 15 a Hallowe'en party was held. The families and friends of the members were invited, and many came in costume. A surprise program was presented, each officer of the Parlor being responsible for one number. The hall was gaily decorated with ghosts, black cats, etc. Following refreshments a general social evening was held. Genevieve Dalton was in charge of the party.

Deputy Flora Holy and a large delegation from Los Angeles Parlor No. 124. At the invitation of President Mary Meyer, President Gertrude Allen of Los Angeles and her corps of officers exemplified the ritual, three candidates being initiated. For being the first to bring in a new member in the campaign now under way, Edna Romero was presented with an emblematic pin. Cordelia Laventhal rendered vocal selections, and the mystery-box went to Matilda Sepulveda. A lot of fun was had pinning the tail on a donkey. Refreshments were served in the banquetroom, decorated in true Hallowe'en fashion. Amada Machado (chairman), Lottie O'Connor and Rea Jones made up the committee of arrangements for the evening.

For the benefit of the homeless children, the El Camino Real Club of the Parlor, Marie Barnes chairman, conducted a successful pencil sale October 24. A shower for the veteran adopted by No. 245 will be held November 2.

OPPOSES IMMIGRATION MODIFICATION.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. adopted the following resolution October 19: "Whereas, Any modification of the present Federal Immigration Act would be detrimental to the best interests of the United States, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. is unalterably opposed to any modification of the Federal Immigration Act and appeals to the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States Congress to do everything in their power to prevent any change in said act."

The Parlor is making a drive for new members, and President Fred Gamble Jr. appointed October 5 the following committee to conduct it to a successful conclusion: Lucien Griffin, Edgar Black, Kenneth Case, Harold Thomas and William Hortenstine. A class of candidates will be initiated November 16.

SURROUNDINGS PLEASE.

The season has begun auspiciously for Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W., and under the guidance of President Gertrude Tuttle fine meetings, with excellent attendance, are being held at the new headquarters, 1215 Lodi place, Hollywood. The members are greatly pleased with the beautiful surroundings. A private diningroom has been assigned, and here the members enjoy dainty pre-meeting lunches, the program following in the meetingroom.

Charles Horrworth was a recent speaker, giving a very sensible formula for the growth of the state. Miss Marion Graaf sang a group of songs, including some in Spanish. At another meeting Assemblyman Adam gave a description of the State Legislature and its workings. He was followed by Miss Marion Parks, a member of the Parlor who gave insight, most interesting and amusing, to "Early California Law," which she has studied through delving into old official documents in the city and county archives. A large number of applications for membership have been received, and initiation will be held November 10.

The statue of Felipe de Neve, which is to be presented by Californiana to Los Angeles City, which he founded, is now in the hands of a bronzing company, Sculptor Henry Lion having completed his handiwork. Mrs. Ora Evans, chairman of the committee, is planning an interesting program for the presentation. It was intended to have the presentation during La Fiesta, but it was impossible owing to the fact that the statue was not completed, and also because arrangements could not at that time be made for proper recognition of the event.

ANNUAL LOBSTER FEAST.

Ocean Park—"A Night in Old California," sponsored by Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W., filled the Sea Breeze Beach Club, Santa Monica, October 17. The affair was a roundup of all the old and new timers of the Order, to help celebrate the fifth institution anniversary of the Parlor. Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell was the honor-guest and delivered a brief address. A splendid program was arranged by Norman Manning, and Jimmy Smith, with his specially arranged Native Son song, stole the show. Two orchestras furnished dance music, and a replica of an old-time San Francisco cafe added interest. An elaborate buffet supper was partaken of by 883. The committee in charge of the successful affair included Eldred L. Meyer (chairman), Harry T. Honn, Phil Romero, Elmer Barnes, Arthur Leonard, Douglas McCreery, J. Howard Blanchard, J. Edward McCurdy, Hector Badia, John J. Smith, Dr. A. B. Mayhew, Arthur Giroux, Claud Wiseman, Stanley Tracey, Jack Dailey, Geo. Green and Beldin Sabine.

Monday, November 9, is the correct date for the Parlor's famous annual lobster feast. Chairman Phil Romero says arrangements have been made to take care of a crowd larger than ever. Jack Dailey and Howard Earl are the chefs in charge. Officers of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 have been invited to exemplify the ritual November 23, when Santa Monica Bay will have a very large class of candidates. Plans are under way for the organization of a Parlor drum corps.

CO-OPERATION APPRECIATED.

Glendale—Following the October 12 meeting of Verdugo No. 240 N.D.G.W., a program presented by Edith Dobson was participated in by Jane Shally, Zessie Tilbury, Alice Rinaldo, Dora Blenkiron, Betty Sanders, Ada Steele and Margaret Hess. A spoon was presented Genevieve Hess, infant daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Hess.

The Parlor's Hallowe'en costume dance October 27 drew a large crowd and everybody had a good time. All neighboring Parlors of both Native Daughters and Native Sons were well represented, an expression of appreciation for Verdugo's hearty co-operation always in all Los Angeles County activities.

INITIATES CLASS.

San Pedro—Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. initiated a class of candidates October 23, the ceremonies being followed by a lobster feast. David Main and Francis Fetzer had charge of the entertainment.

Jointly with Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W., the Parlor had a Hallowe'en dance October 30. Refreshments were served.

"KANGAROO COURT."

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. is planning a grand Christmas party for the children of its members December 23, and arrangements are being perfected by a committee headed by Walter Slosson. To raise money for the fund, several events are scheduled; in fact, there will be something special in the way of entertainment every Friday night to and including December 18, the last meeting of 1931 for the Parlor. Joseph P. Coyle and Walter Satterwhite are captains of opposing teams in a membership contest. James P. Sex is organizing a drum and bugle corps.

Ramona's calendar for November includes: 6th, "kangaroo court;" loads of fun to swell the Christmas fund. 13th, initiation and first presentation 1932 "Bear Club" pins; buffet lunch. 20th, awards of turkeys, ducks and other fixings for the Thanksgiving dinner. 27th, nomination officers January-July term; more fun for the Christmas party fund.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. Emily D. Fillmore, mother of Hugh H. Fillmore (Ramona N.S.), passed away October 22.

Robert Parker Sheldon, affiliated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., died October 23, survived by a wife and a son. He was born at San Francisco, October 29, 1874.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Walter Cripe (Sepulveda N.S.) of San Pedro was a recent visitor to Arizona.

Harry W. Frost (Ramona N.S.), has returned from a trip to Seattle, Washington.

A native daughter arrived at the home of Victor D. Kremer (Los Angeles N.S.) October 10.

J. P. Furlong (Sepulveda N.S.) and family of San Pedro recently returned from a trip to Montana.

Native sons recently arrived at the homes of David Main and Frank Ardaiz (both Sepulveda N.S.) of San Pedro.

Mrs. Nellie McNeil and Harry Ganaway (Sepulveda N.S.) were wedded October 10. They are residing in Wilmington.

Ed Schallmo (Ramona N.S.) and wife (Los Angeles N.D.) vacationed last month in San Francisco and Amador County.

Miss Lillian Estes (Los Angeles N.D.) became the bride of Sheldon LeRoy Schultz at Riverside September 4. They are residing in Los Angeles.

Miss Grace S. Stoermer (Past Grand President N.D.) attended last month the annual convention of the Association of Bank Women at Atlantic City.

Herman C. Lichtenberger (Past Grand President N.S.), as a result of too much Admission Day overwork, collapsed following the fiesta, but is on the road to recovery.

The homes of William DeGoede and David Lee (both Ramona N.S.) were recently gladdened by arivals of native sons, and that of Albert Gerwig (Ramona N.S.) by the coming of a native daughter.

Professor Tanner pointed out that the Jap offspring automatically become citizens, but although outside pressure may be applied to change them, they remain Japanese at heart.

He could truthfully have stated, also, that the Jap, wherever born, is loyal, first, last and only, to his worshiped mikado, regardless of protestations otherwise. The impossible is not possible, therefore the serious defect in the law of this nation which bestows citizenship on children born in this country to aliens ineligible to citizenship should be rectified. The correction of this law-defect should not be delayed!

For the period January-October 1931, 1,532 banks of the country, national and state, closed their doors. Their deposits totaled $1,200,784,000. A very large percentage of them, however, 1,202, were not identified with the Federal Reserve.

In the San Francisco Federal Reserve district, which includes all of California as well as other Western states, the closed banks totaled 51, with deposits of $31,554,000. Thirty-one of these institutions were nonmembers of the Reserve.

The State Health Board reports 40,255 live births in California for the first six months of 1931. The Mexis accounted for 6,676, 16.5 percent of the total.

A syndicated story sent out recently from Sacramento City by the United Press said: "San Francisco has the distinction of having the highest tax rate for any incorporated city in the state, $4.04 per $100 on assessed value."

That is not a fact! The San Francisco rate is for the city and the county combined. The combined city-and-county rate for Los Angeles is $4.27 per $100 of assessed value. So, the highest-tax distinction (?) does not belong to the Bay City.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce has been rejoicing because the Metropolitan Water District, which includes Los Angeles City, authorized a $220,000,000 water-bond issue. It failed, however, to mention the fact that while the district had 714,475 registered voters, but 270,763 of them went to the polls. And it is safe to say that a large percentage of those who did vote are not property owners.

Except the dollar-worshipers, no one will find much to crow about in that record! The result indicates a woeful lack of interest on the part of the majority, and that is anything but a good omen.

In a recent letter to the "Sacramento Bee" anent the reapportionment law passed by the State Legislature, E. A. Parsons of that city says: "Thus do we see another foundation-stone laid for state division as the breach widens between the two sections—north against south—and we have but to analyze the various rivalries, contentions and real grievances to reach the logical conclusion that state division is not only inevitable but desirable. This writer is conversant with conditions in both sections and has for years advocated separation, mainly on the ground that we of the north should rely upon our own splendid natural resources."

Parsons' statement that "state division is not only inevitable but desirable," disproves his contention that he "is conversant with conditions in both sections." State division is not desired, except by a few politicians who hope to personally benefit thereby, and there are no real grievances. The north and the south both have splendid natural sources, that is why California, undivided, is such a wonderful state.

O, CALIFORNIA

(ROSALIE F. HYDE.)

California, O California!
Thy children love thee more and more.
Thy lofty mountains,
Their flowery sides,
The waves that break on thy placid shore.

Thy fields aquiver with nodding grain,
Thy golden orchards, thy gentle rain,
Thy hills and valleys, thy desert plain,
Thy snow-tipped Baldy,
Thy poppy's stain.

Thy Tamalpais, thy Shasta's crown,
Thy virgin forests of wide renown,
Thy Emerald Bay at Tahoe's call,
Yosemite and Bridal Fall,
Thy rivers wide and purling streams,
Lead on to grandeur, lead on to dreams.

Thy roadways where the padres trod,
To teach to all the word of God.
Thy missions gleaming in the sun,
Thy cooling winds when day is done.
Thy islands and thy Golden Gate—
Thou all in all, most glorious state!

OLD PUEBLO DAYS

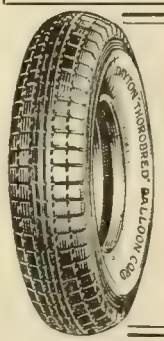
came from the heart—and it reached the heart." The Spaniard was instilled with the love of music. "If a man who could not ride well was considered only half a man, so he who could not play upon some instrument or sing agreeably was thought to be hardly human."

A natural accompaniment of the love of music was that of dancing, an art in which the Spanish Californians in Pueblo de Los Angeles were especially talented. In fact, dancing was a passion with the Californians. "It affected all," according to Bancroft, "from infancy to old age; grandmothers and grandchildren were seen dancing together; their houses were constructed with reference to this amusement, and most of the interior space was appropriated to the sala, a large, barn-like room. A few chairs and a wooden settee were all its furniture. If a few people got together at any hour of the day, the first thought was to send for a violin and a guitar, and should the violin and guitar be found together, in appropriate hands, that of itself was sufficient reason to send for the dancers." Antonio Coronel has left an excellent description of a ball sponsored by inhabitants of Los Angeles in 1834.



The balls in 1817 normally concluded about ten or eleven o'clock, but the time was gradually extended by the pleasure-loving people until, in 1840, they frequently lasted all night. At many of the nuptial balls dancing and feasting continued for three days and nights. At these lengthy affairs people ate, drank and danced day and night; while some rested or slept, others carried on the festivities. At these balls many a graceful and intricate dance was displayed by the nimble señoritas and agile señores. Among the favorites of the dances was "la jota."

Another popular dance was the fandango, which was danced by a man and a woman. The "bamba" was an intricate dance performed only by the women who were most familiar with it, for the numerous intricate steps changed frequently. The most accomplished señoritas balanced a glass of water on their heads while dancing the "bamba." Handkerchiefs were placed on the floor, with the corners tied together; these the dancer was to take up with her feet and conceal about her person during the dance. This was done without spilling a single drop of water, and when the feat was concluded the dancer took her seat amid frantic applause. Other dances frequently enjoyed by the early inhabitants of Pueblo de Los Angeles were "la zorrita," "los camotes," "el borrego," el burro," "el jarabe," "el caballo" and "la contradanza."

A pleasant and enjoyable feature of some of the balls was the "cascarones," a custom interestingly described in "Spanish Arcadia": "Carnival week preceding Lent was marked by the 'cascarone' balls, a feature of social life as characteristic of California of that day as the mardi gras was of Europe. For weeks previous to the season the housewives would begin to save their eggshells. A hole was carefully broken in one end of the egg, the contents removed, and the dried shell afterwards filled with 'oropel' (gold leaf finely cut), colored paper, cologne water or, as a special extravagance, gold-dust. The hole in the egg was then sealed with wax or paper pasted on. The compliment was to break the eggs lightly over the heads of favored ones, and as the ladies generally wore their hair floating unconfined, the spangles glittering among their raven tresses as they swept through the dance had a very pretty effect. The 'cascarone' season was observed with particular brilliance at Monterey and Los Angeles, the former being the capital and the latter the largest town in the department."

Thus a backward glance at the happy times of the early Californians presents a picturesque and colorful view, as both young and old played and danced their care-free lives away. The entering Americans could only admire such a happy life, and some have left comments upon it. William Heath Davis says, in relating his experiences in Spanish California: "I have often been a guest at such gatherings, which were the sweetest part of my life, and I thought these native Californians of Spanish extraction were, as a rule, as sincere people as ever lived under the canopy of Heaven. I look back almost two generations ago to those merry days with pride and joy, at the kindness which I received and the manliness and simplicity of the welcome of the fathers of families and the womanly deportment of their wives and daughters and their innocent amusements. The native Californians were about the most contented people that I ever saw, as also were the early foreigners who settled among and intermarried with them, adopted their habits and customs, and became, as it were, a part of themselves."

NATIVE SON GRAND OFFICERS DEDICATE JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL.

San Jose (Santa Clara County)—The N.S.G.W. grand officers dedicated October 25 this city's new Peter H. Burnett junior high school. David M. Burnett of the education board presided, and Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez delivered an address. On behalf of San Jose Parlor No. 22, Past Grand President Judge Fletcher A. Cutler presented the school with United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags, which were accepted by Eldon Fancher. Grand Trustee John M. Burnett presented a picture of Peter H. Burnett, California's first governor, which was accepted by Principal W. P. Cramsie. A splendid musical program was rendered by the student body.

The dedicatory ceremonies were conducted by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Past Grand President Charles L. Dodge, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig and Grand Secretary John T. Regan. Other grand officers in attendance were Grand Treasurer John A. Corotto, Grand Trustee Samuel M. Shortridge Jr. and Past Grand President Thomas Monahan.

A BIT O' FARMING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

WITH THE RAINFALL IN CALIfornia below normal for the last few years and the water situation throughout the state really acute this year, much interest attaches to the predictions made at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, at La Jolla, as to the coming season. Studying the past years, it has been found the rainfall has run in cycles, and that the present cycle of subnormal precipitation is about at the climax. It is believed, from a review of rainfall in past years, that the approaching winter will be a rather dry one, but that those immediately succeeding will have increasing precipitation. Whether this will be borne out by the facts as they are developed, remains to be seen.

But one thing is certain: there are few new sources this year from which to draw water for irrigation, hence there must be care in conservation. Whatever water is available now for irrigation should be used, if the condition of the soil warrants it. Cover crops in the spring should be turned under rather earlier than usual, even though they may not reach the state of maturity desired; water is taken from the soil mainly by transpiration, and cover crops are heavy users. Weeds, of course, must be kept at a minimum. Water should be carefully and sparingly used, and if it becomes apparent to the farmer that there is to be a real shortage next season, the permanent crops, such as trees, should be given the preference.

So, whatever the merit of the prognostication, care in the use of water and the frequent utilization of the soil tube or auger in determining the need, will be well repaid. Some day, it is to be hoped, California will solve its water problem by the conservation of the wasted flood waters; until that time, individual efforts must be looked to for making the present supply go as far as possible.

SOW SWEET CLOVER NOW.

Fall is the best time to grow sweet clover. The seed will germinate well now, and the stand will have a good chance to get rooted before the next dry season. There is no danger of winter killing in any of the farming districts of California, and clover must have moisture if it is to do well. In most districts of the state, irrigation will be necessary; it is imperative in the valleys. In root formation, sweet clover is much the same as alfalfa, and the two require much the same care.

SPANISH MEASLES IN VINES.

If Spanish measles have appeared in the vineyard this year, plan to give the vines treatment during the dormant season. Just after pruning is perhaps the best time. Sodium arsenate, three pounds to fifty gallons of water, makes a spray that should go far toward correcting the trouble. In pruning, give the sick vines special care; forget the crop for next year and prune not for production but for building up of the vines. Cutting hard will give the vines a chance to rest and to revive themselves.

GREENS FOR LAYING FLOCK.

The fall season, when green feed is the hardest to get, is here. Poultrymen will do well to remember that hens must have green feed if they are to produce and keep in condition so that production will be good. Kale is the most popular green feed, and it does well in most districts all winter. However, barley is a good substitute, or any other green feed the hens will eat. Carrots are a good feed for this purpose. If no fresh green feed is available, mix alfalfa meal with the mash, adding two or three pounds to the hundred of mash; or keep dry alfalfa leaves in the hoppers.

GIRDLED CHERRY TREES.

Last winter in California an eight-year-old cherry orchard suddenly showed signs of being in difficulty, and on investigation it was found many of the trees had been girdled. The first thought was that gophers had done the work; closer investigation showed that field mice were far more responsible. In cultivation weeds and trash had been thrown against the tree trunks, making a fine harbor for the nesting rodents. Before winter sets in see that there are no such refuges for mice; clear the field of gophers if possible. When injury appears, open up the trees, paint with asphaltum, and then pile soil, not trash, over the injury. In extreme cases bridge grafting or inarching may be resorted to.

SOME EARLY BERRIES.

Among the earliest of bushes to come into leaf in the spring are currants and gooseberries. For this year, plantings should be made as early in the winter season as possible, and the bushes should be set where they are to bear without danger of further transplantation. Of course, even if they are in full leaf when set out, they will go ahead and make a crop, but the results will not be as good as if they had been transplanted when dormant and given a chance to get their roots into the soil before the growing season.

BLACK END OF PEARS.

There is no doubt that black end, hard end and some other pear troubles are more likely to be found on trees on Japanese roots than on French roots. Inarching French seedlings into the tree will alleviate the injury, but there will be no entire cure until the trunk is cut from the old roots. But what is to become of the old roots, and what about the wound caused by the cut? That remains to be seen. The economics of the situation, however, point to interplanting with new trees on French roots as the best solution of the problem. As the new trees develop, the old ones can be pulled out. This entails the loss, perhaps, of some pears at harvest, but right now that seems hardly as important as getting an orchard ready for the return of good prices and profits.

CORN SMUT AND EAR WORMS.

This is the time of year to fight the corn ear worm that is so disagreeable in roasting ear time. Clear the field of all rubbish, and burn it. Plow the ground and work it so as to expose and kill the greatest possible number of hibernating pupae. This method will get most of them. Also it is the best method of fighting corn smut, which is caused by a spore. The spore may carry over in the soil, however, and if the crop was badly smutted, use a new piece of ground if available.

VACCINATION AND TUBERCULOSIS.

Despite warnings concerning the futility of vaccination of cattle as a cure for bovine tuberculosis, there still are those who believe, or hope, they may get results. So far, there has been no test made that bears out such belief. The only safe practice at present is to have the cows tested, and isolate the reactors. Better yet, kill or sell them and replace them with healthy cows. Tuberculosis takes a heavy toll in dairy herds; if it is at all possible, the herd should be cleaned up at once, and kept clean. Calves do not inherit the disease from their dams, and if they are taken at once from the cow and fed clean milk, and kept away from tuberculous cattle, they will not contract the disease.

CITRUS ORCHARD HEATING.

Get the orchard heaters ready as soon as possible after November 1, to protect the citrus fruits against possible cold weather damage during the winter. See that they are filled and ready for action, and see, too, that there is at least a four-day supply of fuel readily available. Test the thermometers, and listen for weather forecasts. The best orchard heater gives no protection if it is stored in a shed. The most important part of fighting frost damage is to be ready when the cold nights come.

CONTROL OF OYSTER SHELL SCALE.

Oyster shell scale apparently is on the increase in the orchards of the state, and the best time for control is in the fall or early winter. Spray with oil, the miscible or paste emulsions, before the rains have come in quantity. The scale reaches the egg-laying stage in February, and the control becomes then more difficult. Willows, as well as some domestic fruits and ornamentals, are host to this pest, and their planting in proximity to the orchard is to be avoided.

CITRUS BROWN ROT.

In November, or in the early weeks of December at the latest, the lemon grower should be on the alert to control brown rot. This disease also affects navel oranges. The best preventive is to spray with Bordeaux, covering the tree trunk to a hight of three and a half to four feet, and the ground around the trees. Use pressure enough to give good coverage. The organism causing this disease is present in the soil all the time, but it is active only in cool, moist weather.

SHOT-HOLE FUNGUS.

Nearly every grower of apricots knows shot-hole fungus, recognizable by the small red spots on the fruit, and the holes in the leaves about the size of shot. The control is a three-fold treatment, the first part of which is a spray with Bordeaux, 5-5-50, before or soon after the first rains. This same spray should be used again in the spring, just as the buds are swelling; and Bordeaux 2-3-50 should be administered just as the husks have been shed from the young fruits.

MY MESSAGE

To All Native Born Californians

I, DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ, GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST, DO HEREBY APPEAL TO ALL NATIVE BORN CALIFORNIANS OF THE WHITE MALE RACE BORN WITHIN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OF THE AGE OF EIGHTEEN YEARS AND UPWARD, OF GOOD HEALTH AND CHARACTER, AND WHO BELIEVE IN THE EXISTENCE OF A SUPREME BEING, TO JOIN OUR FRATERNITY AND THEREBY ASSIST IN THE AIMS AND PURPOSES OF THE ORGANIZATION:

To arouse Loyalty and Patriotism for State and for Nation.

To elevate and improve the Manhood upon which the destiny of our country depends.

To encourage interest in all matters and measures relating to the material upbuilding of the State of California.

To assist in the development of the wonderful natural resources of California.

To protect the forests, conserve the waters, improve the rivers and the harbors, and beautify the towns and the cities.

To collect, make known and preserve the romantic history of California.

To restore and preserve all the historic landmarks of the State.

To provide homes for California's homeless children, regardless of race, creed or color.

To keep this State a paradise for the American Citizen by thwarting the organized efforts of all undesirable peoples to control its destiny.

THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST IS THE ONLY FRATERNITY IN EXISTENCE WHOSE MEMBERSHIP IS MADE UP EXCLUSIVELY OF WHITE NATIVE BORN AMERICANS.

. . . Builded upon the Foundation Stones of [Friendship Loyalty Charity

IT PRESENTS TO THE NATIVE BORN CALIFORNIAN THE MOST PRODUCTIVE FIELD IN WHICH TO SOW HIS ENERGIES, AND IF HE BE A FAITHFUL CULTIVATOR AND DESIRES TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED HIM, HE WILL REAP A RICH HARVEST IN THE KNOWLEDGE THAT HE HAS BEEN FAITHFUL TO CALIFORNIA AND DILIGENT IN PROTECTING ITS WELFARE.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

DEPRESSION CONTINUES TO OVERshadow the land, and that much-talked-about corner around which, we are daily told, prosperity is patiently waiting to be discovered, has not yet come into view. There is no doubt, however, that the corner is somewhere, and eventually it will be reached. In the meantime we must push forward, otherwise the desired goal cannot be reached.

Good comes from most conditions, not excepting depressions, if we so will. The present depression has afforded an opportunity to abolish customs and cure governmental ills which are, in no small degree, directly responsible for the unhealthy economic condition that afflicts the nation. A great mistake has been, and is being, made in devoting all energies to temporary relief, instead of getting at the root of the disease and effecting a cure that will minimize, if not entirely prevent, similar afflictions in the future.

For one, the political structure should be thoroughly overhauled and every procedure which savors of and encourages graft and dishonesty should be abolished for all time. It is common knowledge that crime and dishonesty are rampant, and that officials and prominent as well as lowly citizens live not within the law. So long as that condition is permitted to exist, there can be no lasting relief from economic turmoil.

And a custom which should be permanently abolished is that of employing married women with able-bodied husbands. This custom, which is growing, is unquestionably responsible for much of the unemployment distress, for the falling-off in the birth rate, for the increase in the number of divorces and for the decrease in the number of homes. Certainly such a custom is not conducive to the wellbeing of the nation, and therefore should not be tolerated.

Just recently the Federal Census Bureau issued an unemployment bulletin. California is listed as having 1,942,155 male gainful workers, 136,-252 of whom are able to work but out of a job. There are 558,814 female gainful workers, of whom but 25,435 are out of a job. A conservative estimate of the number of married women with gainfully-employed husbands among the 533,379 females employed in this state is 133,-347. If they were compelled to relinquish their positions and males employed in their stead, the number of unemployed males would be inconsequential, and the state would, from every viewpoint, be immeasurably benefited.

Coming from a source always opposed to legislation against the Japs, the "San Francisco Chronicle," the following, which appeared editorially in that paper November 7 under the caption "Japan Caught in the Act," is of decided interest. It substantiates The Grizzly Bear's contention for years that the Japs are not to be trusted, and that in due time this country will pay the full price for the folly of placing any confidence in them:

"Chester Rowell's experience with the Japanese censor at Mukden . . . sheds a flood of light on what the Japanese are doing in Manchuria. They tell us they are merely defending their people and property in Manchuria. Mr. Rowell, a trustworthy person who saw with his own eyes, shows the Japanese attacking the Chinese civil government offices—not military forces—in a strictly Chinese railway zone and deliberately falsifying it to the world.

"The Japanese censor revised Mr. Rowell's account, which told the truth, and put into his mouth a precisely opposite statement, a flat untruth, plainly for the purpose of concealing the facts from the world and to support a false declaration made to the League. The Chinchow incident may not be vastly important in the whole Manchurian situation, but it is important because of the light in which it puts the Japanese claim of honest purpose in that country. It is a very bad light. Honest purpose does not have to falsify its acts to the world . . . .

"Japanese officialdom has no out except of course to disclaim the censor's act and say he 'exceeded his authority.' But this excuse has already been applied to the entire movement in Manchuria. The original attacker at Mukden 'exceeded his authority.' Apparently the Japanese military officials in Manchuria go on 'exceeding their authority.' Is this a handy way to extend the occupation? Japanese must not blame outsiders for concluding that the evident intention of the islanders is to make the most of the results of these 'excesses of authority'."

And here is another very interesting bit of news, sent from Moscow by the Associated Press November 5,—and there is suspicion that it was not published in the pro-Jap American press using that service: "The newspaper 'Pravda,' resuming its attack on the Japanese policies in Manchuria, today published what is described as a secret declaration by Baron Tanaka when he was premier of Japan in 1927, asserting that Japan must crush the United States to capture China. This document, said 'Pravda,' bears out its charge that Japan's present action in Manchuria is a long-planned part of its effort to extend the Japanese hegemony in the Pacific.

" 'Japan's aggressive tendencies will not end with China,' said the newspaper. 'It has designs on the Philippines, the Malayan Archipelago, Guam, Tahiti, Samoa and Australia.' Then the editorial quoted the alleged Tanaka statement, which it said had recently been published in China. 'For its own protection,' this document said, 'Japan must remove its difficulties in eastern Asia by establishing a policy of blood and iron. If we intend to win control over China we must first crush the United States. To capture China we must also capture Manchuria and Mongolia'."

The Japs are long on promises and profuse in their protestations of friendship. When they "are caught in the act," they have excuses aplenty; what they cannot invent for themselves, their supporters in this country concoct in their behalf.

And think of it! The United States Chamber of Commerce, the Federation of Churches of Christ in America, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and many similar organizations, as well as several newspapers and numerous individuals, are advocating granting the quota to Japan—aiding that country in its "peaceful invasion" conquest of the Pacific states of these United States.

In fact, these powerful influences will use every means at their command to force the Federal Congress to grant Japan the quota—"to foster the goodwill of those sensitive people," and similar buncombe. The real appeal, of course, is the yellow-dollar! For paltry Jap gold in exchange for American-made goods, the quota advocates would barter the welfare of this nation. Pray God, that there be a sufficient number of White-blooded American citizens in the national law-making body to withstand the onslaughts of the quotaists!

With big headlines, the reactionary daily press last month publicized "The California Plan," promulgated by the State Chamber of Commerce as a so-called "state-wide program to help California build prosperity on a sound, permanent basis." We have little faith in that outfit, for its record suspicions of service first to the "interests," and it has always opposed needed legislation to stop the inflow of Mexis and Japs, and the land-grabbing schemes of the latter.

Any organization which favors allowing ineligible-to-citizenship aliens unhampered access to this nation and this state is not deserving of the moral or the financial support of the masses. The State Chamber of Commerce is not, as the name might imply, a department of the State Government. It was created by various individuals and its main financial support comes from the taxpayers, via the county boards of supervisors. That is one expense which the taxpayers of every county in the state should demand be eliminated, right now!

According to the "Livingston Chroncile," Merced County had, to November 12, shipped back to Mexico at a cost to the taxpayers of $4,200, 265 Mexis. "Almost without exception," said the paper, "every one of the 265 had been, was at the time of shipping, or was likely to become a public charge on the county. One family has been costing the county $180 per month. In another were juvenile court charges who bade fair to cost the county $20 per month each at a state institution until they reached maturity. Nearly all the adults were in a state of health that made it certain they would be 'on the county' for life."

This same condition exists in every county of the state where the Mexis colonize. In the past few months more than 100,000 Mexis have been returned to their homeland from California, some 30,000 from Los Angeles County alone. The expense in all cases is, of course, borne by the taxpayers. These Mexis were brought here by the "big interests" to slave for them, but when they had no more work for them they graciously turned them over to the "deer peeple" to care for. And their care has been, and is, costing the taxpayers millions of dollars annually!

There are additional thousands of these undesirable ineligible-to-citizenship aliens who should be sent back whence they came. The cost to the taxpayers of Los Angeles for the operation of the school department and the general hospital would be materially lessened if every dependent Mexi and his breed were deported, as they should be. And the same is true of all the southern counties.

As frequently remarked in these columns, the great majority of the Mexis who come to this country are not of the White race and are ineligible for American citizenship. The Federal Congress, therefore, should adopt legislation definitely applying the provisions of the National Exclusion Law to Mexico. Unless the Congress does legislate to prevent it, just as soon as the business-sky clears the Mexis will flock back here in greater numbers than ever before. And they will be encouraged to come by the "big interests" and the so-called promotion organizations which are anxious to build up in California a population of quantity without regard to quality.

A survey of California election statistics shows that only one out of every three persons of voting age in this state casts a vote. That is true also as regards most of the states of the nation. And therein is to be found the reason for the many governmental ills so much complained about.

We are minority governed! The minority go to the polls on all election days, and put over their pet bond and other hobbies and favored candidates. The majority stay at home, and then howl continuously and vociferously at the results. There can be no hope for a change for the better in government—lessening of the cost, weeding out of incompetents, elimination of grafters and other sorely-needed reforms—until the majority realize their duty as citizens and vote.

"Within the last six months," said the "Sacramento Bee" of November 17, "between twenty and twenty-five Japanese children of the Vacaville, Solano County, vicinity, ranging in age from one to twelve years, have been sent to Japan by their parents. All have secured the necessary papers which will permit their return to this country. Education for a year or two in the Japanese language while they are young is believed to be the objective of the trips."

The surmised objective is another bit of Jap deceit, for there are in California plenty of Jap schools teaching the language of that country, and all Jap children are compelled to attend those schools. All Jap parents in this country, when financially able to do so, send their offspring to Japan. The real objective, however, is to have instilled in their hearts and minds, amid the proper surroundings, loyalty to and reverence for their worshiped mikado.

This situation instances another terrible mistake this country is making—recognizing as a citizen of the United States every child born here, irrespective of the race or citizenship of the parents. Thousands of Japs, born within the United States to parents ineligible to citizenship, are citizens of this nation, although their allegiance is, first, last and always, to Japan.

Will those who have in their keeping the destiny of this country continue to dream, or will they, before it is too late, legislate to extend United States citizenship only to children born here to citizen or eligible-to-citizenship parents? The longer they delay, the sooner will come the day of reckoning!

A humorous, but serious, situation! During recent years hundreds of thousands of the taxpayers' funds have been turned over to promotion bodies by the governing authorities of the cities and the counties of San Francisco and Los Angeles, to be used to induce people to come to California. The paid-for propaganda has even been continued during the depression years, at enormous expense to the taxpayers.

As a result, California, and particularly San Francisco and Los Angeles, have been flooded with a horde seeking employment, and there is no work for them. So, the taxpayers must dig down deeper into their pockets and produce the wherewith to support these people. Now, the governing authorities and the population-promoting bodies want all publicity agencies to urge the previously-advertised-for contingent to stay away.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is so concerned that it refers to the influx as "floating undesirables," "unwelcome visitors" and "a serious menace." In the "flush" years, however, when increased population was the main concern, the Chamber looked on these comers as desirable, they were heartily welcomed and considered a blessing. Quite a decided change in viewpoint! The harvest, evidently, has fallen short of expectations, at least in quality if not in quantity. The taxpayers should look into this and similar loopholes through which millions of their money are invested in enterprises that produce liabilities requiring the expenditure of additional millions.

"The burden of taxation upon industry has much to do with the present widespread lack of employment and the suffering which follows in its wake," says the California Taxpayers Association. "The era of riotous spending and expansion, which preceded this period of reaction and depression, swelled government to its present inflated condition. The reluctance of the people to allow government to return to its normal position in our economic structure has been and is a serious obstacle to business recovery.

"Further governmental expansion or undertakings, in a country already topheavy with governmental costs, is foolhardy. We must not trust to public works as a means of relieving unemployment. We must stimulate industry—the only agent which can furnish employment for all the people. The most pressing problem before us today is that of controlling and reducing the expenditures of government, for such expenditures take in taxes from industry and business the capital that is their life blood."

Claiming that the California Alien Land Law is being violated by the leasing of land to ineligible-to-citizenship aliens, the Glenn County district attorney has started an investigation. He further declares Americans are aiding the East Indians to lease rice fields. It is to be hoped he will not stop with investigating, as is generally the procedure, but will forcefully prosecute the law's violators, both citizens and aliens.

There are very few counties of the state in which this law is not being openly violated, and there is not a single district attorney who is doing his duty and prosecuting the law's violators. The law does not exist, so far as the enforcement officials are concerned, and the Hindus, the Japs and other ineligible-to-citizenship aliens, aided by dollar-worshiping citizens, continue to entrench themselves through occupancy of the land as owners or lessors.

Here is a field of endeavor in which some organization professing loyalty to the State of California should immediately get to work. Any organization which does, will have the support of a vast majority of the citizenry and will ascend to a "place in the sun" that will never be obscured. There are thousands of the richest acres in this state illegally in the possession of Japs, Hindus, etc. The state law provides a way to dispossess these aliens and have the land escheated to the state. The authorities of the several counties could, but for reasons best known to themselves will not, make any effort to enforce the law and recover the land.

Some organization, therefore, should employ competent help to search the records of each county for every parcel of land, acreage or town lot, illegally possessed by an ineligible-to-citizenship alien, together with the name of the conveyor of title to the property. If, with this necessary information, the authorities still neglect to do their duty, then the best of legal talent should be engaged to enforce the law. The land recovered, and escheated to the state, could, by the state, be turned over to war veterans, citizens of the state.

The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West could, and should, do this work, and take exceptional delight in the doing. All its funds, now diverted to several channels, could be used to finance the battle. Undoubtedly the American Legion would support the movement, and so would numerous individuals who desire that California remain the White man's paradise.

It is a gigantic undertaking, to be sure, but it can, and it is necessary that it should, be done. The greater the undertaking, the greater the reward in its accomplishment. Rout the Japs and the other ineligible-to-citizenship aliens from the lands they illegally possess, and California will be saved. Leave them in possession of their holdings—and the additional holdings they will acquire unless the law be enforced—and California will be lost to the White man, just as certain as day follows night, for the possessors of the soil hold the destiny-key to any country!

THE STAR

(MINNA McGARVEY.)

When Christmas-time is nearing, when cool the air and still,
With piney-laden breezes blowing crisply from the hill,
When long the nights and mystic, and dark the traveled way,
Look up toward the Heavens, and see a star's bright ray.

A star that, gleaming, deepens, as in the long ago
When over distant Bethlehem it shed its steadfast glow;
From plain to highest mountain, from home to foreign shore,
O'er city wide and hamlet, it beacons as of yore.

A blessed star, the symbol and herald of The Light
That to a darkened world was come that calm and holy night;
Eternal in the Heavens, it flashes near and far,
To guide the questing always, our lovely Christmas Star!

PLAN TO CELEBRATE NEXT YEAR WASHINGTON BICENTENNIAL BIRTHDAY

These facts should be emphasized with respect to the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, first President of the United States, next year:

It is sponsored by the United States Government, Congress creating the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, and the President of the United States is its chairman.

It will not be a world's fair or exposition, and it will not be held in any one place. It will be a nation-wide, even a world-wide, series of celebrations in which every state, city and town in this country, together with Americans and others in many foreign countries, will participate. Every community is expected to plan and carry out its own program, in co-operation with the United States commission and the state commissions.

It will last from Washington's Birthday, February 22, 1932, to Thanksgiving Day, November 24, 1932, with special celebrations everywhere on all holidays, anniversaries or other days which can be connected with the life of George Washington.

The United States Bicentennial Commission, Washington building, Washington, D. C., will send literature and suggestions for local programs to any committee, organization or group that will write for them.

COMPLETION RAILWAY HOOKUP MARKS BEGINNING NEW TRANSPORTATION ERA.

Bieber (Lassen County)—The driving of a gold spike here November 10, marking the last work in the uniting of the Great Northern and the Western Pacific Railroads, ushered in a new era in Western transportation of vital importance to California. The event was fittingly celebrated.

Approximately $14,500,000 was spent by the two railroads in the enterprise, 223 miles of trackage being laid over rugged California North mountain country. The Western Pacific built an extension from Keddie, Plumas County, to Bieber, and the Great Northern extended its line from Klamath Falls, Oregon State, to Bieber.

"Those who bring sunshine to the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves."

MONUMENT PERPETUATES MEMORY TUOLUMNE COUNTY PIONEER.

Sonora (Tuolumne County)—A monument in memory of "Dick" Stoker was unveiled November 8 in the Masonic cemetery. The ceremonies were under the auspices of the Sonora Welfare Club, which headed the movement to suitably mark the last resting place of this California Pioneer. The monument's inscription reads:

"Jacob Richard Stoker, 1820-1898. 'His heart was finer metal than any gold his shovel ever brought to light.' Gallant Mexican War Veteran. Fought in principal battles. Came to California '49, Jackass Hill '50. Built famous cabin. Intimately associated there with Mark Twain and Gillis Bros. Member Tuolumne Lodge No. 8 F. & A. M. Just and fair. Settled miners' disputes. Helped his fellowmen and community. Famed as 'Dick Baker' in Twain's 'Roughing It.' Hero in 'Jaybird and the Acorn,' 'Burning Shame,' etc."

CALIFORNIA DISTRICT SPARSELY SETTLED.

According to the Federal Census Bureau, Sacramento, California, has the sparest population—274 per square mile—of the nation's metropolitan districts, and New York City has the densest—4,000. Metropolitan districts, for the 1930 census, were established wherever the population of the central city or cities plus that of the adjacent urban territory amounted to 100,000 or more.

Other California districts listed, and their per-square-mile population, are: Los Angeles, 1,572; San Diego, 544; San Francisco-Oakland, 1,562; San Jose, 491.

"Life's highest joy belongs to him who stands, after a struggle, on some spiritual summit and looks first down upon the valley whence he has ascended, and then up to some higher peak which shall become tomorrow's goal."—H. B. Oborn.

Forest Receipts—California benefited to the extent of $280,824 in Federal Government receipts from national forests within the state for the fiscal year ended June 30.

Grape Crop Off—California's 1931 grape harvest is estimated by the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service to be 1,296,000 tons; the 1930 crop totaled 2,182,000 tons.

LOS ANGELES

CALIFORNIA'S WONDERLAND

CITY AND COUNTY

THE CALIFORNIA SOUTH DIVISION OF the President Herbert Hoover's Organization for Unemployment Relief is soliciting, through its industrial committee, co-operation of employers in the consideration of certain of the priorities of employment which are recommended by the national organization. These suggested priorities are:

First, preference to be given to married men with dependents, resident of California for six months or more. Second, preference to single men or women with dependents, similarly resident. Third, preference to single men or women above school age without dependents, but with no other means of support, similarly resident.

In this connection, the committee also invites consideration by employers of the situation presented by married couples, both of whom are working, where no real necessity exists therefore.

The committee asks that a survey be made by each employer and in each industry to determine what may be done towards giving employment to an additional number of workers, either through the shortening of the working week, the working day, by staggering employment or through such other means as may seem appropriate in the various establishments—factory, plant, store or office—under consideration.

The committee suggests that special consideration should be given to the provision of part-time employment at least, for the white-collar class which heretofore has received less than reasonable attention, and which, a survey shows, represents a need and a distress often as acute as that of the industrial worker. The committee also recommends that, in the spread of employment, consideration should be given by each employer to the capacity of each individual employee for self-help.

The above recommendations in regard to priorities as to employment follow closely the issuance of recommended priorities which the public have been asked to observe in the matter of purchases. These are:

First, the people of California South should give initial preference to local products. Second, preference to California products. Third, preference to products of the United States. Fourth, only when American goods are unavailable should foreign products be purchased.

CONTRIBUTE LIBERALLY.

The Los Angeles and Orange Counties N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Joint Homeless Children Committee is sending out the annual Christmas letter asking contributions "to save a child." Irving Baxter is the chairman and Annie L. Adair the secretary of the committee.

"Let's ring the merry Christmas bells and continue the humanitarian work of placing homeless children in childless homes," says the letter. "There'll be an answering ring of gladness in your heart that will match the radiance in the eyes of the child your contribution will help to place in a real home. The need is greater this year than ever! Give whatever you can afford, you know best."

Because of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters, the homeless child is no longer a waif. Four thousand homeless children have been placed in childless homes by the Natives. No Community Chest contributes a nickel to this work. It is deserving of the support of everyone, so contribute liberally. Be a Santa Claus to the homeless children.—C.M.H.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR.

The informal dance held by Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. in celebration of its forty-seventh institution anniversary November 12 was a delightful affair. There was a good attendance, and excellent music was provided. November 19, Roger Johnson and Anthony Pierce provided a most enjoyable musical entertainment. "Tony" surprised by demonstrating that he is a vocalist of ability.

December 3, Los Angeles will nominate officers and hold initiation. December 10, election of officers. December 24, Christmas Eve, no meeting. December 31, the Parlor plans a dance and watch party. This will be for the womenfolks, as well as the menfolks. Refreshments will be served.

CHRISTMAS PARTY, DECEMBER 16.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. initiated a class of thirteen candidates November 4. The November 11 card party, in charge of Adeline Waite, was a social and financial success. November 18 officers for the January-July term were nominated; it was decided to retain the present corps, with Gertrude Allen as president. The Spanish lessons are being resumed, the first and third Wednesdays, with Dolores Malin as instructor.

Harriet Martin is chairman of the committee which will convey Christmas cheer from Los Angeles to the veterans at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home. Flora Holy and Ruth Ruiz are members of the committee preparing baskets for the deserving poor. President Allen, Edith Schallmo and Adeline Waite compose a committee for welfare work among the Parlor's members. A contribution to the restoration fund of San Gabriel Mission has been made.

December 2, Los Angeles will elect officers and will have showers for its latest brides, Matilda Rambeau-Besson and Anita Simon-Santos. Edna Trombatore and Dolores Malin will be in charge of the program. December 9, the monthly card party, fourth in the tournament. Vivian Wickser is the chairman. December 16, initiation and Christmas party. The schoolteacher members of the Parlor are arranging the program. All those initiated since July are especially urged to be present.

CHRISTMAS FUND ENRICHED.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. initiated a class of candidates November 13, among them being Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, dean of the graduate students of the University of Southern California and an authority on California history. The first presentation of "1932 Bear Club" pins was made by Walter Slosson. Marshal Charles Straube wants to provide the shut-in members with magazines and books, and any contributions will be thankfully received.

The Christmas fund was considerably enriched last month, and a lot of fun accompanied the "raising of the dough." Judge Louis Valentine conducted a "kangaroo court" November 6, and everyone, including the jury, was found guilty. November 20 a quantity of poultry, contributed by the Drouet boys—three of 'em—and John M. Stahl, was disposed of. Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger showed up after a considerable absence and was given a big "hand," as well as a goose.

December 4, Ramona will elect officers. December 11, Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell will pay an official visit. A class of candidates will be initiated, and refreshments will be served. December 18, a turkey dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. in the diningroom of Patriotic Hall, where No. 109 holds forth. This will be the Parlor's last meeting of 1931.

Wednesday, December 23, Ramona and Navy Post No. 278 American Legion will have a joint Christmas tree on the second floor of Patriotic Hall. This affair is especially for the children of the members of the Parlor and the Post.

CHRISTMAS WORK PLANNED.

A delightful Thanksgiving program and luncheon were enjoyed by a large number of members and guests of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. November 24. Decorations appropriate to the festival day were provided by Chairman Edith Adams and the hospitality committee. Mrs. W. K. Chambers, who has not appeared before the Parlor with her inimitable and charming readings for some time, was given an ovation as she rendered a program suitable to the happy occasion. Following the program the regular meeting of the Parlor was held, with President Gertrude Tuttle presiding, and officers were nominated for the coming term.

At the November 10 meeting a shower was held, "a pantry shelf donation," an interesting piece of welfare work for the families of disabled veterans. The goods were delivered Armistice Day. Mrs. Edward Tabor, chairman of the homeless children committee, announced a Christmas party for December 8. A bazar and food sale will be features, and members will donote garments for the babies and also for children of school age. The members always look forward to this party as one of the most delightful of the year. An interesting class of eight, members of prominent and pioneer families, were initiated. The meeting was very largely attended, with delegations from Grace and Santa Ana Parlors, including District Deputy Marguerite Dickinson.

Reports from the very successful bridge breakfast given by the Parlor October 28 showed a profit of $175 which, added to the balance in the fund from last year, will give the committee an opportunity to do some good work during Christmas time. Mrs. Charles Jacobson has been appointed chairman of the philanthropy committee.

OFFICIAL TO VISIT.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. will receive an official visit December 7 from Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell. A class of candidates will be initiated, and officers will be elected.

NOTABLE GATHERING.

Long Beach—Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. had a plunkett dinner November 5, with Mrs. Zella Hodgdon acting as chairman. Bridge and five hundred were played after the dinner, which was a complete social and financial success. A beautiful quilt, made by the thimble club, was awarded President Daisy T. Hansen. November 12 the thimble club met at the home of Mrs. Fannie McPherson. A delicious covered dish luncheon was served. Articles for the bazar held November 21 were completed.

The November 19 meeting of the Parlor was

A BIT O' FARMING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

THERE MAY BE ONE GOOD EFFECT of the economic distress upon the farmers of California,—it has driven them more closely into co-operative organizations to work for their own good, and having tried the co-operation they may like it and stick. It is only through co-operation of the closest kind that permanent prosperity will be brought to agriculture. Co-operation in production and co-operation in marketing must be thorough if it is to be effective.

The farmer, of course, operates in comparatively small units; he is difficult to get into an organization and difficult to hold. Not until he is convinced by actual experience that he is to gain through working with his fellows can he be expected to do so. In the past many farmers have had sad experiences with co-operative organizations of various kinds, but it would be interesting to know what the condition now would be had co-operative organizations never come into being. That is one of the things that cannot be proved; it is one of the things that would be most productive of results if it could.

Co-operation must begin, in truth, before production, in the planning for planting. Production must be co-operative, that surpluses are not piled up with ruinous results. Co-operation must last through the year, with marketing as its climax. If the depression accomplishes this one result, of bringing home to the farmer the necessity of co-operation, it will have been an asset rather than a liability.

GOPHERS AT WORK AGAIN.

With the generous rains of last month, gophers have started their work again. Hard to control in dry weather, they may be exterminated in the fall and winter without much difficulty, in most cases. Cut sweet potatoes, carrots or parsnips, or even apples or prunes, into pieces an inch and a half long and a half-inch square, and dust with powdered strychnine alkaloid to which a small amount of saccharin has been added. An eighth of an ounce of this is enough for four quarts of bait. Put the bait in the main runways. It is necessary to make the baits large enough that the gopher cannot carry them, else he will take them to his storehouse and perhaps escape death. If he has to cut them down in size, he will get the poison.

ALFALFA FOR HOGS.

During the fall and winter, it is a mighty good plan to feed alfalfa to hogs. They will get protein, minerals and vitamins from alfalfa, whether fed as hay or mixed in the ration as meal. In feeding hay, a good plan is to make it available in a rack where the hogs can get what they want, but without waste. Meal should be fed about 10 pounds to 90 of other feeds in a self-feeder. Skim milk, alfalfa and grains are almost perfect insurance against nutritional difficulties with pigs and pregnant sows. Of course, if alfalfa pasture is available, hay need not be used.

SEEDING BURNED OVER PASTURE.

Seeding range that has been burned over has not yet been successfully accomplished. There are some grasses, such as rye, which will grow, but which will die during the dry season. If filaree and bur clover can be started, they will spread naturally, and are the best forage plants for range use. If these can be started, and the seed allowed to mature, it will be spread by the animals that graze the land. A good plan is to try sowing the seed in manure from the corrals; this can be done by mixing it sparsely with the manure when loading. Re-establishment of a bare range is a difficult matter and one that will take years for successful accomplishment.

FERTILIZATION FOR BULB PRODUCTION.

Bulb production requires soil that is fertile, with abundant humus and plenty of nitrogen. Manure turned under in the fall, then a cover crop and a dressing of quickly available nitrogenous commercial fertilizer at planting time, will bring the soil quickly to a degree of fertility that should insure good bulbs. It might be well for the flower grower to remember this, as well: in the home garden cover cropping hardly is feasible, but fertilization is, and good manure will add humus to the soil as well as plant food.

CUTTING TREES BACK.

Whatever may be the reason for the cutting back of trees, whether the annual pruning, for top working on new wood, or the production of new shoots from the old roots, the work should be done in the dormant season. During the summer and fall the tops are busy gathering plant food for storage. If the roots are to be preserved, they must have this food, hence the dormant season is chosen for cutting trees. Pinching back of excessive growth or the training of young trees is an exception. But generally speaking, if the saw or shears is to be used on a tree, it should be done after the leaves have fallen.

HENS IN THE WINTER.

During the winter the hens must be kept warm and dry, but with plenty of fresh air and as much sunshine as possible. If they get wet, the eggs will be soiled from mud on their feet, and the egg check will be smaller. Production will drop, too. The open-front house, facing the south, is probably the best answer to the problem. Keep up the weight of the hens, and if they show a loss in flesh increase the grain and cut down on the mash. Supply plenty of green feed. If sunshine is not available use fish, sardine or cod-liver oil in the mash. None of these, however, is a complete substitute for sunshine.

STORING DAHLIA BULBS.

While dahlia bulbs may be left in the ground all winter, provided the soil is light and well drained, it is a better practice to dig and store them. Dahlias, unlike potatoes, have no eyes on the bulbs and if the crown rots the bulb is destroyed. The bulbs should be carefully dug and packed in moist sand. Then store them in a cool, dark, dry place where the sand will dry gradually, curing the bulbs without injury. If the bulbs are left uncovered, they will dry out and lose much of their vigor before planting time.

THE STRAWBERRY BARREL.

The strawberry barrel is an extremely practical as well as ornamental adjunct to the garden. Quite a crop of berries may be obtained from plants in a barrel. First bore holes, about an inch in diameter, not larger, in the barrel, spacing them irregularly about nine inches to a foot apart. Fill the barrel to the first hole and stick the roots of the plants into the barrel. Pack them snugly about the hole with wet florist moss so that the soil will not wash out. Then add more soil and more plants as the holes are reached. Be sure to spread the roots as much as possible. Be sure, too, that the soil is rich and friable; a core of well-rotted manure may be put in the barrel as the earth is filled in.

SAN JOSE SCALE.

San Jose scale is not a major pest in California. It does not attack citrus fruits at all, and so far has not proved serious on any deciduous fruits save apples and pears. Yet if it is not controlled as it appears, it is entirely conceivable that in time it will become a really serious problem. San Jose scale is easy of control. Lime sulphur, full dormant strength, or good miscible oil applied before growth begins in the spring should bring about satisfactory control.

OIL SPRAY FOR CLEANUP.

Scale, spider eggs, eggs of leaf rollers and those of the various kinds of caterpillars should be killed with a dormant oil spray. Moss and lichen also are controlled by such a spray. The material may be put on at any time during the winter. Now is the proper time, if the ground is dry enough so that the work can be done. Putting off the spraying will not make it more effective, and there is the possibility that this winter may be one of those much-desired seasons where there is an abundance of rainfall which will make orchard work difficult later on.

SUNBURN PROTECTION.

Again the warning against winter sunburn damage. It is more serious than is that caused by the hot sun of the summer, for there are no leaves to shade the trunk and the range of temperature is far greater. On a bright, warm day in winter the bark of a tree will absorb heat that brings it above 90 degrees; yet that night the temperature may be freezing. The result is real injury. This may be prevented by a good coat of whitewash, which will reflect the rays of the sun instead of absorbing them. Whitewashed trees look nice in the summer, but the whitewash will give better returns on the money it cost if it is applied right now.

Growers To Confer Growers of the state will have a conference with the State Agricultural Department at Sacramento City, December 2 and 3.

"That is not riches, which may be lost; virtue is our true good and the true reward of its possessor."—Da Vinci.

Native Sons of the Golden West

"TO ALL PARLORS NATIVE SONS OF the Golden West—Dear Sirs and Brothers: The business and financial conditions in this country have not improved any during the year 1931, and in fact, were a little worse than in the previous year. However, we must have faith in the future of our country and those in charge of its affairs, and by exemplifying a spirit of co-operation we will soon be on the road to prosperity, which means better conditions to our fellow Americans.

"President Hoover has caused to be organized throughout the country committees to find ways and means to lead us to better things, and to temporarily offer assistance to those in immediate need. We should lend all the assistance possible to help carry out these plans.

"In our organization we no doubt have members who are suffering through lack of employment and who are unable to keep their dues paid. If you have in your Parlor some members who had been good members but who, through conditions over which they had no control, became delinquent and are liable to suspension, may I ask that you lend a helping hand to these brothers and thereby save them from the stain of being suspended for non-payment of dues, particularly at a time when they are unable to pay. Let us endeavor to hold our membership intact.

"They tell us 'the present depression is near the end and prosperity is around the corner.' I have faith in that statement and believe the year 1932 will find us on the way to prosperity and better conditions. Sincerely and fraternally yours,

"DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ,
"Grand President N.S.G.W.
"San Francisco, November 23, 1931."

Federal Congress Appealed To.

Many Parlors have passed, and sent to California's representatives in the Federal Congress, resolutions in substance as follows:

Protesting against the proposal to amend the National Exclusion Law, which excludes all ineligible-to-citizenship aliens, so as to apply the quota to the nationals of Japan.

Requesting that the Federal Labor Department be required either to reverse its ruling recognizing Mexican Indians—who make up the great bulk of immigrants to this country from Mexico—as eligible to American citizenship, or to assist in securing a decision from the United States Supreme Court as to their eligibility.

Protesting against further admission into this country for permanent settlement of Filipinos, because of economic, social and political problems thereby created, and recommending independence for the Philippines.

Christmas Greetings

"To the Officers and Members of the Subordinate Parlors Native Sons of the Golden West—My dear Brothers: At this time of the year it is the oldest custom to extend greetings to friends for a Merry Yuletide and a Happy New Year.

"I wish each and every member of our beloved Order Health, Happiness and Prosperity, and an abundance of earthly joys and goodcheer. I hope the little hardships and cares you encountered during this year will disappear in the merry and joyous festivities of your hometide gatherings.

"Health, Benediction and a Merry Christmas!
"DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ,
"Grand President N.S.G.W.
"San Francisco, November 18, 1931."

Come Out, Oldtimers and Youngsters.

Courtland—Courtland No. 106 will have its annual homeless children benefit dance Saturday night, December 5. Everything is in readiness to make this one of the season's most enjoyable events. This will be a hardtimes dance, featuring both the oldtime and the modern dances. Prizes for the best costumes will be awarded.

"You oldtimers who haven't had the pleasure of hopping to the music of a waltz, quadrille, etc., for many a day, come to Courtland and help make December 5 a big night," urges Third Vice-president R. J. Heringer. "And you young people, remember gaiety will reign throughout the evening. Let us all contribute generously to the homeless children!"

County Eligibles Guests.

Santa Ana—As the inauguration of a campaign to increase the membership of the Parlor, Santa Ana No. 265 held an open meeting November 16, to which all eligible natives in Orange County were invited. An interesting program, consisting of spanish and mexican music, was enjoyed, followed by refreshments. During the course of the evening, a past president ring was presented Ed Mueller. The presentation address was made by Mel Head.

The float—entered by this Parlor in conjunction with Santa Ana No. 235 and Grace No. 242 (Fullerton) N.D.G.W.—which, in line with the theme of the parade, represented polo, received honorable mention by the judges of the Armistice Day parade in Santa Ana.

Good Work, Well Done.

Livermore—November 12 Las Positas No. 96 celebrated its forty-fifth institution anniversary with a banquet, the attendance being approximately 100. An affair of this kind has long been conducted annually by the Parlor with the idea of bringing all its members together at least once a year, and it has been most successful in that respect, as well as in providing a splendid social event for the members and invited guests. After the banquet the regular meeting of the Parlor was conducted. Addresses were made by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan and District Deputy Elwood Fitzgerald.

At this meeting preparations were made for the Parlor's annual Christmas tree party for children of the Livermore Valley who might otherwise be overlooked. This affair is one of the big events of the holiday season in Livermore, and at that time some 500 children, regardless of creed, color or nativity, are made happy by Las Positas. The committee handling the affair ascertains, with the aid of the social workers in the community, the names of needy children and extends to them an invitation to be present at the party. Each is given a gift, as well as good things to eat. This is a good work, well done by No. 96!

President Delbert Johnson has named a large committee to handle the Christmas tree details, among them being Carl Clarke, R. J. Ruetz, John Rose, H. W. Hupers, H. L. Wente, J. M. Beazell, Fred Young, E. A. Wente, L. A. McVicar, Wm. Medau, Lloyd Gunderson and J. M. Baughman.

Oldtimers Guests.

Placerville—Placerville No. 9 and Marguerite No. 12 N.D.G.W. entertained oldtimers who came to El Dorado County prior to 1870. A delicious chicken dinner was prepared and served by Marguerite, and Placerville had charge of the program, which opened with a welcome address by Louis Mocettini, and continued as follows: Remarks, Mrs. Lloyd Hancock, president Marguerite; accordion selection, Arthur Masten; recitation, Jane McCusker; selection, J. E. Merryman orchestra; vocal solo, Miss Francis Spencer, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Wright; remarks, District Attorney Henry S. Lyon; vocal solo, Oliver Mann; duet, Mrs. J. Leonardi and Miss Monica McCusker; vocal solos, Mrs. Lena Rantz, George McKee and Mrs. Ovida Forni LeBourveau; duet, Mrs. LeBourveau and George McKee; community singing, oldtime songs.

The oldtimers who answered the rollcall included Henry Veerkamp, Charles Varozza, Mrs. Gilmore, Mrs. and Mr. A. B. Kyburz, Will Clifton, Mrs. Elizabeth Went, Mrs. Carl Herman, Thomas Swansborough, Miss Mary O'Donnell, Mary J. Secombe, Mary Duffy Bathurst, Sara Sexton, Josephine Norris, Mrs. Sara Waddell, Mrs. Masten, Mrs. Elizabeth Killough, Miss M. Reynolds, Mrs. Mary Kent, Henry K. Marks, Miss Etta Bunker, Thomas E. Stacey, Mrs. Fred Engesser, C. E. Holliday, Florence Welch, Mrs. J. N. Rhodes, Frank Wentz, John M. Sellick, Fiftieth Anniversary Celebrated.

Modesto—November 4 Modesto No. 11 celebrated its fiftieth institution anniversary, with approximately 150 members present, representing that Parlor and other Parlors of the San Joaquin Valley. A class of eight candidates were initiated, the ceremony being conducted by a picked team from the Parlor under the supervision of District Deputy Charles W. Gill.

After the meeting a splendid banquet was served, and a very fine entertainment program was presented. Addresses were made by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan and Grand Trustee George F. McNoble. The general committee of arrangements included Charles D. Blaine, Robert G. Benson, Robert B. Hansen, B. C. Hawkins and C. E. Tucker.

Special Courtesy to Daughters.

Santa Barbara—Santa Barbara No. 116 celebrated Armistice Day with a barbecue and dance at Tucker Grove. More than 300 enjoyed the affair, which was arranged under the general supervision of President John L. Stewart as a special courtesy to Reina del Mar No. 126 N.D.G.W. William McCaffrey prepared the barbecue, and A. C. Dinsmore had charge of the seating arrangements.

San Rafael Natives Capture Trophy.

San Rafael—The annual ritual contest between Mount Tamalpais No. 64 and Sea Point No. 158 (Sausalito) resulted in the trophy, a walnut gavel block surmounted by a bronze bear, being won by the former Parlor with a score of 963 to 823. This trophy was to be awarded permanently to the Parlor whose team scored highest in two out of three contests. Jas. Stanley, J. G. Schroder, Jas. Hayes and D. F. Rickleff judged the contest.

At the banquet following the meeting District Deputy B. J. Brusatori presided, and County Treasurer Charles Redding, in his most elegant manner, presented the trophy to President Walter Mazza, who accepted it for Mount Tamalpais. Grand Trustee Samuel M. Shortridge Jr. said he could not compliment the officers of both teams too highly on the splendid manner in which they acquitted themselves. He stated he was deeply impressed with the great advantages derived by both Parlors from these contests. They are the largest contributing factor in making for the success of these very-much-alive institutions and he will strongly urge all Parlors in his visiting district to have such contests, as he believes those Parlors which take a pride in the ritualistic work are the successful ones, while those which neglect this most important feature are, as a rule, in a moribund condition. Among other speakers were J. Hartley Russell, County Assessor A. F. Pacheco, Sheriff Walter Silmer, Harold J. Haley, Jas. Stanley, J. G. Schroder and Willis B. Garcia. Stanford No. 76's "german" quartet—no, they are not singers,—Messrs. Caveny, Barry, Sullivan and Neely, also spoke briefly, congratulating the officers for their splendid rendition of the work. A committee will get together shortly to arrange for the next series of contests, since this policy has been found to have a most stimulating effect on Nativesonism in Marin County.

Junior High School Dedicated.

San Jose—The grand officers dedicated the Herbert Hoover junior high school November 15. George B. Campbell of the board of education presided, and the speakers included President Bob Wittenberg, who extended greetings on behalf of the student body, Grand President

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

CHRISTMAS DAY 1881 CAME ON A Sunday, so while the Yuletide trees had their inning Saturday, Christmas Eve, the holiday was observed Monday, December 26. This was one of the most prosperous holiday seasons California had ever enjoyed. Money was plentiful, and everybody was happy.

Rain fell heavily Christmas Eve, but Monday was clear and cold. Four storms during December brought a rainfall of 1.88 inches, making the seasonal total 4.71 inches.

Youths of San Francisco became so imbued with the horn-blowing fad during Christmas week nervous citizens complained to the police. All day and all night horns blew incessantly in all parts of the city, and the police chief ordered his men to confiscate all horns found in the possession of blowing lads. Many wagonloads of the noise-instruments were, accordingly, unloaded at the City Hall.

Fresno City was enjoying a real estate "boom." Over 1,000 transactions, at rising prices, were made during the month, the total amount involved approximating $754,000. During the year 1881, 210 houses were constructed.

An oil gusher was struck in Pico Canyon near San Fernando, Los Angeles County.

H. J. Glenn, Colusa County's wheat baron, sowed 30,000 acres to wheat in November and December, and his 1,000 mules were plowing 25,000 additional acres.

San Francisco's Board of Trade started raising a large fund to be used in encouraging immigration from the East to California.

Arrests for violation of the state's Sunday-closing law were being made in many cities and towns. Juries composed of "prominent citizens" were, however, returning not-guilty verdicts, even when saloonkeepers acknowledged their guilt. Accordingly, what was generally regarded as a good law was made ridiculous.

Another temperance organization was born this month, at Oakland, Alameda County. It was named the Order of Good Samaritans, and the initial branch was termed Golden Link Lodge No. 1.

The first through train over the Southern Pacific via Arizona, New Mexico and Texas to New Orleans, Louisiana, left San Francisco December 30.

O. L. Palmer, San Diego City hotel proprietor, was robbed of $1,700 in gold coin which he had concealed under a mattress.

MILLIONS IN COINS FROM COAST MINES.

The treasury of Napa County was found to be $4,600 short. Barth, levanting capitalist of Napa City, had borrowed the amount and left in lieu his promissory note.

Hamilton Hall, the only theater in Grass Valley, Nevada County, burned along with several other buildings December 2, causing a $10,000 loss.

A portion of the Placerville, El Dorado County, Chinatown burned December 20. The same day a Banta, San Joaquin County, hotel was consumed by fire and the Chinese cook was cremated.

The stage from San Luis Obispo City was stopped December 14 near Soledad, Monterey County, by a highwayman who took the express box.

The Downieville, Sierra County, stage was held up near Camptonville, Yuba County, December 16 by a masked road agent. Finding nothing of value in the express box, his blaspheming could be heard for a mile.

The stage from Milton, Calaveras County, to Sonora, Tuolumne County, was stopped near Copperopolis December 29. The robber, hacking open the express box and finding it empty, made off with the mail sack.

Coinage of the United States Mint at San Francisco during 1881 included: 727,000 twenty-dollar gold pieces, valued at $14,540,000; 970,000 ten-dollar gold pieces, valued at $9,700,000; 969,000 five-dollar gold pieces, valued at $4,845,000; 12,700,000 one-dollar silver pieces, valued at $12,700,000. All of the gold and silver in these coins, totaling $41,785,000 in value, came from Pacific Coast mines.

A vein of bituminous coal was found three miles from Ventura City.

In the Boulder mine near Kelsey, El Dorado County, a gold vein eight feet wide was found December 3.

The Bald Mountain Extension Mining Company of Forest City, Sierra County, cleaned up December 9 for the week 170 ounces of gold worth $3,200.

A Fort Jones, Siskiyou County, butcher slaughtered a cow and in its stomach found chispas valued at $14.75.

In the Bald Mountain, Sierra County, claim an eight-ounce nugget was found December 20 shaped like a human being. The legs and feet were in proper position, while the left hand, with but four fingers, was held against the chest.

NOTED HORSETHIEVES ROUNDED UP.

The San Jose, Santa Clara County, electric tower, having six lights of 24,000 candlepower, was put in use December 13. Crowds gathered along the streets to view the then-wonderful illumination.

Mrs. Almina Henley, who came to California from Virginia in 1850, died at Ione, Amador County, December 16.

James C. Symen who, in 1843, settled in Napa Valley, died at Napa City, December 28, at the age of 88.

Dr. Joseph Kuhrts, called to accoucheur a Mexican woman named Cruz in Los Angeles City, December 28 delivered her of six female infants.

A. B. Dickhut went for a deer hunt with a party of friends in the mountains west of Orland, Glenn County, December 5. He became lost, and died from exposure in Grindstone Canyon, where his body was found the 18th.

David Evans and Peter Barrow were duck hunting December 8 on San Rafael Creek, Marin County. The boat upset, and Barrow was drowned.

Rev. Charles Wesley Hewes, San Francisco Baptist minister, went suddenly insane December 28 and committed suicide.

Jim Crum, Billy Miner and Billy Miller, noted horsethieves and ex-convicts who operated in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys several years, were arrested after a hard struggle in Yolo County, December 7. November 7 they had robbed a Tuolumne County stage, so they were taken to Sonora for trial for that offense.

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

"THE GREAT TREK."

By Owen Cochran Coy; Powell Publishing Company, Los Angeles, Publisher; Price, $5.00.

The author of this volume, one of the Powell Company's "California" series, is professor of history at the University of Southern California and director of the California Historical Survey Commission. He is also the author of several other California history books, and has contributed numerous articles to The Grizzly Bear.

"There is no more interesting phenomenon in the history of this continent than the westward movement of the American people," says Dr. Coy. "The purpose of this volume is to give the story of that great migration"—following news of the discovery of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County, in 1848,—"which was destined to revolutionize the history of California. . . . Our libraries are not supplied with works which treat as a whole the overland emigration at this most important epoch.

"The plan of the author has been to give an account of this movement as nearly as possible in the words of contemporaneous writers. Where a single narrative would not suffice to indicate the variety of hardships encountered or the diversity of routes followed, the diaries of several travelers have been pieced together in a sort of literary mosaic, preserving for the reader as much of the original narrative as possible." So that the reader may follow the various trails, Dr. Coy presents three maps, prepared by himself, showing all the important places mentioned in the text.

"The Great Trek" is illustrated with several drawings specially prepared by Franz Geritz. It has, also, facsimile autographs of the officers of the Covered Wagon Babies Club, and a valuable bibliography. Dr. Coy dedicated the volume "To the memory of my father, Charles Fremont Coy, a lover of history."

"THE PIONEER MINER AND THE PACK MULE EXPRESS."

By Ernest A. Wiltsee; California Historical Society, Publisher, San Francisco; Price, $4.00.

In this work, the fifth of the special publications of the California Historical Society, the author discusses the peculiarities of the situation in which the gold-rush California Pioneers found themselves, with particular reference to the difficulties encountered in obtaining news from home. He describes the forces leading to the development of numerous expresses, at first by individuals and later by organized companies, and relates in detail their methods and development.

The book is profusely illustrated with reproductions of early prints, and of envelopes disclosing the more important types of express franks. Appendices give a list of the California postal stations in 1851, and the names, the locations and the dates of operation of four hundred and forty-six of the early-day expressmen and express companies.

An interesting insert is the "Topographical Map of the Mineral Districts of California, being the first map ever published from actual survey." This map, prepared by John B. Trask in 1853, shows the locations of a large number of the earliest gold camps of California.

"FORTY-NINERS: THE CHRONICLE OF THE CALIFORNIA TRAIL."

By Archer Butler Hulbert; Little, Brown & Co., Boston, Mass., Publisher; Price $3.50.

This volume, an "Atlantic Monthly Press Book," in competition with over five hundred manuscripts won the prize of $5,000 offered by the Atlantic Monthly Press and Little, Brown & Company for the most interesting unpublished work, not fiction, dealing with the American scene. The author has been professor of history and director of the Stewart Commission on Western history at Colorado College since 1925, and since 1927 adjunct professor of American history at Pomona College. Professor Hulbert is also the author of "Historic Highways of America" and several other volumes.

"Forty-Niners" is a chronicle of what happened to the thousands of men and women who came to California via the Overland Trail in the gold-rush days. The record, much of it in the very words of the Argonauts themselves, is alive with humorous and tragic incidents. "To prepare this chronicle of the California gold rush,"

Native Daughters of the Golden West

GEORGETOWN—AT ITS ANNUAL DINner, El Dorado No. 186 was hostess to oldtimers of California who came to El Dorado County prior to 1870, members of Georgetown No. 91 N.S.G.W. and other invited guests. Oldtimers answering rollcall were Mrs. Georgia Knox 1852, Mrs. Elizabeth Farnsworth 1853, Peter Morgan 1861, Edward Stanton 1863, Ira Cushman 1865 and Mrs. Florenda Francis 1868. Three generations of Native Daughters, all members of the Parlor, were also present—Mrs. Margaret Roberts; her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Francis, and her granddaughter, Miss Edith Francis. President Hattie Presby welcomed the guests, and the members of El Dorado, attired in quaint pioneer costumes, served a turkey banquet.

At the conclusion of the feast a pageant of California's colorful history, written and directed by Past President Ella Stanton, was presented by the members in costume, Past President Annie Heindel announcing each event. Two oldtime fiddlers, Peter Morgan and Clarence Hotchkiss, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. J. Wiley, rendered popular tunes of the early days, and during the spanish period of the pageant Mrs. Budd Polley favored with appropriate guitar selections. Several songs of the mining days were sung by Miss Margaret Kelley, accompanied by Mrs. Wiley.

The affair was Georgetown's fiesta day, and will long be remembered by those so fortunate as to have been guests of the occasion.

Christmas Greetings

"To the Officers and Members of the Subordinate Parlors Native Daughters of the Golden West —Dear Sisters: It gives me great pleasure to call to your attention that the greatest festival of all times will soon be celebrated—the Birthday of the World—CHRISTMAS.

"After nineteen hundred years, the charm of Christmas is just as great and welcome to us of the twentieth century as it was to those who heard the Angelic Choir sing 'Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men.'

"How beautiful that night in Bethlehem, when the Shepherds and the Wise Kings traveled from afar to gaze upon the Babe in a lowly manger; a Babe, born to save the world; an answer to all problems and the solution to all difficulties. What a delightful fascination the festival of Christmas has for mankind!

"In a spirit of faith, dear sisters, let us ask HIM to bring peace to the world and ask, especially, that the Temple of Mars be closed forever. Let us forget the bitterness of fears and the anxious thoughts that crowd our lives, and pray to that Babe for the gift of understanding and to make all our moments calm and bright and full of the strength of faith, hope and love. Let us apply the Golden Rule to our everyday life—'Do unto others as we would have them do unto us,' —for such is the spirit of Christmas.

"With just such a spirit, I wish all the blessings, that Heaven alone can give, to each and every member of our Order and their dear ones, and may the new year bring joy and prosperity to every household within our land.

"For I couldn't have a Christmas
That's happy through and through,
Unless I started wishing
A happy one for you.
I couldn't have a minute
That's sunny all the year,
Unless I wished all sunshine
For the members I hold dear.

"Sincerely and fraternally yours, in P.D.F.A.,
"EVELYN I. CARLSON,
"Grand President
"Native Daughters Golden West.
"San Francisco, December 1, 1931."

Grand Parlor Plans Discussed.

Merced—Veritas No. 75 received an official visit November 3 from Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson. A large number of members of the Parlor and numerous visitors were in attendance. The evening's extensive program opened with a supper at which President Marie Sorenson presided. In the lodgeroom, decorated in the colors of Veritas, gold, white and crimson, the ritual was exemplified, and plans for the Grand Parlor, which meets at Merced in June, were discussed. Following the singing of "I Love You, California," by Marion Pulcifer a gift was presented Grand President Carlson, and corsages were presented Pauline Zirker, charter member, and Supervising Deputies Emma O'Meara, Mae Givens, Eugenia Kahl, Alberta Guard, Margaret Boyle and Katherine Kopf.

Veritas had a float, in charge of Hazel Laverty, in the Armistice Day parade, and a committee composed of Zelphia Thomas, Mildred Heinzen, Harriet Hooten and Rhoda Guest has been appointed to take care of a grocery box for welfare work.

"Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters."

San Jose—Vendome No. 100 had an Armistice Day program November 11 with Mrs. Anne Farnsworth in charge. Mrs. Julia Waddington, sewing club chairman, entertained at her home November 13. The Parlor's institution anniversary party November 18 featured a depression dinner. Members came attired in the oldest and worst clothes obtainable. Past presidents, with Mrs. Lotta Koppel as general chairman, had charge of the festivities.

The annual dance sponsored by the San Jose Parlors—San Jose No. 81 and Vendome No. 100 N.D.G.W., San Jose No. 22 and Observatory No. 177 N.S.G.W.—for the benefit of the homeless children will be held Saturday evening, December 5.

Vendome's $100 Christmas gift card party, to be held December 9, is in charge of a general committee composed of Mms. Clara Gairaud (chairman), Lotta Koppel and Hazel Haub. Holders of green books are asked to communicate with Mrs. Gairaud before that date. The Parlor recently received a S.O.S. call from a poor family. Without any redtape relief was extended and shoes were provided for five boys and a girl. "Cast thy bread upon the waters and it will come back to thee a hundredfold," is Vendome's motto. Another reason why the green books should be successful.

Memorial Service for Past Grand.

Sacramento—November 10 Califia No. 22 had a memorial service and dedicated a California State (Bear) Flag to the memory of the late Past Grand President Ema Gett. The occasion was also in recognition of the Parlor's institution anniversary and charter members night. Mrs. Gett was a highly esteemed member of Califia and was much loved by all who knew her.

While the members sang "I Love You, California," accompanied at the piano by Miss Oneida Wilhelm, Marshal Maud Cook entered with the flag. "Absent" was sung by a quartet from Sutter No. 111 directed by Miss Ida Thomas, Mrs. Sadie Brainard spoke of Mrs. Gett's life, and Past President Katherine Jones delivered the dedicatory address. First Vice-president Sulene Cowan read the following original poem, "In Memory of Mrs. Gett":

"On the highway of life's sweetest memories
We pause from the cares of the day,
To hold in our thoughts, and in spirit,
A loved one we treasure always.
Time, the great healer of sorrow,
Gives courage and bids carry on
The test of the soldier in battle
Is proven when victory is won.
A leader may fall in the conflict,
The colors must still be held high.
To us has this banner fallen
Our heritage; dare let it lie?
As the shadows at sunset turn golden,
Weaving tapestries, priceless and rare,
So memory weaves and is holding
A pattern of love we may share.
Enshrined in the folds of this emblem
Are graces and beauties unseen,
But speaking a tender message
From the soul of the giver, serene.
Years cannot dim our devotion,
Service our watchword must be,
This is our test of promotion
If we would share honor with thee.
To one of our state's fairest daughters,
May we honor her memory sublime,
For her loyalty, service, devotion,
To California, your loved state and mine."

Entertains Menfolks.

San Bernardino — November 4, Lugonia No. 241 entertained the husbands of its members and the members of Arrowhead No. 110 N.S.G.W. and their wives at an italian dinner. Gladys Baker was in charge. A short entertainment program followed the dinner. November 25 officers for the January-July term were nominated and a social hour at cards was followed by light refreshments.

Costume Party.

Oakland — Members of Piedmont No. 120 N.S.G.W. were guests of Piedmont No. 87 at a Hallowe'en costume party October 29. A very enjoyable evening was had, there being entertainment, dancing and a banquet. The entertainment consisted of a miniature minstrel show by blackface comedians, and a dancing act. The balance of the evening was spent in dancing. Prizes for the best costumes were awarded Ellen Mullins, Alice Weber, Mae Mead and Merle Wilson. At the close of the evening all repaired to the banquet hall to enjoy pumpkin pie and coffee. Pauline Griswold was chairman of the evening. November 19 No. 87 sponsored a public turkey whist.

Need Homeless Children Funds Stressed.

Halfmoon Bay — Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson paid an official visit to Vista del Mar No. 155 October 22, and was accompanied by Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini and Supervising Deputy Rena Mathias. Other visitors were District Deputy Dias and delegations from several Parlors.

The address of Mrs. Carlson, a woman of charming personality, was greatly enjoyed. She particularly stressed the necessity of securing funds for continuing the homeless children work, and expressed the hope Vista del Mar and Seaside No. 95 N.S.G.W. would respond this year in the same generous way they have in the past. She also highly commended the officers for the efficient manner in which the Parlor is conducted. A number of other visitors gave short addresses which were much appreciated. At the conclusion of the meeting delicious refreshments were served in the banquetroom, tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Fun for All.

Oroville—Gold of Ophir No. 190 had a Hallowe'en party November 4 at which members of Argonaut No. 8 N.S.G.W. were guests. Entertainment, a laugh-provoking game that brought fun for all, was in charge of Mae Bell Bills, who was assisted by Emma Danforth, Mattie Lund and Irene Lund. Alice Frazier was hostess at a surprise turkey supper. An interesting hour at the festive board was hightened by assembly singing led by Romilda Ralph, with Alta Baldwin at the piano.

State Flags for County Schoolrooms.

Woodland—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Woodland No. 90 was the occasion for a largely attended and most interesting session. The evening's first feature was a dinner, which was followed by addresses and the initiation of four candidates. The banquet and meeting rooms had the appearance of an autumn setting, with decorations in the fall motif. Other grand officers in attendance included Grand Vice-president Anna Mixon-Armstrong, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Trustee Florence Boyle, Past Grand Presidents Addie Mosher, Mary E. Bell and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputies Edna Richter and Ethel Ludwig, District Deputies Inna Bloom, Sadie Brainard, Mamie Davis, Mamie McCormick, Laura Nordstrom, Edna Healey, Bessie Leach and Doris Fisher.

Through the efforts of the Parlor, and with the consent of Mrs. Rowena Norton, county school superintendent, a California State (Bear) Flag will be placed in every Yolo County schoolroom. The first flags were placed October 29 in the West Sacramento school. The program was in charge of Mrs. Edna Richter, chairman of No. 90's history and landmarks committee.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of December, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

1st—La Junta No. 203, Saint Helena.
2nd—Castro No. 178, San Francisco.
3rd—San Jose No. 81, San Jose.
4th—Fruitvale No. 177, Oakland.
5th—Sacramento and Placer Counties district meeting.
7th—Darina No. 114, San Francisco.
8th—Alta No. 3, San Francisco.
10th—Plumas, Glenn and Butte Counties district meeting.
11th—Mission No. 227, San Francisco.
14th—Sonoma No. 209, Sonoma.
15th—Petaluma No. 222, Petaluma.
16th—Golden State No. 50, San Francisco.
18th—El Tejon No. 239, Bakersfield.

Drill Team Gets Trophy.

Petaluma — With President Julia Peroline presiding, Petaluma No. 222 initiated two candidates November 3. With Elizabeth Dillon in charge, refreshments were served at flower bedecked tables following the ceremonies. Large delegations from the Parlor attended the meetings of Eschol No. 16 and Santa Rosa No. 217 when Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson visited those Parlors.

A public card party November 17 was largely attended, and many went home with Thanksgiving turkeys. A twenty-dollar gold piece was also disposed of at a goodly profit. The Parlor's drill team appeared in the Santa Rosa Armistice Day parade and was awarded a trophy. Preparations are being made for the official visit of Grand President Carlson December 15.

"On Armistice Day."

Santa Ana — The benefit card party of Santa Ana No. 235 was well attended and a social success. In charge was a committee composed of Mms. Marguerite Dickinson (chairman), Genevieve Hiskey, Olive Seha, Florence Watson and Muriel Bray. Preceding the November 9 meeting a dinner was served by the losers in a membership drive. Honor guests were District Deputy Hazel Hansen and a delegation from Verdugo No. 240

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

SOMEONE HAS HINTED THAT THERE IS not a Santa Claus. If not, who brings the presents to little children—those who still believe with all their wide-eyed wonder in Christmas and know some things so much better than we do? Santy is their hero and, like other heroes of childhood days, he has to suffer many attacks. So does old Father Christmas take many a buffeting in this modern age of skepticism, and over the roof of many a home the tinkle of his reindeers' bells has grown fainter each year.

Streets and stores are gay with excited preparations which prove that Santa Claus does exist, and that there is a Santa Claus will be forcibly impressed on one after a busy day of prowling about and making selections for the youngsters and friends—and always remembering charities. The Christmas spirit cannot be torn apart. "Peace on earth, good will to men," is an ideal that has stayed with us through the centuries.

It is interesting to note that, in common with so many other lines, toys and games are considerably less in price than last year. This means, of course, more Christmas happiness for a larger number of children. The curtain rises on the thrilling drama of dolls and toys, and old Santa himself is smilingly waiting to greet his little friends, in person. He may be found in most of the shops and on the streets from now until Christmas.

This year we see genuine reproductions of furniture for children's playrooms, including four-poster beds, chiffoniers, vanity dressers with benches, drop-leaf and gate-leg tables, windsor chairs, and even an individual toy bathroom, completely equipped with every bathroom accessory. Life-like baby dolls, with composition head, arms and creeping legs, sleeping eyes with long eyelashes and crying voice, are beautifully dressed. The modern couch-hammock, in miniature, is designed for the leisure-loving dolls. It is strongly constructed with steel standard, and is complete with canopy top and awning stripe canvas upholstery.

For the boys, there are the 31-model automobile, all steel body and adjustable pedals, headlights, horn, adjustable windshield, front bumper, toolbox and the new-type ten-inch wheel; a three-car electric train consisting of electric-type locomotive, baggage car and passenger coach, narrow-gauge sectional track with danger signal and semaphore; also a new-type tubular velocipede with chromium-plated handlebars, rubber grip, bell, double coil spring saddle and even the toolbag.

A toy that will be hailed with delight by all "Mickey Mouse" fans is a mechanical orchestra, all metal, key wind, start-and-stop lever; a director, a dancer, a pianist and a drummer all take part.

Toys, the like of which you have never seen before, will greet you on every hand. Amazing mechanical toys that hold small boys, and sometimes the larger ones, spellbound, stand side by side with the most alluring dolls any small girl ever wanted. So it goes. Your progress through the land of make-believe will be a series of surprises.

The Christmas gift of something handmade may be a pajama ensemble, a slumber ensemble, Christmas aprons for tea service or kitchen use, a new wardrobe for dolly, embroidered linens or guest towels. A cloth of which one could be justly proud is embroidered in cutwork with a design of leaves and fruit and has napkins to match. A quilt in an interesting shell design could be made of satin or taffeta, interlined with cozy layers of wool. A small alarm clock for the bedside may be selected in your favored color.

This Christmas will find umbrellas converted into a beautiful costume accessory. There are tailored models as jaunty as a walking stick, and dress types pleasingly keyed to the afternoon mode.

A whole wardrobe of styles are eager for a place among the gifts to one's self and one's friends. Handkerchiefs are always most acceptable, as are hosiery, lovely bags for daytime and evening use, lingerie, handmade slips, panties and chemise, bias-cut nightgowns, low-back slips and one-piece pajamas with lace trimmed coat.

We also find the useful makeup box, with spacious divisions for separate toilet necessities. Boudoir novelties are so attractive—chinese dolls holding powderpuffs; rose pajama cases that look just like a delicate rose in one's bedroom; boudoir pillows; shoe-trees in all the dainty pastel colorings; chiffon sets of handkerchief and garters to match.

We know that more than the gift itself is its association, and a very small gift may be very precious, apart from its intrinsic value. There is a glamour about the holiday sets of perfume, powder and soap. It is not difficult to choose gifts. Maybe something small or something quite impressive—perfume in an elaborate cut-glass bottle, or a makeup box for the woman who travels. There are gifts for every occasion, for young and old.

Accessories to the fact of being well dressed are with us this season in abundant variety. Those little touches—a necklace, a bracelet, a clever clip—all can accentuate and complete the costume, but they must be harmonious and appropriate, otherwise their purpose is defeated. Do not, however, buy tempting trifles unless you have a definite place and use for them. There are pieces and sets of costume jewelry to suit all types, both of beauty and clothes. See that you choose things that set off your outfit.

The most original of all the new designs we have seen is a slip-on glove, with a bracelet quite rigid at the top of the glove held in place by gold or silver threads. On white and black the thread is silver, and on beige it is gold. You will be glad to know this stunning little bracelet glove comes in daytime shades as well as those for evening wear.

There are many attractive styles in short evening gloves. Some of the newest have little bows on the back of the wrists, some have a tiny gore with stitching and some have turnback all-around cuffs of self-material in the new length. The very latest are the short ones in a variety of styles. However, many women prefer the regulation long gloves for evening wear. If so, you must wear them as if they were shirred, crushed down to the forearm.

Sequin berets to wear with your evening gown are exactly the shape of the every-day model, but the glittering spangles set them worlds apart and make them applicable to the evening formal wear.

Rhinestone buttons and a bow at the waistline are all the trimming required for one of the smartest frocks of the season. The color is a golden beige, and the bodice is draped with a slantwise movement that is clinched with the rhinestone buttons, one near each shoulder and the third one farther down on the right side of the draped neckline. The small bow at the waistline is a continuation of the narrow belt, and looks as though it was also a continuation of the narrow binding around the one-sided peplum. There are tiny little shoulder-cap sleeves over the long ones, and the latter bulge slightly at the wrist.

Fussy clothes are of short duration. The woman who knows her needs, will reserve them for afternoon hours.

says Professor Hulbert, "the California trail was divided into eight sections. Then every available diary or journal was read for the light it might shed on pioneer experience in the region covered. . . . In addition to consulting this source material the writer has traveled most of the trail himself, mile by mile, several times. Thus a diary of a party of Forty-Niners came into existence. Every material fact in it is from some record left by an Argonaut of the gold-rush days, 1848-1853. . . . Nothing, therefore, is modern in this book except the arrangement."

The work is illustrated with numerous cartoons of the Forty-Niners, and many original drawings of sights and scenes of the time. It also has eight maps of the Overland Trail, and presents the songs sung along the way; these latter, it is stated, are here collected for the first time. A bibliography, always valuable in a California history book, lists the writings of California Argonauts from which the facts in the volume were derived.

SEA GULLS

(MISS ESTHER CRONE.)

Brave rovers of the sea, of billow and lea,
So endowed with grace and motion,
We covet your skill to circle at will
The breakers of God's great ocean.

White heavenly things, with angel-like wings
That can fold or conquer the deep;
And no limit to hights in your tireless flights,
Scaling crag or mountainous steep.

Is the secret you bear, that a Father's care
Makes your life so happy and free?
Do the same hands feed, like the Word we read?
Our brave rovers out on the sea.

LIVING CHRISTMAS TREES SUGGESTED AS CONFIDENCE RESTORER.

"Light an outdoor Christmas tree this year and help to drive away fear and depression," is the message being broadcast by the Outdoor Christmas Tree Association of California.

"It seems that at this particular time, when the world is so full of fear and thoughts of limitation, we should make an extra effort to restore confidence and drive away fear. There is no better way to accomplish this than to decorate outdoor living Christmas trees in front of homes. Living Christmas trees along the highways will also act as beacons to prosperity, and spread a cheerful message of confidence to the visitors from other states as well as to our own citizens."

Depression Discussion—The Institute of Occupational Relations will discuss theories as to the cause of the depression and proposed remedial measures at Los Angeles City, December 14-18.

NATIVE SON NEWS

Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez and Principal R. B. Thompson.

On behalf of Observatory No. 177, Past Grand President Charles A. Thompson presented a California State (Bear) Flag, which was accepted by Jane Gray; Mrs. George F. Smith presented a memorial flag, which was accepted by Billy Gary, and Virginia Tompkins presented a picture of President Herbert Hoover. A splendid program of musical numbers was presented by the student body.

The dedicatory ceremonies were conducted by Grand President Gonzalez, Past Grand President Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Secretary John T. Regan and Grand Trustee Jesse H. Miller. Other grand officers in attendance were Grand Trustees John M. Burnett and Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., and Past Grand President Thomas Monahan.

Initiation in Official's Honor.

Santa Rosa—In the Armistice Day parade here the turnout of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters resembled an Admission Day outpouring. The division was led by the drum corps of Mount Tamalpais No. 64 (San Rafael) and then came the drill team of Petaluma No. 222 N.D.G.W., the Sonoma County Past Presidents Associations N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W., and goodly delegations of members from all the Parlors in Sonoma County. The shetland ponies of Santa Rosa No. 28 were the hit of the parade. Following the march the Parlor had open house and refreshments were served to all the Natives.

November 17, No. 28 initiated a class of candidates in honor of Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell, affiliated with Santa Rosa. A Thanksgiving supper, with turkey and all the trimmings, preceded the meeting. Among the visitors were Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez and Grand Trustee Joseph McShane. The Parlor's good of the order committee has great plans for the annual '49 celebration, to be held New Year Eve, December 31.

Wants Mortgage Moratorium.

San Diego—San Diego No. 108 had a well attended '49 party November 4 which was greatly enjoyed. Among the visitors and speakers were Tallant Tubbs (Presidio No. 194) and Ed. L. Head (Stanford No. 76) of San Francisco.

The Parlor has passed a resolution petitioning Governor James Rolph Jr. (Hesperian No. 137) to declare a year's moratorium on mortgages, and has directed a resolution to the San Diego City Council regarding the wage scale.

Neophytes Trod Rough Trails.

Sonoma—November 16 a class of candidates were initiated for Sonoma No. 111 by the past presidents team of Golden Gate No. 29 (San Francisco). Although it was a very stormy evening and raining hard, twenty-eight members of Golden Gate braved the elements to be in attendance at this affair. The work of this team was conducted in a splendid manner, each officer being almost perfect in the rendition of the ritual. The following conducted the ceremony: Past Presidents Alfred Moore, L. Alvin Werner, Meldron Loudon, John Gibson, Chas. Craig, George Strohmeier, Ralph Young and Arthur Seyden.

After the initiation the neophytes were required to walk over the pioneer trails, including the hot sands of the desert, as did the forefathers when coming into California. The trails were mighty rough and the sands were very hot, which caused a lot of enjoyment for the candidates as well as for the other members assembled. After the meeting a turkey banquet was served. Chas. Craig who, the members of Golden Gate say, is an authority on good food, stated this was one of

THE BIG CITY  THAT KNOWS HOW

WHEN SICKNESS MEANS OPPORTUNITY

(BEULAH WELDON BURHOE.)

ALBERTO HAS BEEN TOLD THAT HE would have to spend one year and possibly two in the tuberculosis sanatorium. He had been told, too, that he could never return to his old job of sheet metal working. He was worried. He knew that the mother's pension allowance would take care of his wife and his three children during the time that he would have to stay in the sanatorium, but he did not know how to face a future in which he could not work at his old trade. During the ten years that Alberto had lived in this country he had worked very hard and he had had little time to spend in study. Little progress had been made in English, beyond an ability to make himself understood.

After he had been in the sanatorium a short time the doctor told him that he was getting along so well he could have the privilege of attending a class in English. He was delighted. He beamed. In broken English he explained that in his trade there were two kinds of jobs: putting up the metal, and "making the pictures on the blue paper." He said he knew how to make the pictures but that the boss would not let him draw because he "could no spick."

For six months now Alberto has been a faithful pupil and has made such progress that he speaks quite good English. He will probably be able to leave the hospital in about three months.

The local tuberculosis association is making arrangements to provide a short course in blueprint drawing. Alberto will then be equipped to take a job in which he can use all the knowledge gained in his trade and which will be suited to his physical disability. He is no longer worried. His physician believes that improvement has been hastened because of his confidence in the future.

All over the country there is a steadily increasing interest in providing instruction to those who are spending long months in tuberculosis sanatoria. As the toll of tuberculosis is heaviest during the wage-earning period of life—the disease still heads the list of deaths between 18 and 45—it is essential for patients to obtain jobs that are safe for them after leaving sanatoria for their homes. At the present time there are over fifty sanatoria where classes are held for adults. The courses range all the way from instruction to mothers in the conduct of their households and the training of their children, to courses in high school and college subjects. Typing and shorthand are very popular studies.

The local tuberculosis associations, supported entirely through the sale of Christmas seals, are promoting this educational movement so that the months of illness can be changed from a time of boredom to a period of opportunity. The patient discharged from the tuberculosis sanatorium will not only be improved in health, but improved in ability. The Christmas seal is helping to make up the handicap of sickness by providing a chance to acquire greater skill. Aid this worthy cause by purchasing Christmas seals!

N. D. HOME RECEIVES PAINTING.

The annual highjinks of Alta Parlor No. 3 N.D.G.W., to be held December 22, promises to surpass all previous entertainments of that nature. Mrs. Pomeroy is chairman of the committee in charge. Mrs. Lillian Eisien, a member of Alta, has shown a keen interest in the Native Daughter Home. Her gift, a handsome painting in water colors, has been hung in the upper hall between the lounge and the dining-room, where the lighting effect is perfect. The painting is admired by all who enter the beautiful building.

SENTIMENTS EXPRESSED IN SONG.

Orinda Parlor No. 56 N.D.G.W. was hostess to Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson on the occasion of her official visit October 23. The Native Daughter Home, where the meeting was held, received its full measure of praise for being able to accommodate a gathering of over 250 who honored the Grand President and the Parlor. Miss Mildred Gibson sang a song of welcome, the words of which expressed Orinda's sentiments. It was illustrated by the unveiling of a decorated ladder with a doll dressed in white named Evelyn and one costumed in blue named Orinda. Orinda, at the bottom, was extending a hand to Evelyn, at the top. The Native Daughter glee club entertained with several numbers.

Representatives of most of the local and several of the nearby Parlors were in attendance, as were also Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley, Anna Thuesen and Willow Barba, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grand Presidents Dr. Mariana Bertola, Genevieve W. Baker, Emma G. Foley, Margaret G. Hill, Addie L. Mosher, Mary E. Bell and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, District Deputy Helen T. Mann and twenty-six additional deputies. The Parlor presented fifteen of its past presidents, each of whom announced the year of her presidency, commencing with 1894.

Grand President Carlson spoke of the projects of the Order in which she is specially interested, congratulated the Parlor on the acquisition of three new members, expressed pleasure at the welcome extended her, and praised the officers for perfect work and the arrangements committee of the evening for success in creating an at-home atmosphere. Chairman Bertola of the Grand Parlor Home Committee referred to the opportunity the Native Daughters have in being privileged to meet in the Home building and, in doing so, being at home in their own home. She remarked that the Grand President's words about the closeness of one Native Daughter to another was worthy of the head of the Order.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.

Pacific Parlor No. 10 N.S.G.W. had a golden jubilee November 10 in celebration of its fiftieth institution anniversary. Honor guests were James F. Swift, R. D. McElroy, George D. McPherson, S. H. McPherson, C. J. Williams, William Metzner and M. G. Searing, charter members.

Past Grand President Daniel A. Ryan was chairman of the evening, and among the speakers were Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand President, Charles R. Boden, president of the Parlor, and Bert D. Paolinelli, chairman golden jubilee committee. Several entertainment numbers were presented.

HAPPY EVENING.

Two hundred members of the Order gathered with Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 N.D.G.W. to welcome Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially October 29. Prior to the meeting a delectable dinner was prepared and served by Matron L. Hawkins of the Native Daughter Home. The reception and banquet halls were decorated in festoons of black and orange crepe paper, and beautiful boquets of golden flowers carried out the spirit of Hallowe'en. The officers, in pastel shaded gowns, made a pretty picture as they stood in the dimmed lights and perfectly exemplified the ritual.

Officials of the Order present as visitors were Grand Trustees Ethel Begley and Ann Theusen, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grand Presidents Margaret Hill, May C. Boldeman and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, and District Deputy Lillian O'Claire. Distinguished members of Buena Vista in attendance were Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell, Genevieve W. Baker and Dr. Marianna Bertola, and Mrs. Angelo Rossi, wife of San Francisco's mayor. Vocal selections rendered by the Native Daughter glee club were very much appreciated by all assembled. The Parlor added to its roll three new members on this occasion. Much praise was given President L. Mitchell and her able corps of officers for making this a very happy evening for all.

a Parlor of Native Sons did so, when Golden Gate No. 29 featured an appropriate program November 9. There was a record attendance, and much enthusiasm was manifest over the interest taken in educational matters.

The program was introduced by Historian Peter T. Conmy, who was the chairman of arrangements. Superior Judge Isadore Harris, a member of the Parlor, spoke on "Education as a Remedy for Crime," which dealt with his experiences on the criminal bench. Deputy School Superintendent Walter C. Nolan made an address on the "Functions of the Public Schools." Vocal selections were rendered by an adult chorus from the Commerce evening high school under the direction of Roy McCarthy. Many members of Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W. were present, and there were delegations from Presidio, Marshall, El Dorado, Olympus and Quartz Parlors, Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzales voiced his approval under good of the order, and Past Grand President Judge Frank H. Dunne, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Joseph Rose, Harry Gaetjen and Alfred Vlautin also made brief addresses.

OLD COSTUMES AFFORD AMUSEMENT.

November 2 each member of Darina Parlor No. 114 N.D.G.W. appeared at the regular meeting in an old-fashioned costume. These costumes represented the various styles of dress during the past century and were the source of much amusement to those present. District Deputy Dorothy Finn was the guest of honor, and prizes were awarded Misses Esther Stephens and Armida Donati. A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the serving of delicious refreshments at daintily decorated tables.

MUSIC KEEPS PARTY AT HIGH PITCH.

With over one hundred members of Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 N.D.G.W. and Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S.G.W. in attendance, a gay Hallowe'en party was staged. Many bright costumes fitted amongst the strange decorations. A real Hallowe'en supper was served, after which dancing and games of all kinds were indulged in. Pinning the tail on a donkey, which some of the members had never played before, left many helpless.

The officers of Gabrielle were the hostesses, and President Annie Campbell, First Vice-president Ruth Koehler and Past President Lillian McCloskey were given a special vote of thanks for the wonderful decorations, and the classy music which kept the party at a high pitch until the early morning of the next day.

ARMISTICE DAY REMEMBERED.

November 11 Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington made his official visit to South San Francisco Parlor No. 157 N.S.G.W. About two hundred members were present to extend greetings and to provide a pleasant evening for the visitor. One candidate was initiated, and the officers of the Parlor were highly complimented for the efficient manner in which they conducted the initiatory ceremonies. Grand Vice-president Millington also complimented the officers for the manner in which the business was conducted and on the condition of the Parlor in the face of present financial conditions. South San Francisco has a membership of 825 and assets totaling approximately $50,000.

After the meeting a banquet was served in honor of the visiting grand officer and, as well, in commemoration of the thirteenth anniversary of Armistice Day. The Parlor annually holds a banquet on the meeting night nearest November 11, and has been doing so since 1919. All ex-service members of No. 157 are special guests of the evening and wartime songs and stories are sung and related for the entertainment of those assembled. The good of the order committee, headed by Thos. J. O'Rourke, provided a wonderful repast, as well as a splendid entertainment, and few, if any, of the two hundred members present left the banquet hall until the hour of 12:30, at which time the affair came to an end. Addresses were made by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, Past Grand President William P. Caubu, District Deputy Gustave E. Ritter, Harmon D. Skillin, Judge George Schonfeld and Vincent Lovett, the latter representing all of the ex-service men. Grand Secretary John T. Regan, a member of South Parlor, was the toastmaster.

GRAND PRESIDENT LUNCHEON GUEST.

A Hallowe'en costume party was given by Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D.G.W. October 28. Refreshments were served at beautifully decorated tables. Pumpkins, witches, owls and cats carried out the spirit of the holiday, and over forty members shared the pleasures of the evening. Prizes were awarded the winners of games and the wearers of the most original and unique costumes. Mrs. Ida Corrigan was chairman of the evening, and District Deputy Agnes McVerry was the honored guest.

The patients in the tubercular ward of Letterman Hospital were guests November 1 of Dolores. The spirit of Hallowe'en was carried out by serving home-made cakes, ice cream, candies, smokes and jellies. Magazines were also passed around. Mrs. Betty Both was hostess, assisted by Miss Juanita Blanchfield and Mrs. Emma O'Meara. A large package of dainty garments, made by the sewing club, was sent to Miss Mary E. Brusie of the Homeless Children Central Committee.

The sewing club gave a most delightful luncheon November 18 at the Native Daughter Home. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, who organized the club several years ago, was the honored guest. Mrs. Emma O'Meara acted as hostess, and thirty members sat at tables decorated with Thanksgiving favors.

BUSY WITH HOLIDAY PREPARATIONS.

Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D.G.W. is very busy making preparations for the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, getting ready for the children's Christmas party, the Christmas party for the veterans and the various other activities of the holiday season.

Time was taken, however, to enjoy a little relaxation in the always amusing pranks of Hallowe'en. Mrs. Georgia Nelson presided over the entertainment, and all "sure did have fun." District Deputy Myrtle Ross joined heartily in the festivities and carried away the first prize of the evening. Hallowe'en decorations prevailed, and refreshments were served at prettily decorated tables.

FLAGS PRESENTED SCHOOL.

Bret Harte Parlor No. 260 N.S.G.W. presented United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags to the Farragut school the afternoon of November 10. In the evening the Parlor had its annual Christmas fund indoor circus and dance.

OLD GUARD RETURNS TO LABOR.

Calistoga—At a largely attended meeting of Calistoga Parlor No. 86 N.S.G.W., November 16, four candidates were initiated, a team of veterans exemplifying the ritual. The proceedings of the evening indicated the "old guard" has returned to labor.

The committee arranging the Christmas party, to be held December 7, reported splendid progress. There will be a turkey supper, then the Parlor meeting, and after that a unique entertainment, the nature of which is being kept secret.

They pleaded guilty and were sent to San Quentin for twenty-five years.

Professor George Akern, principal of the Colusa City school, was accidentally killed by the discharge of a pistol December 26. His sad ending was deplored by the entire community.

John Elliott and his wife, residing near Millville, Shasta County, while returning home from that town December 10 attempted to ford Cow Creek in a wagon. A cloudburst caused the water to rise suddenly, the wagon was upset, and both were drowned.

Paul Feberer, San Francisco drug store clerk, was aroused by a burglar, December 5, whom he shot to death. The dead man proved to be Pat McNamar, an ex-convict.

Citrus Millions—During the 1930-31 season more than 83,000 carloads of oranges, lemons and grapefruit were shipped from California. The delivered value of this crop was $145,261,059, of which amount the growers received $99,520,773.

(Glendale), Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, and District Deputy Nellie Cline and delegation from Grace No. 242 (Fullerton). Mrs. Hansen announced that a parlor is in process of organization at Riverside.

The thimble club met at the home of Mrs. Walter Moore November 7, and will hold its December 3 meeting at the Greenville home of Mrs. Myrtle Ellis. No. 235 and Santa Ana No. 265 N.S.G.W. had a float depicting a polo field in the Armistice Day parade.

The Parlor has perfected plans for a spanish dinner December 14, when a handsome cedar chest, filled with lovely articles, will be disposed of. December 19 the annual dinner will be held in observance of Santa Ana's institution anniversary. The following lines "On Armistice Day," composed by Recording Secretary Matilda S. Lemon, appear on request of the Parlor:

"Looking back in silent retrospection
Along the thirteen intervening years,
The saddened face of the good old world
Gazed on the Unknown Soldiers' tombs in recollection.
And lo! the rain came down in benediction
As if to wet those mounds with tears.
Tears of love and tenderness to sanctify the grounds
Wherein its sacrifice to War lay, 'neath those mounds.
Out here and yonder, in that land so far away—
Yet, in our hearts and minds are always here to stay;
Tears of thanksgiving that untold human carnage had ended
And what remained of our courageous boys were homeward wended.
Then came the sunshine, glorious with its promise
Of a brighter, better, more Christian view of life,
When all misunderstandings and dissensions
May be settled in more human ways than strife."

Pioneer Mothers Guests.

Colusa — Colus No. 194 feasted and entertained the Pioneer Mothers of Colusa County November 10. Each was presented with a corsage and a dainty handkerchief. Mrs. Warren G. Davison gave the history of Colusa County from the time it was settled by the Colus tribe of Indians, from which the city and the county derived their names.

November 16 the Parlor made plans for the annual Christmas tree and for baskets for the needy. District Deputy Hastings was a visitor. A cake walk was featured in which all the members participated; the cake went to Christine Humberg. Delicious refreshments were served.

Five Initiated.

Modesto—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson paid her official visit to Morada No. 199 October 28. Among the many in attendance were Past Grand President Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputy Katherine Kopf, District Deputies Mae F. Givens, Sadie Brainard, Effie Prothero and Tough. The meeting hall was arranged to represent an outdoor rock garden, with flowers and leaves of fall colors adorning the walls. Mrs. Mary Blaine and a committee had charge of the decorations. Five candidates were initiated.

Members of the Parlor gave a handkerchief shower for Mrs. Lottie Islip, who left for Arizona to reside. November 6 the sewing club met at the Ceres home of Mrs. Service. November 18 Morada and Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. sponsored a public whist, the proceeds to be used for relief work.

Charming Talk.

Santa Cruz—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson honored Santa Cruz No. 26 with her presence October 19. The occasion drew a large attendance, including delegations from Watsonville, Salinas, Hollister, Pescadero and Sacramento. The ritualistic work was beautifully done, three new members being received. The Grand President's talk on the projects of the Order was charmingly given and listened to with interest by everyone.

Grand President Carlson, Past Grand Presidents Stella Finkeldey and Bertha Briggs, Supervising Deputy Rose Rhyner and District Deputies Pearl Reid and Alta Maculay received gifts from the Parlor. A sumptuous potluck supper preceded the meeting and during the supper Past President Leona Geyer, accompanied by District Deputy Reid, offered two very lovely vocal numbers. The members who celebrated birthdays in October were honored guests, and a cake with lighted candles was presented them. Chrysanthemums, marigolds and ferns were the effective decorations in the banquet and meeting rooms. The committee in charge of the supper was Leona Geyer (chairman), Arlette Harris, Mamie Cavanaugh and Mary Gregory.

Anniversary Dinner.

Pittsburg — Stirling No. 146 had its annual birthday dinner in recognition of its twenty-sixth institution anniversary. The table, decorated in Hallowe'en colors, had as a centerpiece a pot of gold. All the decorations were made by Vera Leaderich, chairman of the committee. In attendance were two charter members—Past Grand President Amy V. McAvoy, who is again the president of the Parlor, and Hanna McVay, who has held an office ever since No. 146 was instituted, in 1905, by Ariana Stirling, then Grand President. At the conclusion of the Parlor meeting, which followed the dinner, cards were played and a large birthday cake was served with coffee.

Seven Initiated.

Napa—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson paid an official visit to Eschol No. 16 November 9. Others in attendance were Grand Trustee Willow Borba, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grand President Dr. Louise C. Heilbron and visitors from Vallejo, Saint Helena, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Sacramento and San Rafael. Seven candidates were initiated. A dinner was served prior to the meeting.

Grand President Carlson gave a most interesting talk on the Order's projects. The day being her wedding anniversary, the Parlor presented her with a specially decorated cake and a gift. Flowers were presented the other grand officers. The meeting and banquet rooms were beautifully decorated under the supervision of Ruby Brien and Jane Ezetti.

Pleasing Sum for Worthy Cause.

Hollister—The annual card party of Copa de Oro No. 105 and Fremont No. 44 N.S.G.W. October 22 for the benefit of the homeless kiddies was a brilliant success socially and netted a pleasing sum for this very worthy cause. Thirty-five tables were filled with players of bridge, five hundred and pedro. Attractive prizes were awarded and a neat sum was realized from sales of a small basket of groceries and an exquisite spray of chrysanthemums. The hall was prettily decorated with baskets of autumn blossoms and foliage. Appetizing refreshments were served at the close of the card playing. The net proceeds, amounting to $150, have been forwarded to assist in caring for homeless little ones.

Armistice Day Party.

Santa Barbara—Reina del Mar No. 126 sponsored an Armistice Day party at La Hacienda November 10. Each of the many members and guests deposited, as they entered, a package of cigarets and articles used by the veterans in handicraft work. These will be sent to the San Fernando Hospital. Many attractive features were introduced in the way of entertainment. Miss Marjory Stone and Mrs. Alice Castagna were the general chairmen of arrangements.

Hallowe'en Party.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell No. 168 had a Hallowe'en party at which a program was presented by Evelyn Boyd, Lila Roohr, Frances Snider, Catherine McEnespy, Margaret Hudspeth and Minnie Westbrook. At supper time the members were seated at a long table, centering which was a pumpkin basket filled with flowers. Placecards and napkins carried out the Hallowe'en motif. Guessing games were introduced, Annie Stoskstill winning the prize. Mrs. Westbrook headed the social committee for the evening.

The Parlor was represented in the Armistice Day, November 11, parade by a float, and has voted to make the usual donation to the Chico Health Center.

Players Complimented.

Sausalito—Sea Point No. 196 entertained the members of Sea Point No. 158 N.S.G.W. and their families at a delightful Hallowe'en party October 26. A one-act comedy, "Crossed Wires," was presented, and the players were highly complimented by the many guests, from San Rafael, Fairfax, Mill Valley and Sausalito. Miss Helen Sullivan was the director. Later in the evening refreshments were served at tables decorated in Hallowe'en favors.

Many congratulations were extended the committee in charge: Mms. Lillian Fancourt, Lillian Azavedo and Alice McGowan; Misses Miriam Bradley, Agnes Brown, Hilda Brown and Alma Burkell.

Responds to Every Appeal.

Palo Alto—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visited Palo Alto No. 229 November 16. She was accompanied by Supervising Deputy Clara Gairaud, and District Deputies Geraldine Brown, Marie Buck, Catherine Derry and Margaret Malone. Delegations from Orinda, Dolores, Vendome, Ano Nuevo, Bonita and Menlo were also present.

The Grand President commended the Parlor for having responded to every appeal. Following a delightful resume of her aims and ambitions for the Order she was presented with gifts and flowers. The hall was decorated in autumnal flowers in the shades of yellow and russet brown. Refreshments closed a delightful evening.

District Deputies Meet.

Sutter—District Deputies of Yuba, Colusa and Sutter Counties met with South Butte No. 226 October 19, among them being Supervising Deputy Mary Meade, Mrs. Vivian Hastain of Berryessa No. 192, Mrs. Pearl Bowden of Colus No. 194 and Mrs. Josephine Norris of South Butte. Five candidates were initiated into the Parlor. Following the meeting refreshments were served in the prettily decorated banquetroom.

Brides Honored.

Oakland—Aloha No. 106 initiated three candidates November 3, and at the same time honored three new brides—Past Presidents Margaret Bazely and Grace DuPont, and Inside Sentinel Margaret Walker. On behalf of the Parlor, Social Chairman Eda Steuer presented them with gifts. Second Vice-president Thelma Rogers sang "I Love You, California," and a piano duet, "Love Tales of Hoffman," was rendered by Third Vice-president Evelyn Almasy and Outside Sentinel Edith Hoover. Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, District Deputy Mildred Brant and visitors from Bahia Vista No. 167 Encinal No. 156 and Berkeley No. 150 were among those present. Refreshments were served.

November 17 a turkey whist, largely attended, was held jointly with Athens No. 195 N.S.G.W. The proceeds will be used to purchase toys for about eighty poor kiddies who will be guests of the Parlors at the annual Christmas tree December 22. There will be a real Santa Claus, and Ivy Ford's Kiddies will provide entertainment. Irma Murray, whist chairman, announces another turkey whist, for the benefit of the same worthy cause, December 15. With Grace DuPont in charge, a theater party in Berkeley is billed for December 8.

Greatly Enjoyed Party.

Etna—Eschscholtzia No. 112 entertained at a delightful whist party October 23. The following program added pleasure to the evening: piano solo, "Tam O'Shanter," and vocal solo, "Waiting at the Church," Mrs. Minna K. Horn; vocal solos, "Lassie O' Mine" and "Pretty Quadroon," Frank B. Smith; memorized readings, "Accountability" and "A Fish Story," Mrs. Lettie Lewis.

The decorations, the refreshments and the informal fun throughout the evening were in keeping with the spirit of Hallowe'en, and the party was greatly enjoyed by the many members and guests present.

Sew for December Bazar.

Fullerton—Grace No. 242 held a successful rummage sale last month. Preceding the November 17 meeting a pot-luck supper was enjoyed. District Deputy Ora Evans was present, and there were visitors from Santa Ana No. 235.

The homeless children sewing circle spent all day November 16 with Mrs. J. C. Sheppard. The members are busily engaged in sewing for the December bazar. The Parlor is planning to present a California State (Bear) Flag to the Placentia public library.

Death, for the first time, entered the ranks of Grace October 22 and removed Mildred R. Johnson, wife of Edgar Johnson, founder of "The Daily News Tribune." She was born near San Bernardino, January 3, 1869, her parents being Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, covered wagon California Pioneers.

Doings of Past Presidents.

Sacramento—Association No. 4 will entertain twenty-five children of the Sacramento Orphanage with a turkey dinner and Christmas tree December 14. Mrs. Mamie Davis, chairman for the occasion, will be assisted by past presidents of Coloma No. 212.

Chico—Association No. 5 had its fourth annual banquet November 5. Miss Lily Tilden was the principal speaker. Bridge followed the feast.

Stockton—Association No. 8 met at the home of Henrietta Quevillen November 5. Dutch whist was played and refreshments were served. The December 12 meeting will be a costume party.

Poppy Maids Make Favors.

San Jose—San Jose No. 81 will receive Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson December 3. Elaborate plans for a brilliant reception are being made by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Mary C. Newton. A 6:30 dinner will precede the meeting. A very successful card party was held November 19, with Mrs. Kathyrn Nelson as chairman of arrangements.

The Past Presidents of the Parlor entertained November 12. This was a very happy event and brought out a good number of members. A program was given and refreshments were served. Mrs. Matilda Moak, the only charter member present, was presented with a boquet of lovely red rosebuds. Mrs. Myrtle Berins was chairman of the evening. The Poppy Maids sewing club, an auxiliary of the Parlor, has fortnightly meetings which are very enjoyable. Through its efforts the Parlor always has on hand lovely favors for the semi-monthly card parties. Mrs. Elva Dee, the next president of No. 81, is a recent bride, her marriage having occurred in September.

the best banquets he ever attended. Addresses were made by Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Al Moore and Harry W. Gaetjen.

Past Presidents Exemplify Ritual.

Fresno—Fresno No. 25 initiated a class of candidates November 27, the ritual being exemplified by a picked team from San Joaquin Past Presidents Assembly headed by Grand Trustee Frank M. Lane. In conjunction with Fresno No. 187 N.D.G.W. a social dance was held November 21.

Grand Trustee Visits.

Alameda—Grand Trustee George F. McNoble paid an official visit November 18 to Alameda No. 47. Grand Inside Sentinel W. B. O'Brien extended greetings on behalf of the Parlor, and a program of entertainment was presented under the supervision of President Guy C. Whitmore.

Past Presidents Enthusiastic.

Sausalito—Marin Past Presidents Assembly No. 5 held the second meeting since its reorganization November 3. A large class of candidates were initiated. Governor-General Louis Erb was in attendance and congratulated the assembly on its rejuvenation, and complimented the members on their enthusiastic spirit. This branch, he says, has a very promising future, and he said several additional assemblies will be instituted soon. He spoke of the great enthusiasm prevailing in the northern district, where he had seen members who came over one hundred miles to attend the meetings. Past Governor-General Victor L. Orengo, Senator Joe Tracy, A. Gudehus, Jas. Stanley, Grand Director-General Chas. Soldavini Jr. and Monroe W. Label were among others who spoke at the banquet following the regular meeting of the Assembly.

Fruit Conference—A conference of deciduous fruit growers is to be held at Hollister, San Benito County, December 10 and 11.

In Memoriam

MARY E. FERM.

"To the Officers and Members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W.: Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His divine wisdom, to remove from our midst and associations our beloved and esteemed sister, Mary E. Ferm, and whereas, in the sudden passing of Sister Ferm Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W. mourns the loss of one of its most loyal and faithful members; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we will miss our departed sister, the memory of her lovable character and sincere friendship will ever remain fresh in our memory, and we extend the hand of sympathy to the bereaved husband and family in this, their hour of sorrow; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this Parlor meeting, that a copy be sent to the husband and family of our departed sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
GRETTA MURDEN, Chairman,

Oakland, November 12, 1931

MILDRED R. JOHNSON.

To the Officers and Members of Grace Parlor No. 242 N.D.G.W.—Your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiments and deep-felt sympathy of the members of this Parlor on the death of our sister, Mildred R. Johnson, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Father to remove from our midst our sister, Mildred R. Johnson, and to summon her to realms of higher activities; and whereas, in her death our Parlor has lost a highly esteemed sister and our community a respected Pioneer citizen; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Grace Parlor extends sincere sympathy to her husband and bereaved relatives; and further be it resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our sister, that another copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor.

EUGENE W. ROSE.

"No one hears the door that opens,
When they pass beyond our call;
Soft as loosened leaves of roses
One by one our loved ones fall."

By the death of Eugene W. Rose, our state has lost an honored Pioneer, Lower Lake Parlor No. 159 N.S.G.W. a beloved member, and his family a kind and loving husband and father. The charm of his upright character and kindly disposition won for him the respect and love of our membership, who

Resolved, That this tribute of affection be sent to the bereaved family, that a copy be spread upon our records, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

one of the most brilliant and successful of the entire year. Two candidates were initiated. A beautiful silver gift was presented Mrs. Gertrude Riddle, a recent bride. There was a notable assemblage, representatives of six Parlors, twenty-seven past presidents, five district deputies and Grand Trustee Florence Dodson-Schoneman. The honor guest for the evening was District Deputy Eva Mae Bemis. The tables for the supper were beautifully decorated in autumn leaves and flowers; Mrs. Gertrude Riddle was chairman of the entertainment and supper. Plans are under way for a birthday party in honor of all members having birthdays from July 1 to December 1.

HOMELESS CHILDREN FUND ENRICHED.

Ocean Park—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. entertained some 200 members of the southland Parlors at its annual lobster feast November 9. Phil Romero was chairman of the committee in charge of the "feed," and was assisted by Jack Dailey, Howard Earl and Jack Nelson.

At the Parlor meeting President Barnes invited Past Presidents Eugene W. Biscailuz, J. Howard Blanchard, Dike Freeman, Harold Barden, Phil Romero and Eldred L. Meyer to fill the several stations. Past Grand President John T. Newell was the senior past president of the evening. As first vice-president, in charge of the good of the order, Blanchard extracted a considerable number of shekels from the gang, to the enrichment of the homeless children fund. There were numerous speakers and a lot of good-natured bantering.

At the conclusion of one of the very best of the many successful affairs staged by Santa Monica Bay, an excellent program was presented by Ed. Burke's quartet, the Westerners. November 23 the officers of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 (San Pedro) were guests of No. 267 and exemplified the ritual for a large class of candidates.

ROUSING MEETING.

Glendale—Glendale No. 264 N.S.G.W. had a rousing good meeting November 2, when three candidates were initiated. Among the large crowd were representatives of seven Parlors. Speakers included Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell, District Deputy Harry Honn, Victor D. Kremer, Charles G. Young, Fred Gamble Jr., Philip Molen, Dr. Joseph A. Kleiser and District Deputy Al Cron. Refreshments were served.

NEIGHBOR VISITED.

San Pedro—A delegation of twenty-two Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. members, headed by District Deputy Edward Baldwin, paid a visit to Long Beach Parlor No. 239 October 29, and the officers of No. 263 exemplified the ritual.

The purpose of the visit, suggested by Deputy Baldwin, was to revive the interest of the Long Beach members. President Francis Gentry and Secretary Brady of No. 239 gave assurance that every effort would be made to have that Parlor on the active list at an early date.

INTERPARLOR DANCE.

The first of a series of monthly dances being featured by the Interparlor N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Committee at the Goldberg-Bosley Ballroom, Venice boulevard and Flower street, was held November 6 and was a pleasing success.

The December dance will be held Friday, the 11th. Special features of entertainment will be introduced, including Margaret Nye in a hawaiian dance in costume. Unusually good music is provided by a ten-piece orchestra.

If you want to spend a pleasant evening among congenial friends, give these dances your support. The sub-committee in charge includes Mary Noerenberg (chairman), Grace Norton, Beaulah VanLeuven, Andrew Vaughn and Eldred Meyer.

VETERANS SHOWERED.

Ocean Park—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. had a jam and jelly shower, in charge of President Mary Meyer, for the veterans at Wildwood Sanatorium October 19. Rosalie Hyde gave a report of her visit with Edward Edmiston, adopted by the Parlor. He has been an inmate of the National Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle eleven months.

He was given a shower November 2 and received many lovely gifts. He will be a guest at the Parlor's Christmas tree, which is being arranged for by a committee headed by Mrs. Hyde. A greeting was sent Mrs. D. G. Stephens, "the grand old lady of Santa Monica," who celebrated her ninety-third birthday November 24.

Marie Barnes, chairman of No. 245's homeless children committee, reported the Christmas box ready for delivery, and that the pencil sale was a success. A card party November 30 was in charge of Lottie O'Connor. Refreshments were served by Betty Valencia, Myrtle Barden and Amada Machado. Past President Anna D. Pierce composed the following, entitled "Homeless Children":

Dainty hemstitching, narrow and fine.
Stitches like feathers from white dove's wings.
Tiny french knots like soldiers in line,—
For somebody else's baby things.

A wide, straight hem where the stitches don't show,
A wee, round neck where the fine lace clings.
Small pearl buttons all in a row,—
For somebody else's baby things.

Draw out a thread for each little tuck.
Make a design of three fairy rings.
Keep the seams smooth, don't let them ruck,—
On somebody else's baby things.

Work with your fingers, don't let them stop.
Though your heart's aching, somebody sings;
Keep back the tears, don't let them drop,—
On somebody else's baby things.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Ray John Solomon, affiliated with Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W., was recently killed in an aeroplane accident in Mexico. He was born at Los Angeles, March 15, 1908, and is survived by a father, Bennie Solomon, also a member of Los Angeles.

Captain David Weldt, brother of Joseph Weldt (Sepulveda N.S.), died recently at Oakland. He was a native of California, aged 78.

Harold Stanley Nichols, brother of Roland Nichols (Los Angeles N.S.), died recently at Calexico, Imperial County.

Mrs. Grace Lopez-Wilson, mother of John J. Wilson (Ramona N.S.), passed away October 25 at San Fernando. She was a native of Los Angeles County, aged 65.

Mrs. Mary E. Coyle, mother of John P. Coyle (Ramona N.S.), passed away October 25 at the age of 75.

John F. Luden, brother of Robert J. Luden (Ramona N.S.), died November 15.

Hilliard W. Lewis, father of Hick Lewis (Los Angeles N.S.), died November 17.

Albert J. Howland, brother of Robert S. Howland (Los Angeles N.S.), died November 18.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

John V. Scott (Ramona N.S.) was a visitor last month to Imperial Valley.

Emil Plath (Ramona N.S.), who resides in Taft, was a visitor last month.

Miss Matilda Rambeau (Los Angeles N.D.), was wedded November 1 to Marius Besson.

Mrs. Anna E. Van de Sandt (Los Angeles N.D.) and her family are now residing at Roscoe.

Municipal Judge George J. Steiger (Stanford N.S.) of San Francisco was a visitor last month.

Mrs. Julia Waddington (Vendome N.D.) of San Jose is visiting relatives and friends in Los Angeles.

Miss Kathryn Ronan (Los Angeles N.D.) has returned to Death Valley for the winter and the spring.

Granville Pitzer (Sepulveda N.S.) was recently married and is now making his home in Los Angeles.

Vivian Wickser and Erlinda Sepulveda (both Los Angeles N.D.) went to Berkeley to see the football game.

John M. Larronde (Ramona N.S.) has been appointed by Mayor John C. Porter a member of the Los Angeles Fire Commission.

ASSISTING UNEMPLOYED.

Glendale—Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. had a card party November 19, with Clytelle Hewitt as chairman. President Rose Bartel has appointed Myrteze Tregea head of a special committee to assist in Christmas work at Sawtelle. Nan Hutchinson represents the Parlor in the work being sponsored by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce for the unemployed.

SEASON LIGHT OPERA PROMISED.

The Municipalities Light Opera Association of Southern California, now in process of organization for a season of sixteen weeks of light opera, is developing upon a broader scope than even anticipated, and is now in the process of incorporation upon a national basis, with districts to be allocated throughout the entire United States. California South will always be District No. 1, and general headquarters always will be the parent organization in Los Angeles.

Season books for the eight operas will soon go on sale and the opening performance is hoped to be set for Christmas night. The Municipalities Light Opera Association is a non-profit, nonpartisan and non-sectarian organization, and aside from supplying an outlet for the talents of singers, musicians and composers of California South, will give direct employment to 125 people and indirectly to about 400 more. Officers of the organization are Mrs. Grace Widney Mabee, president; Rex B. Goodcell, treasurer; Frank M. Rainger, director general; W. T. Wyatt, business manager.

DESERVED TESTIMONIAL.

Trustees, alumni, faculty and friends of the University of Southern California, as well as representatives of national and local educational institutions and civic organizations, are joining in a testimonial of respect, gratitude and affection at an anniversary banquet, December 12, honoring President Rufus B. von KleinSmid on the completion of the first ten years of his administration at the Trojan institution. Delegations of students representing the twenty schools and colleges of S.C. also are to pay homage to the educator at the honor function.

Dr. von KleinSmid became president at Southern California in 1921, and 1931 marks the culmination of a decade of service and achievement as educator, organizer and internationalist. Since 1921 the University of Southern California has almost tripled in student enrollment, the faculty has about doubled, seven schools and colleges have been added, and seven new buildings have been erected.

DAD'S NEW FACTORY.

Dad's Cookie Company, makers of the famous "Dad's Original Scotch Oatmeal Cookies," is now located in new quarters at 9309 South Vermont avenue. There was a grand opening November 12, when many people inspected the plant and saw how the cookies are made.

LICENSE RENEWAL TIME APPROACHES; PLATES HAVE CALIFORNIA IN FULL.

Within less than a month renewal of automobile license plates will begin for more than two million California car owners. The renewal period will open December 15 and continue for thirty days. The procedure for renewing registration and obtaining 1932 license plates remains practically unchanged from the method in effect last year.

The white slip certificate of registration is presented with the amount of the fee, which is $3 for all pleasure motor cars. Commercial cars pay a graduated scale of weight fees in addition to the $3. Where the white slip has been lost or mutilated the pink slip is presented and an additional charge of 50 cents is made for issuance of a new white certificate.

In accordance with a new provision enacted by the last Legislature, motorists should give the number of cylinders and serial number of their cars.

After close of the legal registration period, January 15, state officers will investigate cars operated without the new plates and issue citations unless the motorist can show a receipt or other evidence of having applied. In order to allow for transit of new plates in the mails, motorists will have until January 31 to attach them. The plates will have black lettering on an orange background, reversing the 1931 color scheme, and will have the name "California" spelled out instead of abbreviated.

SACRAMENTO NATIVE SONS INITIATE LARGE CLASS; PROMISE BIG THINGS.

(Special to The Grizzly Bear.)

Sacramento City—A class of forty-three candidates were initiated for the following N.S.G.W. Parlors of Sacramento County November 23: Sacramento No. 3, Sunset No. 26, Elk Grove No. 41, Courtland No. 106 and Sutter Fort No. 241. The initiatory ceremony was conducted by a picked team from General John A. Sutter Past Presidents Assembly. Among the initiates was Myril Hoag, Sacramento baseball star who was recently sold to one of the big league clubs for $75,000. There were many visitors from surrounding Parlors.

At the ceremonies' conclusion a banquet was served, with Irving D. Gibson as the toastmaster. Addresses were delivered by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn and Deputy State Attorney-General Jesse Hession. J. J. Longshore, chairman of the membership campaign committee, stated this class initiation was but the beginning of big things to be accomplished by the Capital City Native Sons.

WASHINGTON BICENTENNIAL STAMPS.

To commemorate the bicentennial anniversary of George Washington, first President of the United States, the Federal Postoffice Department is preparing a series of special postage stamps in twelve denominations from one-half cent to ten cents, both inclusive.

The stamps will be placed on general sale January 2, 1932, and will be kept on sale throughout that year. Each stamp will have as the central design a separate likeness of George Washington.

WHAT IS A CLOUDBURST?

Rain falls during rainfall, but clouds do not burst when there is a "cloudburst." United States Weather Bureau experts say that sometimes strong upward currents of air hold raindrops up from underneath and prevent them from promptly reaching the ground. Then the drops gather in much larger quantities than they usually do. When the upward air currents lessen, or so much water accumulates that the air cannot support it, there occurs the deluge of rain that we call a cloudburst.

"Boosters" Organize—The Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Association has been organized to "boost" the scenic beauties of the Mount Shasta and the Cascade Mountain district.

International Institute—The eighth annual session of the Institute of International Relations will be held December 13-18 at Riverside City.

UNCLE JIM'S FARM

William A. Evans

The accompanying story came to The Grizzly Bear from William A. Evans of San Diego City, affiliated with San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.S.G.W., with this notation: "In an unguarded moment I became a native son of this state, therefore it gives me great pleasure to do anything within my power to cheer up those who have found themselves in the same predicament. Hence, this sketch is tendered The Grizzly Bear."—Editor

WE WERE SEATED AT A TABLE IN the Blue Fox, one of those picturesque little spots that Tiajuana, Mexico, is so full of. My friend, Al, sitting across from me, had been silent for some time. His beer glass was now empty. He was gazing absently at the foamy sediment in the bottom. "And what," I asked, "causes the wrinkles of deep thought on your otherwise noble brow?"

Al was just out from the East, and I had taken it upon myself to show him the sights. Tiajuana had been as good a place as any to start on, so we had flivvered down from San Diego, resolving to commence at the bottom and work upwards, as it were. It was the first day of January, and we were reviewing the remains of an hilarious New Year's Eve. The "remains" being what was disturbing Al, as I am soon to learn.

"It all reminds me of my uncle's farm," he said at last. "My Uncle Jim, in Iowa."

"Come, come," I said. "Are you trying to make fun of my efforts as a rubberneck-wagon spieler?"

"Oh, no," he said hastily. "You're coming along fine. You might tell that bandit to trot out some more beer, however."

"Hey, Pancho Villa," I called to a white-aproned lad who was dashing by. "Another pitcher of beer. A big one this time." The Mexican boy gave me a wan, tired smile, then hurried off. Soon he returned, and we were again looking into the foam that leaves a mustache.

From where we were sitting, you could see the street and all the passersby. All along the outer edge of the sidewalk sat large tubs of garbage, each filling the air with its own individual aroma. Orange rinds, half-eaten sandwiches and all the other forms of remains that follow all successful happenings made up the garbage. It was interesting to watch the people outside fall over these tubs. They always laughed, and some of them even went back to give it another try.

It was now well into the middle of the morning, yet many of the men and women about were attired in evening dress, thinking, no doubt, it was still night. These people must have been from Los Angeles, as the only people in San Diego that wear tuxedos are waiters or fraternity boys. The rest of the population go about in blue serge suits when dressed up. They do this, I have been told, because Will Rogers has a habit of dropping down here from Beverly Hills, unexpectedly, and they always wish to make him feel right at home. It seems that Will is very ticklish about the ribs, and starts to giggle whenever a tailor tries to measure him for a tuxedo. Hence the measurements are always off, so Will just goes without.

Both Al and I felt a little out of it, as we had not yet had time to become as drunk as the rest. However, all comes to he who waits. That is, of course, if he has the price, and a rubber-lined stomach.

Two girls, not more than eighteen years old, if that, came in. They were followed by a pair of elderly looking men. The four had on evening clothes and looked very grand indeed, except for the fact that the girls had a great many liquors stains on the fronts of their otherwise lovely gowns. One of the men must have been the father to the taller of the girls, as we heard her call him "daddy." The other called her escort just plain "honey," and let it go at that.

Al seemed interested in the girl who had "daddy" along, so I said, "Go over and ask her for a dance. She looks like a nice girl. Even your Uncle Jim would approve."

Al looked at me for a moment without answering. Then he said, "It all reminds me of Uncle Jim's farm." "Forget it," I said.

When Al starts in about his uncle, it is time to change the subject. Al is such a devoted nephew, he might rave on forever. Then I would never have a chance to tell him of these sights I am showing off.

Our table was right near the entrance, close by a nice little potted palm that tickled the back of Al's neck whenever he teetered in his chair. Nearly everyone that entered the Blue Fox found it necessary to lurch over in our direction, then right themselves with the back of my chair, or the table. From us, they always made a beeline for the bar. Here they got one foot (always the left one) hooked over the footrail, then commenced to shout loudly for service.

Whenever a group came in together, there was always one fellow who appeared to be the biggest-hearted man in all the world.

"'son me," he would cry. "What'll it be?" "Atta boy," the rest always cried. "Good old Smith."

Our pitcher of beer was again empty. Al still lacked the sparkling eyes that a tourist must have to enjoy the sights, so I decided to take more drastic steps.

"How about a shot of old Judge?" I urged. "Or maybe you would prefer Three Star Hennesy?"

Al shook his head. "Let's go outside and walk around," he said.

We pushed back our chairs and, after sidestepping a party of newcomers who looked a bit sleepy, found ourselves outside close up to the tubs of "remains."

"Let's cross the street," I said. "I want to show you the longest bar in the world, so it's said." This was a sight that, I felt sure, would make his eyes pop open.

We entered at one end, so as to gaze the full length of the bar. I had saved this sight until last, it being my big climax. As far down the line as you could see, ran the mahogany bar. It was at least three city blocks long. The mirrors in back of the bartenders reflected the swarm of customers, lined up flank to flank. Some were tossing off whisky with a flourish. Others were gulping down foam-topped beer. Still others, not drinking at all, were draped over the edge of the bar, their heads resting on any shoulder excepting their own.

Half-way down the bar, a fat woman in a low-backed evening gown suddenly sat down on the floor with a bang. This called for a great deal of laughter, and more drinks. The woman was helped to her feet by a nearby man, but she promptly sat down again.

I stood there in wonder. This is the bar that all true San Diegans point to with pride. At last, my admiration appeased, I turned to Al.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

NOTHING IS BASICALLY WRONG WITH this nation! That may, at first glance, appear as a queer statement, especially in view of the "magnificent depression" afflicting the country, but it is, nevertheless, an incontrovertible fact. The nation today has the wealth of limitless resources and of splendid attributes with which it was blessed in the heyday of its "most astounding prosperity." What, then, can the trouble be?

The political system in vogue is all wrong, simply that and nothing more! This government, originally of The People, for The People and by The People, is rapidly degenerating into one of the politicians, for the classes and by the interests. The masses have been supplanted by favored classes, and the masses are paying dearly for their folly in relinquishing the reins of government. Public officials, generally speaking,—national, state, county, city and township formerly considered servants of The People, have become the slaves of the interests, and give first, last and all consideration to the designs and wishes of their new masters. Graft, petty and otherwise, law disrespect and incompetency are rampant throughout the political system.

The People, themselves, are responsible for this damnable system, through the operation of which democracy is proceeding hastily to eventual doom. They have been cleverly propagandied into believing that black is white; that the classes' slaves will, if entrusted with public office, be the masses' faithful servants; that, in brief, the impossible is possible. The People have been completely and woefully deceived, and no healthy recovery from existant conditions is possible until they rise in their might and, through the ballot-box, reassume control of government throughout the nation.

The crying need today of these United States is a Moses—not of the political horde, however, —to lead the masses out of the wilderness of depression—the slough of nation-wide putrid political conditions! The selection of a leader must not be entrusted to the major political parties, for they are controlled and operated by one and the same aggregation of higherups whose scheme has always been to, at the opportune times, let loose a smokescreen of supposed party antagonisms and divergence of views, to deceive the masses. And their plans have worked out, to their entire satisfaction; irrespective of how the ballot has gone, they have won, and the masses have lost. Will The People continue to be misled, through cunning and deceit? Surely, this nation must have the needed leader, now and always beyond the reach of the classes, who could and will serve the masses faithfully and well.

"God give us men. The time demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ruling hands,
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office can not buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will.
Men who have honor, men who will not lie.
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking!
Wrong rules the land, and waiting justice sleeps'"

State Controller Ray Riley reports the cost of the California State Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, as $124,153,145, an increase over the preceding year of $5,312,185. Annually since 1924 the cost of state government in California has steadily mounted, increasing $12,846,947 in 1925, $6,203,953 in 1926, $4,762,504 in 1927, $3,016,438 in 1928, $20,037,155 in 1929, $8,189,609 in 1930, and $5,312,185 in 1931.

The unwarranted spending orgy of The People's money must cease, for the taxpayers are becoming bankrupt, industry is being crippled and the development of the state is being retarded. Captioned "Political Spending Boosts Taxes," the "San Francisco Chronicle" of December 11 had a commonsense editorial on the tax subject:

"Nation, states, counties, cities—congress, legislatures, boards of supervisors, city councils have all acquired the easy spending habit. So taxes go up. Industry and business are burdened. So is every individual. The only way to keep taxes down is to spend less. The first place to cut is in the political spending indulged in by congress, legislatures, boards of supervisors and city councils. This kind of spending is the principal tax booster in the land and many other countries. Many of the biggest appropriations by legislative bodies of all sorts are chiefly for the purpose of catching votes for the members. Legislators bank on the belief that the voters do not realize that he is also the taxpayer. When the people generally understand that they pay all of them foot the politicians' bills for vote collecting, legislators will have to go slow on this sort of spending. That will cut down taxes. To tax less, spend less'"

Funds are required for the operation of the Federal Government, and taxation provides the sole method for securing needed revenue. Every loyal citizen of these United States should contribute, willingly and promptly, his fair share of the necessary funds. In a recent message to the Congress, President Herbert Hoover suggested various procedures for raising additional tax-funds. One very important source of revenue, however, appears to have been overlooked:

The income-tax exemption, now enjoyed, at the expense of others, by public officeholders and all others in the service of The People, should be eliminated from the provisions of the national income-tax law. No group of citizens are better able than they to contribute to the cost of government. They receive good salaries, promptly, and vast numbers of them are not propertyowners, and pay no direct national or state taxes. Neither are they burdened with the worry of providing the wherewith to meet the cost of their services; that worry is, along with the tax-burden, saddled onto the businessman, the propertyowner, and the other over-burdened direct-taxpayers.

May the Ship that enters Your Harbor during 1932 be filled with a Cargo of Health, Happiness and Success

No public servant—national, state, county, city or township—should be exempted from the provisions of the national income-tax law. As a matter of fact, there are today far too many tax-exempt classes of citizens in this country. None should be exempted, excepting those in active service in the Army and the Navy. Now is the opportune time to correct this inequality in taxation, which is unsound in principle. Through its correction, the Federal Government's income-tax revenue would be materially increased, and every citizen with a taxable income would contribute his full share toward the upkeep of the National Government.

Representation without taxation is equally as unjust, burdensome and dangerous as taxation without representation!

"Mexicans are putting the Chinese out of Mexico to make jobs for her own workers," says a communicant to the "Sacramento Bee," and he then inquires: "Why can't California put enough Mexicans out of this state to make jobs for Californians?" Suggest the query be directed to the State Chamber of Commerce and its affiliates. They know!

Direct-mail advertising enthusiasts should be interested in this: The Federal Postoffice Department announces that during the 1931 fiscal year they wasted nearly $325,000 in postage, because of obsolete mailing lists, and that 6,450,164 circulars directed to prospective buyers were disposed of as waste in the dead-letter section. These figures, too, apply only to circulars sent under first-class postage. A much larger amount was lost by those using third-class postage.

A movement for an extra session of the State Legislature, "to deal with the unemployment situation," is gaining momentum, but should be permanently sidetracked. Lawmakers and attaches, not the unemployed, would be the chief beneficiaries therefrom. Use the cost of an extra session for a worthy cause—the relief of distress. If less be expended for commissions and other "overheads" incidental to the investigating of unemployment, more will be available for the unemployed.

The Modesto, Stanislaus County, City Council has issued this edict to municipal employes: "Pay your bills or be fired!" That should be the strictly-enforced policy in every branch of government.

A recent flareup anent the use of California's gasoline-tax monies brought this statement from State Finance Director Roland Vandegrift: "Camouflaged and misleading statements that all state highways are being built and maintained from gasoline taxes and motor-vehicle license fees should be corrected and the facts made known. The facts are, that the interest and redemption of bonds are paid out of general funds"

This referred-to camouflage is just an example of the deceit generally prevalent in governmental circles. Vandegrift's contention, that the principal and interest of highway bonds is an expenditure for highway purposes and therefore should be paid from gas-tax funds, is sound reasoning and should prevail.

Representative French of Idaho has introduced in the Federal Congress a bill to prohibit the advertising of lotteries and gift enterprises by radio. The proposed legislation is, as he contends, "in line with the best thought and practice of the United States." It should be approved by the Congress

Effort is being put forth to promote home buying by those of moderate means for, as President Herbert Hoover remarked at a recent conference, "Such people are a good risk. They are the very basis of stability to the nation"

THE ROMANCE OF SAN BERNARDINO

Clara M. Barton

This story, which came to The Grizzly Bear from Miss Clara M. Barton of San Bernardino, a member of Lugonia Parlor No. 241 N.D.G.W. of that city, will appear serially. It deals interestingly with the history of the San Bernardino Valley, and is copyrighted by the author. —Editor.

MARCH 14, 1774, JUAN BAUTISTA Anza, the first White man to enter the San Bernardino Valley, led his small train of weary disciples down through the San Gorgonia Pass. They were tired and a little discouraged, and the hardships they faced, as they treked across the Colorado Desert, were vividly marked upon their faces. Some of the children of the caravan were crying, some were laughing, and the smallest of them were finding solace in their mothers' arms. Many of the wagons were scarred with the experiences encountered, and the horses and oxen were exhausted from their long, hard pull. Even the dogs, which had been so faithful, showed signs of the laborious journey.

Anza turned to his little, courageous band, raised his hand in a command to halt and said, "God has been good to us all, dear ones, for He has led us to the end of the rainbow." Little did he know that before him lay one more obstacle which he would have to conquer before he had finally found his resting-place.

One of the riders of a very tired horse cupped his hand over his eyes, looked down into a peaceful valley and turned to Anza and said, "Look, friend, to the serene and welcoming land before us! Yes, it is indeed the end of the rainbow, and a realization of our dreams. Captain Anza, we are all very tired. After we enter this new country, we do not want to go any farther. Why cannot we linger down there for a long rest? Why cannot we build a colony there in which future generations may live?"

Anza looked at the rider, gazed into the distance, nodded his head and said solemnly, "Yes, this looks as if it is a land in which we can establish ourselves. It is a pleasant sight to the eyes, isn't it, to see such a valley that is protected by those majestically built mountains. But come, let us journey on before the dusk sets in." And so Captain Anza continued to lead his train of covered wagons down the steep slopes and trackless ravines.

Several hours later he found himself pushing, pulling, straining every muscle and giving curt orders, as he and the tired but hardy members of his band succeeded in forging the rapid and sandy river of the Santa Ana. The wagons were full of mud and water, and their contents were watersoaked, broken and in a shapeless mass. The horses were dripping with sweat, and the men were breathing hard, when they finally succeeded in landing safely upon the side of the river that was to become their home.

Night had come. Bonfires were built, and in the stillness Anza called his group to gather around the blazing timbers. He offered a prayer of thanksgiving to God, and to the saints who had guided them so kindly and safely to this haven. He thanked his courageous men and women for facing the hardships and disasters, and told them of his faith in and of his deep love for them. Then wishing them a good night's rest, he said, in parting, "God bless you all." Then he left them to receive their much-needed and well-earned rest.

Bright and early the next morning Anza was up and upon his horse. He was riding away from his circle of covered wagons, to explore the country around him. His first thought was to find a spring or flow of water which he could develop for domestic use. He had not gone far, however, when he accosted two fine-looking Indian braves. What took place between them and the lone White man has never been recorded, but Anza brought the Indians into his camp and a friendship was formed, but not of long standing. However, discovering that Anza was becoming their friend, the Indians decided to help him in some way. Since Anza did not understand the sign language nor the Indians the English language, it required grunts and motions of the arms and head, to make him understand that they wished to help him with some valuable information. So he followed them toward a towering mountain, which bore a scar in the shape of a perfect arrowhead.

"What is this?" exclaimed Anza, as he gazed with rapture at the mountain. The Indians answered with more undistinguishable signs, but continuing to point to the ground they were successful in attracting their friend's attention to a flowing stream of warm water.

Anza gazed at it in astonishment. "What a wonderful thing this is!" he exclaimed, as he stooped to let his fingers play in the rippling stream. He found the water warm, and the spring was full. He wended his way back to the camp with the Indians, and knew that this was the beginning of the building of a new empire!

A few days later the majority of the caravan made a final decision to go no further—that this valley, surrounded by majestic mountains and carpeted by fertile soil, should become a settlement.

During the construction of a few crude living quarters, Anza began to wonder. Here were his good people becoming contented in their new achievement and environment. The men working with the timber were singing; the women were happily unpacking their possessions; the children were laughing as they ran after one another in and out of the wagons; the dogs were stretched out full length in the shade of the trees, and the horses and oxen were peacefully grazing on some of the wild grasses near by. Anza did not wonder why his people were trying to forget their hardships, nor why they felt that this was to be their home. He felt that he was at peace with his God, and that all would be well. But here he was with his small band of Pioneers in a most delightful country which bore no name! "This can never do," he thought. But no name came to his mind that would be suitable for such a country as this! In time, however, his thoughts turned to the names of the saints, and the first to enter his mind was that of Saint Joseph. With this thought in mind, and knowing that his settlers would agree with his suggestion, he had them cease their labors and come to him. Mounting the nearby stump of a fallen oak, he told them briefly of his plans and wanted suggestions as to a rightful name.

"We cannot live in a valley of contentment such as this, without giving it a name, can we? No more than your child should go nameless after its birth. So we should not let our colony go unnamed." He looked at each one of his listeners, searching their faces for some sort of an expression. "I have tried," he continued, "to come to some final action as to the best name suitable, and have at last decided there is only one, and that is El Valle de San Jose. It was the good Saint Joseph who guided us out of difficult places, and we can honor him in no better way than this. Are there any other better suggestions? Let no one be silent."

There were slight murmurs from some of the people, and then followed an enthusiastic applause. Anza smiled, descended from the stump, stooped and picked up a handful of soil, again ascended the stump and faced his faithful little group. Turning his face eastward, he raised his hand over his head and, as he let the gravel drop from his fingers, he said reverently, "In the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, I name this valley of peace and contentment which lies protected between these mountains and hills, El Valle de San Jose, or the Valley of Saint Joseph." A short prayer followed, and for several years the settlement retained the name of El Valle de San Jose.

Anza found himself not alone in the founding of the valley, as two priests, Fathers Garces and Diaz, led an expedition to the valley in 1775. They and their followers had suffered many hardships. Realizing this, and how much in need of a rest they were, Captain Anza bade the two heroic men and their band a welcome to the camp. Everything was done for them in the way of comfort.

"What a happy surprise this is, Captain Anza," Father Garces remarked after introductions were made and every one had rested. "I never dreamed that we would enter into such a valley as this and find friends like you awaiting us! We came through two beautiful valleys, in one of which we encountered several bears." Little did he know that these two valleys were later to be named Big Bear and Holcomb!

"It was a surprise to us, also, padre," remarked Anza, "because we never expected to see such a land as this! But it is a wonderful surprise to all of us. By the way, did you have any hardships coming?" "Not as many as I expected. The monotony of this trip was somewhat relieved by a few storms, two marriages, one birth and three deaths."

Anza chuckled. "Well, that wasn't so bad. We only had rain, mud, sand and water to go through, two deaths and two births. But since we have arrived and gotten partly settled, it now looks as if there is to be a wedding soon."

Father Garces looked at Anza and smiled. "Shall I remain here for a few days, in case that I am needed?" Anza smiled back at the padre, slowly winked and nodded his head. "It would save a lot of time in trying to find a marrying parson, padre."

Padre Garces nodded to Anza and then proceeded to look at the various shacks being erected. "Do your people plan to remain here long? I see that they are beginning to erect some buildings." Anza also looked in the direction of the construction work. "Yes, father, my people have decided that this country is to be their home."

Looking earnestly at Anza, the padre continued: "I have been establishing missions along the route, and I have been almost convinced that this is one of the best sites in which to build and establish one. I saw several Indians as I entered the valley, and I am sure that this tribe can be taught not only to be friendly with the White man but to learn about God. I want to help you build up a colony that will live!"

Anza reached for the padre's hand. "Father, I am glad that you came, and I shall do all I can to help you." And with this, the foundation of a thriving city was laid.

EPISODE 2.

POLITANA

May 20, 1810, became more than a feast day to the good Father Dumetz. It was a day of victory over impassable roads, through severe storms and deep, shifting sands. He had seen many of his fellowmen die by the wayside, and food and clothing disappear, but he did not become discouraged. He trudged on.

"On this day, we shall be at the Valle de San Jose. There we will find peace and contentment. Do not become discouraged, friends, as I am sure that rest, food and shelter are awaiting us," consoled the padre to his struggling band of fifty men and women.

Father Dumetz left San Gabriel Mission at daybreak two days before, with orders from the good Father Junipero Serra to establish a supply station or mission near or at El Valle de San Jose settlement. This was his goal, and he was nearing it with a strong and brave heart.

It had been twenty-four years since anyone, except Anza and his band, had entered and made his home in this valley. A new generation had taken command of the colony and, like the past generation, was making all newcomers more than welcome. But the dispositions of the Indians had not changed in all these years. The padre found they were preparing for war with the White man!

"We must avert this trouble, if we can," he told his men. "The Indian must be tamed, for he is like a wild colt. My faithful followers, this day is the feast day for the great Saint Bernard, and we must honor his name." With this, the loyal band of Padre Dumetz entered into the Valle de San Jose.

"Father!" exclaimed one of the priests, "this is a wonderful place in which to establish a branch of the San Gabriel. We cannot go much farther. Why can't we settle here for a while? There is no supply station or mission here, and there is need of one." "You are right, padre, and we shall stop here," replied Dumetz.

The few settlers who were toiling the soil saw the train coming and went to meet it. They gave the padres and their band of fifty a warm welcome and the priests then felt that their hard journey had not been in vain.

"You have come to the Valle de San Jose, father, and we bid you welcome! We give you rest and shelter," said one of the settlers. Thus the tired members of the caravan were escorted into the settlement.

Early in the afternoon, Padre Dumetz held an informal conference with the members of his band. "The name of Valle de San Jose should be changed," he told them. "It does not suit this valley. There is a San Jose in the northern part of the state already, and we must avoid conflicting names of our stations. We must have names that can never be erased or discarded. Here it is the feast day of Saint Bernard of Sienna, and to celebrate this day and to honor this splendid saint of ours, I believe that it would be more than appropriate that we change the name of this Valley of San Jose to that of the saint." His listeners made no reply, but all were pondering. They finally agreed that in no more fitting way could they commemorate the name of the saint who had guided them to this prospering territory.

A TRAGEDY OF THE PAST

The accompanying came to The Grizzly Bear from Wendell T. Robie of Auburn Parlor No. 79 N.S.G.W., who says the quoted "article is of unquestioned authenticity. Only in a few exceptional cases can the prowess shown by this Captain Davis be matched on the pages of history. Had such a fight been put up for the service of his country, rather than the defense of his life, Captain Davis would have been rewarded with an emblem of valor. It is a decidedly interesting example of the valor of our Pioneers." Permission for the use of the article in The Grizzly Bear was given Robie by Stewart. Editor

THEY SAY TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN fiction, and after reading the following California news item of seventy-seven years ago, one may well so believe. It was resurrected by James E. Stewart of Auburn, Placer County, who has one of the best collections of original historical material to be found in that vicinity: "THE AUBURN WHIG, M. E. Mills, Editor. Saturday Morning, December 30, 1854. BY TELEGRAPH! Expressly for the Auburn Whig.

"DESPERATE FIGHT! THREE MINERS ATTACKED BY 11 ROBBERS! CONFESSION OF THE ROBBERS! FOUR AMERICANS AND SIX CHINESE ROBBED AND MURDERED. HEROIC CONDUCT OF CAPT. DAVIS. DESTRUCTION OF THE GANG.

"We received the following startling intelligence last night from the office of the MOUNTAIN DEMOCRAT, after our paper had been worked off: Placerville, Dec. 23. Rocky Canon, the place of the tragedy, is a deep and almost inaccessible canon, about forty miles north of this place, near Todd's Valley, and uninhabited.

"Rocky Canon, Dec. 20, 1854. ED. MOUNTAIN DEMOCRAT: No officer having been within a convenient distance to attend to a case of emergency that has just happened near our isolated camp in the mountains here, the undersigned constituted themselves a coroner's jury and held an inquest over the deceased bodies of twelve men that were killed within a mile of our camp on the 19th inst., a full account of which we deemed it our duty to publish. Three of the undersigned were eye witnesses to the whole scene, though too far off to give aid in any way, and the rest of us can readily vouch for their veracity.

"On yesterday, the 19th inst., three men, who afterwards proved to be a Mr. James C. McDonald of Ala., now deceased; a Dr. Boliver A. Sparks of Miss., and a Capt. Jonathan R. Davis of South Carolina, were traveling on foot on a trail within a mile of our camp, to prospect a vein of gold bearing quartz some twenty or thirty miles north of this. As they were passing at the base of a mountain, three of the undersigned, being out on a hunting excursion on its side, saw a party of eleven men, who were concealed in the bushes near the trail, spring up and commence shooting at them. Mr. McDonald had fallen dead ere he fired a pistol, or was even aware of his danger. He and his party had nothing but their revolvers. Dr. Sparks shot twice at the banditti, and then fell severely wounded. In the meantime, Capt. Davis, who was the first to commence shooting, in defense of himself and party, in an instant after the first volley from the robbers, being still unhurt, kept up an incessant firing upon them with his revolver—every ball forcing its victim to bite the dust, until all the loads of both parties seemed to have been discharged.

"The only four surviving robbers made a charge upon Capt. Davis, three with bowie-knives and one with a short sword, or sabre. Capt. D. stood firmly on his ground, until they rushed up abreast within about four steps of him, when he made a spring upon them with a large bowie-knife, warded off their blows as fast as they were aimed at him, gave three of them wounds that soon proved fatal, and having wounded the other one very slightly, and disarmed him by throwing his knife in the air in warding off a blow—as this last man expressed in a tone of gratitude before his death. Capt. D. went to work at once, tearing up his own shirt and binding up all the wounds of the living, both of his friends and his enemies.

"In our examination of the persons of the deceased of those that commenced the attack on Capt. D. and party, we discovered papers, carefully concealed in their pockets, purporting to be a copy of laws by which they were governed. The last of this band thought his wound but slight, and seemed in a fair way to recover until within the last hour, and corroborated all the evidence proven by the papers in their pockets. If Dr. Sparks is well enough to travel, Capt. Davis speaks of moving him down to his friends tomorrow.

"In conclusion, we deem it due to say that shall the evidence be true, Capt. D. and his party acted in self defense. We send this communication to your paper because the bearer, having a very sick family below, will travel post haste all night to Placerville. (Signed) W. C. Thompson, Joseph Hampton, P. L. Robertson, D. W. Hendricks, J. E. Morris Isam, Isaac A. Hart, T. I. Galligus, N. B. Porter, O. B. Wingate, W. L. Newman, J. C. Lewis, L. C. Marshall, T. C. Wallace, A. Hughes, J. Webster, O. C. Clark, and J. K. Tritt.

"Rocky Canon, Dec. 20. TO WM. HENDERSON, PLACERVILLE: Yesterday we had quite an exciting scene to happen within a mile of our camp. Whilst two of my partners and myself were taking a hunt over the hills we heard the reports of guns below us and saw two small parties shooting at each other. Convinced that they were all strangers, we hesitated for a moment before we ventured down to them. A feeling of duty, however, soon prompted us to hasten down. On approaching, we saw two of a little party of three whom we had noticed following the trail unmolested, some half an hour previous, fall in the fight, and the surviving one, a man somewhat above the medium size whom we could readily distinguish from all the rest by his white hat, fighting bravely for his life. Approaching still nearer, we were surprised at the sight of eleven men lying on the ground, seven of them dead, belonging, as they afterwards proved, to a party of robbers; and one dead, and one only wounded of the party of three so recently fired upon from the bushes by the robbers.

"Three of the wounded robbers having died last night, we had ten of them to bury this morning. One survives, who will probably recover. He is marked, however, for life, having lost his nose in toto, and the forefinger of his right hand. Seven of them were shot through the heart. The surviving one, who seems but little hurt, says that their band was composed of two Americans, one Frenchman, five Sydneymen and twelve Mexicans; and that they had commenced operations, having killed six Chinamen three days ago, and four Americans day before yesterday.

"Though we counted twenty-eight bullet holes through Capt. Davis' hat and clothes—seventeen through his hat and eleven through his coat and shirt—he received but two very slight flesh wounds. Yours truly, JOHN WEBSTER."

UNCLE JIM'S FARM

He was standing there, his hands in his pockets, a contented grin on his face.

"Say," I said, "this is no time for simpering. You should be filled with awe. Don't you know that this is the longest bar in the—"

"Gosh," broke in Al. "It all reminds me of my Uncle Jim's farm."

"Can't you think of something else besides Uncle Jim's farm?" I exclaimed, exasperated. "It's probably some little truck farm, anyway. What does he raise besides dirty-faced kids?"

"Prize-winning hogs," said Al, still grinning. "And what a wonderful sight it is when they line up at their troughs."

"Enough," I said, "enough! We're going back to San Diego to see Ramona's marriage place."

THE DESERT SUNSET

(E. E. KNAPP.)

On the desert when the sun drops down and brings to close the day,
I love to watch the sunsets and to let my fancies play;
The clouds that low are hanging, tinted by the dying sun,
Form scenes of sublime grandeur where the vivid colors run.

I see forms like galleons with their sails of yellow gold,
Where the buccaneers trod decks of oak and swaggered brave and bold;
I see thin veils of tracery like the spider's silken snare,
And the gem encrusted cloudlets wafted gently here and there.

I see cloud masses piled up high, their tops as white as snow,
Where castles, crags and battlements are formed to quickly go;
The pictures that entrance the eye no artist e'er could paint,
When the bright and golden beams are dimmed to colors rare and faint.

It seems like I am gazing on a sea of azure blue,
Where the clouds form isles of beauty, softly fading from the view,
And when at last the shadows fall and the sun has gone to rest,
The Master Painter draws the veil o'er his canvas in the West.

WESTERNER SIGNALLY HONORED BY IMPORTANT HISTORY SOCIETY.

At the forty-sixth annual meeting of the American Historical Association at Minneapolis, Minnesota, December 28-30, Professor Herbert E. Bolton, head of the history department of the University of California, Berkeley, became the president.

Dr. Bolton has the honor of being the only Westerner, with one exception,—the late Professor Henry Morse Stephens,—to be selected as president of this most important society of historians.

The Pacific Coast branch of the association was in session at Berkeley, December 29 and 30. On the program was Dr. William H. Ellison of the Santa Barbara State Teachers College, who read a paper entitled "From Pierre's Hole to Monterey: A Chapter in the Adventures of George Nidever, Pioneer of the Rocky Mountains and of California."

THE DOG TAKES PRECEDENCE IN CALIFORNIA OWNERSHIP.

If prior residence means anything legally, man's best friend, the dog, takes precedence over either the White man or the Indian in ownership of California. Evidence has just been gathered by the University of California departments of paleontology and geology to show that a primitive form of dog was living in this state about the time that the primitive man-ape ancestor of humans was first learning to walk erect, almost ten million years ago. The evidence is based on a skull found at Crocker Springs, in western Kern County, in February of this year.

V. L. Vanderhoof, field and research assistant in the museum of paleontology, reports that this skull not only represents the earliest fossil of a dog found in California, but is also a new species not yet reported elsewhere. He gives to the new dog the prepossessing name "Borophagus Littoralis." The skull is about eight inches in length.

TREE MOODS

(RUDOLPH ALTROCCHI.)

I hate the weeping-willow, with its strands
Forever drooping and its mawkish tastes,
Slim-leafed newcomer from oriental wastes,
Pale immigrant of melancholy lands.

Our redwood tree I love, primeval tree,
Millennial pioneer upon our shore,
Whose solid limbs still rustle with the lore
On Indian tribesmen in their coned tepee.

With giant arms, deep green and skyward leaping,
It challenges the accident of soil,
Symbol of valiance and of western toil,
Scorning the scion of cemeterial weeping.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

NEW YEAR DAY OF 1882 CAME ON A Sunday, so January 2 was the legal holiday. Beginning New Year Eve, citizens had a three-day celebration. Owing to the optimistic feeling prevailing throughout California, 1881 having been a most prosperous year, paying New Year calls to extend felicitations was at its apex.

A social sensation followed announcement, at Nevada City, Nevada County, that at the New Year ball the hours between 9 and 11 p.m. would be reserved for the bald-headed men, who would have the first choice of dance partners. It was claimed they had not been getting a fair chance in the past.

The weather in January was freakish. A rainstorm the 3rd was followed the 6th by a three-day north wind and freezing temperature. Thermometers in the Sacramento Valley went down to 22 degrees. Rain fell on eight days of the month, and the total fall for the season to date measured 8.89 inches.

California South had a terrific "Santa Ana" January 11. It did great damage, and was followed by a snowstorm. For the first time on record, snow fell at Ventura City, and all the southland hilltops were capped with "the beautiful."

Auburn, Placer County, experienced an earthquake shock at 7 a.m. of January 4, and Alameda County received a shaking at 5:20 p.m. of the 26th. No damage resulted in either instance.

The famous Gold of Ophir rose vine, growing on the Morton farm in Sonoma County, was destroyed by a January 26 gale. The rose encircled and grew over a fifty-foot-high oak tree; the wind blew down the tree and uprooted the vine.

The executive committee of the Veterans Home Association announced January 1 that $30,000 had been subscribed toward building a soldiers' home.

Governor George C. Perkins was delivering in various cities and towns of the state a lecture entitled "The Farmer and His Home."

Twenty cases of smallpox were found aboard an immigrant train at Truckee, Nevada County, January 11. Those afflicted and forty other passengers were put in quarantine, on a sidetrack.

Livermore Valley, Alameda County, was reported as being devastated by immense numbers of wild geese and ducks flocking there to feed on the fields of growing grain.

The California and Nevada Narrow Gauge Railway commenced a survey of a line proposed to run from Modesto, Stanislaus County, to Bodie, Mono County, via Sonora, Tuolumne County, and on eastward.

During the month, 4,289 immigrants arrived in the state by rail and 2,879 by sea; of the latter, 700 were Chinamen. Departures by rail were 2,002 and by sea 2,940.

California's Sunday-closing law continued to agitate the people. The Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association, organized to oppose its enforcement, sent out lecturers to influence public opinion.

FORTY-NINERS HAVE INNING.

At Willow, Glenn County, four saloonkeepers were acquitted of the law's violation January 15. Following the verdict the judge, the jury, the counsel for both sides and several citizens went on an extended spree.

Published statistics showed that California breweries paid the Federal Government a tax on the manufacture of 19,037,387 gallons of lager beer in 1881.

January 10 fire broke out on Main street, opposite the court house, in Los Angeles and destroyed a block of buildings. The loss was $100,000.

The California Flour Mill of San Francisco burned January 26 with a $50,000 loss.

Fire at Truckee, Nevada County, burned January 20 the box factory and lumber yard of Richardson Bros., causing a $20,000 loss.

Several buildings at Colton, San Bernardino County, burned January 30 with a $10,000 loss.

A portion of the Red Bluff, Tehama County, Chinatown was destroyed by fire January 9.

The Hercules Powder Works at Pinole, Contra Costa County, blew up January 11. Two men were killed and seven buildings were wrecked.

The great trial of The People versus the Gold Run Hydraulic Mine and others, being heard at Sacramento City, ended its forty-ninth day January 23, and then was adjourned until February 28 to be resumed for an indefinite time. It was a great inning for '49ers, over a hundred of whom had been called as witnesses. They were first asked how they found the state looking north of Sutter Fort on their arrival and how it now looked; then they were allowed to relate in their own way their early-day experiences. Some had fought Indians; some had come by covered wagon, and others by sea; some had killed grizzly bears; some joined vigilantes to rid communities of desperados; some had paid $1 for an onion; some had mined placers that contained more gold than dirt; all had met with ups and downs, but all were agreed that hydraulic mining was burying the Sacramento Valley with slickens.

One Pioneer related how the word slickens came into use. It was a corruption of a German word, "slaicken-sides," meaning the hanging wall or foot wall of an ore vein. There was no English word for the California miners to apply to this material, so they shortened the German one to "slickens." In time, it was applied to all debris washed from a mine and was in popular usage.

It was estimated that the gold produced in California since the metal's discovery in 1848 to the end of 1881 totaled $2,516,205,000 in value.

A cleanup at the New York Flat hydraulic mine in Yuba County, December 31, 1881, netted 2,000 ounces of gold dust worth $35,000.

The Gold Flat Eureka mine in Nevada County struck a vein of gold quartz that assayed $600 a ton.

Bodie, Mono County, continued to pour its treasure into the world's lap. The gold and silver shipped from there during 1881 amounted to $3,173,000.

SHERIFFS HAVE ROUNDUP.

Mining stocks began the year 1882 with a slump in prices on the San Francisco stock board, and mining company dividends continued to decline.

The stage from Santa Barbara City was stopped January 3 near Los Alamos by three highwaymen, who took the express box.

The stage from Ukiah, Mendocino County, was stopped January 26 by two men, who secured $1,000 from the express box.

Jose J. Vallejo, who had lived at Mission San Jose, Alameda County, since 1838, died at San Jose, Santa Clara County, January 6 at the age of 84. He was a brother of General M. G. Vallejo, Sonoma County Pioneer.

Rev. R. Townsend Huddart, who arrived in San Francisco in 1850 and established the Union College, died there January 13 at the age of 79.

Sheriffs of Merced, Fresno, San Joaquin and other counties had a roundup at Modesto, Stanislaus County, January 20. They had in custody several of the notorious Crum gang of horse thieves and twenty-five stolen horses.

Dr. J. A. Carothers, Hanford, Kings County physician, took an opiate January 27 and to arouse himself stuck his head into a pail of cold water. Unable to withdraw it, he drowned.

Rev. James Cameron, Oakland, Alameda County, Presbyterian minister, was accidentally given a dose of carbolic acid January 5 and died.

Robert Anderson, Auburn, Placer County sportingman, was playing poker January 7 with a stranger. As he was raking in a pot he had won the stranger arose, drew a gun, shot him dead and escaped.

A gang of toughs invaded a January 1 wedding celebration at the home of Charles Rossi, near Watsonville, Santa Cruz County. In the melee that followed, three men were killed and Rossi was dangerously stabbed.

S. Crabtree and Nicholas Couch got into a property dispute at El Monte, Los Angeles County. The mother of the latter entered the controversy. In anger, Crabtree knocked her down, whereupon Couch shot him dead.

W. B. Simmons, 70 years of age, January 17 killed his son-in-law, Albert Bronson, and himself near Hornitos, Mariposa County. They were partners in a farming enterprise.

Flata Gillespie, a 17-year-old lass, was January 20 shot and killed near Lodi, San Joaquin County, by a rejected suitor named Lynde, who committed suicide.

William Sailor, an oldtimer of Camptonville, Yuba County, was killed by a cavein at his mine January 3.

John P. Cassidy, Castroville, Monterey County, constable, arrested G. Tomassini, a saloonkeeper, for violating the Sunday-closing law, and he was convicted. Meeting on the street January 7 both drew guns, and Tomassini was killed.

Mrs. Nannie Ninnes of Grass Valley, Nevada County, went to a dentist January 13 to have several teeth extracted. She was given chloroform, and died in the chair.

Citrus Fair—Cloverdale, Sonoma County, will hold its annual Citrus Fair, February 19 to 22.

Auto Show San Francisco will hold its annual Pacific Auto Show, January 9 to 16.

A BIT O' FARMING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

POULTRYMEN LONG HAVE REALIZED they could increase profits if, when buying baby chicks for replacement of hens in laying flocks, they could secure only females. As it is, about half the chicks, of course, turn out to be males, and these must be disposed of at the best price obtainable, which usually shows a loss on the transaction. Even if they had to pay a much higher price for chicks, all of which would prove to be females, the saving in feed, care and trouble would more than offset the additional cost.

Recognizing this trouble, colleges of agriculture in various states have sought to find some means of distinguishing young males from females. In the University of California college an experiment has been under way in an endeavor to breed a new variety of Leghorn chicken, the males of which would be black and the females barred. The new-born chicks then, could be told at once; the black ones would be all black, while those that later would be barred would have an indication of this by the bar on their heads. Unfortunately, the experiment has not worked out well, so far. Colors come true, but production in the strains has not been up to standard. It will be continued, though.

Also, it has been found that male can be told from female baby chicks by close examination of the vent. Whether this can be made practical in commercial hatcheries, where thousands of chicks are handled daily, remains to be seen. But judging from the progress that has been made, as reported to a state-wide conference of poultrymen at Berkeley last month, it is safe to predict that a means of sex determination in baby chicks will be worked out.

POLLINATION OF CHERRIES.

If cherries are to be planted this winter, it will be well to include a few of Black Tartarian among the large sweet varieties, such as Royal Ann, Lambert and Bing. Not only are these last named varieties self-sterile and will not pollinate themselves, but they are inter-sterile and will not pollinate each other. Hence, to get good yields some good pollenizer must be included. Pollination of cherries must be provided, and in providing pollenizers be sure the strains used are correct, for even in the Tartarian variety some strains are much better for this work than others.

PROTECT CITRUS BUD UNIONS.

The bud union of a citrus tree is its most vulnerable point. If it is at all prominent, it is quite likely to be injured by implements used in cultivation. If it is below the surface of the ground, much difficulty may result from fungus diseases, such as shell bark of lemons and, to some extent, gummosis in both lemons and oranges. In this event, expose the bud union by digging away the soil and use some means of keeping the soil away. A box built about the trunk will do the work, but a cheaper method is to use a strip of galvanized iron a foot wide. The protector should extend from well above the ground to below the bud union.

RICE HULLS IN THE SOIL.

The use of rice hulls for bedding for animals in the barn has led to an inquiry as to whether they will damage the soil if hauled on and plowed in. While the rice hulls themselves have little value as fertilizer, they certainly can do no damage; they will open up the soil, make it lighter and more pervious to air and water.. After being used as bedding, the hulls will contain more or less manure and this, of course, adds to the value as fertilizer.

CONTROL OF OLIVE KNOT.

Olive knot has been a troublesome problem in nearly every part of the state. However, in the light of recent research, there has appeared a remedy which appears quite sure to control. A solution made of seven parts of light lubricating oil and one part of cresylic acid applied to the knots on trunk and large branches will kill the knots without injuring the bark. On smaller branches, the knots must be cut out with pruning shears; care must be taken to disinfect the shears at every cut. The solution described above will serve well as the disinfectant. Knots may be removed during pruning, but where this method is used, disinfection must be careful if the disease is not spread

WATCH TREES WHILE PRUNING.

While pruning trees and vines during the winter, the pruners should be instructed to keep an alert watch for any troubles that may be developing in the orchard. Every tree is observed while the pruning is being done, and if those who do it are capable, pests and disease that may not have been suspected may be brought to light. Pruning time offers a splendid chance for careful observation, for with the leaves off the trees, the bark can be more easily inspected.

SPRAY FOR LEAF ROLLER.

Eggs of the leaf roller on the limbs and twigs of fruit trees can be killed, and the insect controlled, by spraying now with miscible oil or a good crude oil spray. If this insect is not now controlled it will be pretty sure to make reappearance next summer, and at that time there is nothing that can be applied to control it, as the caterpillers are rolled in the leaves and well protected.

CONTROL OF NEMATODES.

The nematode problem is one of the most difficult agriculture of this state has to face. Theoretically, the only cure is to put affected soil under clean cultivation for three years, and starve them out. Practically, this does not work out well. In the first place, the use of the land is lost for a term of years and, in the second place, there usually are enough left to start breeding again. Planting of resistant crops is about the only real solution that can be offered. Grains, grasses and corn will thrive despite the nematode. Carbon bisulphide or carbon cyanide may be used by putting it in holes over the area affected, but the cost is almost prohibitive and the cure is not certain.

PREPARE FOR SPRING LAWN.

If a lawn is to be planted next spring, prepare for it now. Either plow or spade, according to the size of the lawn, turning under manure to a good depth. Do not work the soil down too much, but leave it rough, unless there is grading to be done. By spring the manure will have decomposed and plant food will be available for the young grass. Most of the weeds will have sprouted by that time, too, and can be killed before the seed for the lawn is planted, saving much trouble in the young grass. There is no need for further plowing or spading in the spring; level off the surface and work the seed bed down well. Plant the seed when the soil becomes warm enough that it will sprout quickly, so that a good stand may be secured.

STARTING HEATHER PLANTS.

The various kinds of heather have become popular in the state as a means of adding to landscape design. An inquiry as to the propagation of this shrub is answered. Sometime between now and the middle of March cuttings should be made, taking tender young shoots an inch or an inch and a half long. Plant them firmly in sand in a pan or shallow box, covered with a glass frame so they will be warmed by the sun. Bottom heat is not necessary.

When rooted, they should be placed in small pots and given plenty of air and warmth. A glass enclosed porch or greenhouse is best, although they will keep growing in the open if protected from cold and given sunlight. There is much variation in the hardiness of varieties, and the propagator should take the kinds that grow well in his locality, rather than to try those from some other section where there are soil and climatic differences.

PLANTING YOUNG TREES.

Most commercial orchardists have learned, to their sorrow, that in planting young fruit trees it does not do to put them deeper in the soil than they were in the nursery row. Both deciduous and citrus trees are liable to many troubles if the bud union is below the surface of the ground. Time and money must be expended in many instances to remedy the difficulty later. So in planting the tree, see that the bud union is just about where it was in the nursery, no closer to the soil. Any misgivings as to a straight trunk, because of the shape of the union at planting time, are misplaced.

SPRAY FOR SCALE.

Now is the time to get after the scale in the orchards. A good cleanup spray will do away with a lot of troubles later in the year. If possible, choose a date for the spraying after the rainstorms apparently have settled down. Use an oil spray, and cover the wood thoroughly, especially the twigs and smaller limbs. This spraying program is applicable both to citrus and deciduous trees, although in the case of citrus, of course, it is not a guarantee of complete control. On deciduous scale pests, however, a good, thorough spray applied now will be pretty sure to reduce the scale population below the danger point.

TIME TO GRAFT.

Grafting time soon will be here, and any work that is to be done in the changing of the tops of trees by this method should be under consideration now, and scions for use should be secured and laid away. Place the wood to be used in moist, not wet, sand, and store in a cool place for use in top working in the spring

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1860.)

SAMUEL BRANNAN JR., NATIVE OF New York, 86; landed in San Francisco July 31, 1846, and was one of the very few surviving senior members of the Society of California Pioneers; died at San Diego City. He came to California aboard the ship "Brooklyn" with his father, Samuel Brannan Sr., one of the state's most noted Pioneers. The elder Brannan preached the first Protestant sermon in San Francisco, August 16, 1846, and in 1847 established a store at New Helvetia, now Sacramento City. At one time he was the richest man in California. There was scarcely an enterprise of moment in which he did not figure, and he was as famous for his charity and open-handed liberality as for his enterprise; unlucky speculations, however, made inroads upon his fortune and his vast wealth melted away.

Peter Nelson, native of Sweden, 94; came via Cape Horn in 1841 and resided since in the San Francisco Bay district; died at Oakland, Alameda County.

William A. Haun, native of Missouri, 83; crossed the plains in 1850 and resided for many years in the Santa Clara Valley and San Luis Obispo County; died at Taft, Kern County, survived by two children.

Mrs. Mary A. Frazier, native of England, 84; came across the plains in 1851 and resided since in the San Francisco Bay region; died at Oakland, Alameda County, survived by four children.

Dan Morris, native of Ireland, 90; came across the plains in 1852 and for many years mined in the northern part of the state; died at Los Angeles City, survived by a wife and four children.

Mrs. Millie Ann Bradford-Geddes, native of Missouri, 82; came across the plains in 1852 and resided in Mariposa and Fresno Counties; died at Arbuckle, Colusa County, survived by seven children.

Andrew Soule Williams, native of Missouri, 83; came across the plains in 1852 and settled in San Jose, Santa Clara County, where he died; four daughters survive.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Barnett-Harvey, native of Ohio, 80; came across the plains in 1854 and settled in Pope Valley, Napa County, where she died; four children survive.

Mrs. Elizabeth Loofbourrow, native of Illinois, 84; came across the plains in 1854 and resided in El Dorado and Alameda Counties; died at Sacramento City, survived by seven children.

Mrs. Anna Tourtellotte-Bowerman, native of Connecticut, 83; came in 1854 and settled in Trinity County; died at Saratoga, Santa Clara County, survived by a son.

Mrs. Elizabeth Biggs-Roy, native of England, 83; came via Cape Horn in 1854 and resided in San Francisco a half-century; died at Sausalito, Marin County, survived by a son.

Mrs. Annie Brown-Lovett, native of Ohio, 81; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1855 and resided in Trinity and Tehama Counties; died at Red Bluff, survived by three children. She was a daughter of G. W. Brown, California Pioneer of 1849 who sought his fortune in the Trinity County goldfields.

George W. Hack, native of New York, 85; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1855 and settled in Sacramento County; died near Sacramento City, survived by a wife.

Mrs. Mary Tate-Hosselkus, native of Ireland, 95; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1856 and settled in Plumas County; died at Genesee, her home since 1865, survived by four children.

James William Smith, native of Missouri, 79; came across the plains in 1856 and settled in Sutter County; died at Meridian, survived by a wife and eight children.

Charles Clark Haswell, native of Ohio, 78; came in 1857 and resided in San Francisco and Los Angeles; died at the latter city, survived by a wife and three children, among them William Clark Haswell (Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W.).

Mrs. Martha Nichols-Langford, native of Georgia, 84; came in 1857 and settled in Amador County; died near Ione, survived by a daughter.

Mrs. Kate Lynch, native of Ireland, 84; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1858 and settled in San Francisco, where she died; a daughter survives.

William J. Hamm, native of Massachusetts, 75; since 1858 a resident of Sacramento City, where he died; a daughter survives.

John Skedge Borrette, native of Maryland, 79; since 1859 a resident of Lassen County; died at Susanville, survived by a wife and two daughters.

Mrs. Rena Barton-Hilliard, native of Iowa, 77; crossed the plains in 1859; died at Sacramento City.

Mrs. Margaret Clement, native of Germany, 86; came in 1859; died near Brentwood, Contra Costa County.

Mrs. Lucinda Shuey-Blaisdell, native of Illinois, 76; crossed the plains in 1859 and settled in Oakland, Alameda County, where she died; four children survive.

William M. Sparks, native of Missouri, 73; came across the plains in 1859 and settled in Placer County; died at Lincoln, survived by a wife and four children.

Mrs. Angelina Rebecca Bulkley, native of Virginia, 93; came in 1854; died at Palo Alto, Santa Clara County.

William Henry Curnow, native of England, 82; since 1855 Calaveras County resident; died at Mokelumne Hill, survived by a wife.

Mrs. Deborah Bacon-Melendy, native of Oregon, 80; since 1856 San Benito County resident; died in Bear Valley, survived by seven children.

OLD TIMERS PASS

Nathan Henry Dakin, native of Michigan, 91; came in 1861; died at Riverside City, survived by a wife and a son.

Mrs. Josephine VanWalbeck, native of New York, 77; came in 1861; died at Sacramento City, survived by two daughters.

Mrs. S. H. Henry, native of France, 89; since 1861 resident of San Francisco, where she died; four children survive.

John B. McLane, native of Illinois, 74; came in 1861; died at Corning, Tehama County, survived by a wife.

Mrs. Mattie B. Osborn, native of Ohio, 83; came in 1861; died at Atwater, Merced County, survived by two sons.

Henry Thomas Speeks, native of Illinois, 77; came in 1861; died at Ferndale, Humboldt County. For many years he resided in Tehama County.

John S. Collins, 85; since 1861 Contra Costa County resident; died at Martinez.

Mrs. Lydia Ann Herrington, native of Illinois, 75; came in 1863; died at Chico, Butte County, survived by two sons.

Albert E. McCombs, native of Kentucky, 94; came in 1863; died at Ukiah, Mendocino County, survived by two children. He was the last Ukiah Valley member of the G.A.R.

Mrs. Soladad Meaghen, native of Mexico, 87; came in 1865; died at Merced Falls, Merced County, survived by a daughter.

Mrs. Annie E. Rhodes, native of Connecticut, 92; since 1865 resident Santa Cruz City, where she died; four children survive.

Edwards Wellen Collins, 84; since 1866 resident Vallejo, Solano County, where he died.

H. W. M. Ogg, native of Canada, 71; since 1866 resident Sacramento City, where he died; two children survive.

Adam Baird, native of Scotland, 85; came in 1867; died at Oakland, Alameda County, survived by five children.

Mrs. Hattie Keagle, native of Iowa, 68; came in 1868; died at Sacramento City, survived by two children. For many years she resided in Amador and San Joaquin Counties.

Frank B. Norton, native of Massachusetts, 84; came in 1869; died at Oakland, Alameda County, survived by a wife and six children.

Z. G. Jameson, native of Missouri, 96; came in 1869; died at San Jose, Santa Clara County, survived by a wife and a son. For many years he resided in Merced County.

Mrs. Alice Lawrence, native of New Hampshire, 72; since 1867 resident Eureka, Humboldt County, where she died.

John Edward Hayman, native of Indiana, 85; came in 1869; died at Napa City. For twenty years he was superintendent of Colusa County schools.

Carlton S. Blodgett, native of Ohio, 74; since 1864 Yolo County resident; died at Zamora, survived by a wife and four children.

Mrs. Selena Richards-Eustice, native of Wisconsin, 80; came in 1862; died at Gilroy, Santa Clara County, survived by a son.

The idea is certainly commendable, for the most substantial citizens of any community are the small-home owners. In California, however, any person of moderate means would be foolish, indeed, to attempt to acquire a home until such time as the special assessment evil is completely abolished. Otherwise, the chances are excellent that the investment will be lost to the contracting trust.

"Golden years are fleeting by;
Youth is passing, too.
Learn to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day.
Time will never bring thee back
Chances swept away."

A copyrighted Associated Press dispatch from Tokio, December 14, quotes Tsuyoshi Inukai, Japan's new premier, as saying: "America is the most powerful nation on the face of the earth. No country would be so foolish as to think even for a moment of attempting war against America in her isolated position. . . . Why, we wouldn't take Manchuria as a gift."

The opposite of the Japs' public declarations is generally their real intention. So, suspicion increases that Japan intends to take, and keep, Manchuria, and that it plans, and is preparing for, war against the United States.

Reports from the National Capital are to the effect that the Congress will apply the immigration quota to Mexico. For the good of this country, the nationals of that country, a great majority of whom are not of the White race and therefore ineligible for American citizenship, should be excluded, just as are the Japs, the Chinks, etc. But, partial protection via the quota from an inundation of undesirable Mexis is preferable to no protection.

The United States Supreme Court held, December 14, that an alien who enters this country without an immigration visa—in violation of the 1924 Immigration Act—may be deported at any time thereafter, the five-year limitation prescribed by section nineteen of the 1917 Immigration Act not being applicable.

This decision should encourage the authorities to round up and deport the thousands of Japs, Mexis and other aliens now illegally here. The country would be greatly benefited by their forced departure.

Married women are barred from teaching in the public schools of more than fifty percent of representative American cities, according to an announcement of the Federal Office of Education. They should be barred from every public school, and also, no married woman with an able-bodied husband should be employed in any capacity.

WELL-KNOWN CONTRA COSTAN DEAD. Knightsen (Contra Costa County) — George W. Knight, after whom this place was named, died November 30 survived by three daughters. He was a native of Maine, aged 88, and came to California in 1874.

Native Sons of the Golden West

SAN FRANCISCO—THE BOARD OF Grand Officers were in session November 28, those in attendance being: Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, who presided, Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees George F. McNoble, Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., Jesse H. Miller, Joseph J. McShane, Frank M. Lane and John M. Burnett.

The most important business was the selection of a successor to A. W. Garcelon of Arcata No. 20, recently resigned as Grand Trustee. Candidates for the post were Charles H. Spengemann of Hesperian No. 137 (San Francisco), Edward T. Schnarr of Fruitvale No. 252 (Oakland) and Eldred L. Meyer of Santa Monica Bay No. 267 (Ocean Park). After due consideration Meyer was elected to the vacancy.

Considerable business of a routine nature was disposed of, following which the Board adjourned to the call of the Grand President.

Past Grand Extends Greetings.

Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, who has been closely pursued by hard luck lately, is again in the hospital, this time with a crushed arm, the result of a fall December 13. So, Herman has not been able to prepare for mailing the season's greetings annually sent to his numerous friends, and has asked The Grizzly Bear to extend his best wishes to all the brethren.—C.M.H.

Annual Rollcall.

Santa Cruz—At the annual rollcall of Santa Cruz No. 90, organized in 1886, three charter members—Reuben Pringle, Ralph Miller and Frank K. Roberts—were honor-guests. President Cliff Kilfoyl introduced Thomas Alzina as toastmaster at the turkey supper, prepared by Enoch Alzina, Hi Faneuf, Ben Crews, Harry Buckhart, Charles Pinkham and Robert Devitt, and served by Joseph Nittler, Ed Blaisdell, Elmer Dakan Jr. and Frank Burns. In addition to the charter members, talks were made by Frank Helms, George S. Tait Jr., W. S. Rodgers, James Bartlett, John C. Geyer, C. E. Canfield, Joseph Aram and others.

History Contest Has Many Entrants.

Sacramento—The annual California history oratorical contest, sponsored by Sacramento No. 3 for the students at the Sacramento high school, was held December 10. Henry Wittpen headed the committee which arranged the details. The judges were Herbert E. White, Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn and Thomas Chambers. Milton Rosendahl presided. The school orchestra, Lorraine Hansen student director, rendered selections; Mildred Allen, accompanied by Betty Gaylord, gave a vocal solo, and Margaret Briggs, accompanied by Elva DeMar, a violin solo.

GRAND TRUSTEE ELDRED L. MEYER.

First prize, a silver cup donated by Irving D. Gibson, went to Phoebe Grosch, whose subject was "General Vallejo." Second prize was taken by Betty Gaylord, "Mark Twain, California Author," and third by George Hornstein, "Thomas Starr King." Other contestants, and their subjects, were: Thomas MacBride, "Early History of Sacramento;" Dennis Hession, "Inyo County;" Virginia Simmons, "The Glamorous Decade;" Jack Downey, "The Romance of California Water;" Margaret Lazzarone, "The Manly Party of Death Valley."

Sacramento added many new names to its roster at the initiation conducted by John A. Sutter Past Presidents Assembly recently, and another large class is to be initiated immediately after the holidays. District Deputies Clyde Corcoran and Joseph Lannon will participate in a joint installation of all the Sacramento Parlors in January; dancing will conclude the ceremonies. No. 3 contemplates putting a team in the Municipal Indoor Baseball League, and there is considerable rivalry between the younger members for the eighteen places on the team, of which Frank R. Didion is captain.

Delightful Occasion.

Santa Barbara—Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell officially visited Santa Barbara No. 116 December 15 and the evening was most delightfully spent at a dinner and smoker. Special guests were members of the Santa Barbara Bar Association, Superior Judges S. E. Crow and A. B. Bigler, Mayor Harvey T. Nielson, Supervisor Sam Stanwood and other city and county officials. Vocal selections were rendered by Peace Justice Charles L. Poulsen.

President John L. Stewart of No. 116 was the toastmaster, and President W. P. Butcher and Past President Paul Sweetser extended greetings, respectively, on behalf of the bar association and the Parlor. Justice Seawell's address, in the course of which he appealed for recognition of the important contributions made by California Pioneers towards the development of a great Western empire, was listened to with great interest by the 200 in attendance. "A state should not forget those who, in the past, made the present possible," he concluded. Other speakers were Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell and Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer. C. W. McCormick, as president, heads Santa Barbara's newly-elected corps of officers.

Broadcast Sponsored.

Oakland—The Extension of the Order Committee, representing the Alameda County Parlors, assisted by representatives of the Native Daughter Parlors, sponsored December 6 a radio program. Historiographer George H. Barron spoke on the "California Missions," the band of Piedmont No. 120 N.S.G.W. rendered selections, and Mrs. Estelle M. Evans, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., was heard in a group of vocal numbers. The committee which arranged the broadcast included Grand Outside Sentinel Gam Hurst (chairman), Mrs. Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Secretary N.D.G.W., Marion E. White, Lester Steele and Anthony King.

"Kids" Entertained by Oldtimers.

Calistoga—Oldtimers of Calistoga No. 86 sponsored a "kid" party December 7, and it was a huge success. The festivities started with a turkey supper, George Nance being the chef. At the meeting which followed officers were elected, Frank Mariani being selected for president, to succeed Rev. T. J. McKeon, and $20 was contributed to the Calistoga Fire Department for a resuscitator.

Jerome C. Siemsen, chairman of the arrangements committee, took charge under good of the order, and then the fun began. Santa Claus Ed. Light arrived with a large pack of presents for the "kids," and such remembrances! A delightful feature was the presentation of a billfold to R. J. Williams, retiring recording secretary, who has completed a quarter-century of faithful service to the Parlor. Cards and games rounded out one of the most memorable and largest attended occasions in No. 86's history.

Real Assistance Promised.

Ferndale—Ferndale No. 93 elected officers, with O. R. Frame as president, December 7. Following the meeting Humboldt Past Presidents Assembly, which meets alternately in Ferndale, Arcata and Eureka, convened and selected its officers, A. W. McDonald of Humboldt No. 14 being chosen governor. They will be installed at the January 7 meeting in Arcata. The gathering concluded with a clam chowder feast prepared by "Chef" Chas. Kistner.

The Assembly will, during 1932, take over the work of the Humboldt County Central Committee, representing Humboldt No. 14 (Eurkea), Arcata No. 20 and Ferndale No. 93, and hopes to be of real assistance to the Parlors of the county.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1931, as follows, together with their membership figures December 19, 1931:

guests at a supper and entertainment staged by Stockton No. 7 December 14 in honor of the Grand President. Included among the many visitors in attendance were representatives of Modesto No. 11, Lodi No. 18, Ione No. 33 and Tuolumne No. 144. Addresses were made by Grand President Gonzalez, Past Grand President Hubert R. McNoble, Grand Secretary Regan and Grand Trustee George F. McNoble.

Shortly after the coming of the new year Stockton will begin preparations for the Grand Parlor, which meets in May in the San Joaquin County government seat. Plans outlined indicate this will be one of the best Grand Parlors ever held.

Oldtimers Night.

Saint Helena—Saint Helena No. 53 elected officers December 7, Edgar W. Johnson being chosen president. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Edgar Johnson, Lucas Haus and Gilman Clark. A social dance was sponsored December 12.

January 11 the Parlor will have an oldtimers night, featuring a banquet and numerous surprises. The annual benefit for the homeless children will be held in February. Raymond Palmer, Martin Anderson, Louis D. Vasconi, Gilman Clark and Charles Wagner compose the arrangements committee.

Official Visits.

San Diego—San Diego No. 108 received an official visit December 9 from Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell. There was a good attendance, two candidates were initiated and refreshments were served. Among the speakers of the evening were Justice Seawell, Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell and District Deputy Albert V. Mayrhofer.

Ritual Contest Sponsored.

Napa—At a meeting December 1 of Napa-Solano Past Presidents Assembly No. 11, George Flanagan of Napa No. 62 was elected governor. Officers will be installed January 7. It was decided to sponsor a ritual contest between the Parlors of Napa and Solano Counties and to award a trophy to the best team.

Benefit Nets Neat Sum.

Martinez—Mount Diablo No. 101 and Las Juntas No. 221 N.D.G.W. sponsored a whist party for the benefit of the homeless children. Sixty-seven tables were in operation, and $115 was realized. An added feature was a russian costume dance by Miss Natalie Carr.

The committee conducting the successful affair was: Las Juntas—Mms. Leone Henrichsen (chairman), Nina Keefe, Rose Palmer, Milford Viera, R. Anderson and Frances Upton, and Miss Adele Jones. Mount Diablo—A. E. Goyette, Al Wright, Melvin Wells, R. Anderson and Milford Viera.

Past Presidents to Initiate Large Class.

San Rafael—Officers of Mount Tamalpais No. 64 and Marinita No. 198 N.D.G.W. will be jointly installed January 9, Arthur W. Todt and Miss Gussie Bannister becoming the respective presidents. District deputy B. J. Brusatori will officiate for No. 64.

Marin County Past Presidents Assembly met in San Rafael December 7, Director General James F. Stanley, V. L. Orengo, Henry Rickleffs and other prominent members of San Francisco Assembly No. 1 being in attendance. The next meeting will be at Sausalito, January 6, when a large class of candidates will be initiated and plans will be presented for promoting activities of the Order.

Sheriff Prizewinner.

Antioch—The annual masquerade of General Winn No. 32 for the benefit of the homeless children drew a large crowd. Prizes for the best costumed couple went to Sheriff and Mrs. R. R. Veale, the latter being attired in a costume of colonial design and the former impersonated a spanish don. A chicken supper was served by Antioch No. 223 N.D.G.W.

The committee in charge of the masquerade included Wesley Field, Charles Hornback, F. J. Biglow, Jake Frederickson, Richard J. Trembath, Robert Douglas and Richard Uren.

Generous Donation.

Oroville—Argonaut No. 8 officers, with Thomas R. Cole as president, were elected December 16. They will be installed, jointly with those of Gold of Ophir No. 190 N.D.G.W., January 6. District Deputies Cyril Macdonald and Alice Bass will officiate.

Argonaut has, by resolution approved by the

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

"RESIDENTS WHO STRUGGLE ALONG for years, making payments on a small piece of property, supporting local, state and federal governments, giving freely to charity, paying large taxes and assessments, now find out when they are without work, food, and in danger of losing their equities because of no money to make payments, that they cannot get aid from the county welfare department unless they deed their property over to the county," said the Wilmar, Los Angeles County, "Chronicle" of December 10, editorially.

"On the other hand, the county can, and is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars through different organizations in luring more people to this section of the county, a majority of whom either are broke when they get here or go broke soon after arriving. Plenty of funds seem to be available for the care of these people. They soon get on the preferred list and receive county aid. But the good taxpayers, who pay their taxes and support these incompetents in office, continue to pay taxes, go hungry and lose their all.

"It is about time that our lawmaking bodies, and this includes them all from the president down to the supervisors, were doing something for the backbone of the government—the small-home owner—besides talk of moratoriums for Europe and help for the incompetent banker who gambled in stocks and bonds to the loss of the people's money.

"Just so long as the small taxpayer—the one who is being appealed to to loosen up and spend—sees these conditions prevalent everywhere in the country, he would be a bigger sap than he is already to spend one penny for anything except the bare necessities of life. For tomorrow he might be the one trying to get aid from the government which he has faithfully supported with his taxes and moral and physical support."

1932'S COMING WATCHED.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. had several visitors December 17, including a large delegation from Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 (San Pedro), Grand Organist Leslie Maloche and C. Y. Stanley of Stanford Parlor No. 76 (San Francisco). Two new members were received. The date was Albert Metz's seventy-fourth birthday anniversary, so in honor of the event he prepared and served refreshments.

The Parlor celebrated the advent of 1932 with a dance and watch party New Year Eve. Good music was provided, and the large crowd had an enjoyable time. Officers of No. 45, with Lee Irwin as president, will be installed January 8 at joint ceremonies at San Pedro.

TO ENTERTAIN NEIGHBORS.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. initiated a class of twelve candidates December 16, making a total of fifty-one new members received during the July-December term. The annual Christmas party followed the ceremonies and was a wonderful success. It was sponsored by the teacher members, with Ruth Traeger as the chairman, Ramona Thoroughgood the pianist and Jennie Raymond the announcer. A splendid program was presented, including a playlet enacted by the members in costume, and refreshments were served. The electrically-lighted Christmas tree and the fireplace with burning logs formed a pretty scene.

A large delegation of No. 124 members attended the institution of Ontario Parlor No. 251. The Parlor presented the "baby" with a beautiful flag for the president's station. January 4 the Parlor will assist District Deputy Flora Holy in installing the officers of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245.

January 13, Los Angeles will conclude its bridge tournament, which is proving a great success. January 27 these Parlors will be entertained: Rudecinda, Grace, Santa Ana, Californiana, Lugonia, Desert Gold and Ontario. President Gertrude R. Allen who, along with the other officers, has been retained for another term, issued the following Christmas message:

"As we live through the happy holiday season, let us ponder the deeper significance of these two phrases, 'Peace on earth, good will toward men,' and strive to make our lives exemplify them, too. Peace in our own hearts, peace in our Order, our communities, our state and our nation, so that through this sequence we may use the force of our organization to bring about that toward which we are all working—world peace."

THREE INITIATED.

Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell December 7 officially visited Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. There was a large attendance, including many visitors from all local Parlors. Three candidates were initiated.

Justice Seawell delivered a forceful address, and among the many other speakers were Superior Judge Joseph P. Sproul, Municipal Judge Leo I. Aggeler, District Deputies Albert Cron and Harry Honn, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer and Henry G. Bodkin.

BOYS' CHOIR CHARMS.

The Christmas party of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W., held prior to the December 8 meeting, was a marked success. Mrs. Edward Tabor was in charge and among those who ably assisted were Mms. William Behm, E. B. Loos and Edward H. Anthony. The hall was beautified by the use of gayly-colored flowers. The proceeds were used for Christmas philanthropy.

Officers were elected at the meeting, Mrs. Gertrude Tuttle being retained as president. A delightful program followed the meeting, two talented children, David Leo Tillotson and Adrian Tabor, giving a number of dances in costume. The feature numbers were charmingly presented by the boys' choir—sixteen singers directed by Orel Gardner—of Saint Mary of the Angels Episcopal Church. Tea was served by

CITY GOVERNMENT OVERSTAFFED

The Los Angeles City Unit of the California Taxpayers Association December 14 adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Board of Directors of the Los Angeles City Unit of California Taxpayers Association believes that the departments of the Los Angeles City Government are at this time overstaffed, rather than in need of additional personnel; and

"Whereas, Any additional personnel would incur a tax burden which the people would not be able to stand; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Los Angeles City Unit of California Taxpayers Association go on record as opposed to any increase in the personnel of any department of the city government at this time."

GENUINE CO-OPERATION.

Ocean Park—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. had a royal Christmas party December 21 for the children and other guests. On the extensive program were a charming playlet and a battle of the cascarones. Gifts were distributed by jolly Kris Kringle from a Christmas tree, and ice cream and cake—from Santa's snow mountain and the fairy ovens in the dell were served. Rosalie Hyde, the general chairman, was assisted by Mary Meyer, Willette Biscailuz, Anna Pierce, Lottie O'Connor, Theresa Henanty, Hazel McCreary, Ethel Mickelson, Marie Barnes, Edith Coe, Hazel Swanson, Rhea Jones, Edna Romero, Grace Abila, Catherine Conterno and Katharine Worsham.

Mrs. Hyde, who is chairman of Santa Monica Bay's veteran welfare committee, attended December 17 a big wrapping event at the National Soldiers Home, Sawtelle. Twenty-eight organizations were represented, and 4,500 packages were prepared for distribution Christmas Eve. Such a sight it was, and such a demonstration of genuine co-operation!

JOINT NATIVE SONS INSTALLATION.

San Pedro — Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. is making plans for the joint installation here, January 8, of the officers of all Native Son Parlors in Los Angeles County and vicinity. District Deputy Burrell D. Neighbors will officiate, and an attractive entertainment program will be presented.

Sepulveda is to sponsor a troop of Boy Scouts of America composed of native Californians. Laurence D. Powers will serve as the scoutmaster, and Edwin E. Baldwin and Stanley A. Wheeler will serve with him on the Parlor's scout committee. Francis Fetzer is the newly-elected president of Sepulveda.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

ONTARIO (SAN BERNARDINO COUNty)—Ontario No. 251, organized by District Deputy Hazel B. Hansen of Verdugo No. 240 (Glendale), vice-chairman Grand Parlor Extension of the Order Committee, was instituted by Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson December 19 with forty-one charter members. A dinner preceded the ceremonies, the tables being beautifully decorated and brown bears serving as favors. The institution was witnessed by an immense crowd, all surrounding Parlors being well represented. In conducting the ceremonies, the Grand President was assisted by Grand Trustee Florence D. Schoneman, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer, Estelle M. Evans, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron and Sue J. Irwin, the district deputies and Marvel Thomas.

The ritual was exemplified by the following: Hazel B. Hansen, president; Marguerite Dickinson, past president; Ruth Ruiz, first vice-president; Helen Anderson, second vice-president; Ora Evans, third vice-president; Marvel Thomas and Flora Holy, marshals; Sallie R. Thaler, recording secretary; Gertrude Allen, financial secretary; Rose Bartel, treasurer; Juanita Lopez, organist; Florence D. Schoneman, Eva Bemis, Daisy Hansen, trustees; Katie Ross, inside sentinel; Clara Fay, outside sentinel; Nellie Cline, junior past president.

Speakers of the evening included Grand President Carlson, Past Grand Presidents Evans, Heilbron and Stoermer, Grand Secretary Thaler, Grand Trustee Schoneman, District Deputy Hansen and Miss Mollie Spaelti of Marinita No. 198 (San Rafael). Nellie Cline, on behalf of the district deputies, presented the new Parlor with the charter fee; Grand President Carlson, a gavel; District Deputy Hazel Hansen, a beautiful hamper—filled with lovely linen from members of the southland Parlors—to be disposed of by the "baby" to secure funds for supplies and paraphernalia. Choice flowers were presented the present and past grand officers.

Officers of Ontario include: Adele Frankish, president; Ethel Baxter, first vice-president; Betty Christian, second vice-president; Maude VanFleet, third vice-president; Esther Kremer, marshal; Helen Hickman, recording secretary; Miss MacDonald, financial secretary; Elizabeth Wanamaker, treasurer; Wilma Poole, outside sentinel; Ruth Cassell, inside sentinel; Jessie Merry, past president; Edith Osgood, Etta Wright, Sidney Herzberg, trustees. On arrival in Ontario, the out-of-town visitors were entertained at tea by Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, and the following morning District Deputy Hazel Hansen was hostess at breakfast.

Fine Response in Vets' Behalf.

Santa Cruz—As chairman of the Grand Parlor Veterans Welfare Committee for 1931-32, Past Grand President Stella Finkeldey desires to express sincere appreciation for the very fine response from Parlors, grand and past grand officers, past president associations, members and clubs. 132 Parlors have responded to date, making it possible to carry out a program very much along the lines of last year. The hospital at Whipple again requested candy for the holidays and the hospital at Tucson expressed a wish for assistance in recreational work. Miss Finkeldey received the following letter of acknowledgment from the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Whipple, Arizona:

"This will acknowledge receipt, several days ago, of the box of small, hard candies for use Thanksgiving Day. Your assistance in helping us make our tables and trays attractive for Thanksgiving Day is greatly appreciated. Please accept for yourself, and extend to the members of your organization, our thanks for your assistance. With all best wishes to you and your organization. MISS FRANCES MAYNARD, recreational aide. Approved: G. D. Allen, medical officer in charge."

Surprise Shower of Baby Garments.

Fort Bragg—Knowing in advance that a delightful evening was in store, there was a large attendance at the December 2 meeting of Fort Bragg No. 210. Community relief work was discussed, and a committee was appointed to collect food and clothing from the members for the needy. At the conclusion of the meeting all were invited to a delightful supper, prepared by Mms. Lucy Carlson, Clara Mehtlan and Burnie.

The tables, arranged around a Christmas tree, were decorated with greens and poinsettias, reminding of the approach of the holiday season. An emblematic pin and a small Christmas tree decorated with handkerchiefs were presented as parting gifts to President Elna Mathews, who is leaving soon for El Centro. The many presents under the tree proved to be a surprise shower of baby garments for Mrs. Lilly Tuomala. Words of thanks from the recipients brought the delightful evening to a close.

Christmas Spirit Prevailed.

Petaluma—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Petaluma No. 222 December 15 was the occasion of a largely attended and most interesting meeting. A dinner was held before the meeting, followed by addresses and the initiation of one candidate. The meetinghall was beautifully decorated with a Christmas tree, toyon berries and greens. Other visitors were Grand Trustees Willow Borba and Ethel Begley, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grand President Emma Foley, District Deputy Mae Rose Barry, and delegations from Santa Rosa, Marinita, Fairfax, Portola, Orinda and Mission Parlors. Julia Perolini presided in a very charming manner. Election of officers was held and Elizabeth Dillon was chosen president. A box of clothes on display was sent to the homeless children committee for Christmas, together with a check.

Following the meeting all retired to the banquetroom, where a social time was held. The Christmas spirit prevailed there, also, and refreshments were served by a very active committee headed by Mary Garzoli. Mystery packages were disposed of and were awarded Margaret Colgan, Julia Perolini and Elsie Ricoli. A beautiful gift was presented to Grand President Carlson, and a remembrance to District Deputy Barry for her loyal support to Petaluma.

Birthday Celebrated.

Martinez—A most enjoyable birthday party was given December 7 in honor of the tenth anniversary of Las Juntas No. 221. Mount Diablo No. 101 N.S.G.W. members were the invited guests. Dutch whist was the diversion, awards being given to J. A. Schweinitzer, Mrs. Ethel Keefe and Mrs. Lottie Schaffer.

A sumptuous banquet wound up the evening's entertainment. A huge birthday cake, graced with ten candles, given by Mrs. John Griffin, gave the necessary touch to the festivities. Christmas decorations added color to the affair. Mrs. Ethel Keefe, as chairman and sponsor of the celebration, proved a delightful and able hostess.

Bear Flags Presented Schools.

San Diego—San Diego No. 208 is keeping up its usual pace in activities along the lines of the interests of the Order. Two California State (Bear) Flags recently were presented county schools, San Diego No. 108 N.S.G.W. co-operating. One was given the Emery school at Palm City. Miss Marion S. Stough, introduced by Mrs. Mabel H. Burgert, presented the flag, which was accepted with enthusiastic applause. The other was given the Lakeside school, Edward H. Dowell of No. 108 making the presentation speech. Mrs. Sarah R. Miller appeared on behalf of No. 208. A recent card party netted more than $80, which was turned over to the San Diego Mission restoration fund.

Members of the Past Presidents Association were guests of President Irma A. Heilbron at a dinner party at the home of her sister, Mrs. Alice Damarus, December 11. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jane Florentin.

Highly Complimented.

Santa Rosa—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Santa Rosa No. 217 was the occasion for a most enjoyable evening. A turkey supper preceded the meeting. The Parlor was highly complimented for the splendid way in which the ritual was exemplified. Mrs. Carlson was presented with a piece of china, and the following grand officers were each presented with a linen handkerchief: Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Supervising Deputy Emma Foley, District Deputy Anna Loser, Past Grand President Margaret Grote-Hill, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley, Willow Borba and Anna Thuesen.

The Grand President, in her usual sweet way, outlined the various projects of the Order, and particularly expressed her "one fond hope, to liquidate the mortgage on the Native Daughter Home." Santa Rosa is 100 percent for that project, and is compiling a cook book, the entire proceeds from which will be turned over to the Home. Delegations from Sonoma, San Rafael, Napa, Vallejo, Calistoga, Mill Valley, Petaluma, Fort Bragg and San Francisco were in attendance. Mrs. Loser, district deputy of Santa Rosa, was highly complimented by the Grand President.

The annual Christmas festivities of No. 217 were held December 17. Baskets were delivered to needy families at Christmas time. January 21 the district meeting of Sonoma and Marin Counties Parlors will be held at Santa Rosa.

Preservation Fund.

San Andreas—San Andreas No. 113 initiated three candidates, and during the social hour following the ceremonies games were played, and Oleta Meyer, Amelia Joy and Kate Loeffler, hostesses for the month, served supper. Doris Treat, Melvina Dalton and Amelia Joy, the committee in charge, report $15.75 has been accumulated for the Luther Burbank home preservation fund of the Parlor.

Charter Members Entertained.

Placerville—Marguerite No. 12 initiated six candidates and entertained the charter members, three of whom were present. The Parlor was instituted June 9, 1887. Eleven of the forty-two original members have retained their membership and reside in various parts of the state. The occasion was greatly enjoyed.

party sponsored by Vendome No. 100 December 9 was a wonderful success. President Adeline Taviera of Orinda, San Francisco, was called for the trophy. Mrs. Clara Gairaud was the general chairman.

Vendome and Observatory No. 100 N.S.G.W. dispensed cheer and presents to a large number of patients at the U. S. Veteran Hospital at Palo Alto during Christmas week. Mms. Elwin H. Baker, Charles O. Dean and Fred Withycombe from Vendome, and Karl Marten, Chas. Dietz and Lloyd Pinard of Observatory comprised this faithful committee.

December 23 a Christmas tree festival was held by Vendome, with Mrs. William C. Kady as general chairman. A merry time was had killing the word "depression." Santa Claus was there in all his glory, in the person of Miss Tillie Brohaska. Carols were sung under the direction of Mrs. Clara Gairaud, and a Christmas playlet and stories were also enjoyed. The carol singers at the close of the evening drove to the homes of sick members and serenaded them. Many outside of the Order also petitioned for their sweet voices. Four new members were received during December, and a class will be received early in January.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

Hundred Children Guests.

Modesto.—Morada No. 199 and Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. held their eleventh annual Christmas party for the small children December 18. Each member was requested to bring a child. Presents, and stockings filled with candy and nuts were presented the hundred children present. A lovely program of music was also provided. Mrs. Susan Sullivan and Mrs. Emma Smith, assisted by a committee, provided for several needy families at Christmas time. Morada held its annual Christmas party December 21 at the home of Mrs. Ella Turner.

December 11 the sewing club met at the home of Mrs. Emma Smith. Christmas stockings were made and presents were wrapped for the children's party. No. 199 and No. 11 held a public whist party December 9, with 250 present. Proceeds will go to the homeless children and the needy.

Delightful Talk on Co-operation.

San Bernardino.—Members of Lugonia No. 241 and their friends were guests December 9 of Arrowhead No. 110 N.S.G.W. Supervisor John Andreson Jr. had charge of the dinner, and short addresses were made by the presidents of both Parlors. The guests voted the affair a complete success. Following the feast No. 241 had its regular meeting, initiated a candidate and elected officers. Installation will be held January 27. President Wixom gave a delightful talk on co-operation.

December 23 Lugonia entertained twenty-five underprivileged children at the annual Christmas party. There was a huge tree, loaded with decorations, gifts and candies, and Santa Claus was present. Later on in the evening the members exchanged inexpensive and humorous gifts. December 31 Lugonia assisted Arrowhead at its annual New Year Eve ball for the benefit of the homeless children.

Butte-Glenn District Meet.

Chico.—Native Daughters of Butte and Glenn Counties gathered here December 10 for a district meeting arranged by District Deputy Cora Hintz. Three candidates were initiated, officers of the Parlors represented, with District Deputy Ruth Brown as president, exemplifying the ritual. Grand officers in attendance included Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Past Grand President Esther Sullivan and Grand Trustee Gladys Noce. The lodgeroom of Annie K. Bidwell No. 168, where the gathering was held, was beauti-

FLORENCE N. TRUE.

To the Officers and Members of Annie K. Bidwell Parlor No. 168 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister, Florence N. True, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Once again we bow to the will of Almighty God, who has seen fit to claim His own from amongst our membership and taken to His heavenly home our esteemed sister, Florence N. True, organizer and past president of this Parlor. Sister True, as a member of Califia Parlor No. 22 of Sacramento, organized Annie K. Bidwell Parlor on December 17, 1908 and later, on March 25, 1909, transferred her membership to this Parlor.

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

NORA ARNOLD, Chairman
MYRTLE BERNARDO,
ETHEL M. ESTES.

Santa Was There.

Susanville—Susanville No. 34 had its annual Christmas party December 15. Members and their families attended. There was a beautiful Christmas tree, and old Santa was there with presents for both young and old. Cards and dancing were enjoyed until midnight when delicious refreshments were served.

Cascarones for Ball.

Monterey—Junipero No. 141 gave a card party, which was a social and financial success, and is now busy making cascarone for a ball in the near future. The proceeds will be used for the many worthy projects of the Order. A Christmas box was made up for the homeless children, and the annual donation was also made.

Interesting Departure.

Oroville—At the December 2 meeting of Gold of Ophir No. 190 Mrs. Alice Cundy was elected president. Members of Argonaut No. 8 N.S.G.W. were guests at the refreshment hour following the meeting. Recently Wanda Wilson gave a talk on the early history of the Cherokees, the Indians of this district. This was one in a series of talks being given by daughters and granddaughters of the Pioneers, a departure which is most interesting and informative.

Arizona Veterans Remembered.

San Leandro—Fifteen Christmas boxes were sent by El Cereso No. 207 to veterans at the Whipple Barracks, Arizona. They were prepared by a committee which included Mms. Addie May Silva (chairman), Rose Sanders, Beatrice Passmore, Oliva Kardoza and Julia Freitas. The boxes were sent to Arizona because, it is said, veterans in California hospitals are generally well provided for.

Mrs. Santa There.

Lincoln—Placer No. 138 elected officers December 9, Etta Leavall being chosen president. Among the guests were Past Grand President Dr. Louise C. Heilbron and Supervising Deputy Ethel Ludwig. The annual Christmas party followed the meeting, and Mrs. Santa Claus distributed presents from a beautifully decorated tree. The arrangements committee for the party included Florence Berry (chairman), Carrie Parlin and Phyllis Ramsey.

Past Presidents Doings.

Oakland—Association No. 2 entertained December 15 in honor of Ethel Scheuer, who was presented with a beautiful purse and other gifts. Chairman Winifred Halter and a committee served a turkey supper. December 1 a very successful whist was held at the home of Josephine Clark. December 14 an apron sale was supervised by Helen Cleu. Officers were elected, Freda Reichhold being chosen president. Installation will be held January 11 jointly with East Bay Assembly No. 3 N.S.G.W. Past Presidents.

Oroville—Mms. Cornelia Sank, Florence Boyle and Anna Bernhard were hostesses December 4 to Association No. 5 at the home of the former. Officers were elected, Irene Henry being selected president. A Christmas party followed the meeting and bridge was played.

N. S. CITY OFFICIAL DEAD.

Sacramento City—City Councilman John Henry Miller, affiliated with Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N.S.G.W., died November 25, survived by a wife and two daughters. He was born here June 10, 1880.

"If a man is right, all the bombardment of the world for five, ten, twenty, forty years will only strengthen him in his position. So that all you have to do is to keep yourself right. Never mind the world." Talmage.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

INDIVIDUALITY IN SWEATERS IS stressed, with everybody wearing them. One is inclined to wonder if there are enough different styles to go around. There is no excuse, this season, for anybody having one just like her neighbor's; that's a blessing, too.

A slipover sweater has a little turned-down collar, with a loop tie in front that is stitched down, ribbed cuffs and collar, and a waistline. Three contrasting colors are shown, all on brown, green, tile, blue or red. The effect is quite sporty, yet the sweater is nice for general wear and is a style that is practical. Of course, you will have to really see the sweater to appreciate its distinctive air.

There is everything unusual about the sweater ensemble set, with beret and scarf to match the loose, lacy knit. It is made to look hand-done. Four harmonious tones of colors are woven into all three pieces. The sweater itself is an overblouse, with a collarless yoke neckline of a monotone pebble knit. Short sleeves seem to grow right out of it, and it has a metal buckle, matching the metal-button finish at the neck. The scarf is nice and wide, and has fringed ends. A perfect ensemble set for outdoor winter wear anywhere.

Wool suits and frocks are worn by the smartest women for sports wear. Nothing seems to be smarter than the suit of hand-knit wool, a costly fashion, yet essentially a simple one. The most expert workmanship is necessary to give the right "hang" and appearance to the knitted suit, otherwise the result is a sorry-looking affair. It is ideal for walking and sports wear.

The light-weight wool frock, for afternoon wear, is still seen in intriguing versions.

Women are getting more excited than ever about winter sports costumes, and you don't have to go far to enjoy these sports. Having the right costume makes snow sports more enjoyable. Choose dark colors, such as black, navy, dark red or green, because dark colors look smarter against the white backgrounds.

Smart jackets or double-breasted sailor coats look like those of lumberjacks. Trousers and jacket should be of water-proofed gabardine or corduroy. Close-fitting berets or knit caps should be bright or white. Gloves and socks should match.

The winter resort fan will like the gloves of heavy wool. Many prefer the pigskins for sports. Brown ones are always popular. At this time of the year, most everyone is well supplied with gloves, hosiery and scarfs.

Motor toggery is always a lure. In all the shops there are such scores of coats, ensembles and suits, sweaters, jackets, hats and caps that one can scarcely make a choice.

Do not be misled when you hear "Under the coat." It does not mean that one must keep her new togs out of sight. On the contrary, you will be anxious to remove your coat and show the lovely colorings, light or bright, in all the newest shades—bright red, green, blue, and also some new hues of gold, mellon and fuschia.

There is the complete wardrobe for the leisure hours of the modern hostess, whose hobby is home entertainment. Gowns and hostess pajamas both play important roles. The more formal garments are at their loveliest in black or jewel-toned transparent velvet with rayon pile. Glittering lame and satin are individualized in models where exquisite laces are the dominant theme.

A lace and chiffon garment in black has a body of lace with a deep yoke and effective godets set in the skirt of chiffon. The sleeves, of chiffon and lace, are caught in at the wrists by narrow bands of lace. For the tall, slender wearer, long sleeves should be worn with ribbon loops of the material at the wrist and a subtle fullness at the elbow. A cowl neck, form-fitting waist and hips, with the usual graceful flare a little below the knees—this should constitute a gown of elegance and one which should fill the demands of the formal afternoon function.

There are lots of exciting dances, informal supper parties and the like going on, and something more formal than an afternoon frock and less formal than a real dinner or evening gown is needed.

Young girls are starting to busy themselves finding out what is new and smart. First of all, lots of dresses are made in styles and colors that can still be worn over the Easter holidays. They are made with long, sweeping lines, rather full in the skirts, though they hang quite straight and reach all the way down to the ankles. There are sleeves, of course, in all of them, varying from wrist length to the brief little cape, or perhaps a cape collar instead of any sleeves. The very newest type is the three-quarter sleeve. Lovely new colors are the flaming orange, the brilliant green, the new persian shade, the rich sapphire blue and the luscious apricot, as well as a number of others. Flat crepe is the material, though we have seen some garments in sheer crepe, but these do not seem so popular as those of the heavier silks, like canton crepe.

Since we have to supply much of our own brightness these days, it is not surprising that we are ready for red frocks and wraps. Red is a carry-over from last season to the winter, and that seems to be an ample indication that red, in such soft shades as coral and dark, will bloom in the spring.

Accessories for evening still sparkle brightly. Bags and belts are bright and colorful. Gold, silver, kid, metallic and brocaded bags can be carried with many dresses of different colors. Many smart women wear belts and carry bags in ensemble exactly matching, or so nearly alike that they look well together.

Silver and gold bags, slippers and rope belts are new. The belt is made of two ropes of silver or gold metallic cord and fastens with a sparkle buckle.

Peach Conference—A peach products conference is to be held January 8 at the University of California, Berkeley.

FOUNDER RELATES HISTORY.

President Gertrude McDonough welcomed Grand President Evelyn I Carlson on her official visit to Minerva Parlor No 2 N D G W. There were other guests, among them Mrs Lillian R Dyer, Founder of the Order, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley and Willow Borba, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda G. Giannini, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Past Grand Presidents Eliza Keith and Margaret Hill, District Deputy Sadie Romick.

Grand President Carlson gave a very interesting talk on all the projects of the Order. Mrs. Dyer related the early history of the Parlor, which was the first to be instituted in San Francisco. She also presented Minerva a badge worn at the celebration of September 9, 1887. Following remarks by the grand officers, all adjourned to the banquethall, where refreshments were served by a committee directed by Lena M. Wall

MESSAGE AN INSPIRATION.

Honoring Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, on the occasion of her official visit, Alta Parlor No. 3 N.D.G.W. staged a real Christmas party December 8. Credit for the artistic arrangement of the meetingroom is due Mrs. May L. MacDonald. Among the interesting events was rendition of the "Song of Greeting" by the N.D.G.W. glee club, accompanied by Grand Organist Lola Horgan. This song, composed by Mrs. Claire Bolman of Alta, was dedicated to the Grand President. The initiatory ceremonies were conducted by an efficient corps of officers, "California" being sung by Mrs. Eva Jones.

The message of Grand President Carlson was an inspiration. Beautiful gifts were presented to her, District Deputy Annie Franzen and President Lena Brandt. Grand Trustee Annie C. Thuesen, a special honor-guest, was presented with a handsome electric clock as a mark of appreciation for her ever-faithful service. Entering the banquethall, the guests paused in admiration of the beautiful yuletide scene before them. Miniature Christmas trees, prettily decorated and illuminated, spread cheer while all enjoyed the midnight supper. Mrs. Angeline Vest was chairman of the official visit committee. In addition to visitors from all parts of the state, there were also present: Grand Trustee Willow Borba, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grand Presidents Dr. Mariana Bertola, May Boldeman, Mary Bell, Margaret G. Hill and Eliza D. Keith.

COURTESIES EXCHANGED.

Members of El Vespero Parlor No. 118 N.D.G.W. were guests of Knights Pythias Lodge No. 45 at an evening of entertainment and dancing which was well attended by both fraternities. A cafeteria-style banquet was greatly enjoyed. These pleasant affairs have become exchanges of courtesies between these two lodges, which meet the same nights in the same hall.

El Vespero's officers-elect, with Miss Anne Godfrey as president, will be installed January 12 by Mrs. Percy Marchant, district deputy. December 22 the Parlor had its annual Christmas tree party, with the customary exchange of presents. Games and dancing were provided and refreshments were served.

MOTHER OF OFFICERS AFFILIATES.

A most interesting meeting was held by Guadalupe Parlor No. 153 N.D.G.W. December 14. Seventy-five members enjoyed a delicious home-cooked turkey dinner prepared by a committee headed by Mrs. Lulu Porter. District Deputy Kathryn Keating, and twenty-one candidates who were later initiated, were guests of honor. One of the initiates, Mrs. Margaret Pyne, is the mother of Miss Margaret Pyne, president, and Miss Florence Pyne, first vice-president of the Parlor.

Guadalupe, as usual, had its Christmas party at Letterman Hospital. Boxes were prepared for all the men in Ward D-1, which the Parlor has adopted and which is visited monthly by a committee headed by Mrs. Carmel Parenti. In order to complete the Loyalty Pledge a card party is to be held in the near-future. Another project dear to the hearts of the Guadalupe girls is the homeless children, and to show their interest in this cause a layette has been started. A committee is making arrangements for the twenty-fifth anniversary banquet, to be held in January.

FAITHFUL SECRETARY ADVANCED.

Golden Gate Parlor No 158 N D G W has elected, among other officers for the ensuing term, its beloved recording secretary, Margaret Ramm, to the highest office in the Parlor—that of president. She has served faithfully in the office of secretary for twenty four years.

December 18 the Parlor held its Christmas tree party for the children of the members. The committee worked hard to give all a good time. December 28 the members had an after Christmas party for themselves, at which time gifts were exchanged. A committee is working on plans for a celebration of the anniversary of the Parlor, to be held as near January 20 as possible.

CHRISTMAS SEASON THE MOTIF.

The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I Carlson December 2 will long be remembered by members and guests of Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D.G.W. Previous to the meeting a delightful banquet was enjoyed. The initiatory ceremonies were impressively rendered, four young girls being added to the roll. Grand Organist Lola Horgan and her glee club rendered beautiful selections, thus adding greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Among other grand officers in attendance were Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda G. Giannini, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley, Anna Thuesen and Willow Borba, Past Grand Presidents Margaret Grote-Hill, Emma G. Foley and Eliza D. Keith. Grand President Carlson gave a most interesting address on the work of the Order. Hand-embroidered pillowcases were disposed of for the benefit of the Loyalty Pledge, which the Parlor will endeavor to complete before the 1932 Grand Parlor.

President Mae Waring, in her gracious manner, invited all present to the banquetroom, where an elaborate repast was served. The room was beautifully decorated, the merry Christmas season being the motif. A large, decorated tree graced the center table and small trees were placed on the other tables. Long streamers of red crepe paper and poinsettias were arranged down the center of the three long tables, giving a festal air to the occasion. Small paper trees were given each guest as a souvenir of the happy night.

"MEE-MO" MYSTIFIES.

Fun ran riot at a novel entertainment staged by La Dorada Parlor No. 236 N.D.G.W. December 10. At the game of "pep" prizes went to Mms. Scherff, Murray, Sanders and Peralta. Dot Ficken appeared in the role of a radio cook, Bernice Braud gave a monologue, "A Lady Buys a Pair of Shoes," and Mildred Beard entertained with clog dances. "Mee-Mo," the mind reader—none other than Outside Sentinel Doris Surbeck—was the evening's sensation, mystifying the audience with feats of telepathy. Following the distribution of gifts by Santa Claus refreshments, prepared by Aileen Buckley and Alice O'Donnell, were served.

HUNDRED CHILDREN REMEMBERED.

Balboa Parlor No. 249 N.D.G.W. is progressing rapidly. Dances, whists and parties have done much for its social and financial success. Although the Parlor is less than a year old the members are very active. A drill team of sixteen has been organized.

At a Christmas tree party given jointly with Balboa No. 234 N.S.G.W. over 100 children were presented with toys and candy. A beautifully decorated tree and the appearance of Santa Claus added to the attractiveness of the evening. Officers will be installed January 21 at a public installation and dance, Marcella Bray becoming president.

Continues as Fair Manager– Charles W. Paine of Sacramento is affiliated with Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N S G W., for the nineteenth consecutive year has been made secretary of the State Agricultural Society, and as such will manage the 1932 California State Fair, to be held September 3 to 10 in the Capital City.

Big Contributor– For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, California contributed to the Federal Government in internal revenue taxes $113,066,013; this was 1.65 percent of the total for the nation. The California income tax netted $93,581,718.

mel (Ramona N.S.), passed away December 20. She was a native of Kentucky, aged 79.

Mrs. Warren Wilson, mother of Douglas Wilson (Ramona N.S.), passed away December 20 at the age of 75.

Robert M. White, father of William W. White (Ramona N.S.), died December 23 at West Hollywood at the age of 74.

CHRISTMAS TREE PARTY.

Long Beach—Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. initiated two candidates December 3. Officers were elected, Mrs. Violet Tompkins-Henshilwood being chosen president to succeed her sister, Mrs. Daisy Tompkins-Hansen; they are daughters of California Pioneers of 1846. The committee reported the November bazar a success. A check-gift, presented by President Hansen, was voted for Ontario Parlor, instituted December 19. Members whose birthdays come between July 1 and January 1 were honored after the meeting. A tasty lunch was served at beautifully decorated tables and a program was presented. Mrs. Velma Paulstein was in charge.

December 17 the Parlor initiated two additional candidates. A Christmas tree party followed the ceremonies, the members exchanging inexpensive gifts. A turkey, a quilt and a chicken were awarded, respectively, to Mms. Julia Arborn, Mary Stultz and Gussie Taber. The Parlor presented Mrs. Stultz with a silver baby spoon for her recently-arrived daughter. The thimble club met December 22 at the home of Mrs. Lucretia Coates to make a quilt for a needy family.

Officers of Long Beach will be publicly installed January 21. The thimble club will have its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Gussie Taber, January 14.

KIDDIES MADE HAPPY.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. elected officers December 4, Chandos E. Bush being chosen for president and "Jack" Flansburg outside sentinel. December 11, Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell officially visited the Parlor, and in the course of an instructive address highly commended Past President Walter Slosson for his activities. Among other speakers were Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell, District Deputy Albert Cron and Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer.

The Christmas dinner December 18 in honor of Charles Gassagne, Walter Slosson and Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger was splendid. The latter, however, was unable to be among those present, having become entangled in a wire fence the unlucky 13th and now being in a hospital. The Christmas tree December 23 was a huge success, and hundreds of kiddies were made happy. An unusually fine program was presented.

Ramona will have no meeting January 8, as the Parlor will join in the installation at San Pedro that date. January 15 has been set aside for initiation. Educational night, to be a monthly feature, will be inaugurated January 22. January 29 the good of the order committee will provide entertainment.

GRAND TRUSTEE INSTALLED.

Ocean Park — Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell paid an official visit to Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W., December 14, at which time Eldred L. Meyer was installed as Grand Trustee by Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell. Previous to the ceremonies a barbecued lamb supper was served under the supervision of Jack Dailey, Howard Earl and Jack Nelson.

Addresses were delivered by Undersheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz, Justice Seawell, Past Grand President Newell and Grand Trustees Meyer and Samuel M. Shortridge Jr. Officers were elected, Claude Wiseman being selected for president. At the conclusion of the meeting Miss Cordelia Laventhal entertained with several vocal selections.

CHILDREN'S BENEFIT BALL.

The annual ball for the benefit of the homeless children, sponsored by the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Los Angeles and Orange Counties Joint Committee, is to be held at the Elks Temple February 6. Tickets are one dollar per person. Mrs. Gertrude Tuttle is general chairman of the benefit, Mrs. Ora Evans has charge of the program, and Mrs. Mattie Garra is looking after the prizes.

At the meeting of the joint committee December 4, Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. presented a box of baby clothes, made by its sewing club, and a $50 check, and Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. presented a layette and a $50 check. Thus the children's cause, a most worthy one, is assisted. One thousand dollars was forwarded the Central Committee as a donation from all the local N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Parlors.

1932 LICENSE PLATES REQUIRED.

The State Motor Vehicle Department began December 15 distribution of some 2,000,000 1932 auto license plates. After January 15 it will be illegal to drive an auto unless the car owner has obtained, or made application for, the new plates.

Midwinter Fair—A Midwinter Fair is to be held at Susanville, Lassen County, February 12 and 13.

THE ROMANCE

"We all heartily agree with your plans, padre, and we believe that we should honor our saint in just such a way. He has been good to us," remarked one of the priests, and the other members of the band nodded in approval.

Father Dumetz immediately had his soldiers and priests call together all the settlers, and in a very short time some 200 stood before an apostle of Father Junipero Serra. There was a hush among them as they looked into the Christ-like face of their leader.

"You all understand why I have called you together, do you not?" began the padre, as he looked about him. And the nodding of the heads convinced him that these sons and daughters of the valley were approving his action. "Are there any comments or suggestions?" he continued. "You see, there will be two San Joses honoring the good Saint Joseph, and in the years to come there will be much confusion. Too, a mission must be established and also a supply station. Do you all approve of renaming this glorious valley to that of Saint Bernard?"

"Here! Here!" went up a cry of voices. Father Dumetz smiled, and his face took on a new expression of much admiration for those who stood around him. He requested every one to kneel, and raising both arms above his head, with a tone of reverence he offered a prayer of thanksgiving. As he blessed the land and its people, he ended in saying, "I rename this valley of love and life, San Bernardino, in honor of the good Father Saint Bernard of Sienna." Amens were uttered, and the peace-loving folk returned to their chores about the newly-named settlement.

A few days later Father Dumetz held another meeting, of a different nature. Grouped under the widespreading branches of an aged oak, the men of the colony stood before him. He gave them words of cheer and encouragement. He told them of his plans for a supply station and a mission. They became interested and promised their hearty support.

"I have found in looking around me," he continued, "a natural spring or well. There is an unceasing flow of water. It is here that, I feel, should be built a mission or a supply station, as we must think of the future that is to come. We must get the Indians and their chiefs together to help us in the construction of these buildings. They know something about the making of bricks out of clay soil, and they can be taught to use them in erecting livable places, as well as to use the clay for pottery. These Indian soldiers of mine have already become learned in the ways of mission building and they, in turn, will teach these unchristianized Indians here to do the same. You men must help fell the trees, and do what you see fit. The sooner the station and mission are put into place, the better. We do not want the rain or hot sun to interfere with our important work."

The splendid co-operation obtained by Father Dumetz was shown in the result, two years later. The supply station was first built, and then the mission. Both were erected at the Gauchama Rancho, now known as Bunker Hill, and a few months later, as the building was nearing completion, Father Dumetz and three of his priests fashioned a capilla out of mud, clay soil and straw. This they reverently dedicated to the patron saint of the Valley of San Bernardino. The Gauchama Indians looked to the padre and the capilla as a "good spirit looks to the deeds of its worshipers," and their friendship for the padre was strong.

"It is time for us to return to the San Gabriel station, brothers. Let us prepare for the journey. We can return here when we desire," Father Dumetz told his followers. "But who shall take care of the mission work, father?" asked one of the priests.

"We have won the admiration and love of these humble Indians, and I am putting the care and trust into the hands of the Indian chief, Hipolito, so be not afraid," said Dumetz in a comforting tone. "He has vowed," continued the padre, "and has faithfully sworn and promised me to care for everything. He understands about the planting of the grain and corn, the caring for the supplies and the superintending of the settlement's difficulties. I have even given him full permission to name this part of the settlement, if he so desires!"

The band of followers then made ready to return to Mission San Gabriel. The Gauchama Indians, under the command of their chief, vowed fullest protection to the community, and with heavy hearts the christianized Indians escorted the mission fathers away from Mission San Bernardino.

Weeks passed, and everything seemed to be prospering. The year had been a good one to the Indians and to the padres, as well as to the White men who had turned the fertile soil to the producing stage. But the Indians were not satisfied with living in an unnamed settlement. Their pride was hurt, and they seemed a little envious of the White man. So, with much ceremony of dances, Indian calls and a feast of wild game and corn, the settlement was finally named Politana, after the chief. Thus the White man and the Indian appeared to be on friendly terms.

Friends and Neighbors Own This Company

Southern California Edison Company is a home company. The men who direct its affairs have grown up with the business. Most of them started in lowly positions and have advanced through the ranks.

Among the employes are more than one hundred with service records of twenty-five years or over.

The company is owned by 127,000 stockholders, representing every walk of life. Nearly half of them are women. Several thousand are children whose parents have selected this investment as a nest-egg.

The company spends its money at home. Its payroll goes into circulation through local channels of business. Materials and supplies for use in the business are purchased at home, giving trade to local merchants and employment to local labor in factories.

And all of this activity results in a better electric service to YOUR home.

JOHN SWETT
FATHER OF EDUCATION IN CALIFORNIA

Peter T. Conmy
(Historian Golden Gate Parlor N.S.G.W.)

The accompanying article is by Peter T. Conmy, M.A., historian of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 N.S.G.W. (San Francisco) who, in sending it to The Grizzly Bear for publication, says: "In his chosen field of endeavor, education, John Swett is regarded as the greatest of early Californians. In the history of American education, he is ranked on equality with Horace Mann and Henry Barnard of the Eastern states. It is lamentable that so little is known about John Swett, because he was a truly great man."—Editor.

JULY 31, 1830, A BOY DESTINED TO become the greatest educational leader California has ever known was born in the old New England town of Pittsfield, New Hampshire. John Swett was of Puritan ancestry, and was educated in the public school of the district and at Pittsfield Academy. Later he entered Russell's Normal School at Reed's Ferry, from which he graduated directly into teaching at the youthful age of seventeen. Between 1847 and 1852 he taught in the schools of Pembroke, New Hampshire, and West Randolph, Massachusetts. Late in 1852 he sailed for California and arrived at San Francisco aboard the good ship "Revere," January 31, 1853, after a voyage of 135 days from Boston.

Lure of the gold fields attracted John Swett, just as it influenced almost every other Pioneer, and, as a result, the first months of this future school leader of California were spent in the mining camps along the Feather River, and not in the classroom. He reported the work was hard and the earnings were inadequate for the amount of energy expended. Very few of the gold miners came out rich. They mined thousands of dollars' worth of gold, but seemed to lose it as fast as they obtained it. Swett was no exception. He, too, came out no richer than he went in. He says, "Thus ended my five months' stay at the mines. I should gladly have remained there longer if I could have found any way of making a living. As it was, I had a small emergency fund carefully strapped around my waist to be used in case of sickness. As I look back on those mining days my only regret is that they did not last longer. They toned up my health and strength and gave me a taste of pioneer life." Swett's period at the mines was not without some productivity, however. He wrote accounts of mining life for the "Boston Cultivator" and penned a very beautiful poem while camping at Morris Ravine, in the Feather River country, titled "'Round the Camp Fire," one stanza of which follows:

"Spread the blankets on the ground,
We must toil again tomorrow;
Labor brings us slumbers sound
No luxurious couch can borrow.
Through the dark topped, sighing pines
Watch the moon 'with white fire laden,'
Fall asleep to dream of mines,
Home, or wife, or child, or maiden."

Happily for the future of the public schools, John Swett was not a very successful miner, and the end of six months found him again in the ranks of education, serving as principal of the old Rincon school in San Francisco, a position he held until his elevation to the state superintendency in 1862. At the time he took over the reins of administration, the Rincon grammar school was a two-teacher institution, located in a house at First and Folsom streets. Later it was moved to Second and Silver streets, where it became, in subsequent decades, the alma mater of thousands of San Franciscans in the old South of Market district. In those days there was no high school in San Francisco and, due to the magnetic personality of John Swett and his very powerful teaching, the Rincon school took the place of such an institution. It is reported that boys ranging in age from sixteen to nineteen were in attendance there, and were coached by Swett for admission to college.

In 1861 came the Civil War, and as there were a large number of Lecompton Democrats, as well as other Southern sympathizers, in California, a very strong attempt was made to prevent the state from supporting the cause of the Union. It so happened that, in 1862, the only office to be filled by a state-wide vote was that of State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Accordingly, both the Lecompton Democrats and the Secessionists advanced candidates—Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, a Methodist Episcopal clergyman, and General Jonathan D. Stevenson. Both were hostile to President Lincoln, and the election of either would have signified that California was not supporting the Union cause. The Republicans placed no candidate in the field, but joined with the Union party. John Swett was the nominee of that party and, after a hard-fought battle, was swept into office. The late John J. Conmy—the writer's grandfather—wrote the following for his paper, "The Shasta Courier," August 23, 1862: "John Swett should be elected because by education and profession he is fitted for the place, certainly more than a military man or a preacher, and because California is an unconditionally loyal state, and his opponents are mainly disloyal men."

About a half-year before his election, John Swett was united in marriage to Mary Louise Tracy, native of Connecticut, the daughter of the late Judge Frederick Tracy, who had been a distinguished leader of the pioneer San Francisco bar and also of great political prominence. It is interesting to note that just as the schools gave Swett his career as a famous man, so too, they gave the romance which led to his marriage. He met Miss Tracy when, in 1857, at the age of seventeen, she was assigned as a teacher to the Rincon grammar school, of which he was principal. Forty years after this marriage Swett wrote: "Our union was a happy one, cemented by strong friendship, which ended in a deep and abiding love. Though up to this time I had not been fortunate in securing wealth in California, I now won a prize worth more to me than all the gold mines in the state. After a life of joy and sorrow, we are growing old together, with no shadow on the sunlight of our fervent love."

For the five years, 1863 to 1868, John Swett was State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and California has never had a greater official presiding over its public schools. More constructive achievements may be attributed to his administration than to any before or since. The abolition of the rate bill; a state tax of five mills for schools; the publishing of a professional journal, "The California Teacher," for the instructors; establishment of county teachers' institutes; improvement in the method of issuing teachers' certificates, were but a few of the fine accomplishments of the Swett administration.

Following his retirement from the state office in 1868, John Swett again entered the service of the San Francisco schools. From 1868 to 1870 he was, at the same time, principal of the Denman grammar school and the Lincoln evening school; from 1870 to 1873, deputy superintendent of schools; from 1873 to 1876, again prin-

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORporation came into being last month when the Federal Congress passed and President Herbert Hoover signed the bill (H.R. 7360) providing for its creation. "It brings into being a powerful organization with adequate resources," declared the President. "Its purpose is to stop deflation in agriculture and industry and thus to increase employment by the restoration of men to their normal jobs. It is not created for the aid of big industries or big banks. . . . It is created for the support of the smaller banks and financial institutions. . . . to give renewed support to business, industry and agriculture. It should give opportunity to mobilize the gigantic strength of our country for recovery."

The Reconstruction Corporation is to be financed to the extent of $2,000,000,000 by the Federal Government, and its obligations are to be exempted from all taxation, except surtaxes, estate, inheritance and gift taxes. The management is vested in a board of directors, to receive $10,000 each annually. The institutions eligible for loans are federal, state and savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies, mortgage loan companies, credit unions, federal land banks, joint stock land banks, federal intermediate credit banks, agricultural and livestock credit corporations, interstate steam and electric railways, exporters and farmers. The purpose, as defined by Senator Walcott of Connecticut, is to lift the unliquid collateral of such institutions and substitute cash therefor.

The proponents and sponsors of this legislation claim that it will cure the nation of its depression-ills; that it is the straight and unobstructed path leading direct to that repeatedly-referred-to "corner" around which is prosperity, which has been on vacation and whose prolonged absence has played havoc with the nation's industries. Every loyal American fondly hopes that the prophesies of the measure's proponents are, in due time, fulfilled, and each will honestly aid in their fulfillment.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill received vast majorities in both houses of the Federal Congress. There are not a few, however, in and out of Congress, who believe that the measure is a scheme of the "big boys" to further plunder the American people; that when the time comes for repayment of loans advanced on frozen assets, the dear people will find themselves in the identical role they are now featured in in the foreign-loans tragedy—the sackholder! Here are some publicly-expressed opposing opinions:

"The Corporation we set up here is simply fiction. No one pays any money into it in reality except the Federal Government. . . . If the ordinary businessman gets anything it will be in the form of crumbs from the table surrounded by millionaires who loaned the people's money to foreign countries and to corporations. In some instances, the paper on which it was loaned has gone down to absolute zero. We are not now trying to lock the stable door after the horse has been stolen. We are replacing the horse with some other thing of value and placing that thing of value in the hands of the men who stole the horse."—Senator Norris of Nebraska

The American people are asked to contribute $2,000,000,000 to help the bankers who are responsible for conditions throughout the world. The bankers want to unload certain securities they hold to the people of the United States through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The bill is an "inflationary" measure that will make "the next crash worse than the one we are now in."—Senator Blaine of Wisconsin.

The moneys proposed in the bill are "the merest dole and you cannot get away from it," but dole to the banks, and not to depositors in them. Not a small businessman nor any farmer will be benefited by the enactment of the bill.—Representative La Guardia of New York.

"This is a scheme for gouging the treasury of the United States. It is a scheme for taking the people's money and giving it to a super-corporation for the sinister purpose of helping a gang of financial looters to cover up their tracks. It is a scheme for giving these financial looters a chance to dispose of evidence which, if brought into the light of day, would cause the doors of our federal penitentiaries to close upon them for a long term of years. After wrecking the business fabric of the country the looters now come forward with the scheme for taking over the remaining property values of the entire United States."—Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania.

There is now before the Federal Congress a bill (H.R. 5869) which, if adopted into law, will exempt alien husbands of American citizens from provisions of the National Immigration Law.

There is grave danger in that bill, and it should, therefore, be squelched! If it becomes a law, every American born Jap female will have a husband in Japan who will join the mikado's "peaceful invasion" forces in this country.

Remember the "picture bride" menace, by means of which Japan evaded the exclusion law and sent over thousands of its females for breeding purposes? Well, there is suspicion that H.R. 5869 is designed to nullify the exclusion law, for the benefit of Japan.

Two hundred years ago, February 22, 1732, a son was born to Augustine and Mary Washington of Wakefield, Virginia. This year the nation is celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of that son George Washington, first President of the United States of America.

State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson in a recent public statement remarked: "The continual advance in cost of government has run its course. The roman holiday is over. Economy and retrenchment are imperative if the state is to avert a serious crisis." He estimated more than 594,000 pieces of property will revert to the state, due to inability of owners to pay the taxes thereon. "This is the most serious indictment of the tax burden California has ever known," he declared.

There is nothing whatever to indicate that the "roman holiday"—government squandering of the taxpayers' dollars is over, and, what is more, there is no likelihood that the holiday will be concluded until and unless the taxpayers unite, without regard for political party affiliations, and make a thorough cleanout of the squanderers.

A Chula Vista garageowner and seven Jap aliens have been indicted by the San Diego County Grand Jury, charged with violating the California Alien Land Law. Ownership of several ranches, including 5,000 acres of fertile land, is involved.

Violations of this law, both by yellow-Japs and white-Japs, are notoriously numerous in nearly every county of the state, but very seldom is an effort made to enforce the law. Yellow-dollars do have a duty-shirking appeal!

A reader of The Grizzly Bear sent in the query, in capital letters, "Why exempt churches from taxation?" There is no good and sufficient reason for so doing. Church organizations are among the wealthiest in the world, and they should be compelled to bear their share of the tax-burden.

Millions of dollars' worth of property in California has been exempted from taxation, but in justice to the citizenry as a whole not a single dollar's worth should be so favored. And, unless the taxpayers look well to their ballots, the tax-exempt list will be materially increased at the May election, for a proposal to that effect will then be submitted to the voters.

Arizona's House of Representatives has unanimously adopted a resolution providing that, where a husband and his wife are both found to be drawing state pay, the employment of one or the other shall be terminated.

That should be the strictly-adhered-to policy in every branch of government and in every private enterprise throughout the nation.

The Berkeley Chamber of Commerce has come out in favor of the quota for Japan, and has an agent in the field endeavoring to get other similar organizations to do likewise. The Berkeley outfit claims that "such action would be a step toward the maintenance of world peace and friendly relations between Pacific powers, and would further commerce between the United States and Japan." The same old bunkum, suggested by Jap agents, that is worked overtime, when the Japs are seeking favors.

To grant the quota to Japan will but hasten the day that this country must pay the full price of its folly in permitting the Japs to plant themselves here—the day that Japan will complete its "peaceful invasion." And that day is not far distant, unless the United States reverses its present course. Events in Mexico, Manchuria, Honolulu and China are handwritings on the wall that should prompt this nation to keep its lamps brightly burning and to be ever, and adequately, prepared.

The Senate Immigration Committee of the Federal Congress has reported favorably on a bill, by Senator Harris of Georgia, placing Mexico on an immigration quota basis. Reports are that the measure will, in all likelihood, be passed by both houses of the Congress.

The administration temporarily checked Mexican immigration because of the unemployment situation in this country. When business revives, however, jobs will again be offered and given by the special interests to the Mexis in preference to Americans, and they will flock in by the thousands. The quota may lessen the number.

A vast majority of the nationals of Mexico are not of the White race, and not entitled to American citizenship. They should, therefore, be excluded, as are other ineligible-to-citizenship aliens. If, however, the Congress will not exclude them it should restrict, via the quota, their coming. Partial relief from these undesirables is preferable to no relief at all.

"What chance," queries the California Taxpayers Association, "has the property owner of holding his property when he will have to pay at least ten times its assessed valuation to hold it?" And this instance is related:

"A retired businessman of Pennsylvania invested $100,000 in bonds of a San Diego County improvement district, depending on them to furnish him with a steady and reliable income during the last years of his life. The bonds are now in default and the man faces sickness and old age with his fortune invested in the now-defaulted bonds of this improvement district. The district issued bonds in 1928 in the amount of $242,746.06. The bonds bore interest at 7 per cent and were not to be fully retired until 1958. The assessed valuation of the property in the district is $75,475. The bonds issued against this property, together with total interest amount to $542,000 or more than four times the assessed value. The improvement act under which these bonds were issued provides that any delinquency shall be spread the following year against the property in the district. Thus the man paying his assessment finds himself liable for an ever-increasing amount."

Numerous propertyowners are victims of the special-assessment-district evil, and in many

THE ROMANCE OF SAN BERNARDINO

Clara M. Barton

THE YEAR 1812 WAS TERMED THE year of earthquakes. The Indians outside the mission became frightened, as they believed the newlybuilt mission was the whole cause of the eruptions. A fight of life and death began. These Indians hastily made strong and more-dangerous arrows, and those living inside the mission prepared, as best they could, for some protection. War dances began, and loud war whoops rang out. The Indians who did not approve of the building of the mission intended to destroy what was constructed. Their beliefs were very strong. Evil spirits were living within the walls of the station, and they were suffering because of them. They intended to dispose of those evil spirits as soon as possible!

A fire blazed up; arrows, ablaze with red fire, flew into the air and landed dangerously near the mission, setting the brush and projecting stems of the straw ablaze. "What are we going to do?" cried one of the imprisoned Indians. "If we go out now, they will kill us! If we stay in here, we will burn to death!"

Hipolito looked hopelessly around. "The best thing to do now," he said in steady tones, "is to run through the hail of fire and poisoned arrows and escape as best we might. The Indians have more ammunition than we, and have twice as many men. We shall have to let all the supplies go, as there is no way of saving them. Every one dash out, but bend low as you go!" And the faithful Indian chief urged his beloved friends to make haste.

The massacre lasted for several days, and was one of the worst experienced. Many lives were lost, and those who suffered from wounds never fully recovered. Hipolito himself suffered deeply, but silently. His faith in those remaining with him seemed to help him with his heavy burden. With reverent ceremony and words of comfort to those who had lost their loved ones in the affray, Chief Hipolito performed the final rites over the bodies, some of them not recognizable, and with kindly words assisted in placing into shallow graves the remains of the men and women who gave their lives in trying to save that which the mission fathers had left.

EPISODE 3.
THE MISSION OF SAN BERNARDINO.

Events transpiring between 1812 and 1822 are vague, and until 1821 the history of the valley seems to have been at a standstill. However, in 1821 the Gauchama ranchita of Indians asked the padres of San Gabriel to help them establish agriculture and stock-raising farms. "We shall do all we can," remarked one of the priests, "because we are always being attacked by the uneducated Indians who lurk in the shadows of the passes. We have lost too many lives already. This may cease their activities."

In 1822 a priest was sent from San Gabriel to the San Bernardino settlement to establish a mission, and in a very short time had acquired the services of several Indians. Some months later an adobe chapel was erected upon the site where still stands part of the ruins of the old mission.

The Indians were grateful for what was being done for them, and to show their appreciation they appointed a mayor-domo, Casius Garcia. Through him and his officers, a zanja was constructed, and this was the beginning of the raising of large herds of stock and the cultivation of lands.

The mayor-domo looked over his land with pride. "Now, this is something like it," he said. "You people did not know, and will not know, how much admiration I have for you. It is you who have helped make this community something to be proud of, and future generations will always have a warm feeling for those who have gone before. As long as I am your commander, I shall continue to give you as much service as I can."

The colony showed respect for their executive officer by building a zanja "that will have a continuous service." This is now known as Mill Creek Zanja, and its overflow of water has kept the large alder and willow trees ever alive and green.

Romance invaded the mission walls when a tall Indian brave brought to the priest a coy and pretty Indian maiden. "Please, senor," pleaded the Indian boy, "we want to get married. We love one another. I care for her much."

The priest smiled. "And you love him too, little maid?" The Indian girl blushed, nodded and hid her face in the broad shoulder of the boy. "You make her my squaw, senor?"

The priest looked once more at the girl, smiled, and then nodded. "Yes, I shall be glad to. Won't you come into the mission? Do you want me to perform the rites now?" "Yes," remarked the Indian brave. "We were married by the chief of the tribe, but I am christianized and do not like Indian ceremony. My girl, she wants you to marry us in a christian manner."

The form of the ceremony was very simple. But within those walls of adobe two hearts were made happy. And the priests smiled at the couple as they left, hand in hand, for the land of the future. "May the saints bless you both and give you much happiness," said the priest as they disappeared from the shadows of the mission.

Ten years went by, and the land around the mission was producing wealth for its owners. Contentness reigned. A custom was formed in which all the inhabitants took an active part. With the mayor-domo in charge, the men, women and children would gather around a huge bonfire, and old familiar songs rang out into the night air. Some of the voices possessed artistic quality; some did not, but the singers' hearts were in their music.

"Who will be the first to tell the first story? Remember, it must have a moral to it," said the mayor-domo, after all had sung until they could sing no more.

The men looked at one another, and finally one elderly man was seen rising painfully and slowly. He cleared his throat and with a slow drawl told a lengthy story, the moral of which was never related. A weak applause followed the oration. "Guess they didn't like that one so well," the old man muttered disappointedly. He had rehearsed the fable many times, and had hoped to receive some sort of recognition from the mayor-domo.

The second story told brought laughs and tears, and received much favor with the listeners. From then on, numerous stories were related. Too many, in fact, as the children dropped off to sleep in their mothers' arms and the majority of the group began to look weary.

It was quite late when orders were given to retire for the night. "There is much to do in the morning, men, and you must get a good night's rest," said Garcia in parting. Little did he know that more work was to be done than he anticipated!

The morning sun woke the colony, and with it came loud warwhoops of the desert Indians. The men grabbed their crude weapons, and the women loaded themselves with available stones, while the children ran for safety. But the Indians were too many for the mission people. The mission was destroyed, provisions were stolen, and the stock was widely scattered.

"I hope those demons are satisfied!" said Garcia, as the dust of the battle had settled. "It looks like it," said one of the men. "But what are we going to do now? We have lost several men, and nearly all the women are ill from the shock."

"We must not lose heart," returned Garcia. "The best and most substantial thing that we can do is to rebuild at once. We must have a place in which to live again, a place for our provisions and the stock that is left. Too, we must replenish everything that has been salvaged. I hope a priest is sent here to help us."

"Why can't one of us men ride to San Gabriel for help?" suggested one of the settlers. "That would be too long a ride, and we need every man here to help rebuild the mission," replied Garcia.

It was not long, however, until one of the padres was on his way from San Gabriel to the valley. The father had heard about the destruction of the mission, and had become angered about it.

"Something must be done to those evil-doing Indians," said one of the San Gabriel padres. "This has gone entirely too far. Lives have been unnecessarily lost, and the land and stock have been needlessly destroyed. We must see that the San Bernardino Mission is well supplied with proper protection." The padre looked to his fellowmen for a suggestion, but received only an approving nod.

"I shall go to their deliverance," volunteered one of the padres. "God speed you on the way," returned the head padre. So, with the assistance of his fellow priests, the father with the brave heart was on his way to help restore all that was in ruins.

Several days later the priest was supervising the rebuilding of the mission, and in 1832 it was completed and ready for occupancy. The church was constructed of more substantial material, and was 250 feet in length by 125 feet in width, and the walls were three feet thick. The priest insisted on large corrals, and the walls around the enclosure were constructed so as to resist all attacks from savage neighbors. A huge granary of adobe was built near the mission, and the Indians learned, for the first time, how to preserve grain.

In 1834 the settlers found uneasiness and dissatisfaction among the Indians. "Do we have to go through the same things that our fathers did?" asked one of the men of the mayor-domo. "Heaven help us if we do!" exclaimed Garcia in worried tones.

The mission Indians finally revolted, and a messenger was sent to San Gabriel for help. Men and ammunition were scarce, and the women and children were becoming panic-stricken. It was several days, however, before the Indian messenger and a troop from San Gabriel arrived in the mission district. A hard battle was fought between 200 sturdy Indians and a small army of tired men.

As a last resort, Father Estenada was sent for, and arrived in due time with a fresh and larger troop. "So this is what has been happening," he remarked, very much surprised and shocked. "Yes, father," answered the mayor-domo, "and what are we going to do?" "Fight it out!" commanded Father Estenada.

More troops were sent for but, like the others, their ranks were thinned by the poisoned arrows and tomahawks of the Indians. Father Estenada found himself a prisoner, and also discovered that to struggle for freedom meant death. He was robbed of all his belongings, suffered torture from the hands of the Indians who held him, and finally discovered that he was being held for ransom! His first thought was of his people in the mission! Were they in a safe and secluded place, or were they, too, being put to pain by these uncivilized Indians? Little did he know that the Indians had revolted once again, had robbed the church of all its property after committing other indescribable crimes, and then had disappeared into the hills.

With a hard struggle, the padre succeeded in freeing himself of his bonds. He went immediately to the mission, and found it in ruins. A hard lump formed in his throat. A few of the colony settlers were lingering near by, looking down at all that was left of their church, and the feeling of fear was still in their hearts.

"Come, let us leave this beautiful valley, and let the Indian stay with his spoils," said the good padre. "It is no use for us to stay here any longer." And so, with heavy hearts and a feeling of despair, the little band followed Father Estenada back to San Gabriel, where they would remain until activities began anew.

EPISODE 4.
RANCHO DE SAN BERNARDINO.

Time went on. The Spaniards entered the valley and, seeing what had previously been done, decided to continue with its advancement. So, in 1842 a land-grant known as Rancho de San Bernardino was presented by Governor Alvarado to Jose Maria Lugo, Jose Vicente Lugo and Jose Carmen Lugo, sons of the well-known Antonio Lugo. The grant was the first move the governor had made, and was one of the largest grants ever given in California.

"You are now owner of over 37,000 acres, senor, but I believe you will handle the property well," said the governor, as he presented the signed grant to Lugo.

"I shall try and make this territory something to be proud of, governor. I own the San Antonio grant, but my stock has been increasing at such a rate that I decided to take over the Valley of San Bernardino, in order that my sons will have something to work on after I am laid away. That is one reason why I am having the grant made out to my three loyal sons." "You are very wise, and I want to congratulate you and wish you much success in this achievement." Thus the governor bade the senor a kind adios.

Senor Lugo, coming from a long line of blue-blooded Spanish stock, had become known as an expert horseman, a man who kept his word, and one who knew no fear, though he was kind and generous. He had taught his sons how to be just and respectable citizens. It was their love for the community that kept the history of the valley alive, after the death of their father.

"I am going to live in the mission for awhile," remarked Jose Maria to Jose Vicente, as they were looking around the valley. "Splendid idea," replied Vicente. "It ought to be nice and

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

ALL ALIENS IN THE EMPLOY OF THE Los Angeles City school district are to be dismissed and the vacancies filled by American citizens, according to instructions recently issued by Superintendent Frank A. Bouelle. "In all instances where American citizenship cannot be fully established, steps should be taken at once to terminate the services of such persons, no matter in what capacity employed," reads the edict of the Los Angeles City Education Board.

That is good news! Action has been long delayed, but it is better late than never. The Education Board should go further, and dispense with the services of married women who have able-bodied husbands. And it should go still further, and prohibit any one person in its employ from filling two or more separate and distinct positions and drawing pay for each position from the taxpayers. If these reforms be brought about, both the community and its public schools will be benefited.

The California state law expressly bars all aliens from the public service, and it is therefore unlawful to employ any person other than an American citizen in state, county, city or township government. There are, however, many such employed by both the County and the City of Los Angeles, as common laborers, so-called "specialists," accountants, etc. There is not a single public-service job but that can be competently filled by some American citizen.

This law should be strictly enforced! Its aboveboard violation or underhand evasion constitutes malfeasance in office on the part of any governing official responsible for its violation or evasion. If the officials themselves will not do their duty, then some citizen or organization interested in the community's welfare and not in the political wellbeing of any individual or clique, should go into court and compel compliance with the law and removal from office of its violator or evader.

There can be no more appropriate time than right now to correct this and the many other faults in government which sorely afflict the body politic and cause heavy demands on the taxpayers. If the officials will not administer government within the law, then the law-abiding citizens should force their retirement from the public service. Although it appears otherwise, no man or woman is beyond the law, provided the majority demand respect for and obedience to the law. Until we do have law obedience, by officials — who should set the example - - and other citizens, the clouds will not disappear from the economic skies and the sun of prosperity will not again shine, except, possibly, temporarily.—C.M.H.

COME ON, NATIVES!

Plans are complete for the annual charity ball of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, given under the auspices of a joint committee to aid homeless children. It will be held February 6, in the ballroom of Elks Temple, 607 Parkview street.

President Gertrude Joughin-Tuttle of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W., the general chairman, is being assisted in making the arrangements by an executive committee comprising Irving Baxter, chairman; Grace Norton, vice-chairman; Annie L. Adair, secretary; Hazel Hansen, vice-chairman Grand Parlor N.D.G.W. Extension Order Committee; Gertrude R. Allen, president Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W.; Mattie Labory-Gara, Clara Hunt, Leila K. Taber, Ora M. Evans, T. Dwight Crittenden, Stanley Dashiell, Clyde Woodworth, Lee Erwin, Chandos Bush and Municipal Judge Leo P. Aggeller.

Chairmen of special committees appointed by Mrs. Tuttle are: Reception, Hazel Hansen; music, Ora M. Evans; floor and dance director, Dwight Crittenden; door prizes, Mattie Labory-Gara; hospitality, Gertrude R. Allen; publicity, Bell Sisson-Maguire.

Mrs. Florence B. Irish will act as master of ceremonies. A popular high-class dance orchestra will supply the music. A surprise feature will be presented in intermission, and many joyous motifs, including the ever-pleasing balloon dance, will be added. The door prizes, which are numerous and attractive, are each worth many times the price of admission, one dollar per person. Ball tickets may be secured through Miss Grace Norton, ATlantic 8648.

Come on, Native Sons and Daughters, let us put this ball over big, and put it in the front ranks, where it belongs! And let it be a coveted distinction to be listed as among those present!—B.S.M.

GOOD TIME TO WEIGH GROWTH.

Wm. M. Horner addressed Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. January 20 on "Future Citizens of the World." At its conclusion he answered several questions asked by his listeners. The get-better-acquainted party January 27 at which No. 124 entertained the members of several neighboring Parlors was out of the ordinary and greatly enjoyed by the guests. The last party of the bridge tourney, January 13, drew another large crowd and was most successful. Miss Edna Trombatore directed the affair. January 26 several members accompanied District Deputy Ruth Ruiz to Glendale, where she installed Verdugo Parlor's officers.

"Stock taking time is also a good time to weigh our growth in mental, moral and spiritual values, qualities which no business depression can deprive us of," says President Gertrude Allen.

February 3 Los Angeles will have a pot-luck dinner followed by a business meeting. February 10 will be the start of another bridge tournament, with Ruth Ruiz as chairman of the initial party. February 24 will be given over to a "salamagundi" party, with Miss Dolores Malin as chairman.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

FOUR STORMS VISITED CALIFORNIA during February 1882 and dropped 2.40 inches of rain in the Sacramento Valley, making the season's total 10.29 inches. A heavy snowstorm visited California North February 2. While some parts of the state had good crops, there was an apparent failure on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley, and in California South conditions were bad.

Washington's Birthday, February 22, was observed in a patriotic manner, and Flags of the United States of America were prominently displayed everywhere.

Statistics published this month showed that in 1881 California produced 40,000,000 bushels of wheat, 1,410,533 pounds of sugar-beet products, 9,500,000 gallons of wine, and $77,000,000 worth of gold and silver. The population during the year increased 28,987.

The Sunday-closing law continued to agitate various sections of the state. In Modoc County the saloonkeepers unanimously agreed to obey the law. In San Leandro, Alameda County, following acquittal by a jury of the proprietor of the Estudillo house, charged with violating the law, the courtroom crowd made "whoopee."

The Saint Helena, Napa County, Board of Trustees passed an ordinance making the playing of cards, billiards or any other chance game for the drinks a misdemeanor. San Francisco had 2,330 saloons in operation February 1. During the month the police made 759 arrests for drunkenness—nearly one-half the total arrests.

The fifth annual party of Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N.S.G.W. was held in the assembly chamber of the State Capitol February 2. So large was the attendance, the dancers overflowed into the rotunda. Mirrors, to the delight of the fair sex, were extensively used in the decorations. Of the score who arranged the party, John T. Stafford is the sole survivor.

The baldheaded men of Nevada City, Nevada County, gave their first annual grand ball Valentine Day, February 14. The sixty-one shining pates in the grand march were led by Judge A. G. Niles.

NOTED PIONEERS PASS ON.

An Oakland, Alameda County, woman was thrown from a horse and badly injured. This caused a Los Angeles editor to comment: "There is only one safe and easy way for a woman to ride a horse, and that is to do it astride. If the intelligent and cultured women of California had independence enough in their souls they would be seen riding astride."

Three ships arrived from China this month bringing about 2,000 additional Chinks. This gave Dennis Kearney an opportunity to "come back." He organized a dozen Workingmen's ward clubs in San Francisco with the slogan "The Chinese Must Go," and resumed the Sunday sandlot meetings.

L. H. Woodburn, from Muscatine, Iowa, opened a land agency in Los Angeles City to settle colonies of Iowans contemplating coming to California South to reside. From his hometown, seventy families were coming by special train, and he had several more excursions in view.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the "Sacramento Daily Bee" was celebrated February 4 with a banquet at which prominent editors and other citizens toasted the owner, James McClatchy. The present editor, "C.K.," was an humble listener.

John C. Stader of Sonoma County reported his eighteen-year-old grapevines yielded an average of sixty pounds of grapes to the vine, and he sold the product for $100 a ton.

John Finnell, a rancher, bought in California South at one dollar a head 15,000 sheep, and shipped them by rail to his Tehama County domain. There was no feed for stock in the southland.

Nancy Jane Harris, popularly known in Monterey City as "Aunt Jane," died there February 1. She was a Negress, born in South Carolina in 1784, and was brought to California by her former owner in 1852.

Mike Bryte, who came to California from Ohio in 1849, died at Sacramento City February 3. He established one of the first dairy routes in the Capital City and was once sheriff of Sacramento County.

Juan Foster died at San Diego City February 20, at the age of 67. He landed there in 1836, soon afterward became a Mexican citizen and married into the family of a prominent landowning don. He once owned the Marguerita Rancho, the largest in California South, and was a leading cattle raiser.

William Gelabert, a native of Spain who came to California with Commodore John Drake Sloat in the United States Navy in 1846 and was one of the party that raised the Flag of the United States of America at Monterey, died at Stockton, San Joaquin County, February 27, aged 60.

TOUCHED BY AN ANGEL.

The passengerless stage from Alturas, Modoc County, while fording the creek near Millville February 24 was upset and carried down stream by the flood. The driver had a narrow escape, and the horses drowned.

The stage from Sonora, Tuolumne County, to Copperopolis was stopped February 3 near Chinese Camp by two masked men, who took $300 from the express box. A week later they were caught in Monterey County.

A 9-year-old girl went into a San Francisco combination corner grocery-saloon and asked the clerk for five cents' worth of tea, explaining the purchase was so small because her mother was ill and had no more money. The clerk being called to attend to the wants of some men at the bar, she sat herself in a chair to await his return, and with the nickel grasped between the thumb and forefinger of her little outstretched hand fell asleep. One of the imbibers finally noticed her, and asked the clerk why she was there. Being informed of the facts, he replaced the nickel with a five-dollar gold piece, bought a nickel's worth of tea which he placed in the sleeping child's other hand, and then wakened her. Gazing in astonishment at her hands, she exclaimed that she had been touched by an angel, and burst into tears of joy.

Dick Fellows, who had robbed seven stages and gotten away with the express boxes in 1881, was captured near the Guadalupe mine in Santa Clara County February 3.

Attorney D. J. Murphy, while making a plea in a San Francisco court for a client, was shot in the throat by Policeman Moroney, who took offense at being called a foreigner. He was rendered speechless for some time.

The Baptist tabernacle in San Jose, Santa Clara County, the largest and finest church structure in that city, burned February 25 with a $20,000 loss.

Bailey's tripe factory in San Francisco's Butchertown burned February 3. The loss was $25,000.

A fire at Colusa City February 1 burned several buildings, causing a $10,000 loss.

The Chinatown of Dutch Flat, Placer County, was partially destroyed by fire February 24. The loss was $20,000.

Winfield Wright's model barn, the largest and best equipped in Sonoma County, burned February 2, causing a $15,000 loss.

MEXI'S INVITATION ACCEPTED.

G. J. Coffee, Butte County sheepman, disposed of his property February 1 and committed suicide. He gave as a reason for the act that he wanted to go to a world where there was no rascality.

Miss Sarah Radcliffe of Farmington, San Joaquin County, had an epileptic fit February 20 and fell into the fireplace. She was fatally burned and the house was destroyed.

John J. Anderson of San Bernardino City was accidentally killed February 19 while drawing his shotgun from a wagon.

John Armstrong of San Francisco was gored to death in Butchertown by a vicious cow February 19.

A 14-year-old girl named Hall accidentally killed her 6-year-old brother with an "unloaded" gun February 6 near Lincoln, Placer County.

A landslide at Cuffey's Cove, Sonoma County, February 13 carried a house into the Russian River. Mrs. Hannah Johnson, her infant and a cook were drowned.

John Adams, halfbreed Mexican, was prospering by stealing horses and cattle in Big Valley, Lassen County. A committee of ranchers sent him word to "vamose," but he refused to do so, and sent them word to come and get him. They did, and February 24 surprised him at his Pit River rendezvous. When they departed, his body was dangling from the limb of an oak tree.

John Day, a farmer, was driving his team along the bank of a canal near Bakersfield, Kern County, February 28. The team became frightened, overturned the wagon into the canal, and Day and the horses were drowned.

The 3-year-old Jenkins lad fell into a tub of hot water while playing at Honcut, Butte County, February 6, and was fatally scalded.

George Bergin, a 17-year-old bellboy at the Baldwin hotel, San Francisco, was crushed to death by an elevator which he attempted to leave while in motion.

William Smithers of Nevada City, Nevada County, went on a spree February 11 and concluded to clean the town of Chinese. After killing one and dangerously wounding another he was taken into custody.

CALIFORNIA GOLD LEADER.

Gold production in the United States during 1931 totaled 2,365,881 ounces, valued at $48,907,100. Silver production totaled 30,967,618 ounces, valued at $8,980,609.

California led in gold production, 510,235 ounces valued at $10,547,500, and Utah led in silver production, 8,173,203 ounces valued at $2,370,229.

DEATH TAKES N. D. PAST GRAND

SANTA ROSA (SONOMA COUNTY) MISS Minnie Coulter, Past Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, passed away January 9. She was the daughter of Sterling Coulter, California Pioneer of 1852, and was born at Santa Rosa April 3, 1866. Miss Coulter presided at the Eighth Grand Parlor, in session at Chico, Butte County, June 1894. She was affiliated with Alta Parlor No. 3 (San Francisco).

A TRIBUTE.

"Death, where is thy sting, where is thy victory?" Life is the hard part, death is a door, portal to a better world. Life is what we make it, and Minnie Coulter made the most of hers. She came of Pioneers. Her father, Sterling Coulter, was of sturdy stock and came to California in 1852; his wife was a fitting mate for so fine a man.

Minnie was one of a large family of children. She was educated in the public schools and later worked her way through Stanford University, as only an enterprising, determined young woman can do. She attained academic honors, and was especially spoken of as a promising student by Prof. Cubberly of the department of education. Dr. Frederick Burk of the State Teachers College understood her, and appreciated her great worth. She received several fine offers of good positions in the educational world, but her great sense of duty made her remain at home. She was principal of a Santa Rosa school for many years, superintendent of Sonoma County schools for two terms, president of the California Teachers Association and president of the State Council of Education. She brought a fresh outlook to these organizations, giving them renewed vigor.

She was the eighth Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, a member of the Grand Parlor Board of Relief, and affiliated with Alta Parlor No. 3 (San Francisco).

Her honesty, her integrity, her sincerity inspired her pupils to greater things. She always had a certain sympathy for the pupil who did wrong, because, she said, she was never sure how much the whole system helped him to do wrong. Her understanding reformed many a student who afterward expressed his gratitude for the right kind of a lift. Her sympathy and her genius lighted a torch which was a beacon to many, and they, having lighted their candle at her torch, will carry on in making a better world.

Life is a preparation for better things that await us. Hardship, obstacles to overcome, tasks to accomplish, all make up life. Our behavior toward life is what counts, and goes toward what we may expect in a better world. Friendship, truth, honor, tolerance toward our fellows give us the opportunity to make life a beautiful thing, fitted to be spent in this beautiful world.

Minnie Coulter, the fine mind, the great personality, the understanding heart; Minnie Coulter, the self-sacrificing one; Minnie Coulter, the loving and true friend, has now entered the portals of a broader, greater life, where our Father has prepared us "many mansions." "O Death, where is thy sting, O Death, where is thy victory?"

CONTRIBUTIONS NEEDED TO PURCHASE VALUED HISTORIC LANDMARK.

The General Vallejo Memorial Association has been organized. Its purposes, as set forth in a most interesting illustrated booklet, are: "Proper recognition of General M. G. Vallejo's invaluable and loyal services to California. Securing the Vallejo home place at Sonoma, 'Lachryma Montis,' for a state park or historical landmark."

W. F. Chipman is the president of the association, and on the board of governors are Joseph R. Knowland and Lewis F. Byington, Past Grand Presidents of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

The agreed price for the old Vallejo home and seventeen acres of surrounding land is $17,360, of which amount the California State Park Commission will provide $8,650. The balance must be raised through contributions. The Sonoma Valley Chamber of Commerce will be glad to receive any subscriptions. Send them to Secretary-Manager Wade H. Wilson, Sonoma. The cause is worthy, and the response should be prompt and liberal.

General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo, of pure Castilian (Spanish) ancestry, was one of the most outstanding characters in California history. He was born at Monterey, this state, July 7, 1808, and died at Sonoma January 18, 1890.—C. M. H.

ROSE TOURNAMENT PRIZE WINNERS.

San Marino won highest honors at Pasadena's annual Tournament of Roses, New Year Day, being represented by a gorgeous work of creative art in flowers and greens depicting the lyre bird.

The theme prize was awarded to Glendale, and the trophy prize to East Pasadena.

Motor Products' Value—The wholesale value of passenger autos produced last year in the United States was $1,175,000,000, and of trucks $260,000,000.

Midwinter Flower Show—Ensenada, San Diego County, will have a National Midwinter Flower Show, February 17-22.

NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW

(E. M. GORE.)

THAT THE 1932 NATIONAL ORANGE Show at San Bernardino, from February 18 to 28 the twenty-second edition of this classic exposition will be bigger and more spectacular this season than ever before, may be concluded from the advance announcements. The forthcoming show, in addition to being a remarkable exposition of California's hundred million-dollar orange crop of this year, will also be remarkable, it is declared, from the crowd-drawing standpoints of entertainment and elaborate decoration.

Headlining the citrus fruit arrays, as the "soul" of the show, will be the many elaborate feature displays entered by the cities, towns and counties of California. Holding the stage of decorative splendor, will be a breath-taking motif of Colonial setting, honoring this year's bicentennial of George Washington. And topping the elaborate entertainment, will be constantly changed programs of light opera featuring Perry Askam, noted star of "The Desert Song."

In connection with the inspirational background—a tribute in decorative art to the glorious days of the Revolution—such elements as liberty bells, American eagles, pillared colonial porches, etc., will be wrought into a beautiful ensemble. American flags will be used abundantly. The lighting effects will be marked by gorgeous chandeliers such as hung in Mount Vernon and other rich homes of the period of 1776.

In the feature exhibits, too, this patriotic idea will be borne out. Such features as "Betsy Ross Making the First Flag" or "Washington Crossing the Delaware" will be wrought into elaborate displays, many of them involving motion.

Around the walls of the main show building, and just back of the golden arrays of oranges, lemons and grapefruit the rack displays of prize fruit will be a series of colorful mural paintings. These will be reproductions of famous paintings depicting the story of George Washington and America's infancy. "Washington at Valley Forge," "Crossing the Delaware," "At Mount Vernon," and similar pieces of story telling art will be shown in the form of huge oil paintings upon the walls.

The show, as finally planned, will consist of the following departments. Main show—feature displays, rack displays, stage entertainment. Industrial show—displays of various industrial products, especially of interest to orangegrowers. By-products show—many commercial by-products of the citrus groves, such as perfumes, soaps, cosmetics, marmalade, jams and jellies. Woman's division—exhibit of "home industry" products created by wives and daughters of California orangegrowers. Boys' and girls' division—display of handiwork by schoolchildren of the "Orange Belt." Educational department—exhibits by State Department of Agriculture, Department of Citrus Education, etc. Carnival division—fun and frolic on the classic "Orange Trail."

The show, it is planned, will have a brilliant opening the evening of February 18. Governor James Rolph Jr. has promised to fly down from the State Capital to open the show formally and deliver, on behalf of California, the address of welcome to visitors. As has been the annual custom, the news-reel operators of the several movie syndicates will sound-photo the feature displays for showing in theaters throughout the world.

All in all, according to General Manager Roy E. Mack, the coming National Orange Show at San Bernardino will be "so much more for the money," that it is conservatively expected record crowds will be drawn.

A BIT O' FARMING and GARDENING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN A NUMBER OF years, California comes out of the winter with a surplus of rainfall. Snow is packed in the mountains to a depth unknown within the memory of most Californians. Every indication is that farmers of the state will start the growing season with the soil holding a miximum of moisture, and that there will be an abundant supply for irrigation during the dry period.

The dry years should have taught the lesson, though, that there should be no waste in the use of water, even when it is plentiful. Hundreds upon hundreds of acres have been rendered sterile through continued over-irrigation without proper drainage. There should be a program of conservation little less strict than that of last year and the years preceding it.

What effect the super-normal rainfall will have on the receding water tables in the districts where pumps are used to supply irrigation will be watched with interest. For several years farmers have had to follow the water down the wells with their pumps; this year it is to be hoped the water will chase the pumps back up the wells to something near, at least, the old level.

And cheerful predictions come with the rains! Droughts and wet years have run in cycles in the past. As we have just ended a long term of sub-normal rainfall, there is pleasant hope in the anticipation of a few years of wet winters to restore conditions to normal.

WATCH ROSE MILDEW.

There is no trouble, perhaps, that bothers city and country gardeners alike with more persistence than rose mildew. In the summer, sulphur dust aids in controlling this fungus, but some lime-sulphur applied right now as spray will account for more than dust in the growing season. Spray while the bushes are dormant, or as nearly so as they get, with lime-sulphur at one to ten strength. Then, when the first new foliage appears, get out the duster. Sulphur dust is better as a preventive than a cure. In spraying, as in dusting, get the under sides of the leaves as well as the more-easily-covered top sides.

PREPARE FOR RED-BERRY.

Growers in all parts of the state have reported trouble in recent years with red-berry in their blackberries. The fruit grows approximately to full size, but does not mature, remaining hard and red. This trouble is caused by a very minute mite, readily controlled through proper measures. Four to eight gallons of lime sulphur in 100 gallons of water, applied when the leaf buds are beginning to open in early spring, usually overcomes the red-berry mite. An additional spray, of five gallons of wettable sulphur to 100 gallons of water, applied during the summer is further insurance. Be prepared to spray when the leaves begin to open this spring.

PLANTING DAHLIA BULBS.

In planting dahlia bulbs, which may be done at any time now in most localities, be sure that every bulb has an eye. Don't, in dividing the bulbs, cut them from the crown. Each tuber should have a small portion of the crown with an eye, or bud, in that portion. If the buds are permitted to swell before the division is made, there need be no difficulty. Be careful in preparing the bed for the bulbs. Rich, sandy loam is best, worked up to a depth of at least a foot; a foot and a half is better. The ground should be well pulverized, and well-rotted cow manure, added after the plants start, will be a potent factor in assuring good blossoms.

GRAFTING SEASON OPENS.

There is no mystery about grafting, as most fruitgrowers know. The work may be done this month or early in March, and by exercising a little care trees may be top-worked without difficulty. The home orchardist can make splendid use of grafting methods. One peach tree, for instance, gives more fruit than can be used at one time. Three or four varieties, grafted to the same root, will furnish a succession of crops. No matter what method of grafting is used, it is necessary only to bring the scion and the wood upon which it is grafted together at an angle so that the cambium layer meets to as great an extent as possible. Tie the graft, protect it with a good wax, and if the work is well done the graft will grow. Roses that are undesirable, fruit trees that do not give the proper crops or that are subject to pests more than other varieties, may be grafted. Of course, some prefer budding. That is a job for the late summer or early fall.

TOBACCO FOR SETTING HENS.

Nicotine sulphate, used on roosts and in the henhouse to protect the laying flock against vermin, also is effective to make hens more comfortable while they are sitting on their eggs. Put a little on the bottom of the nest a day or two before the hen is given her eggs; ten days later put some more in, to continue the protection. Be sure the nicotine sulphate is put under the nest material so that it will not come in contact with the eggs.

ORGANIC AND INORGANIC FERTILIZERS.

With the advent of spring, fertilizers are applied to orchards in varying quantities and of varying qualities. There is danger in using a bulky organic fertilizer at this time of the year, such as cereal straw. Applied now, decomposition takes place during the vigorous growing season and may take so much nitrogen from the soil that the tree will be robbed. Bulky fertilizers of this kind should be used when the tree's nitrogen requirements are at a minimum, from about June to November. Manures with light straw content may be used now, although they are better applied in the fall.

This is, however, just the season of the year when the best use can be made of the commercial, or inorganic, fertilizers, which are quickly available for use by the trees. Study first the needs of the soil; find out what element is needed. Then supply it through some reliable brand of commercial fertilizer. Inorganic fertilizers may be applied at any time now, as soon as the soil is in condition to work. Well chosen and properly applied, such fertilizers will more than pay for themselves; they will increase profits far beyond their costs.

COMBATTING THE CUTWORM.

Where gardens are infested with cutworms, a little precaution before planting will be well repaid. Turn the soil over and let it lie idle for a few weeks while the cutworms are at work. Then, just before planting, a week or so, scatter poisoned bran mash over the soil in the evening. With nothing else to eat, the cutworms will come up at night, feed on the poison, and die. The poisoned mash can be purchased ready made at a supply house, or it can be mixed at home. A good mash of this kind is made by dry-mixing a pound of coarse bran and an ounce of black molasses and enough water to make it crumbly, with the arsenic or other poison added.

NAVEL INFECTIONS OF LAMBS.

Last year serious losses were reported in some sections through an infection acquired by lambs at birth, causing stiffness and swollen joints. This is due to an infection picked up at birth on the navel. The remedy must be applied promptly at birth by taking a wide-mouth bottle of iodine and slipping it over the navel up to the abdominal wall, and leaving it for a few seconds. The treatment marks the lambs, and prevents a number of infections of more or less serious nature.

PRUNING BLIGHTED TREES.

If pear trees were heavily cut back last year in controlling blight, they should have most moderate thinning in pruning. No attempt should be made to restore the balance of the tree this year. The tree will need most of the leaf surface it can develop to store food this season for next year. The pruner should make the rebuilding of the badly-cut-back pear tree a job that extends over three or four years. Trees can be brought back to their original bearing surface if care is taken not to try to do it all at once.

GROWING SWEET CORN.

Sweet corn production in California is growing, and as knowledge of the crop increases its troubles are being solved. Plant as soon as frost danger is over, in rich, well-drained loam. Plenty of water is required. Be sure to keep the suckers out, and the weeds down.

FINISH THE SPRAY CLEANUP.

The dormant season is just about ended. The dormant sprays should have been applied before this time, but it still is not too late to do a lot of good. In many instances the wet weather of the winter months has pretty much precluded any sort of work in orchards. Trees will more than likely have large crops this year. Be sure they are not obliged to feed a host of hungry pests which will weaken them and spoil the quality of their fruit.

LAYERING TO START PLANTS.

Many plants are difficult to start from cuttings. Some of these, the bougainvillea for instance, is rooted in this manner only with extreme care and the loss of most of the cuttings An easier way to get new plants is by layering. Perhaps the best method is to cut about half way through the shoot that is to be layered, and by bending gently, open the cut so that a small stick or stone may be inserted to keep the incision open. Then make a little trench in the soil, bend the shoot down and cover it with earth. A wire or hairpin may be used to hold the shoot from being displaced. The shoot should be allowed to remain in the soil for a year. At the end of this time a nicely rooted plant should be found.

BLUE BOOK OF GARDENING
1932 EDITION

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

SPRING OF 1932 BRINGS SLENDER AND chic silhouettes, tapering from shoulder to ankle. Red, white and blue fabrics have dull, rough surfaces. Milady is to be as becomingly dressed as ever, with the new changes in line, the unusual new shoulder width, and so on.

Hand-knitted weaves are deep ribbed, thick and very swagger. These are mainly white, trimmed with touches of vivid red or the new bright blue, or both. Colorful suede jackets are good, according to the modes displayed, also white gloves, nifty crushed straw berets, grecian sandals and mesh hosiery.

No matter where you are or where you are going, the dresses of wool, suitable for every clime, are indispensable. Whether the weather is hot, cold or dry, a different kind of wool dress may be worn in any of the light shades, as well as the bright shades, and what a cheery accent the bright-colored ones give to the dark coats. You may match these dresses with a light, bright coat, or else plan your individual color contrast.

These dresses are trimmed with tucks in sunburst fashion all around the smart, high neckline, and then the tucking is repeated perpendicularly about the hips. A band, edging the neck, ties in front, as does the narrow band that circles the waist as a belt, and bands draw each full sleeve at the wrist.

Another attractive frock is made of the nubbed lace tweed of woven porous wool. The chic diagonal cross-over effect is achieved by seaming lengthwise to the waistline, then slanting the seam in the other direction. The bodice, slightly bloused, is made more interesting by placing four stunning little buttons, with tiny metal wings and bandings, at the base of the "V" neck. Metal is used again for the prongs and buckle of the leather pull. Loose raglan sleeves are almost bell-shape, and are caught around the wrist by a narrow band with button closings.

To the interested observer, there seems to be a weave and a color for every purpose and every occasion, and more often than not we mistake our woolens for something else. Boucle effects are very much modified and flattened out, as if they were appearing in a variety of weights for a variety of purposes.

That smart and proper silhouette, with its high-fitted waistline, comes naturally with a blouse and skirt. The new blouses are cut that way, and are built high around the neck because fashion says it is the new and smart thing to do. So new in fact, that it is a joy to look at them, and much more joy to wear them.

The most intriguing of the blouses are those for sports wear, chiefly because of the lovely new materials. Of course, crepes and satins are as nice as ever, but the new knits, wools and cottons go with winter suits, making stunning sports costumes. You will see them worn that way a lot this spring and summer.

The frock for afternoon is becoming sophisticated. Many women all but live in the little frock of black satin or crepe-de-chine. They find it fits into almost every scheme, and it confers a charming youthful look on the wearer.

The new satin is called cirol, and is lustrous and supple. It is very popular when trimmed with lace, which should be of the new angel-skin type. This is one of the newest and loveliest of fashion innovations this spring. It is a lace with a soft, smooth surface and exquisite design. It is used for the increasingly popular dinner and evening gowns, as well. It is to be had in almost every color of the rainbow, and the more vivid the hue, it seems, the more striking the effect.

Long gloves are back again. For the ensemble, the eight- and twelve-button kind are shown, with no other radical changes.

Daytime dress lengths will be no longer, just the same number of inches from the floor during the spring and summer. At the moment, the frock with its hemline ten inches from the ground is considered chic.

There will be a variation in the length of costumes for dinner and evening wear, but only according to the ideas of the individual. The ankle-length will be highly popular with the younger girls, while the instep-length will prevail with the more sophisticated. Formal evening gowns will continue to touch the floor.

Spring millinery starts blue, as though that will be the banner color this spring. Straws and felts are shown in bright blues, with shallow crowns, and are worn very much to one side. Piecings, joined by raised seams, are shaped to a joint at the center of the crown.

Generally, right after the new year, the delightful little hats of taffeta, satin or grosgrain ribbon make their welcome reappearance. They pave the way for the first exciting real spring hats. This year, with the vogue for the hat with a mass of closely pressed flowers, they will play a leading role in the spring millinery. Certainly there are always some flower-trimmed hats available, but the new crop of blossoms will bloom under, not upon, the hat.

All sorts of new straw weaves are in the offing, but the good old standbys, such as milan and picot, will be most extensively used, and there will be colorful straws from pastel tones to vivid hues.

Fruit Pack Drops—California's 1931 fruit pack was 12,669,581 cases, the lowest number in five years. The 1930 pack totaled 19,013,400 cases. The highest pack in the five-year period was in 1928, 20,223,024 cases.

Hardware Men To Meet—The eleventh annual convention of the Southern California Retail Hardware Association will be held February 16-20 at Los Angeles City.

Dedication—The California State Building in Los Angeles City, erected at a cost of $2,000,000, is to be dedicated February 18.

Just Ask for Frank

Native Daughters of the Golden West

SANTA CRUZ—PAST GRAND PRESIDENT Stella Finkeldey is carrying on most commendably as chairman of the Grand Parlor Veteran Welfare Committee. The following letters, received by her from United States Veteran Hospitals, refer to her activities:

"Closely following your letter of December twelfth have come two packages from you containing the prizes for the very generous number of card parties. We are very, very happy, indeed, to have had you respond so helpfully to our suggestion and we want you to feel that you have our very warmest appreciation for your solution of one of our problems. Not only that, but you have shown such interest and care in carrying out your promise. The packages wrapped so carefully in your colors, and the care taken in arranging the sets of prizes, and the cards written by you, all these will give your parties, 'the Golden West parties,' a really personal touch. We wish that you or some one of your members might be with us to enjoy one of the evenings. After the Christmas rush is over we will write to you and tell you about one of your parties; meanwhile, with all best wishes for the Yuletide, very truly yours, S. H. JAMES, M.D., Medical Officer in Charge, U. S. Veteran Hospital, Tucson, Arizona, December 19, 1931."

(Note—The Grand Parlor Veteran Welfare fund assisted this hospital by supplying seven sets of prizes, five prizes in each set, for seven card parties.—Editor.)

"This will acknowledge your letter of December 17 and the box of California berry shrubs, which are being most effectively used in our decorations. Your kind interest in our hospital is very much appreciated, and I wish to thank you on behalf of the patients as well as the hospital administration. Wishing you the compliments of the season, I am, very truly yours, R. W. BROWNE, Medical Officer in Charge, U. S. Veteran Hospital, Walla Walla, Washington, December 21, 1931."

"The box of nice, hard candies to be used in nut cups for our Christmas trays and tables, arrived on the 17th. The attractive little nut cups of green and red, given to us by the Red Cross Juniors of Pasadena, added quite a festive touch to the trays and tables,—the use of which was made possible by your gift of the candy for filling them. Again please accept the combined thanks of the patients and administration for your assistance in making Christmas as cheery and pleasant as possible in this hospital. Hoping that Christmas brought happiness to the members of your organization, and with all best wishes for the new year, we are, very sincerely yours, MISS FRANCES MAYNARD, Recreational Aide, U. S. Veteran Hospital, Whipple, Arizona, December 28, 1931."

"The two packages containing bridge prizes for parties six and seven sponsored by the Native Daughters of the Golden West reached us safely yesterday. We were most happy to receive these boxes and we wish to take this opportunity to tell you how much pleasure the first two sets of prizes gave the patients and their guests,—so far we have used but the two. Three or four requests were made by prize winners that their thanks be forwarded to you. This service is being greatly appreciated by all, and especially so because it is being offered us with such evident interest and care. Thanking all members of your organization for this co-operation, very truly yours, S. H. JAMES, M.D., Medical Officer in Charge, U. S. Veteran Hospital, Tucson, Arizona, January 16, 1932."

"This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 10, 1932, relative to your contribution of eight copies of 'National Geographic' and several copies of the 'Mid-Week Pictorial' which your organization so kindly furnishes yearly for the patients at this hospital. We wish to advise that it will be appreciated if you will continue subscriptions to the same magazines for 1932, and thank you in behalf of the patients. Very truly yours, P. G. LASCHE, Medical Officer in Charge, U. S. Veteran Hospital, Palo Alto, California, January 12, 1932."

"Thank you for your kind letter of Jan. 10, offering us your yearly donation of light-weight wool socks. These have proved very popular with the patients each year, and although we still have several boxes of last year's supply remaining, we would be very happy to have you send us more of them. The many kindnesses which the Native Daughters of the Golden West have extended the patients of this hospital have been deeply appreciated, we assure you, not only by the patients themselves but by the hospital administration as well. Throughout the year we receive many evidences of the deep interest taken by the various Parlors of the Native Daughters in our hospitalized veterans. Sincerest wishes to you and to all Native Daughters of California for the coming year. By direction (Miss) IRMA ANDERSON, Senior Recreational Aide, U. S. Veteran Hospital, Livermore, California, January 12, 1932."

Delightful Event.

Etna—Eschscholtzia No. 112 gave its annual ball in a hall gay with red bells, evergreens and colored lights. The grand march was led by Miss Dorice Young, president-elect of the Parlor, and Ernest Smith of Etna No. 192 N.S.G.W. Marshal Agnes Calloway and District Deputy L. E. Buchner directed the march.

Since the annual contribution to the homeless children fund is taken from the proceeds of this ball, the Native Daughters were much pleased at having favorable weather, the night of the ball being the only pleasant evening in a very stormy season. As a result, all sections of Scott Valley were represented, and the attendance was all that could be desired. The presence of a number of former residents and young people who had come home from college added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. The music was excellent, a source of enjoyment to the spectators as well as to the dancers. Much credit is due to President Nancy Smith and her committees for the able management that made the affair a most delightful event.

Parlor Planned for Redlands.

San Bernardino—Members of Lugonia No. 241 enjoyed an entertainment January 13 staged by Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 N.S.G.W. A large delegation accompanied District Deputy Eva Mae Bemis to Long Beach, where she installed, January 21, the officers of No. 154. Lugonia's officers, with Gladys Baker as president, were installed January 27. A program of music followed the ceremonies and refreshments were served. The Parlor plans to entertain neighboring Parlors at a dinner in the near-future.

Several members of Lugonia attended a recent gathering at Redlands, at which the institution of a Parlor there was discussed. Organization work is in charge of District Deputy Hazel B. Hansen of Glendale, vice-chairman Grand Parlor Extension of the Order Committee.

Sacramento-Placer District Meet.

Sacramento—Parlors of Sacramento and Placer Counties held a joint district meeting under the direction of Supervising Deputy Bessie Leitch. Among the 300 in attendance were Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Vice-president Anna Armstrong, Grand Trustees Edna Briggs, Gladys Noce and Florence Boyle, Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell, May Boldeman, Dr. Eva Rasmussen, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron and Esther R. Sullivan, Supervising Deputies Bessie Leitch, Ethel Ludwig, Wanda Abeley and Edna Richter, District Deputies Mamie McCormick, Doris Fisher, Nellie Nordstrom, Mae Lucas, Mae Rhodes, Alice Carpenter, Sadie Brainard, Nellie Ramsey, Laura Gay, Alicia Buckley, Mamie Davis, Alice Boldeman, Inna Bloom and Mollye Spaelti.

Two candidates were initiated for Sutter No. 111, the ritual being exemplified by the following: Eva Mordecai (La Bandera No. 110), president; Eva Meyers (Placer No. 138), first vice-president; Margaret Parrish (La Rosa No. 191), second vice-president; Cleora Ritz (Chabolla No. 171), third vice-president; Margaret Wiedeman (Victory No. 216), past president; Lorraine Williams (Sutter No. 111), marshal; Ella Windmiller (Liberty No. 213), inside sentinel; Elizabeth Ryan (Fern No. 123), outside sentinel; Nettie Harry (Coloma No. 212), recording secretary; Florence Berry (Placer No. 138), financial secretary; Alice Artz (Califia No. 22), treasurer; Harriet Hall (Fern No. 123), Frances Wakeman (Liberty No. 213), Phillis Ramsey (Placer No. 138), trustees; Nellie Ramsey (Placer No. 138), junior past president; Elizabeth Walker (Coloma No. 212), senior past president; Emilie Lachmann (Sutter No. 111), pianist. After the meeting dinner was served in the beautifully decorated banquetroom.

Contributes to Unemployed.

Mariposa—Mariposa No. 63, always active in civic affairs, has contributed financially to Mariposa County's general welfare fund for the unemployed. It recently sponsored a successful apron sale for its Loyalty Pledge fund and initiated two candidates.

Supervising Deputy May F. Givens during January attended installations of the four Parlors in her district. At the joint ceremonies of Veritas No. 75 and Yosemite No. 24 N.S.G.W. at Merced City, January 11, she was the principal speaker.

Guests Enthusiastically Welcomed.

San Juan Bautista—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Copa de Oro No. 105 and San Juan Bautista No. 179, in joint session here January 6, was a particularly happy event. The pleasures of the evening began at the dinner table, attractively decorated with yellow as the prevailing color. District Deputy Blanche Taix presided, introducing the guests of honor, who were enthusiastically welcomed. A program of community singing, consisting of the "booster" songs of the two Parlors, and toasts by Past Presidents Catherine Nyland and Edna Butterfield, was enjoyed.

At the meeting the officers of San Juan Bautista presented a pleasing picture in evening gowns with corsages of white carnations and ferns, followed by the officers of Copa de Oro, who were designated by corsages of red carnations. Grand officers were presented with corsages of gardenias. A class of four candidates were initiated, two for each Parlor, with President Ellen Murray of San Juan Bautista ably presiding.

Grand President Carlson delivered an inspiring address on the projects of the Order. By her gracious presence, she won the hearts of all present, and was the recipient of gifts from both Parlors. Other grand officers in attendance were Supervising Deputy Rose Rhyner, District Deputy Blanche Taix and Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs. Visitors were present from Salinas, Santa Cruz, San Jose and San Francisco. Many unable to be present at the dinner, joined the assemblage for the meeting, and the cosy hall was crowded to capacity.

To Initiate Large Class.

Fullerton—Grace No. 242 had initiation January 8. Among the many guests were District Deputy Ora Evans and President Gertrude Tuttle of Californiana No. 247 (Los Angeles). President Mattie Edwards outlined plans for the term, and Carrie McFadden-Ford and assistants served refreshments. Recent hostesses of the Parlor's sewing circle were President Edwards, Secretary Mary Rothaermel and Lula Forbes.

the Parlor sponsored a public card party January 22 for the benefit of the Native Daughter Home. Awards were made and refreshments were served. When Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visits February 29, Grace will initiate a large class of candidates. A recent old-fashioned bazaar netted the Parlor treasury a neat sum. Callye Sparkes, a charter member of No. 242, was wedded January 4 to Adolph Blum.

Patriotic Ceremonies for New Citizens.

Oroville—Officers of Gold of Ophir No. 190 and Argonaut No. 8 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed January 6 by District Deputies Cora Hintz and Cyril Macdonald. On behalf of No. 190, gifts and flowers were presented Supervising Deputy Hintz, Past President Jessie Hoover, President Alice Cundy and Mrs. Loretta Ross. Mrs. Romilda Ralph headed a committee which served refreshments at the conclusion of the ceremonies. Mountain greens and pyracantha decorated the lodgeroom and banquetroom.

After twenty-two candidates successfully passed the examination for citizenship January 13, Gold of Ophir had charge of patriotic ceremonies, an honor accorded it for many years. Four fraternal organizations assisted with the program, which included a talk on the "History of Our State" by Grand Trustee Florence Boyle and the presentation of a copy of the "American Creed" to each of the new citizens by President Alice Cundy.

Holiday Cheer.

Vallejo—Vallejo No. 195 and Vallejo No. 77 N.S.G.W. entertained the children of the members at a December 22 Christmas party. A program was presented, Santa Claus distributed presents and candy to all the children, and the enjoyable occasion concluded with dancing. Guilda Keller and Fernan Legoria were the chairmen in charge. Chairman Edith Gutfeld of No. 195's veteran welfare committee visited the Mare Island Hospital and distributed homemade cakes and jams to the tubercular ward patients.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of February, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

3rd—El Carmelo No. 181, Daly City.
4th—Oro Fino No. 9, San Francisco.
6th—Victory No. 216, Courtland.
8th—Marinita No. 198, San Rafael.
9th—Fairfax No. 225, Fairfax.

Receives Exquisite Gavel.

San Diego—San Diego No. 208 has been presented with an exquisitely hand-carved gavel, made by Mr. Cole, 78-year-old resident of this city. In its making seven different woods typical of this section were used. The handle is of pecan, the head of pear, and there are inlays of black walnut, olive, white thorn, desert thorn and sumac. The presentation was made to President Sarah Miller, for the Parlor, by Evelyn Wurzel.

January Girls Surprised.

Santa Ana—At the January 11 meeting of Santa Ana No. 235, President Marion Crum appointed a committee of eight members on ways and means for each month of the January-July term, to formulate plans for replenishing the treasury. Semi-annual reports were presented by Financial Secretary Rose Ford, Recording Secretary Matilda Lemon and Treasurer Ina Cope.

Members whose birthdays came in January—Mms. Genevieve Hiskey, Hannah Kerr, Ina Cope, Rose Ford, Elizabeth Marsile, Emma Harby and Caroline Alford—were honor-guests at a surprise. Tables decorated in their honor had individual birthday cakes lighted with candles. Secretary Lemon proposed this toast: "Our friends, may we have many of them, and may they be always with us."

The monthly card party was held January 19 at the Balboa home of Mrs. J. A. Grant. Recent meetings of the thimble club were held at the homes of Mms. Myrtle Ellis, Mary Moore and

HOME DEDICATION ANNIVERSARY.

The third anniversary of the dedication of the N.D.G.W. Home, 555 Baker street, was observed at the Sunday breakfast January 10. Past Grand Presidents Dr. Mariana Bertola and Emma G Foley were the hostesses. A birthday cake, decorated with United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags and poppies, had this wording: "N.D.G.W. Home. Long life and health to one who made it possible Dr. Bertola."

Mrs. J. Emmet Hayden gave readings, and the N.D.G.W. Glee Club rendered several selections, the words for one, sung to the tune of "The Gay Caballero," being written especially for the occasion. Speakers included Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Past Grand Presidents May C. Boldemann, Margaret G. Hill, Addie L. Mosher and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron. Dr. Bertola was lauded by all for her unselfish interest in the Home. Compliments were given in plenty, and good humor prevailed.

Supervising District Deputy Boldemann presented, in behalf of the San Francisco district, a surprise gift—an end table, purchased with the balance of a $200 donation given at the November 30 district meeting. She promised also, from the same source, a lamp for the reception lounge. Native Daughters were advised they now have an opportunity to show Past Grand President Louise W. Morris that she is fondly remembered, by sending her a shower of friendship cards.

The following Parlors were represented at the dedication anniversary: Native Son—Mount Tamalpais No. 64 and Bret Harte No. 260. Native Daughter—Oro Fino No. 9, Dolores No. 169, Alta No. 3, Golden State No. 50, Orinda No. 56, Twin Peaks No. 185, Keith No. 137, La Estrella No. 89, Buena Vista No. 68, Las Lomas No. 72, Genevieve No. 132, Mission No. 227, Piedmont No. 87, Aloha No. 106, Califia No. 22, San Diego No. 208, Joaquin No. 5, Marinita No. 198 and Santa Cruz No. 26.

"LOBSTERS" FETED.

Stanford Parlor No. 76 N.S.G.W. recently was host to the eight surviving members of the "Lobsters," an organization consisting of those members of the Parlor who served on the 1900 Admission Day committee. The gigantic celebration that year, held in San Francisco, marked the fiftieth anniversary of the admission of California into the Union. It was a huge success, and Stanford's participation was most creditable. When the festivities were brought to a close, the committee returned about two hundred dollars to the Parlor. Some one then remarked: "You lobsters, why did you not keep the money and provide a banquet for yourselves?" The committee, having enjoyed the fruits of true fellowship and being reluctant to separate, then and there decided to organize, taking the name "Lobsters."

Each year since 1900 these "lobsters" have met to talk over old times and relive the great celebration. Now there are but eight of them left, and Stanford fittingly observed the thirty-first anniversary of the organization with an oldtime party. There were songs, speeches, jokes, entertainment, refreshments, smokes and goodfellowship. One of the features of the evening was the exhibition of old programs, relics, pictures and badges, preserved for the Parlor by Historian Charles W. Dechent. The eight survivors are: Amadeo P. Giannini, J. J. McCarthy, John J. Lerman, Wm. D. Hynes, Peter J. Martenstein, Charles D. Steiger, Joseph G. Cox and Charles H. Stanyan.

The hall was decorated with greens entwined with colored electric lights. As each of the "lobsters" entered the hall, he was presented with a specially prepared regalia upon which were printed pictures of lobsters, the name of the member and the date of his entrance into the Parlor. Members of Stanford called for each of the eight, and after the ceremonies returned them to their homes. The feature of the evening's entertainment was the appearance of a huge soup tureen, supported by six members attired as cooks. It was placed before the president and, when opened, a beautiful maiden stepped out and danced for the assemblage. Waldo Postel and Dr. Leo McMahon delighted with comic actions and jokes, and Hal Burmeister entertained with songs and impersonations. Before the festivities were ended each "lobster" was introduced and a few words said about him. A. P. Giannini received highest honors for bringing into Stanford the largest number of new members.

MANY ACTIVITIES PLANNED.

Officers of Alta Parlor No. 3 N.D.G.W. were installed January 12 by District Deputy Annie Franzen, Catherine O'Reilly becoming president. Many activities are planned for her term.

JOINT INSTALLATION.

Officers of Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 N.D.G.W. and Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed January 13 by District Deputies Muriel Sandell and Thos. M. Dillon. Large delegations were present from Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185 N.D.G.W. and Castro Parlor No. 232 N.S.G.W. Refreshments, after the ceremonies, were followed by dancing.

EFFICIENT SERVICE RECOGNIZED.

Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W. celebrated its twenty-fourth institution anniversary with a banquet, followed by cards, January 20. Past President Anna McQuade was in charge.

Officers of the Parlor were installed by District Deputy Sheehan, Margaret Ramm becoming president. In recognition of efficient service always rendered, the Parlor presented a beautiful emblematic ring to Past President Mary Sullivan.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

The twenty-third anniversary of the institution of Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D.G.W. was celebrated with a banquet, January 12, at which Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, a member of the Parlor, and District Deputy Agnes McVerry were honored guests. Eighty-three partook of a very enjoyable italian feast, and a delightful evening was spent in dancing. January 27 the officers of Dolores were installed by District Deputy McVerry.

PAST PRESIDENTS INSTALL.

Officers of Past Presidents Association No. 1 N.D.G.W. and San Francisco Assembly No. 1 Past Presidents Association N.S.G.W. were installed at joint ceremonies January 18 by Past President Anna Johnson and Director General James F. Stanley, Minnie F. Dobbin and J. H. Sylvester becoming, respectively, president and governor. Among the speakers were Governor General Louis F. Erb, Past Governor General Arthur J. Cleu and Director General Stanley.

An emblematic pin was presented Anna Johnson by May Rose Barry, and many tokens were presented President Minnie F. Dobbin. Cora Stobing was chairman for the Native Daughters and Walter Stobing for the Native Sons.

cool in the summer, and warm in the winter. Too, there seems to be a lot of cultivated soil around the mission."

One year later, 1843, the Lugo brothers found they had lost much stock and provisions through raids of the desert Indians. The problem of subduing these untamed tribes seemed to be almost unsolvable.

"There are a lot of New Mexicans here now. Why can't we trade some of the land to them?" suggested Maria to Vicente. "If they will take it, I will. Possibly, they will help protect our provisions from the Indians. I think I shall interview Lorenza Trujillo. He may want Politana," replied Vicente. The deal was made in a very short time.

"But you must help us to protect our stock and help us to fight the Indians. They are very treacherous at times," said Maria. "You need not worry about that, as I shall be very glad to help you. We are used to fighting the Indian, as we have won many a hard battle with the Utes," replied Trujillo.

Native Sons of the Golden West

OROVILLE — THE CORNERSTONE OF the Pioneer Memorial Building — a monument that will perpetuate for all time the deeds of Butte County Pioneers and a museum in which will be housed historic relics of the days of old—was laid January 10. The structure, representing a miner's cabin, is being erected by the Butte County Pioneer Memorial Association, composed of members of Argonaut No. 8 and Gold of Ophir No. 190 N.D.G.W.

Florence Boyle, Grand Trustee N.D.G.W., presided and said, "We wish to renew our pledge to the Pioneers who made possible the State of California." The assemblage, led by Alta Baldwin, sang "I Love You, California." Mayor Sam Marks, a member of Argonaut, was the main speaker. He paid a tribute to the Pioneer Mothers and Fathers, and declared, "The erection of this building is as little as we can do to show our appreciation of our Pioneer ancestors whose names will live in history and who gave to the Union the State of California, the land of our birth."

Directors of the building association are Florence D. Boyle, president; Cornelia Lott-Sank, vice-president; F. W. Boyle, secretary; Irene Lund, treasurer; W. H. Hibbard and J. Emory Sutherland. It is expected the building will be ready for dedication at an early date.

Grand Parlor Committee.

Stockton—George D. Avery, as president, heads Stockton No. 7's corps of officers for the January-July term. Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer officially visited the Parlor January 18, when a special program was presented.

Stockton has charge of arrangements for the Grand Parlor, which meets here in May, and an elaborate entertainment program is planned. To handle all details, President Avery has appointed the following committee: Ray Friedberger (chairman), W. P. Rothenbush, C. W. Walsh, H. M. Herrmann, Eugene Allison, R. D. Dorcey, W. A. Strong, I. F. Hoult, G. T. Dentoni, Frank Piccordo, W. I. Neeley, R. A. Mitscher, F. R. Fernando and Lawrence Buol.

Services Recognized.

Santa Ana—Officers of Santa Ana No. 265 were installed by District Deputy George McDonald, January 18, Raymond L. Marsile being retained as president. In recognition of his services in the Parlor's upbuilding, No. 265, through Grand Organist Leslie Maloche, presented an emblematic ring to Past President James B. Utt. Entertainment features were presented by the McOwen sisters, and refreshments were served. Several members of Arrowhead No. 110 (San Bernardino) were visitors.

Despite the prevailing depression, Santa Ana is making satisfactory headway and a number of applications for membership have been received.

"Montalvo!" calls to memory the late Senator James D. Phelan, outstanding native Californian long affiliated with Pacific No. 10 (San Francisco). Frequently, in his lifetime, he entertained groups of Natives at his magnificent Santa Clara County estate, Montalvo.—C. M. H.

Ice Carnival for Kiddies' Benefit.

Oakland—The annual benefit for the homeless children sponsored by the Alameda County N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Joint Homeless Children Committee will this year be an ice carnival, to be held at the Oakland Ice Arena, Fourteenth and Grove Streets, February 2. In addition to attractive entertainment features, the program includes a hockey game between Los Angeles and Oakland teams.

The arrangements committee includes Frank Roemer (chairman), Edgar G. Hanson (secretary), Richard M. Hamb, William R. Knowland, John J. Allen, Adrian Hynes, John J. Allen, Jr., James J. Dignan and Ray B. Felton.

Officers Three Parlors Jointly Installed.

Sacramento—Sacramento No. 3, Sunset No. 26 and La Bandera No. 110 N.D.G.W. officers were jointly installed January 14. District Deputies Clyde L. Corcoran, Joseph Lannon and Mamie McCormick officiated, and Joseph L. Hellinge, George Lial and Miss Marion Lund became the respective presidents. Dancing and refreshments followed the ceremonies.

The arrangements committee included: Native Daughters—Grand Trustee Edna B. Briggs (general chairman), Misses Ruth E. Peterson, Hannah Mannerberg, Adrienne Thomas, Helen Filbert, Clara Maurer and Ruth Bachman, Mms. Genevieve Didion and Ethel Miller. Native Sons—George W. Lial, Lawrence Marvin, Theodore Jacka, John Major, Joseph L. Hellinge, Joseph Fitzhenry, Irving Real, J. J. Monteverde, Irving Gibson and Frank R. Didion.

February 11, Sacramento No. 3 will initiate another large class of candidates.

Ritual Team Complimented.

Salinas—Following a turkey dinner, supervised by George McDougall, officers of Santa Lucia No. 97 were installed January 4 by District Deputy John Thompson, E. L. Adcock being retained as president. Plans for the Parlor's annual picnic and other events were discussed. In the course of an address District Deputy Thompson highly complimented No. 97's ritual team which, he said, is one of the best in the state. Cards closed an enjoyable occasion.

Installation Largely Attended.

San Rafael—Officers of Mount Tamalpais No. 64 and Marinita No. 198 N.D.G.W. were jointly installed January 9, Arthur W. Todt and Mrs. Gussie Bannister becoming the respective presidents. The ceremonies were conducted by District Deputies B. J. Brusatori and Mae Shea, who were highly commended by Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson of the Native Daughters for the faultless manner in which they performed their duties.

On behalf of Marinita, gifts were presented Mrs. Carlson, Grand Trustee Ethel Begley, District Deputy Shea, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grand President Emma G. Foley, President Bannister and Natalie Label, retiring president. For Mount Tamalpais, District Deputy Brusatori presented an emblematic charm to Senior Past President Anthony Faustine.

A delicious repast was served following the ceremonies, and a program contributed by Miss E. Hutto, Eugenie Watson and Helen Morris was followed by dancing. The halls were beautifully decorated for the event, which attracted 268 members of both Orders. Charles Soldavini headed Mount Tamalpais' arrangements committee, and Mrs. Anne Andrade that of Marinita.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

To Celebrate Birthday.

Oakland—At public ceremonies January 12, the officers of Claremont No. 240 and Argonaut No. 166 N.D.G.W. were jointly installed by District Deputies Allen G. Norris and Dora Brayton, Fred Buelna and Miss Genevieve Sheehan becoming the respective presidents. Dr. Wm. C. Frietas and Lillian Caton headed the arrangements committee, which presented a very interesting program. Harmon D. Skillin was the principal speaker.

February 9, Claremont will celebrate its twenty-fourth birthday with a class initiation and banquet. It is hoped that arrangements can be made to have Grand Trustee Joseph J. McShane pay his official visit at that time.

Outlook Bright.

San Bernardino—With Lynn Reed as president, officers of Arrowhead No. 110 were installed January 27 by District Deputy Walter E. Hiskey. Refreshments were served. The Parlor closed 1931 with a membership of 609 and assets of $24,064. "New officers full of 'pep' and outlook for 1932 bright," says Recording Secretary Bob Brazelton.

Valentine Dance.

Sonoma—Officers of Sonoma No. 111 were installed January 18 by District Deputy George Peterson, Fred Bulotti becoming president. February 13 the Parlor will have a valentine dance for the benefit of its social fund. Charles E. Bacigalupi, Bud Batto, Tony Barachi, Vic Erlebach and Dave Eraldi are in charge of arrangements.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Santa Clara—Santa Clara No. 100 celebrated its twenty-ninth institution anniversary January 6. A banquet was served, and addresses were made by Past Grand President Thomas Monahan, Grand Treasurer John A. Corotto and District Deputy Phil Blanchard. The arrangements committee included A. Puccinelli, Robert Castro, Thomas Maloney Jr., Frank Sylvia, Fred Dreischmeyer and William Soto.

Oldtimers Take Charge.

Saint Helena—Saint Helena No. 53 had its annual oldtimers night January 11, with Walter Metzner, as president, Dr. Leslie A. Stern, Paul R. Alexander, Martin Anderson, Julius Goodman, J. P. Steckter, William M. Wheeler, George Herdle, E. L. Bonhote, C. Mills, Frank Hoffman, Charles E. Palmer, C. F. Steury, William R. Sheehan and Joseph Vaseoni Sr. in the chairs.

Three charter members—C. Mills, W. R. Sheehan and F. Hoffman—and twenty-one past presidents were among the crowd. Old times were reviewed by the many speakers. Previous to the meeting a turkey dinner, arranged for by Edgar W. Johnson, Lucas Haus and Gilman Clark, was served.

Joint Installation.

Downieville—Officers of Downieville No. 92 and Naomi No. 36 N.D.G.W. were jointly installed January 13, the ceremonies being conducted by J. M. McMahon and Mrs. Neva McMahon. A social time followed and supper was served at midnight.

Three Initiated.

Calistoga—Calistoga No. 86 initiated three candidates January 4, the ritual being exemplified by a team headed by Recording Secretary Louis Carlenzoli as president. A committee was appointed to investigate the proposal to procure a trophy to be contested for by ritual teams of the Napa Valley. Rev. T. J. McKeon, retiring president, in an address summing up the Parlor's accomplishments laid special emphasis on the unity at all times evident among the membership.

Supervisor Heads Parlor.

Oakland—Officers of Piedmont No. 120 were installed jointly with those of Piedmont No. 87 N.D.G.W. January 14, Alameda County Supervisor Walter Melvin Davis becoming president. District Deputy Allen Norris officiated, and Dr. Frederick A. Raulino was chairman of the evening. An entertainment program was followed by dancing.

Benefit Show.

Placerville—Through the co-operation of the Empire theater management, Placerville No. 9 has secured the playhouse for a homeless children benefit show in February.

Past Grand Celebrates Birthday.

Napa—Past Grand President Frank L. Coombs celebrated December 27 his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary at a dinner attended by his children and grandchildren. He is a native of Napa County, and has had a distinguished career in public life.

Tamale Supper.

Ukiah—District Deputy Fred Figone installed the officers of Ukiah No. 71 January 18, Henry Bucknell becoming president. A tamale supper followed the ceremonies.

Past Presidents' Installation.

Oakland—At the joint installation of the officers of East Bay Counties Assembly No. 3 N.S.G.W. Past Presidents and Past Presidents Assembly No. 2 N.D.G.W., F. H. Robson and Mrs. Freida Reichold became, respectively, the governor and the president. Arthur J. Cleu was chairman of the evening, and a group of dancing juveniles presented an hour of pleasing entertainment. Refreshments were served.

Death's Toll.

Bieber (Lassen County)—Henry N. Carlisle, affiliated with Big Valley No. 211, died recently survived by a wife and a daughter.

Hollister (San Benito County)—William Walter Black, charter member and past president of Fremont No. 44, died December 20 survived by a wife, Mrs. Clara L. Black (Copa de Oro No. 105 N.D.G.W.), and a sister-in-law, Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs. The past quarter-century he attended all the Grand Parlor sessions. He was born at Nevada City, February 15, 1867.

Oroville (Butte County)—George P. Sharkey, charter member Argonaut No. 8, died January 11 survived by a wife and two children. He was a native of Chico, aged 70.

CAMP GROUNDS POPULAR.

The 1,252 designated camp grounds in the eighteen national forests of the California region were used by 1,588,328 campers and picnickers during the 1931 vacation season. The maximum use in any one day was by 68,746 people.

These figures do not include guests at fifteen municipal and county camps maintained by eight cities and two counties, seventy-five camps belonging to clubs and fraternal organizations, and private camps in the California national forests.

Heavy Drop—California's 1931 soil crops brought the producers $317,374,000, a drop, compared with the 1930 revenue, of $82,889,000.

Millions for Highways—During 1931 California spent $42,554,000 for permanent highway improvements.

C. A. Craemer. A new baby daughter recently arrived at the home of Mrs. Hazel Flaherty. Mrs. Genevieve Hiskey has been appointed district deputy for Ontario No. 251, instituted December 19. Mrs. Marguerite Dickinson was general chairman for the recent benefit dinner, which was attended by more than 300.

Raising Grand Parlor Funds.

Merced Veritas No. 75 is sponsoring monthly dances in Merced and Mariposa Counties to raise funds with which to entertain the Grand Parlor, which meets here in June. A huge grocery basket is also to be disposed of. All the local civic organizations are co-operating with the Parlor in its Grand Parlor endeavors.

San Luis Obispo County Meet.

San Luis Obispo—San Luisita No. 108 entertained January 14 delegates from San Miguel No. 94 and El Pinal No. 163 (Cambria) to the San Luis Obispo County district meeting at an elaborate chicken dinner. Mrs. N. F. Schlicht was in charge. The ritual was exemplified under the direction of Supervising Deputy Hazel Hansen. District Deputies Elsie Loose and Katie Van Gordon were among the many in attendance.

Joint Installations.

Elk Grove—One of the nicest installation parties in many years took place here January 8. It was a joint installation of Liberty No. 213 and Elk Grove No. 41 N.S.G.W. and was followed by a holiday banquet. District Deputies Nellie Nordstrom and Joseph Lannon of Sacramento, with their respective teams, performed the ceremonies, and the perfectness of the work made the occasion a delightful one. Louisa Krull and Ray Hogaboom became the respective presidents. Grand Trustee Edna Briggs and Clyde Corcoran were the marshals for the ceremonies.

Courtland—Officers of Victory No. 216 and Courtland No. 106 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed by District Deputies May Lucas and William Pierson, Martha Buckley and Thornton Plyman becoming the respective presidents.

Doings of Past Presidents.

Chico—Past Presidents Association No. 5 was entertained January 8 at the home of Mrs. Mabel K. Richards. Officers were installed, Irene Henry becoming president. Bridge followed the business meeting. February 14 the association will have its annual valentine party at the Butte County Infirmary.

Stockton—Officers of Past Presidents Association No. 8, with Miss Alice McDonald as president, were installed January 14. Among the many who participated in the ceremonies were Past Grand Presidents Carrie Roesch-Durham and Mamie G. Peyton. A program was presented under the supervision of Mrs. Lois Armstrong. At the February 11 meeting of the association several candidates will be initiated.

6, survived by a wife and ten children. He was born at Oakland, Alameda County, August 2, 1877.

In early life, "Joe" Ford affiliated with Corona (now Hollywood) Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W., and a few years ago transferred his membership to Glendale Parlor No. 264. He frequently attended sessions of the Grand Parlor, and during the 1930-31 Grand Parlor year he served the Order as Historiographer. He was a noted attorney, and served the Nation faithfully, in times of war as well as in peace-times.—C.M.H.

DESCENDANT '46 PIONEERS LEADS.

Long Beach—Mrs. Violet Tompkins-Henshilwood, descendant of California Pioneers of 1846, was inducted into the office of president of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., January 21, when the officers were installed by District Deputy Eva Mae Bemis. The hall was beautified with wild flowers and birds by Chairman Zella Hodgdon and her committee. Parlors represented included Lugonia, Los Angeles, Rudecinda, San Diego, Verdugo and Woodland.

Addresses were delivered by Grand Trustee Florence Dodson-Schoneman and President Francis Gentry of Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. Mrs. Kate McFadyen, "mother" of No. 154, presented an emblem to Daisy Hansen, outgoing president. After a program, refreshments and dancing concluded a happy occasion.

The last meeting of Long Beach in 1931 was in honor of the new members received during that year. President Daisy Hansen and District Deputy Clara Fay were hostesses at the banquet. The thimble club's last gathering, at the home of Miss Eleanor Johnson, was in recognition of the birthdays of Mms. Henshilwood and Hansen, sisters by birth.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

The first meeting in 1932 of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. was held January 15, when three candidates were initiated. Walter Slosson distributed additional "1932 Bear Club" pins, and Deputy Grand President Ralph I. Harbison spoke on the Order's objectives. The excellent report of the board of trustees was presented by Walter Baskerville. On the Parlor's behalf President Chandos E. Bush presented an emblematic ring to Past President Paul Lombardi.

"Ramona has taken a step to meet the 'universal disturbance'," says Chairman John A. Schwamm of the membership committee. "It offers to its members a way to help themselves as well as the Parlor." Details may be had from him or from Secretary John V. Scott. No. 109's February calendar includes: 12th, initiation. 19th, music and entertainment, followed by refreshments. 26th, educational night.

The officers of Ramona are instituting an educational campaign which will deal with California history, political economy, the Asiatic question and communism. The lectures, to be featured monthly, will start promptly at 8:30 p.m. and will be open to all Native Sons and Native Daughters and their friends. "It is hoped," says the announcement, "that the moral forces of both Orders will, through such educational activities, become mobilized and active and will make themselves felt as a unit in the affairs of California."

Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, dean of the U.S.C. post-graduate school and a noted authority, will deliver a series of addresses on California history. He will present, in a manner interesting to all, word-pictures such as none but a scholar can depict. For his first talk, to be given February 26, he has chosen as his subject, "California's Historical Heritage."

LISTEN IN ON KTM, FEBRUARY 6.

Ocean Park—Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer has arranged with Bert Olbert of radio station KTM to broadcast a program in behalf of the Order of Native Sons February 6 at 7:45 a.m. The program will be mainly devoted to the homeless children work, and in addition to Grand Trustee Meyer, Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell will speak. Miss Cordelia Leventhal of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. will be heard in vocal selections.

Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. initiated six candidates December 28 and also elected officers, Claude Wiseman becoming president. Many events are on the Parlor's social calendar for the January-July term, and extra effort will be put forth to increase the membership to at least 200 prior to Grand Parlor. The first class initiation of 1932 is scheduled for February 8.

During January, Grand Trustee Meyer officially visited the following Parlors: 13th, Chispa No. 139, Murphys; 14th, Columbia No. 258; 15th, Tuolumne No. 144, Sonora; 18th, Stockton No. 7; 20th, Modesto No. 11; 21st, Madera No. 130; 22nd, Fresno No. 25; 25th, Yosemite No. 24, Merced; 27th, Lodi No. 18; 28th, Tracy No. 186. Bakersfield No. 42 will be visited February 3.

ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING.

San Pedro—The largest attended and most enthusiastic gathering of Los Angeles County Native Sons in a long time was that held here January 8 under the auspices of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263, which opened the festivities by serving supper. Following this, the officers of Los Angeles No. 45, Ramona No. 109, Hollywood No. 196, Sepulveda No. 263 and Santa Monica Bay No. 267 were jointly installed. Lee E. Erwin, Chandos L. Bush, Municipal Judge Leo I. Aggeler, Francis J. Fetzer and Claude Wiseman became the respective presidents. Other Parlors represented in the crowd were Arrowhead No. 110, Santa Barbara No. 116, Glendale No. 264 and Santa Ana No. 265.

District Deputy Burrel D. Neighbors conducted the installation, and was highly commended for the excellence of his work. At the invitation of President Lawrence Powers of Sepulveda, President Victor D. Kremer of Los Angeles presided at the opening ceremonies, and past presidents of Ramona were named as temporary officers for installation. At the conclusion of these ceremonies, the new president of Sepulveda, Fetzer, requested Ramona's new presiding officer, Bush, to conduct the meeting, and his first act was to ask the assemblage to stand in silence for a moment in tribute to the late W. Joseph Ford of Glendale No. 264.

Speakers of the evening included, among many others, District Deputy Neighbors, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, Judge Walton J. Wood, Leo Youngworth, Judge Henry Willis, James H. Dodson Sr., State Senator Henry E. Carter and President C. W. McCormick of Santa Barbara No. 116. Undersheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz, conducted the good of the order, and he extracted several shekels, for the benefit of the homeless children, from the pockets of those introduced to the gang. For Santa Monica Bay Parlor, Manley Danforth presented a past president emblem to Harry Honn, and Leo Youngworth performed a like service for Sepulveda Parlor, John T. Gower being the recipient. C.M.H.

SECRETARY GETS ASSISTANT.

At the January 14 meeting of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W., Past President Mark W. Hopkins was the recipient of an emblematic watchfob, Andrew M. Stodel making the presentation address. Earl G. Read was named assistant financial secretary to assist Secretary Richard W. Fryer, and President Lee E. Erwin appointed numerous committees to carry on. January 21 the Parlor gave consideration to new bylaws.

Los Angeles' February program, arranged by the good of the order committee, First Vice-president Owen S. Adams chairman, includes: 4th, business, followed by short stories. 11th, musical program arranged by Organist Roger Johnson. 18th, initiation and refreshments. 25th, special entertainment arranged by Anthony Pierce.

STATUE READY FOR PRESENTATION.

Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. is looking forward with eagerness to the months of February and March. During those days thrilling and happy times are in store. Mrs. Ora M. Evans, chairman of the Felipe de Neve statue committee, announces the heroic bronze statue of the founder of Los Angeles has been completed.

It is planned to present the statue to the city during the visit of Grand President Evelyn Carlson, who will be in the south during February and March. She will make her official visit to Californiana March 8. Miss Marion Parks is making a research to find a suitable historical date for presenting the statue, which will occupy the center of the Plaza, the scene of the founding ceremonies. The Grand President is delighted that Californiana will reach the goal for which its members have been striving the past two years. President Gertrude Tuttle hopes to have a large class of candidates for initiation at the time of Mrs. Carlson's visit.

EXCLUSION TAMPERING OPPOSED.

The N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Interparlor Committee January 22 adopted resolutions opposing a bill in the Federal Congress that proposes to exempt the alien husbands of American women from the immigration quota, and directing Chairman Burrel D. Neighbors and Secretary Fred J. Burmester to address a letter to United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, affiliated with Sunset Parlor No. 26 N.S.G.W. (Sacramento), commending him for the course he is pursuing in the Congress.

Mrs. Mary Noerenberg is chairman of a committee to arrange for a Saint Patrick ball to be given under the auspices of the Interparlor Committee March 17. A committee was also named to arrange for the joint observance of Memorial Day by the local Parlors of Native Sons and Daughters.

Deputy Ruth Ruiz, Betty Sanders becoming president. District Deputy Hazel Hansen of Verdugo was chairman of the evening, and members of Glendale Parlor No. 264 N.S.G.W. acted as ushers. Grand Trustee Florence Dodson-Schoneman and Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer were among the many visitors. Entertainment was furnished by Roger Johnson (Los Angeles N.S.), the Goldsbrough sisters, Harry Highsmith, Dave Snell, Bruce Weyman, Misses Zeffie Tilbury and Rambeau, and Mms. Bruce Weyman and Edith Dobson. The Parlor presented an emblematic ring to Past President Rose Bartel, and flowers were presented Past President Kathryn Burke and the grand officers.

Eighteen of the officers and members of Verdugo visited the "baby" Parlor, Ontario No. 251, January 21, and a large delegation went to San Bernardino January 27 to assist in the installation of Lugonia No. 241's officers. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will pay her official visit to Verdugo March 8, when a large class of candidates will be initiated.

Verdugo and Glendale No. 264 N.S.G.W. will sponsor a leap year ball the latter part of February. All Parlors will, in due time, be advised by letter of the exact date.

THIMBLE CLUB GREAT ASSET.

San Pedro—Officers of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. were installed by District Deputy Clara Fay January 15, Margaret Kreider becoming president. The hall and tables were beautifully decorated by Carrie Northway, Juanita Brook and Louise Fontes, and refreshments were served by Elizabeth Jorgensen, Mary Doyle and Alice Cottet.

In appreciation for services rendered, the Parlor presented an emblematic ring to Tennie Padilla, retiring president. Claudia Perez, Dorothy Markey and Carrie Northway were recipients of gifts of appreciation, also. The Florencita thimble club is a great asset to the Parlor, having added over $100 to the savings account the past six months.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

cases such as the one instanced have just as much chance of saving their holdings as a snowball does of surviving in the lower regions. The law permitting the creation of such districts should be abolished! All the regulations that can possibly be designed to prevent its abuse will not lessen its evils.

Incidentally, is not this law, as generally applied, class legislation and therefore unconstitutional? Why should a few propertyowners in a specified district bear the expense of providing roadways, street lights, etc., for the accommodation of the general public? The state does not create special-assessment districts to improve highways, so why should municipalities create them to improve streets? Propertyowners should, for their own good, provide the means to secure a decision from the United States Supreme Court.

Titled "Economic Oppression," the following —to which we add AMEN!—appeared editorially in the Livingston, Merced County, "Chronicle" of recent date:

"The Dos Palos 'Star' caustically criticises the public record of Senator Hiram W. Johnson as one of 'being against' things, never for things. Well, there is no better way of being for something constructive than to be against things that are destructive. Johnson has been against things that were destructive of human rights. Unfortunately for about a hundred million common folks of this country he has been unsuccessfully against too many times. Had he succeeded in defeating all the things he attempted to defeat, perhaps there wouldn't be so much hunger and poverty and unemployment abroad in the land. Senator Johnson's record is the kind that must be emulated by more men in public life if we are not to become a permanently economic slave race. But, the pity of the thing is, that men like Johnson are criticised by the very people for whom they battle. And economic oppression of a nation is going on apace."

Senator Johnson is one of the nation's very few outstanding and upstanding champions of The Common People. His address in the United States Senate in opposition to the war-debt moratorium was a masterful, fearless plea for the masses. Quoting, briefly, therefrom:

"I am against this moratorium if mine is the only vote in this chamber against it. I am against it because it puts upon the backs of already overburdened American taxpayers what is due them from foreign governments and foreign peoples. The time has come in this country finally when, however weak the voice or however humble the individual or however small may be the compass of those to whom he may reach in word, someone must cry aloud for America and Americans and endeavor to protect these people of ours, already crushed by taxation and crushed by disaster, from those who would fasten upon them an additional sum that is their due, and they ought to have."

Due to Senator Johnson's forceful efforts, facts incidental to the floating of foreign bonds in this country by "our international bankers" have been brought to light that mark them as money-sucking dragons preying upon the people and the public-purse. They have unloaded millions of dollars' worth of those bonds, which are now practically worthless. They worked both ends for huge commissions—the governments, which issued the paper, and the purchasers thereof. "Being against" these within-the-law thieves, Senator Johnson will likely be further criticised in some quarters. But any and all such criticism but adds to the evidence of his worth as a citizen and a public official More power to him!

LIFE IS A PRIVILEGE.

Life is a privilege. The noontide fades
And shadows fall among the winding glades;
The joy-blooms within in the autumn air,
Yet the sweet scent of sympathy is there.
Pale sorrow leads us closer to our kind
And in the serious hours of life we find
Depths in the soul of men which lend new worth
And majesty to this brief span of earth.

Life is a privilege. If some sad fate
Sends us alone to seek the exit gate;
If men forsake us as the shadows fall,
Still does the supreme privilege of all
Come in that reaching upward of the soul
To find the welcoming presence at the goal,
And in the knowledge that our feet have trod
Paths that lead from and must lead us back to God.

N.S.G.W. BOARD GRAND OFFICERS ENDORSES VALLEJO MEMORIAL PARK

San Francisco—The Board of Grand Officers N.S.G.W. met January 23. In attendance were Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, who presided, Junior Past Grand President John T Newell, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand Third Vice-president Chas A. Koenig, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees George F. McNoble, Samuel M Shortridge Jr., Jesse H. Miller, Joseph J. Mc Shane, Frank M. Lane, John M. Burnett and Eldred L. Meyer.

President W. F. Chipman (Halcyon Parlor No 146) and Secretary John H. Wood (Stanford No. 76) of the General Vallejo Memorial Association addressed the Board, and on motion the proposal to purchase the Vallejo property for a state park [referred to on page 7 this issue The Grizzly Bear] was endorsed.

A set of rituals was ordered given to General John A. Sutter Past Presidents Assembly No 10 (Sacramento), which is frequently called on to exemplify the ritual for Subordinate Parlors. Sets of rituals had previously been given other Assemblies working in the interest of the Order.

Following a general discussion of affairs of the Order, the Board adjourned to the call of Grand President Gonzalez.

The Board of Grand Trustees also met and elected George F. McNoble as chairman, to succeed A. W. Garcelon, resigned.

Gas Revenue Mounts — California received $41,625,893 in gasoline taxes during 1931, an increase over 1930 of 4.18 percent.

In Memoriam

JAMES J. SMITH.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to call to his eternal rest our late brother J. J. Smith; and whereas, Brother Smith was a true and loyal Native Son, a patriotic citizen and a loving husband and father, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Mount Tamalpais Parlor No. 64 N.S.G.W. extends its deepest sympathy to his widow and family in their bereavement; further be it resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be sent to the family of our late brother, also a copy to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication; also, that the charter of the Parlor be draped for a period of thirty days and that the Parlor stand in silence in respect to his memory.

Respectfully submitted,
C. F. REINDOLLAR,
M. W. LABEL,
LOUIS J. PETER,
Committee on Resolutions.

San Rafael, January 4, 1932.

MARY REYNOLDS.

To the Officers and Members of Plumas Pioneer Parlor No. 219 Native Daughters of the Golden West: Your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiments and deep-felt sympathy of the members of our Parlor on the death of Sister Mary Reynolds, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take from our midst our beloved sister, Mary Reynolds, and to summon her to realms of higher life; and whereas, in her passing our Parlor has lost a most highly esteemed sister, and the community in which she lived a respected and loved citizen; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Plumas Pioneer Parlor extend sincere sympathy to her husband and bereaved relatives, and further be it resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our sister, that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor.

RHODA THOMPSON,
BERTHA MONCUR,
Committee.

Quincy, January 5, 1932.

ANNA CATHERINE ADAMS.

To the Officers and Members of Eltapome Parlor No. 55 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Anna Catherine Adams, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, One of our beloved members, Sister Anna Catherine Adams, has answered the call of our Heavenly Father, with deepest sorrow we bow in humble prayer, realizing our loss is her heavenly gain. While we pay loving tribute to her memory, we are not unmindful of the sympathy we owe her loved ones. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family, in the loss of a devoted and loving mother, our sincere sympathy; also, that a copy of these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of this Parlor, a copy be sent to the family of our deceased sister, and also to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

HONORA B. FIELDS,

Oroville, January 8, 1932.

HARRIET HICKMAN.

To the Officers and Members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister, Harriet Hickman, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has again entered our Parlor and taken from our midst our beloved sister, Harriet Hickman, we deeply feel the loss of her whose kind and genial manner won the love and esteem of all who knew her, but with us there remains the memory of her devotion to our Order, her pride in its achievements and her intense loyalty to its ideals, and we realize the still greater loss of those who were nearest and dearest to her; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87 N.D.G.W., extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family and devoted friends; and be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Oakland, January 14, 1932.

IRENE CASSELMAN.

To the Officers and Members of El Pescadero Parlor No. 82 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee on resolutions report the following:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take to our heavenly home our beloved sister and friend, Irene Casselman, and whereas, in view of the loss we have sustained and of the greater loss sustained by those who are nearest and dearest to her, be it

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to His will we are mindful of the vacant chair in our Parlor and feel that our members are honored to have been associated with one so universally respected; be it further resolved, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them for consolation to Him, who doeth all things well.

"Let us think of her as a rose that climbs the garden wall and blossoms on the other side." Be it also resolved, that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and that a copy be sent to the family of the departed.

Submitted in P.D.E.A.,

Tracy, January 15, 1932.

GRACE STANDLEE RICHARDSON.

To the Officers and Members of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister, Grace Standlee Richardson, do respectfully submit the following:

Our golden chain of fraternity has been severed, the Angel of Death has entered the portals of our Order and summoned to eternal rest our beloved sister, leaving us to mourn her absence from our midst whose memory we will cherish.

"God is merciful and just'
And so by faith's correcting sight
We bow before His will, and trust
Howe'er they seem, He doeth all things right."

For our sister, the trials, the sorrows and the disappointments that must come in every life, however sheltered, are ended, and she peacefully sleeps. Reverently then would we say, "Thy will be done."

Resolved, That we, the members of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W., extend our sincere sympathy to the sorrowing family; be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be forwarded to the family of our deceased sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication; and be it further resolved, that the Parlor charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

"LELAND STANFORD."
By George T. Clark; Stanford University Press, Publisher, Stanford University, California; Price, $4.

This book treats of the life and the accomplishments of Leland Stanford, deceased, governor of California during the Civil War, one of the builders of the Central Pacific railroad, and founder of Stanford University in Santa Clara County. It most interestingly presents the life-story of a notable California figure, and in the relating considerable previously unpublished material, dealing with early-day politics, is entwined.

Stanford, born in New York State in 1824, came to California via Nicaragua, arriving at San Francisco aboard the "Independence" July 12, 1852. For three years he operated stores in El Dorado and Placer Counties, selling miners' supplies. In 1855 he went to Sacramento City, his home for many years thereafter, and engaged in general merchandising.

Stanford's first public office in California was as justice of the peace, 1853-4, in the then-thriving mining town of Michigan Bluff, Placer County. In 1861 he was elected governor of the state for a two-year term, 1862-63, and would not consent to be a candidate for re-election. Twice, in 1885 and 1891, he was selected by the State Legislature to represent California in the United States Senate, and he served in that capacity from March 4, 1885, until his death at Palo Alto, June 20, 1893.

Stanford was prominent in the development of California and the West, being one of the organizers at Sacramento City, in 1860, of a company to build a much-needed transcontinental railroad. June 28, 1861, the certificate of incorporation of that company, the Central Pacific Railroad Company of California, was filed with the secretary of state. In 1862 the Federal Government extended aid to the project, actual construction work was begun at Sacramento City, January 8, 1863, and the last spike was driven at Promintory, Utah, May 10, 1869.

In 1884, while traveling abroad, Stanford's only child, Leland Stanford Jr., died at Florence, Italy. In memory of his son, he decided to devote his vast wealth, accumulated in California, to the building and the maintenance of a university, and so, due to his great generosity, Stanford University was founded.

"The crucial test of the character of a rich man is in the use he makes of his wealth," says the author, George T. Clark, director emeritus Stanford University Library. "He may use it to acquire power or for personal aggrandizement, or he may use it to benefit society. Of his great acquired wealth—created wealth—Leland Stanford came to regard himself as trustee, vested with the responsibility of wisely administering it in the interests of society. He could conceive of no higher use for it than of devoting it to an educational purpose and to that end he founded a University which should 'aim to fit men to realize the possibilities of humanity,' in order that the graduates might 'in a measure become missionaries to spread correct ideas of civilization.' That University stands as an enduring monument to the largeness of heart and creative instinct of its Founder, and to his good will toward all mankind."

The book "Leland Stanford" has a bibliography, and is well illustrated. An authentic record of one of the West's noted empire builders, it will be given a hearty welcome by all students and lovers of Californiana.

"FUR TRADE AND EMPIRE."
By Frederick Merk; Harvard University Press, Publisher, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

This volume features the 1824-25 journal of George Simpson, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company territories in America, and as such, director of the economic life of the greater part of what is now the Dominion of Canada and the Pacific Northwest of the United States. It is of varied interest, offering a summary of the industry of half a continent, and containing material for business history as well as for the student of statecraft.

Simpson was born in Scotland, in 1792, and entered the business world as a London clerk in 1809. In 1821 he was a man with a future rather than a past. By 1826 he was governor-in-chief of all the Hudson's Bay Company territories in America. "The Oregon Country, which is the central theme of the document, was in 1824-25 a region in dispute," says the introduction. "Not only was it contended for by Great Britain and the United States, but it was claimed also by the Russian Czar. . . . Governor Simpson was ambitious to win the Oregon Country, or as much of it as possible, for Great Britain and for the Hudson's Bay Company."

As a background for the journal, the volume has an appendix containing many of the Hudson's Bay Company's letters and documents of 1822-30, which shed light on a little-known period of the British fur trade and its various ramifications. There is also a reprint of a map "exhibiting all the new discoveries in the interior parts of North America." It was originally published in London in 1795, and additions were made in the years 1811, 18, 19, 20, 24. Among the letters is one, dated "Ft. Vancouver 26 Dec. 1828," from Governor Simpson to Jedidiah S. Smith, the first American to come overland to California, which says, in part:

"You are aware that previous to your arrival here in the Month of Aug last M McLoughlin the Hon Co principal representative at this place had determined on sending a party under the command of M McLeod on a Trapping and Trading Expedition in a Southerly Direction from hence & that the equipment of this party was nearly completed when you to our great surprise appeared at this Establish. The melancholy report you brought of the destruction of 15 men out of your party of 19 a few days previous on your way from S Francisco to the Columbia by the Natives of the Umpqua and of the pillage of your property excited in the minds of the Gentlemen here the most lively feelings of Sympathy and commiseration and [moved] by those feelings towards you and your unfortunate companions M McLoughlin instructed M McLeod to proceed with his party to the Umpqua to communicate with the Natives, to ascertain the cause of their atrocious conduct, to punish them should it have been considered expedient & found practicable and to endeavor to recover your property. He according went thither. . . . While on the spot he learnt that the Melancholy catastrophe was occasioned by some harsh treatment on the part of your people towards the Indians who visited your camp . . . ."

Also, a letter from John McLoughlin to Captain Simpson, dated "Ft. Vancouver 24 Nov. 1830":

"We are informed a considerable quantity of Beaver is collected at Monterey [California] and its vicinity. . . . You will endeavor to ascertain if there are any settlers on the Bonaventura [*], and if there would be any objections to our sending a party of Trappers to that part of the country or to the Bay of St. Francisco. This information you could only get from private sources, and it is very uncertain whether even if we had leave that we would send. However as Beaver are numerous about that place it is well to ascertain the point and you will also endeavor to learn if we could be allowed to take Cattle, Horses and Mules out of California. You will demand if you think it safe the debt due to the late N. W. Company by the Government of California. If you become acquainted

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

DISHONESTY, BORN OF DOLLAR-LUST among the few, drove prosperity from this nation and in slipped depression! The economic ills which afflict the whole country are but the offsprings of that dishonesty! Dishonesty rules, and the nation decays!

Dishonesty—which includes deceit, misrepresentation, and any and every act that lacks honesty, secured a firm foothold in these United States during the world war and then, fostered and encouraged, and in numerous instances practiced, by national leaders in political, business, professional and social life, grew to monstrous proportions. It penetrated every section of the country, and every fibre of the economic system. A national breakdown had, of necessity, to result, for the fiddler always exacts the toll. Now, we are paying for the reign of dishonesty, the blackest era in the history of this nation—and what a price!

Startling facts revealed in the "Congressional Record" furnish ample substantiation for the statement that international bankers, nationally-known bond dealers and other financially high-powered, but morally low-geared, "leading" citizens have practiced dishonesty so thoroughly and unceasingly that on them should be visited the hatred of the masses, for their acts of dishonesty are mainly responsible for the depression and its accompanying misery. They are openly charged with fleecing the investing public out of billions of dollars, and they are credited with causing most of the small-bank failures. They have not denied the charges, apparently for the reason that they cannot do so successfully.

Is it not queer, then, that so-called depression-relief legislation enacted by the Federal Congress, at the instigation of the national administration, should be so designed as to benefit, first and directly, the identical big interests that, through dishonesty, brought on the depression? A dole, to the extent of two billions of The People's money, has been provided for them, through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but the little fellows, a vast majority of whom are at least honest, have been given no direct consideration.

Having launched the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a campaign was inaugurated to coax out of hiding an estimated $1,300,000,000 supposed to be stored away by the common people. The appeal has merit, but lacks persuasion, in that there is no guarantee that this vast sum, also, will not be hooked by the dishonest favored few. When honesty succeeds dishonesty in the financial-saddle, this money will return to circulation. Until then, its owners are justified in keeping it in their possession.

"What you do speaks so loudly that I cannot hear your words," wrote Emerson. Moratoriums, doles, credit expansions, etc., will not cure the nation's ills. The sainted worshipers of the almighty dollar must be dethroned; they must be cast out of the political and the business life of this country! Honesty must triumph, if the nation is to survive!

The Tehama County Ministerial Association recently adopted this resolution, to be forwarded to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America:

"We deplore the indifference and resultant inactivity of the high offices of the Christian Church regarding the Sino-Japanese War. Has the Christian Church no moral indignation? We urge the merciful and most effective method of world boycott against Japan and not military aggression. Above all else the United States of America cannot under any consideration, agree to the partition of China, and therefore, stands unalterably opposed to any such move. We also condemn the theory and practice of extra-territorality."

The Federal Council will not be influenced in the least by the resolution, for the manipulators of that organization are pro-Jap through and through. The suggestion of a world boycott against the Japs is an excellent one, just the same, and should be put into effect.

The State Prison Board did a good job when it fixed the term in prison for Gilbert H. Beesemeyer of Los Angeles, who deliberately fleeced hundreds of investors out of millions of dollars, at forty years.

There are other "high-financers" of the Angel City still at large who should also be sojourning at San Quentin or Folsom. They wrecked, for their own financial gain, several institutions into which innocent people poured millions of dollars. They, however, were able to keep the eyes of Justice effectively blindfolded! So, instead of being where they justly belong, they are in the top-crust of the social-pie.

All political barometers indicate Governor James Rolph will, at an early date, call an extra session of the California State Legislature.

Repeal of the Acquisition and Improvement (Mattoon) Act of 1925, which authorizes the creation of special-assessment districts, should be the first thing done at the session. The law is wide open to abuse, and of course the trick-

MOUNT DIABLO

(JAMES NOBLE HATCH.)

Old Mount Diablo grim and still
Who gave thee that unholy name?
Who would thy merits thus defame
That ne'er hath done us any ill?
O sent'nel grim that bideth there
A guardian of the southern gate
Should not thy name reiterate
Some noble chief's immortal fame?
And yet how little needst thou care
What name mere man may formulate?

As herald of approaching day
Thy brow in crimson splendor shown,
And by thee is the midday known
When o'er thy crest the sun gives stay,
And as the lengthening shadows grow
And day is drawing to a close
The last retreating beam that shows
Rests on thy pinnacle alone,
And then the lingering afterglow
Outlines thy form in calm repose.

And when in through the Golden Gate
The fog comes rolling up the bay
And wraps the foothills all in gray
And all the plains obliterate,
Yet high above this silent sea
Thy noble crest shows still more bright,
Resplendent in the mellow light
That gleams athwart the closing day;
And when deep darkness covers thee
We feel thy presence in the night.

And when the storm-clouds dark as doom
For days have hung their curtains down,
And from the depths with sombre frown
The landscape peers from out the gloom,
Then comes a rift across the skies
And there again thy form appears
As constant as the countless years
That have proclaimed thy fair renown
And therewithal good hopes arise
And Nature dries away her tears.

Old Mount Diablo ages old
That changeth not whate'er betide,
Nor storm nor night can ever hide
Thy pictured presence wreathed in gold,
And when dark gloom beclouds the day
Or taunting shadows fill the night,
The vision of thy sunlight height
Which ever in the thoughts abide,
Chase all the truant fears away
And dire forebodings put to flight.

PRESENTATION OF MANY YEARS AGO

HERE IS A MOST INTERESTING article from "The Weekly Alta California" (San Francisco) of March 11, 1876. It was mailed January 5 to The Grizzly Bear by Mrs. Laura J. Frakes-Toman of Nice, Lake County, former Grand Secretary of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West. In an accompanying letter, Mrs. Toman says: "Looking through my scrapbook, I came across the enclosed article. I think it would be great to publish it now." The article follows, exactly as originally published:

N.S.G.W.

Meeting of the Native Sons of the Golden West—Presentation of an Elegant Bible

The Native Sons had a well attended meeting, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather. Several candidates for membership were elected and will be initiated next Thursday evening. The Society will join in the procession on the Fourth of July, and have a grand ball in the evening. The Committee has already secured Union Hall for the occasion. PRESENTATION

It being announced that a presentation was about to take place, General Winn came into the room and laid upon the altar a large Bible, saying: "Mr. President: I have the honor of representing Messrs. A. L. Bancroft & Co. in presenting to the Society this elegant copy of the Holy Scriptures. In the Old Testament we find the teachings of the Jews, who believe that a Savior will come. In the New Testament we find the teachings of Christians, who believe that the Savior has come. The doctrines of both embrace the moral principle, 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.' As your faith is, so you shall be saved.

"Our laws are based upon the Bible; in living up to its teachings we are sure to live in harmonious brotherhood, whether Jew or Christian. In this age of the world every Association of Americans should have a copy of the Scriptures resting upon their altar, to remind the members of their respective duties to God and man. The Bible inspires religious veneration, and directs our attention to things of a Heavenly nature.

"In time, this sacred Book will become a valued relic of this institution, and a memento of the house of Bancroft. In 1856 they commenced business in this city; in 1870 they built their magnificent storehouse on Market Street. There they carry on printing, lithography and engraving. They have a large blank book manufactory and music department; the whole making up one of the largest and most complete publishing establishments in the United States; they employ more than one hundred hands; their skill and energy command our admiration, and furnish an example for all young men to follow.

"As time rolls on we and our successors will respect the teachings of the Bible and learn to love and assist each other. Now, in the name of A. L. Bancroft & Co., I take great pleasure in presenting this splendid Bible to the Native Sons of the Golden West."

Jasper Fishbourne, President, replied by saying: "Brother Winn, we take great pleasure in accepting this sacred work of literature—the Holy Bible. We feel proud of this grand and sacred token of esteem, presented by one of the oldest and largest publishing houses on the Pacific Coast. It shows that we are not only known among ourselves, but appreciated by the public. They would judge us harshly if they did not think us a worthy association of young men. So let us stand as firm as the Rock of Ages, and show to the world what we are and what we will be in future. In conclusion allow me, Brother Winn, to return through you our sincere thanks to Messrs. A. L. Bancroft & Co., and assure them of our gratitude."

The following preamble and resolutions were then unanimously adopted: "Whereas, A. L. Bancroft & Co. have presented to this Society an elegant Bible; therefore Resolved, That we gratefully accept the Holy Book as appropriate to our organization, and will cherish it as a sacred memento of the forethought and generosity of the house of Bancrofts. Resolved, That we sincerely thank Messrs. A. L. Bancroft & Co. for the sacred and elegant present, and that an engrossed copy of these proceedings be signed by the proper officers and presented by the President. Resolved, That this Bible shall be laid upon our altar at every meeting of the Society, and locked up at the hour of adjournment."

The ceremony being ended, it was received with enthusiastic demonstration of peculiar pleasure. The presentation was a great surprise, as none present knew anything about it, except General Winn and the President. Next Sunday at two o'clock their parliamentary school will meet at Anthony's Hall; the ball committee will meet there a half hour before.

The Bible contains all the latest improvements, with a synopsis of each book and elegantly engraved illustrations; the binding is magnificent. sters have taken full advantage of it. As a result, numerous propertyowners have been taxed to their financial ruin. There are other special-assessment laws, too, and all of them should be repealed.

In the meantime, propertyowners in special-assessment districts created for the purpose of improving streets and installing street-lighting systems should unite and take their tax-burden troubles to the courts—the United States Supreme Court, if necessary. There is excellent reason to believe all such improvements, and the tax arising therefrom, would be invalidated on a plea of class legislation. And it certainly is class legislation to compel a few citizens of a

STATUE OF LOS ANGELES' FOUNDER TO BE PRESENTED CITY BY NATIVE DAUGHTERS

WHILE THE NAME OF FELIPE DE Neve still echoes from the recent celebration in honor of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the City of Los Angeles, a deferred honor will climax the event when, March 12, a group of California's Native Daughters will unveil and present to the modern metropolis a splendid bronze statue of the man to whom Los Angeles owes its beginning.

For more than two years, Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. has anticipated the coming ceremony as the fulfillment of an idea inspired by love for the city and reverence for the spiritual manner of its founding. Many vicissitudes have attended the work of carrying out the project, which was first suggested by Mrs. Harry Leigh Bentley and Miss Eliza Quinn, at one time members of Californiana's history and landmarks committee.

While enthusiastic and whole-hearted support of the movement has been given by Californiana's members in general, much credit for the successful termination of the project is due to the fidelity, unflagging energy and gentle diplomacy of Mrs. Amos Otis Evans, general chairman of the Felipe de Neve statue project. Many discouraging obstacles have been surmounted, and the quest for a sculptor of renown was most fittingly ended in the selection of Henry Lion, a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. His work has won the recognition of foremost critics, and his figure of De Neve will add enduring luster to his fame.

The site chosen for the placement of the figure is significantly commemorative, being the center of the fountain in the Plaza, at the exact spot where the living De Neve pierced the earth with his sword, at the beginning of the ceremonies attending the city's founding.

Honored by the presence of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, the final act in the little drama of Californiana's reverential love for the city and its spiritually minded founder, will begin promptly at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of

MRS. GERTRUDE JOUGHIN TUTTLE,
President Californiana N.D.G.W.

Saturday, March 12. The following program will add to the beauty and the dignity of the ceremony:

The playing of "America," by the R.O.T.C. military band. Chief Lone Star will sound his silver trumpet, Nell Lockwood Josephs answering with Indian calls. A portrayal of Don Felipe de Neve, in costume, reading his original founding proclamation. Unveiling of the statue, with Miss Marion Parks briefly outlining historical highlights of events under the different governments; Mrs. Arthur Wright unfurling the Spanish flag, Mrs. Ysabel del Valle Cram the flag of Mexico, Miss Mary Emily Foy the California (State) Bear Flag, and Mrs. Amos Otis Evans the Flag of the United States of America. Introduction of the sculptor, Henry Lion. Singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." The presentation of the statue to the city, on behalf of Californiana Parlor, by President Gertrude Joughin Tuttle. Acceptance of the gift by the city through Carl B. Wirsching, president Board Public Works and member Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. Confirmation of the acceptance by Mayor John C. Porter. Closing address by Grand President

"DON FELIPE DE NEVE
"Founder El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de los Angeles. Erected March 12, 1932, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary, by Californiana Parlor No. 247 Native Daughters of the Golden West."

Evelyn I. Carlson, who will pay tribute to the Native Daughters. At the conclusion of the ceremony, a dinner in honor of the Grand President and other distinguished guests will be given.—B.S.M.

FOUNDER and FOUNDING

(OLIVE LOPEZ.)

"Felipe de Neve was one of the few great men of the Spanish regime in California. Eight of the chain of twenty-one missions had been built when, in February 1777, he assumed the governorship of the eight-year-old province of California. He was serving in that capacity when, September 4, 1781, El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de Los Angeles was born, one of the few places in the United States founded with forethought and with religious and civil ceremonies.

"King Carlos III of Spain gave his proclamation that three pueblos were to be founded in California, including San Jose and Los Angeles. After Governor Felipe de Neve had received the official document he set the September date for the founding of Los Angeles, on the site of the Indian village called Yang-na, the quiet and happy home of the natives who, in their blissful ignorance, lived naked in the warm sunshine of California. It is probable that they were in the same happy state two centuries before, when Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the Christopher Columbus of California, landed at San Pedro to obtain water and found the Indians enjoying a great rabbit drive. The pueblo of Los Angeles was to differ as much from Yang-na as the modern city of today does from the original Spanish settlement. No trace remains of Yang-na nor of the original pueblo founded by De Neve.

"Spain had adopted the plaza plan of laying out a pueblo long used in European colonies. De Neve planned to bring actual settlers to cultivate the soil, to build up the pueblo, and to afford protection to the government and the missions. So he went to the Mission San Gabriel, arriving the day before the date set for the founding. The nine-mile march from the mission was one of pomp and circumstance. It is now like a glamorous dream to look back to that fateful day, a century and a half ago, when Felipe de Neve, the gobernador, rode at the head of the procession upon his milk-white steed, accompanied by his swarthy troopers, brown-robed Franciscan padres, acolytes, eleven settlers with their families, and other inhabitants interested in the unusual ceremonies.

"A plaza had been laid out, and each of the families given a town lot for a home and a farm outside. The proclamation of King Charles was read, the governor and founder, De Neve, made a speech giving his well-thought-out 'regulations' a volley of musketry was fired and a te-deum was sung. Night fell, and the new-born city, wrapped in swaddling clothes, spent its first night in solitary loneliness.

"The roots of Spain are deep and stubborn. Wherever they were planted in the New World they endured. And although El Pueblo la Reina de Los Angeles lay long sleepy and thriftless in the warm sunshine, awaiting its great day, it held on through the years. At last the chrysalis burst and became the great metropolis of today. Not every city in the world has endured 150 years, but the City of Our Lady Queen of the Angels, is as virile as though its youth had just begun. Its splendid past will be as nothing, compared with the tremendous future awaiting it. And all honor is due Felipe de Neve, aristocrat of Spain, wise founder and administrator. This city did not 'just happen;' it was deliberately planned.

"De Neve passed away in 1784, the same year that the benevolent presidente of the missions, Father Junipero Serra, went to his reward. The double blow was a terrible one for the young and hesitating province of California, and no pueblo felt the loss of their guiding hands more than Los Angeles. Corporal Vicente Feliz, who took De Neve's place as 'comisionado,' saved the town in its direful straits, his title having been given him by De Neve before his death, while "The traditions of our Spanish origin still linger and are fondly cherished. Citizens are awakening to the heritage which is theirs. Tradition was born here. The conquistadores swept through this country and established a region of ideals, color and expansive life and culture even while New England was an untrod wilderness. We had haciendas while they had huts; we had ranchos while they had corn patches; we lived while they existed! Long ere the Pilgrims landed in 1620 on the coast of Massachusetts, the Golden West had a well-established civilization. Culture! The mission fathers taught here while Boston was an unkempt, unlettered village.

"In Olvera street, just opposite the spot where Los Angeles began, stands the ancient Avila house, the headquarters of General Stockton. It tells a thrilling tale of the 'days of the dons' and of the culture and traditions of the city 'without a past.' Los Angeles was in existence before England relinquished control over the colonies; in fact, four years before the Boston tea party. Its site was spoken of by Father

JULY 4 BECAME A MEMORABLE DAY FOR the new inhabitants. Word was sent by the Lugos for all the people in the valley to take an active part in flagraising ceremonies in San Gorgonia Pass. Much excitement ensued. The trip to the pass was not as difficult as had been anticipated. As the procession moved upward, with a flagbearer carrying a hand-woven American Flag leading the way, the sight was an impressive one. Men, women and children, some horseback and some walking, followed a padre, the Lugos, and the father of the idea, Dan Sexton. National hymns were sung as the group marched onward.

"Got your place picked out to place this here banner?" asked one of the men of Sexton. "Yep. And it's the highest peak in the pass," replied Dan. It was he who suggested placing some sort of a marker, so those coming by the next caravans would know they were nearing a settled grant of extensive land.

It was noon. The small group were tired, but were still carrying on. "We are here!" cried Sexton. "Let us rest a bit before we have our services." The group relaxed somewhat. Several of the men who had been carrying picks and shovels laid them down beside a stake.

"Hey, Dan, what about this stake?" asked one of the men. "Oh, that," replied Sexton, "is the place I want that flag put." And in a short time the men began to dig a cavity in which to set the staff of the flag.

"How's that?" asked Jose Maria Lugo. Dan looked at the excavation, mopped his brow and said, "Couldn't be better," "How soon do you want to begin the rites?" "Now, if Sexton is ready," answered Lugo.

Dan overheard the question and the answer. Turning to the good padre he said, "Father, will you please offer a prayer of thanksgiving?" "Si, senor," answered the padre, and the group, with bowed heads, listened to the resonant and kind voice of the padre. At the conclusion of his short, but beautiful, prayer a loud "Amen!" came from those about him. All eyes then turned to Dan Sexton. "Dan, will you now take charge of the ceremonies?" asked Jose Vicente Lugo.

"Si, senor." And so, with an impressive ritual, the American Flag was hoisted upon its standard, a verse of "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung, and hats were thrown into the air. Dan Sexton was very happy, and proud! "This flag will be a guiding hand for those who enter this valley. May God lead them safely into this protected abiding place."

The sun was setting behind the mountain peaks and the herioc little band followed the Lugo brothers, the good padre and Dan Sexton back to their homes, still singing in perfect rhythm.

The sun sank behind a tall mountain peak. Dan Sexton, the padre and the three Lugo brothers stood at attention as they faced the flag, waving in the breeze. "The guiding hand of the rancho," said Jose Maria Lugo slowly, and the sun cast its twilight shadows upon the five straight figures as they gave a final salute to the banner fast fading from view.

EPISODE 5.
MILITARISM.

April 1847 was a red-letter month for the settlers of the Spanish grant. The Lugo brothers were becoming more and more concerned. The invasions of the Indians had been many, and tragic. Lives had been lost, and much that was of value had been destroyed.

Jose Carmen Lugo was holding a conference with his men of the mission district. He was becoming discouraged. "Do any one of you know of any way," he asked, "in which to subdue these warring tribes?" "Send for the Mormon battalion!" suggested one. "Not a bad suggestion. But it will take several days before the infantry could receive our dispatch, and this frontier is suffering terribly from these invasions!"

"Senor, I shall go at once, if you desire it," volunteered one of the men. "Yes, and I shall go with him," chimed in another. "No, let's try and find another way out," replied Lugo.

But before the month had passed, a corps of Mormon dragoons had been notified, was enroute to protect the settlers, and orders were given to Colonel A. J. Smith of the United States Infantry to establish a military post in Cajon Pass.

Near the end of the month Colonel Smith and his aides were firmly established at the entrance to the pass. The Indians became afraid of the White man's activities, but the settlers were feeling more at ease. Their property and lives were now secure for the time being.

By the month of June, of the same year, a beautiful romance began to bloom between one of the corporals and a daugher of Jose Maria Lugo. "But I cannot go with you when you go," protested the senorita, as the soldier pleaded for her consent. "I know, darling, but I am not going to return to my infantry. I am going to stay right here, marry you, and be happy." "But how do I know whether you have a wife somewhere else? I must be very careful, you know!" The senorita looked worried, as she had little faith in soldiers.

The young corporal laughed. "If I had a wife, do you think I would be urging you to marry me and keep telling you how much I love you? Do you think I would be here without her? Oh no, she would be here too, if she had to walk!" "Oh!" and the senorita blushed, and hid her face on his shoulder.

Several days later the colonel received orders to return his dragoon to the San Gabriel district. The soldier-lover had not approached his commander concerning his discharge or his intended plans, though he knew full well the colonel was aware of the reason for his numerous evening visits to the valley. Finally, however, the corporal mustered up his courage, and faced his commander with a serious, but frightened, face.

"Well, what can I do for you, young man?" asked Colonel Smith rather sternly. The boy shifted from one foot to the other, swallowed hard, and stammered, "I-I—well—I want to-to get married. I-I want to ask-for an honorable-discharge from the dragoon. I-I- want to stay here. You-you see, I am in love with one of Jose Maria Lugo's daughters, and I just can't leave here. Anyway, I think that I will make a better husband than I am a soldier!"

The colonel burst out laughing. There were tears in his eyes. He slapped the crude table before him with the open palm of his hand. It was several minutes before he could control himself. "So that's it, is it?" he said, after finally controlling himself. "I've been watching you, young man," he continued, "and I knew full well that there was something more than the country you wanted to look at! If you really love her and want to marry her, why there is no reason why you should not do so. Too, your service with this dragoon has been faithful, and you have discharged your duties well. I see no reason why I cannot make arrangements for your honorable discharge."

The young soldier was more than surprised at the commander's attitude toward his plans. Tears rolled down his cheeks, and he threw himself at the feet of the colonel. The commander looked down at the boy, shook his head and said, "Get up, son! I know how it is. I was young once, too, you know, and I, too, fell in love with and married a young Spanish maid. We have lived together, happily, for the last twenty years. I hope you have as much happiness. I shall see that you will receive your honorable discharge and that you have the proper kind of a wedding."

The young soldier arose, but was too overcome to thank the colonel. "Now, sir," continued the officer, "have you seen the girl's father and received his consent?" "No-oo-oo-sir," stammered the boy, "but I intend to, now that I have your permission." "Very well," replied the colonel, "go at once and complete your plans."

Several days later the young corporal had not only received his discharge papers, but had the full consent of Jose Maria Lugo. Until then, he never knew how happy a man could be. And the little senorita was not only as happy, but was spending many busy days completing her wedding costumes.

The wedding day arrived, and the sun never shone more brightly. The birds in the trees sang throughout the ceremony. The old mission was celebrating the first marriage of a Lugo and an American. An abundance of flowers were placed upon the festive table, and the altar in the mission chapel was not only covered with blossoms, but tall tapers burned as they had never burned before!

Prior to the wedding, Spanish music rang out, musicians having come in of their own accord. Laughter and gayety reigned. But as the bridal party approached the altar the air became stilled and an atmosphere of reverence pervaded as the good padre took his place before the happy couple.

Immediately following the ceremony the principals in the event proceeded toward the banquet table. The dragoons lined up, every man raising his shining sword above his head, and with the gaily-costumed senors and senoritas the bridal couple were forced to follow the procession to their respective places at the festive board. The padre waited until every one had been seated, then raised his hand for silence. In tones of deep reverence, he asked the blessings for the future life of the young couple.

"This has been not only one of the happiest days of my life, but a most beautiful one, father," said Jose Maria Lugo "I never saw the mission look so gay, with its blooming gardens and bright-plumed birds. The costumes here today are of the most brilliant hue. Even your robe looks gayer." "Thank you, senor." "And you presented a most beautiful service."

The following week, the battalion was ordered to return to San Gabriel. With deep regret, and full appreciation for the service the dragoons had given them, the settlers and their padre, with heavy hearts, bade their friend, Colonel A. L. Smith, and his company a sad adios.

EPISODE 6.
LEGIONS.

Within the walls of the old mission sat an Indian chief. He was squatting upon the ground, beneath an oak tree, smoking his long slender pipe of peace and was half dreaming of days gone by. His fast-dimming eyes gazed at the surroundings about him. Near by were a half-dozen Indian and White boys playing one of the Indian games he had taught them some time ago. In the corner of the mission gardens a padre was telling a group of small, interested girls the origin of the flowers.

The old chief sighed, looked at the two groups, and made an incoherent sound. His active life within those walls had now become quiet and serene. His mind had pictured a panorama of the years just passed. How full of activity and gayety they were! Now, he was spending his reclining years in solitude, and love for this younger generation.

The boys had become tired of their play and, seeing the faithful old chief looking forlorn and desolate, held an informal conference among themselves. "Let's have the old chief tell us a story. I'm tired," said the leader of the group. "Let's!" echoed the rest of the playmates, and the small band of companions made their way toward the pensive Indian chief.

The old man looked at the group, smiled and nodded. "Well, well, and what brings my little good friends here?" "Oh, lots! We're tired of running around so much, and we thought that maybe you would tell us a story or something. It would help us with our history lesson," said one of the boys. "We are learning about the Indians now, you know."

"I see, I see," grinned the old chief. "Well, sit down around me and I shall do my best. What do you want me to tell you first?" The boys made themselves comfortable at the feet of the chief. "We don't care," said one, near him.

"Gosh, I do care!" replied the eldest of the group. "I want to learn all about the mountains around here, the story of the Arrowhead and everything. I have a test tomorrow." "I see, I see," nodded the Indian. "And nothing could please me more."

An enthusiastic applause greeted the now-happy Indian. He loved these future citizens, and it was one of his delights to be able to relate to them actual history in an interesting way. He answered no end of questions, and as he held his listeners seemed to live over again the days that had brought hardship and unpleasantness, as well as those that were happier and in harmony.

"Many years ago," he began, "long before the White man or Spanish people came, and long before I was born, one of my famous ancestors came with a band of warriors. As they rode their spirited and wild horses into the valley, they were amazed at the lay of the land. They saw deer, bear, wild game and many long-horned sheep. My forefather reined in his horse and brought him to a standstill. He shaded his eyes with his hand and scanned the valley. The mountain peaks were alluring. The shadows and the lights were ever changing upon them. These mountains before him were the mountains of mystery, as he knew not what they contained. Here were the slopes of the San Gorgonia, also known as Grayback, San Bernardino, San An-

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE UNITED STATES SENATE WAS considering, in March 1882, a bill to stop the coming of Chinese. Governor George C. Perkins declared, by proclamation, March 4 a legal holiday and urged the citizens of California to hold demonstrations and to pass resolutions endorsing the bill. Many cities and towns had great non-partisan mass meetings, addressed by leading citizens, and resolutions of endorsement were adopted. This showed the state's citizenry were opposed to the coming of the Chinese. The bill was passed by the Senate, and salutes of one hundred guns were fired in many communities.

A steamer from China arrived at San Francisco March 25 with 1,056 additional Chinks. The captain announced 40,000 more were waiting in Hongkong for steamers to bring them to California. The Federal Congress generously allowed them ninety days in which to get here.

One of the biggest storms that has ever swept over the state began March 13. Three inches of rain fell in California South, four inches in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys and nine inches at Shasta, while the Sierra had a fifteen-foot blanket of snow. Unable to cope with the elements, the Central Pacific railroad was blocked between Dutch Flat, Placer County, and Truckee, Nevada County, for seven days. A snowslide in Lake Canyon, near Bodie, Mono County, buried four miners forty-five feet deep, and their bodies had to remain there until the snow thawed. The rainfall for the season was increased to 13.77 inches, assuring California a bountiful harvest year.

The celebrated "slickens" case of the State of California vs. The Gold Run Hydraulic Company ended with eleven lawyers making arguments for fifty-two hours. The hearing had been in progress fifty-eight days when Judge Temple took the case under advisement, and the daily sessions ceased.

The California Supreme Court, by a four-to-three decision, declared the state's Sunday-closing law constitutional, and then trouble over its enforcement began. The dissenting justices declared the law a violation of the inherent right of the citizen to observe Sunday as he saw fit. Practically every community reported non-observance of the law and a disinterested feeling on the part of the citizenry.

RICH GOLD FIND.

Ione, Amador County, and San Luis Obispo City were the only places reporting general observance of the law. In San Francisco, Police Chief Crowley declared his intention to enforce it, and 540 arrests were made. In Sacramento City, a hundred saloonkeepers were arrested, and demanded jury trials. In Santa Cruz City ten days were consumed in obtaining a jury to try a case involving the law's violation, and it was said every citizen of the township had been summoned. Following a four-day trial the jury disagreed.

The severity of the winter in California South had so damaged the lemon crop that limes were being imported from Mexico.

A shipment of jute seed from Calcutta, India, was distributed to tule-land farmers to experiment in jute growing. There was an enormous demand from graingrowers for jute bags in which to sack their products.

T. Chauvin was granted a franchise to build a street railway in the growing town of Bakersfield, Kern County.

Riverside City had its annual citrus fair commencing March 23. There were 454 exhibitors, and visitors from many places. An incendiary attempt March 25 to set fire to the pavilion caused great excitement.

The stable of the West Oakland, Alameda County, railway burned March 16. Twenty-seven horses were cremated and great quantities of hay and grain were consumed. The financial loss was enormous.

Breuner & Lowery, Shasta County prospecting partners, March 20 discovered near Centerville a seam from which they extracted $2,800 in gold in two days. Another prospector found the seam's extension and in a few hours took out $1,500 in gold. Shasta County was, naturally, greatly excited.

A big deposit of blue gravel, yielding $10 in gold to the pan, was uncovered in the Blue Point mine at Smartsville, Yuba County.

A severe earthquake shock disturbed Santa Cruz, San Benito, Monterey and Merced Counties at 1:45 a.m. of March 6, and Sonoma County was slightly shaken at 8:30 p.m. of the following day.

George F. Baker, State Senator from Santa Clara County and president protem of the Senate, died March 12 at the age of 32. He came to California in 1857.

SQUAWS' WAILS RENT THE AIR.

Henry M. Newhall, who came to the state in 1850 and was in business at San Francisco thirty-one years, died March 14 at Newhall, Los Angeles County. He was the "father" of the town in which he died, and was one of the creators of the San Francisco and San Jose railway.

Dr. W. H. Stone died at San Jose, Santa Clara County, March 23. He came to California from Kentucky in 1849, and amassed a fortune building mining ditches in El Dorado County.

Wm. J. Gau, under an assumed name, wired J. C. Weinberger, Napa Valley viticulturist, to meet him on the arrival of the train at Barrow Station. Following a few moments of conversation, Gau shot and killed Weinberger and then committed suicide.

Nine-year-old Harry Martin of San Francisco, running from a savage dog March 2, fell into Mission Creek and was drowned.

The Vulcan powder works at Stege, Contra Costa County, exploded March 27, and five White men and six Chinamen were blown to pieces.

Willie and Emily, young children of J. D. Franks, found a bottle of strychnine in a bureau drawer near Roseville, Placer County, March 3. They consumed the contents and soon died.

Lakeport, Lake County, was March 10 crowded with visitors desirous of witnessing the execution of Marcus and Jeff, well-known Indian bucks who had killed a White man. The sheriff excluded from the jail yard all but forty Whites and fifty Indian braves. Loud wailing of the squaws outside rent the air as the bucks went stoically to their doom.

M. Van Dyke was killed near Niles, Alameda County, March 26, when his ranch windmill fell upon him.

Ed. West, at Willows, Glenn County, March 7 shot and killed Peter Gallagher, a sportingman who attacked him with a butcherknife.

Mrs. Eliza Andrews, while shopping in San Francisco March 15, was killed by a falling sign.

Mission Cornerstone Laid—The cornerstone of a replica of the original Santa Cruz Mission, founded August 28, 1791, was laid February 14. The structure now under construction is the gift of Mrs. Richard Doyle, in memory of her father, the late Francis J. Sullivan.

California Poetess Honored—The late Ina Coolbrith, California's first poet laureate, has been honored by the United States Geographic Board, which has changed the name of Summit Peak, 8,000-foot mountain of the Sierra Nevada in Sierra County, to Mount Ina Coolbrith.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

THE WOOL SPORTS FROCK THAT does not boast of a crocheted yoke, or a bit of crochet somewhere or another, is going to feel badly this spring when it sees other frocks. It must have this trimming detail for a contrast with weave to avoid monotony. Then, too, such insets are grand for introducing the color contrast that is so important to almost every type of frock.

The clothes so far shown are simple, smart and neat, with a tailored look that falls very short of being severe. Severe-looking clothes add years to almost every type of woman, while neat clothes, that cleverly avoid frills yet remain feminine are the very essence of youth. Now that this is understood, it seems to be the reason that the mode refrains from any radical change in the new season's styles.

Novel little touches are introduced that really indicate the newness and, at the same time, create a smart touch to even the simplest garment. This season's clothes are in keeping with the times, and are incredibly cheerful. Color has long been recognized as an important factor for cheerfulness and inspired endeavor.

Spring fashions are nothing, if not exacting. Bust, waist and hips must be so moulded that the figure presents one rythmic curve of loveliness. Gone forever is the straight-line flat chest, so-called "boyish type." New fabrics and new trimmings are combined in an extensive collection of garments never before equaled for beauty.

Lines are more than ever important, and the element of comfort is a part of every model. Building the perfect foundation for today's costume has been an inspired proceeding on the part of corset designers and creators. We are slow to accept restraining garments of any kind, after years of freedom, but boned corsets are coming back, so we are on the road to figure beauty. Probably in another year the boned corset will be an accomplished fact. Be that as it may, even now the boned foundation garment is a factor to be reckoned with.

One of the new "step-ins" features the miracle "two-way" stretch elastic that hugs the figure like a second skin, and, when combined with satin, absolutely will not ride up. This will please those who give attention to their personal appearance.

With the new silhouette, new lingerie is quite important, so especially apropos would be lingerie of silken weave whether plain or befrilled with lace. No single undergarment ever has been devised which lends to the feminine form so much of suavity as does the bias slip made from pliant silk and cut to conform to the lines of the figure. This cannot be neglected by the woman who cares. As the season advances and she is wearing the more filmy fabrics of spring and summer, these slips will be found more than ever pleasing. The inventor of this bias conformity is sure to be among the blessed.

Lace and net dresses are creations of charm. Traveling is probably our reason for the rush on lace. Women have learned that it is just about crush and wrinkle proof. Economy is responsible, too, for the wide popularity of lace gowns. Think of buying a dress in February that will keep right on being smart and appropriate through the summer. That is worth anyone's consideration. Besides the practical reasons, there is that never-to-be-forgotten fact that lace is very dainty and more flattering than anything most women could wear.

We have the floral patterns of suede lace, like the muchly-talked-of "angel skin." These are made with the bolero jacket, the little puffed sleeves and the cunning full skirt. The cowl collar neck and the plaited taffeta sash finish these dresses. Laces come in all bright colors, and will be grand for formal affairs all summer.

New spring neckwear has arrived, and how spring-like it appears. Women have been waiting for this lingerie neckwear to brighten their winter frocks. Collars, cuffs and vestees may be worn on different outfits. New lingerie-trimmed dresses have come into fashion, and these collar and cuff sets are beautifully finished on the inner edge without the customary banding. This eliminates a lot of time in keeping them fresh looking. A little tacking, a brooch, or better still a clip-pin, will hold them in place. It's a marvelous idea.

The woman who would be well dressed must not only choose her garments with care, but must select the proper jewelry, whether her choice be for the simple or the ornate. Her taste may be fully satisfied through the vast array of costume jewelry shown in the shops. Not only the color scheme of her costume may be fully carried out in jewelry, but she may choose her most favored material in ornaments.

Simply wearing clips and bracelets has become one of the smart fads at present. A clip is worn especially well if the same touch is repeated in a bracelet, buckle or buttons, but clips and bracelets do not always match. It is fun to combine them individually.

Have you seen those wood and composition clips to match bracelets? Some are of mother-of-pearl. These will be good for spring. Genuine and semi-precious gems are available in necklaces, bracelets, earrings, brooches and rings. Many designs are of metals, chromium and antique silver.

Huge Melon—California motorists paid the state $6,668,062 in license fees last year. The huge melon has been cut, one-half the sum going to the State Highways Division, and the balance being divided among the counties on a motor-vehicle registration basis. Los Angeles County, with 861,004 vehicles, got the lion's share, $1,362,240.

Magnificent Edifice Opened—The new $1,300,000 Civic Auditorium of Pasadena, Los Angeles County, was formally opened February 15.

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

PROPERTYOWNERS OF LOS ANGELES, at last aroused by the ever-growing tax-burden, have become indignant and are organizing to bring about needed reductions. When conditions were normal and dollars were plentiful and easy to get, they worried not over government affairs, paid the tariff exacted and went joyfully on their several ways. Now, when conditions are anything but normal and coin of the realm is a near-curiosity, they are looking into the conduct of public business. The depression, therefore, may in the long run prove to be a blessing! That depends on whether or not the influences that rule with an outstretched hand can change the taxpayers' course. Let's hope not, for Los Angeles, City and County, needs a governmental cleaning, and now's the appointed time!

There are numerous loopholes through which millions of the public's dollars run incessantly to waste, in that the taxpayers get naught in return, except the pleasure of digging up for special and regular tax levies. Some of these loopholes are plainly evident, such as the employment of unneeded and incompetent help. There are departments, if what is commonly rumored be correct, in which employes are so numerous in number their time is mostly occupied in endeavoring to create the impression that their services are required. As to the incompetents whose errors cost the taxpayers thousands upon thousands of dollars, there is a sufficiency of evidence in the record. The powers-that-be, of course, are interested in the quantity, not the quality, of public employes.

Then there are the unseen, but very costly, loopholes. They are numerous, and vast quantities of tax-dollars are necessary to keep them functioning properly. One such is the pension system. Through its operation employes of the city retire on pension and then get on the county payroll, or vice versa. The system is wrong, and operates contrary to the common good. Clean the city and the county pensioners off the payrolls and make places for citizens who receive no compensation from any source. And then there are the special-assessment loopholes. They conceal plenty of the "niggers" that formerly were found in woodpiles. And they're high-priced "niggers," too!

Yes, sir, the propertyowners should now effectively plug up the governmental loopholes! Not just for the depression-day, but permanently; not for their individual benefit, but for the general good.—C.M.H.

SAINT PATRICK DANCE.

The Interparlor N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Committee will sponsor a Saint Patrick day dance at Merchant Plumbers Hall, 1832 South Hope street, March 17. All Natives and their friends are invited. Mrs. Mary Noerenberg has charge of the arrangements.

The committee at its February 12 meeting passed a resolution opposing the proposed change of name of Pasadena avenue to North Figueroa street. A resolution was also adopted calling on the mayor and the chairman of the board of supervisors to furnish a detailed list of all aliens on the payrolls of Los Angeles City and County.

TREE PLANTING.

The get acquainted party of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. was a grand success. A fine program was presented by Helen Sideres, Clara Bird, Louise Graeser, Sophia Stewart and others. Dancing, games and refreshments were also enjoyed. Washington's Birthday, February 22, a tree was planted in Elysian Park. President Gertrude Allen presided at the ceremonies.

The "salamagundi" party of February 24, under the chairmanship of Miss Dolores Malin and Mrs. Mary McAnany, was most enjoyable. Out-of-the-ordinary entertainment was provided and home-made refreshments were served. Invited guests included members of the three local Native Son Parlors—Los Angeles No. 45, Ramona No. 109 and Hollywood No. 196.

President Allen and her assistants—Misses Grace Norton, Grace Du Casse, Dolores Malin, Evelyn Howell, Sali Joseph and Grace Kerns—have completed arrangements for the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Los Angeles, March 2, when a 6:30 supper and a class initiation will be featured. Other events on the Parlor's March schedule are: 9th, card party, second in the bridge tournament; 16th, address by City Mother Elizabeth Fiske; 30th, baked ham dinner, in charge of Misses Flora Holy and Edna Holcomb.

PROTESTS FORT'S NEGLECT.

February 12, Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. initiated a class of candidates, among them being Judge Arthur Crum. Past President Walter Slosson distributed additional "1932 Bear Club" pins. A resolution, introduced by Arthur R. Hinton, protesting to the Federal Government against the neglect of Fort McArthur, San Pedro, was adopted. In recognition of Abraham Lincoln's birthday anniversary Inside Sentinel Henry V. Harris read an appropriate selection, and among the speakers were Judges Thomas P. White and Lucius P. Green.

The bicentennial of George Washington was observed February 19. President Chandos E. Bush introduced the speakers, J. F. T. O'Connor, whose eloquent remarks were listened to with great interest, and Norbert Savay. Refreshments, prepared by Charles Gassagne and Homer Chappelle, followed the program. At an open meeting February 26 Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt delivered the first of a series of talks on California history. The drum and bugle corps has weekly rehearsals and is making good progress.

Ramona's March calendar includes: 11th, initiation and presentation "1932 Bear Club" pins. 18th, nomination delegates to the Stockton Grand Parlor, followed at 9:15 by entertainment features to be presented by members of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. and refreshments. 25th, second California history address by Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt; open to the members' families, also eligibles.

BLACKEST SPOT.

Officers of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. were installed by Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, Mrs. Gertrude Tuttle being retained as president. Following the ceremonies the officers entertained at a delightful bridge party. Dainty refreshments were served. The second meeting of each month is now devoted to a social function after a brief meeting. February 23 Mrs Charles Jacobsen was the chairman

February 9, Mrs Leland Atherton Irish, program chairman, introduced Coroner Frank Nance, who designated Los Angeles as "the blackest spot in the United States for automobile accidents." Captain Roberts and his crew, from the ambulance and first-aid department of the Los Angeles City receiving hospital, demonstrated in a most efficient and thrilling manner the workings of their equipment in cases of asphyxiation, broken limbs, etc.

LARGE TURNOUT.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. initiated several candidates February 29. This was Past President Henry G Bodkin night and there was a large turnout. A membership campaign is making good progress. The Parlor's March calendar includes: 14th, refreshments; 21st, initiation; 28th, nomination Stockton Grand Parlor delegates, also refreshments.

MAYOR COMES INTO FOLD.

Ocean Park—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. initiated a class of nine candidates March 8, among them being Mayor William H. Carter. District Deputy Harry Honn presided, and among the speakers was Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer.

The Parlor is making fine progress, and another class of candidates will be initiated during March. Arrangements are being made for an informal dinner dance, date to be announced later, and for Santa Monica Bay's annual fiesta and barbecue, which will probably be May Day.

RECORD CROWD.

San Pedro—February 11, Florencita thimble club of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. had a tamale dinner at the home of Lucia Guzman, who was assisted by Viviana Meteljan. A record crowd attended. Helen Trujillo had charge of a card party February 29.

March 4, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the Parlor, and great preparations are being made for her coming. March 8 a dinner, in charge of First Vice-president Claudia Perez, will be given, and a card party will be held later on in the month.

LEAP YEAR BALL A SUCCESS.

Glendale—Glendale Parlor No. 264 N.S.G.W. and Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. united in giving a leap-year ball February 20. An unusually large crowd of merrymakers were in attendance and enjoyed the hospitality of the Parlors. Several attractive prizes were awarded, and refreshments were served. Harvey Gillett and Nan Hutchinson, chairmen of the arrangements committee were showered with congratulations on the success of the affair. Another dance will be given in the near-future.

Glendale Parlor is rejoicing because it is to have the services of District Deputy Harry T. Honn as an organizer commencing March 15. He will be given every assistance, and it is expected that he will round up at least twenty-five eligibles. "It looks like a big year for Glendale," says Secretary A. B. Molen.

TAXES VERY BURDENSOME.

Calling attention to the fact that Los Angeles County is at present heavily burdened with governmental indebtedness of more than $700,000,000, which amounts to approximately 25 percent of the assessed value of all real estate and improvements in the county, or about $320 per-capita, the Los Angeles County division of the California Taxpayers Association passed a resolution urging that no new bond issues for flood-control purposes be considered until such time as the economic affairs of the community are clarified. [Why specify flood-control bonds? Additional bonds, at this time, for any purpose should be opposed.—Editor.]

It was further pointed out that present taxes are proving very burdensome, as is evidenced by the increasing delinquencies of 4 27 percent in 1928, 5.60 percent in 1929 and 6.61 percent in 1930 for the City of Los Angeles.

TO BEAUTIFY VACANT LOT.

Ocean Park—Officers of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. were installed by District Deputy Flora Holy, Katherine Conterno becoming president. Vocal solos by Cordelia Laventhal and Clayton Brandt were enjoyed. Rosalie Hyde and committee served delicious refreshments in the banquetroom, beautifully decorated with huge baskets of poinsettias. Mary Meyer, retiring president, was, on behalf of the Parlor, presented with an emblematic ring by Past Presi-

Native Daughters of the Golden West

"TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS of the Subordinate Parlors, Native Daughters of the Golden West—Dear Sisters: Soon the Bells of Easter-tide will ring out and the waiting world will again welcome the glad tidings, 'Christ has risen.'

"Easter and Springtime are the high-tide of the year, and no matter how barren the past may have been, it is enough now that the leaves are green and the lilies are in bloom, because God wills it so.

"When we contemplate the great mysteries of life, our hearts are filled with gratitude, for we may well ask, 'For what purpose did the infinite Creator give existence to this majestic monument of His great power? For what purpose did He create the earth and heavens with all their unnumbered hosts?' Was it not that He might communicate happiness to all?

"We are told we should not slight this wondrous world, with its fruits and flowers. For the prospect of everlasting life and the perfect justice yet to come should cheer and comfort every heart.

"Let us never forget the tragic story of the betrayal and torture of our Lord—of the tomb and the glorious awakening. For that supreme sacrifice was the fulfillment of the sublime promise to mankind.

"For God so loved the World that He gave His only begotten Son that we may be redeemed, and freed of our sadness. He has taught us to be generous; to give, and not to count the cost; to toil, and not to seek for rest; to labor, and not to seek reward. So let us, as true Native Daughters, exemplify all these in our every-day contacts.

"Let us rejoice this Easter morn and sing with the Saints, and with all our hearts pay tribute, in never-ending joy, to our dearest King.

"With loving Easter greetings to each and every member of our organization and the wish that your lives will be filled with peace and happiness, I am,

"Sincerely and affectionately yours in P.D.F.A.,

"EVELYN I. CARLSON,
"Grand President,
"Native Daughters Golden West.

"San Francisco, February 20, 1932."

Jams and Jellies for Vets.

Santa Cruz—District Deputy Pearl N. Reid installed the officers of Santa Cruz No. 26, Miss Lillian E. Smith becoming president. Short talks were given by Past President Verel VanGorder, President Smith, Past Grand President Stella Finkeldey and District Deputy Reid. Miss Finkeldey and Mrs. Reid were presented with boquets of daffodils, and Mrs. Myrtle Richey was the recipient of a past president emblem.

Solicitation was begun among the members for homemade jams and jellies, to be sent disabled veterans. Mrs. Edith K. Dodge has charge of this project of the Parlor, and each year several dozen glasses are sent a veterans hospital. Preceding the meeting a dinner was enjoyed, golden daffodils and purple heather adorning the tables. The dinner committee was composed of Mms. Luene Jensen (chairman), Ethel McFadden, Laura Griffin, and Miss Mamie Cassidy.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Oakland—Piedmont No. 87 celebrated its thirty-sixth institution anniversary with a banquet at which the honored guests were President Rose Martinelli, Past President Kathleen Dombrink, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher and the charter members. A baked ham dinner was prepared by Chairman Gertrude Noe and a committee consisting of Josephine Collins, Dorothy Davis, Loretta Monahan, Patricia Reardon, Edna Healey, Margaret Thomas, Ella Mullen, Marcella O'Connell, Grace Searing, Hazel Fraizer and Augusta Huxsol. A Saint Patrick party is planned for March, with Mrs. Edna Healey as chairman.

Officers Give Hearts to Grand President.

San Rafael—Despite a severe storm, 135 members of Marinita No. 198 and guests were present to greet Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson on the occasion of her official visit February 8. Other grand officers in attendance were Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley and Willow Borba, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Past Grand Presidents Amy McAvoy, Estelle Evans, Mary E. Bell, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Addie L. Mosher and Emma G. Foley, District Deputy Mae Shea and fourteen additional deputies. Six candidates were initiated, the ritual work being done perfectly by the officers of the Parlor.

As February was valentine month, the decorations throughout were in red and white, cupids, bows and darts being used. Cupid, portrayed by Esther Trudgett, was in the center of the room, holding a large floral heart of red carnations and freshias, pierced with a dart. Each officer of Marinita, carrying a bow, dart and paper heart, marched by cupid and placed her heart on the dart held by cupid who, after having received all, presented the entire heart and floral offering to Grand President Carlson while Antoinette Hecht sang "Let Us Call You Sweetheart." A delegation from Mount Tamalpais No. 64 N.S.G.W.—Bob Brusatori, Monroe Label and Arthur Todt—appeared and presented Mrs. Carlson with a beautiful boquet of red roses. Organist Eugenie Watson and her partner, Mrs. Eugene Kientz, favored with tap dancing. The Grand President held the complete attention of the assemblage with her beautiful and interesting remarks, after which all the grand officers were presented with gifts.

The Parlor had on display one of the baby layettes which it sends monthly to the Homeless Children Central Committee. This particular one contained nineteen pairs of shoes, besides many other dainty things. At the close of the meeting a tempting hot supper was served in the beautifully decorated banquetroom. It had little attraction, however, for those who, earlier in the evening at the San Anselmo home of Past Grand President Emma G. Foley, had partaken of a delicious turkey supper cooked and served by that perfect chef. Grand Trustee Ethel Begley, a member of Marinita, had entire charge of the wonderful meeting and her assistants co-operated a hundred percent.

Membership Contest Interesting.

San Bernardino—With the lodgeroom decorated with a profusion of flowers, officers of Lugonia No. 241 were installed by District Deputy Hazel Hansen, assisted by a corps of officers from Verdugo No. 240 (Glendale). Gladys Case-Baker, the new president, is a charter member of the Parlor. The costumes of the officers-elect were adorned by arm corsages of sweet-peas, and the installation rites were inspiring. A trio composed of Trustees Grace English, Marguerite Bell and Lily Mae Tompkins sang the ode. Following installation enticing refreshments were served.

February 10 a pot-luck supper was served, with members of Ontario No. 251 and Verdugo No. 240 as guests. Comic valentines were found at each place, and old popular songs were sung following the dinner. The meeting of the Parlor followed, one candidate being initiated. The membership contest is interesting, and each team is striving hard. The losing team is to fete the winners. The contest ends March 1. Past President Frances Wixom recently was wedded to Ernest Wynkoop, and is now residing in Los Angeles. The Parlor presented her with a set of silver salad forks. Extensive plans are being formulated for the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Lugonia, March 9. On that occasion a class of candidates will be initiated.

Wants Home Mortgage Burned.

Calistoga—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, January 25, was a gala occasion for Calistoga No. 145. A turkey supper was served at gorgeously decorated tables. Mrs. Katie Butler was chairman of the general arrangements committee, and Miss Edith Cavagnaro headed the decorating committee. Four candidates were initiated, and the Parlor's new officers, headed by President Berenice Martin, exemplified the ritual in a splendid manner.

Grand President Carlson's delightful and instructive message noted advancement of the Order's projects. She stressed the necessity of securing funds to meet the Loyalty Pledge, and expressed a fond hope that the Home mortgage may be burned at the Merced Grand Parlor. On behalf of Calistoga, President Martin presented Mrs. Carlson with a gift expressing the love and esteem of the members. At the meeting's conclusion twelve of No. 145's "baby" members, led by Miss Edith Cavagnaro, and Lillie Brown, "mother" of the Parlor, appeared in a drill which was well received.

Enthusiastic and Active.

Fort Bragg—Although the members of Fort Bragg No. 210 are not many in number, they are enthusiastic and active. They have formed a sewing club and are making clothes for the homeless children. The meetings are held once a month at the homes of the members. Mrs. Josie Stoddard and Mrs. Lena Burnie entertained recently at the former's home, and delicious refreshments were served. Dues of ten cents are paid each meeting to help purchase material.

Mrs. Elsie Bryans was elected president of the Parlor February 4, to fill the vacancy. District Deputy Edna Kunzler will pay an official visit in March, it was announced. Light refreshments were served at the close of a happy evening.

Marin-Sonoma Meet.

Santa Rosa—Some 200 members of the Order attended the Marin and Sonoma Counties district meeting arranged by Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley, who presided. A program of entertainment features was presented by members of Orinda, Fairfax, Tamelpa and Petaluma Parlors. Among the officials present were Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Trustees Willow Borba, Ethel Begley and Anna Thusen, Past Grand Presidents Estelle M. Evans, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Mary E. Bell and Margaret Hill.

Following the meeting there was a banquet at which Grand President Carlson spoke on "The Aims and Objects of the Order," and Past Grand President Heilbron on "The Loyalty Pledge." Other speakers were Grand Trustee Begley, Mae Rose Barry, Clytie Lewis, Mae Taylor, Past Grand President Foley, Mae Shea, Grand Trustee Borba, Annette Hecht and Anna Gruber-Loser.

Flags for New Citizens.

Grass Valley—Installation ceremonies were held by Manzanita No. 29 with District Deputy Eden officiating, Grace Eva becoming president. The Parlor has been doing some americanization work. Under the leadership of Vera Hansen, Sisters Deward, Eva and Keast delivered short addresses to six men and two women, February 1, when they took the oath of allegiance to the United States of America in the Superior Court at Nevada City. Each new citizen was presented with small silk United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags.

February 22 the Parlor had its annual tree planting ceremony in recognition of Arbor Day. The program was more extensive than usual, because of the Washington bicentennial anniversary. Plans are under way for the celebration of Manzanita's institution anniversary in March.

Pledge Paid in Full.

Vallejo—Vallejo No. 195 was officially visited by Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson January 20, the meeting being preceded by a 6:30 dinner. Other guests were Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputies Sadie Brainard and Elvena Woodard, District Deputies Ella Ingram and Julia Hill. A class of candidates were initiated.

In the course of her remarks, Grand President Carlson said she was happy to announce that the Parlor is on the Grand Parlor honor-roll, having long ago paid its Loyalty Pledge for the Home in full. A beautiful gift was presented by Vallejo to Mrs. Carlson. Light refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Vallejo's officers were installed by District Deputy Ella Ingram February 3, Edith Gutfeld becoming the forty-first president. In presenting, for the Parlor, a lovely gift to District Deputy Ingram, Mrs. Elvena Woodard recited a Valentine Party.

Hayward—Officers of Hayward No 122 and Eden No. 113 N.S.G.W. were installed by District Deputies Marion White and Frank Perry, Florence Hills and Henry L'Ecuyer becoming the respective presidents. Following the ceremonies numerous presentations were made. A theater party for the benefit of the homeless children netted over forty dollars.

Hayward Parlor had a valentine party February 16. The arrangements committee included Mazie Moura, Aldine Pennycott, Dorothy Bruns and Willma Gottberg.

Fund Raising Dinner a Success.

San Juan Bautista—To raise funds for San Juan Bautista No. 179's contribution to the social welfare department which is caring for the unemployed in San Benito County, the Parlor sponsored a ravioli dinner, which was a financial and social success. Mrs. Frank Avilla was the general chairman.

District Deputies Meet.

Redwood City—With Mrs. Alice Lane presiding, the yearly district deputies' meeting, called by Supervising Deputy Renee Mathias, was held January 30. Dinner was served, and a program was presented by Mms. C. Lindquist, H. Chase, G. Anderson and M. Righetti. Among the many visitors were Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler and Past Grand President Dr. Louise C. Heilbron.

Officers of Bonita No. 10 were installed January 28 by District Deputy Alice Lane, Mrs. Alice Johnson becoming president. Past President Margaret Rice was presented with an emblematic pin. A letter from the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto thanked the Parlor's hospital committee—Mms. J. Drathman, A. DeRosa and I. Thompson—for interest taken in the veterans.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of March, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

1st—Reina del Mar No. 126, Santa Barbara.
2nd—Los Angeles No. 124, Los Angeles.
3rd—Long Beach No. 154, Long Beach.

29th—Portola No. 172, San Francisco.
30th—Stirling No. 146, Pittsburg.
31st—Balboa No. 249, San Francisco.

Cold Fails To Keep Card Players Away.

Petaluma—Officers of Petaluma No. 222 were installed by District Deputy Mae Rose Barry, Elizabeth Dillon being seated as president. February 2 a program of activities for the year was outlined. A public card party followed the meeting, and a large crowd attended despite the cold weather. February 16 a program in memory of George Washington was featured. Pearl Lopez was in charge. Refreshments were served at flower-bedecked tables.

Secretary Margaret Oeltjen, who has been confined to a San Francisco hospital, is much improved and will soon be back at her desk. She is greatly missed, and everyone wishes her a speedy recovery.

Victory Over the Top.

Courtland—Victory No. 216 received an official visit February 6 from Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson. Other visitors included Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell, the "mother" of Victory, Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputies Bessie Leitch and Ethel Ludwig, District Deputies May Lucas, May Rhodes, Alice Carpenter, Nellie Nordstrom, Mamie McCormick, Sadie Brainard, Alicia Buckley and Doris Fisher, and delegations from the eight Sacramento County Parlors. Four candidates were initiated.

Grand President Carlson gave an instructive talk, following which President Martha Buckley presented her with a valentine containing a check for $113.50, which puts Victory in the Loyalty Pledge over-the-top column. On behalf of the Parlor, Marshal Marie Goodman presented

SAN FRANCISCO

COMMEMORATING THE EIGHTY-fourth anniversary of the discovery of gold by James W. Marshall at Coloma, El Dorado County, a largely attended banquet was held in San Francisco, January 23. Included in the number present were members of the Order of Native Sons, the Society of California Pioneers and the California Historical Association.

Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington, who some years ago inaugurated the observance of this most important historic event, presided as toastmaster. Speakers included Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Governor James Rolph Jr., Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, Mayor Fred Morcom of Oakland, Past Grand President Joseph R. Knowland, Grand Trustee George F. McNoble, Past Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell, Grand Trustee John M. Burnett, Alfred Cleary and E. A. Wiltsee. A splendid program of singing was presented by Uda Waldrop, Austin Sperry and Chas. Bulotti.

Other Native Sons in attendance were Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Treasurer John A. Corotto, Grand Inside Sentinel W. B. O'Brien, Grand Outside Sentinel Gam Hurst, Historiographer George H. Barron, Grand Trustees Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., Jesse H. Miller, Joseph J. McShane, Frank M. Lane and Eldred L. Meyer, Past Grand Presidents Clarence E. Jarvis, William P. Caubu, James F. Hoey, William J. Hayes, Edward J. Lynch, James A. Wilson and Charles L. Dodge.

VALENTINE DAY AT N.D. HOME.

Valentine day, February 14, was celebrated at the Native Daughter Home by 115 members and their friends who attended the monthly breakfast. The decorations of red carnations, candles and hearts added to the warm glow of friendship that was manifest. Past Grand President Pearl Lamb extended greetings, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler offered prayer, and a delightful program was presented.

Past Grand Lamb complimented the members of the Order on work accomplished, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson greeted the guests in her usual gracious way and pledged her support at all times, Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola spoke on the activities within the Home, Past Grand President Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, originator of the Loyalty Pledge, was warmly greeted, Master Frank McCormick entertained by sweet singing and gave a tap dance, and a play entitled "Two Tables of Bridge" was presented by the following: Ann Dippel (director), Rose McDonald, Ida Mesquite, Adelaide Cocetts, May Marchant, Isabelle Wilson, Pearl Anderson, Florence Ohler, Lena Wall. The hostesses, Past Grand Lamb and Grand Secretary Thaler, extended sincere thanks to all for assistance in making the breakfast a success. Visitors were present from San Rafael, Sacramento, Martinez, San Jose, Berkeley, Oakland.

TO HONOR N.S. GRAND PRESIDENT.

Under the auspices of the San Francisco N.S.G.W. Extension of the Order Committee, the twenty-eight local Parlors will hold a joint class initiation April 2 in honor of Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez. There is much enthusiasm, and a successful campaign is assured.

Harmon D. Skillin (Castro No. 232), chairman of the committee, has appointed the following to make arrangements: Harry Romick (Castro No. 232), Martin Huber (Mission No. 38), Joseph Rose (Marshall No. 202), Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig and Grand Secretary John T. Regan.

A committee headed by James F. Stanley (Stanford No. 76) will select the initiatory officers, by competition, from the present officers of the San Francisco Parlors. To stimulate interest in the membership drive several trophies will be awarded.

GRAND PRESIDENT N.D. VISITS.

Oro Fino Parlor No. 9 N.D.G.W. received an official visit from Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson February 4. Other visitors were Grand Trustees Gladys Noce, Ethel Begley and Anna Thuesen, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Past Grand Presidents Mae Boldemann and Margaret Hill, and District Deputy Georgia Nelson.

Grand President Carlson gave an interesting address on the work of the Order, and the other grand officers also gave interesting talks. There was a good attendance, many Parlors being represented. Marshal Edith Rankin sang a solo complimenting the Grand President. The room was artistically decorated with evergreens by an efficient committee under the chairmanship of Beulah Balangero, and refreshments were served by the same committee.

WASHINGTON PARTY.

Genevieve Parlor No. 132 N.D.G.W. had a Washington party February 18. Eugenia Mahely was the goddess of liberty, and entertainment was provided by Lillian Ryan Weisel and Organist Lillian Troy. Refreshments were served at tables decorated in red, white and blue. Elsie Doty was in charge of the evening.

The Parlor is planning a very elaborate affair for Saint Patrick night. The arrangements committee is headed by Katherine Barron. A membership committee has been appointed and a large class of candidates will be initiated at an early date.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Officers of Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D.G.W. were publicly installed by District Deputy Myrtle Ross. Both the installing and the installed officers were in full evening dress, making a very effective ensemble. Lavinia Wegener, the new president, promised a very active term and asked the hearty co-operation of officers and members in making it a success.

In appreciation for services rendered, the Parlor presented the retiring past president, Josephine Matison, with a beautiful watch. Many other gifts were presented, the president receiving a goodly share. Castro's February good of the order committee arranged an entertainment in tribute to the bicentennial of George Washington.

"Cutting In Is a Senseless Sin," is the March slogan of the California Public Safety Committee in its campaign to lessen the fearful auto death-toll.

In Memoriam

GEORGIE A. RANDOLPH.
Past President of Encinal Parlor No. 156 N.D.G.W.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed past president, Sister Georgie A. Randolph, submit the following:

Whereas, The Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call to the Heavenly Parlor on High our beloved sister, Georgie A. Randolph, thus taking from us one of our most devoted and loyal members—a faithful and true friend. We feel our loss is measureless; that by her death a place has been left vacant in Encinal Parlor which will be hard to refill; and hard though it be, we resign ourselves with the memory of an honorable life just ended, and we feel sure that already she rests amid the rewards she earned while on earth. "None knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise."

Resolved, That in the passing of our beloved sister, the Parlor has lost an honored member, and the Order a true and loyal Native Daughter, and the family a loving and devoted mother. Resolved, that our deepest sympathy be extended to her sorrowing family. May the chain of golden memories lessen their sorrow; may God comfort and bless those near and dear to her. Furthermore, be it resolved, that a page of the records of the Parlor be dedicated to her memory, and that our charter be draped for thirty days, and that this tribute of affection to her memory be sent to the bereaved family and a copy to The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

"There is no death: the sun goes down
To rise again on brighter shores,
And safe in Heaven's jeweled crown
She will shine forever more."

Sincerely and fraternally in P.D.F.A.,
IRENE ROSE,
MARY ORCHISON.

THE FIFTY-FIFTH GRAND PARLOR will convene at Stockton May 16, with Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez presiding. The regulations of the Order specify that Subordinate Parlors shall nominate their delegates the last meeting in March, and elect the first meeting in April. The Grand Parlor will, according to present plans, be in session three days, closing May 19.

Stockton No. 7 is making arrangements for the gathering, the details being handled by the following general committee: Ray Friedberger (chairman), R. D. Dorcey (secretary), Harry M. Herrmann (treasurer), W. P. Rothenbush, Ivan Hoult, Eugene Allison, George D. Avery, C. W. Walsh, Law T. Freitas, Frank Piccardo, W. I. Neeley, Ralph Mitscher, F. R. Fernando, W. A. Strong and L. Buol.

The entertainment program as outlined includes: Reception, Sunday evening, May 15; class initiation, Monday evening; auto trip to Calaveras Big Trees, Tuesday, followed by banquet in the evening; grand ball, Wednesday evening. Special events for the visiting womenfolks are being arranged by Joaquin No. 5 and Caliz de Oro No. 205 N.D.G.W. As a feature of the all-day auto trip Tuesday, Chispa No. 139 (Murphys) will provide a barbecue.

Interest in candidates for Grand Parlor office grows as the date for the meeting nears. Unless past custom be disregarded, which is not likely, the following will be advanced without opposition: Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington to Grand President, Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell to Grand First Vice-president, and Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig to Grand Second Vice-president. The Grizzly Bear has communicated with all present officeholders and rumored candidates, and from replies received passes along this information:

Grand Secretary John T. Regan (South San Francisco No. 157) and Grand Treasurer John A. Corotto (San Jose No. 22) will be candidates to succeed themselves.

Rumors are plentiful that there will be at least a half-dozen aspirants for the Grand Third Vice-presidency. One of them, however, Grand Trustee George F. McNoble, has, for personal reasons only, eliminated himself. Two have cast their hats into the ring: J. Hartley Russell (Stanford No. 76) and Harmon D. Skillin (Castro No. 232), both of San Francisco.

Seven Grand Trustees will be chosen. To date, the candidates are: Charles H. Spengemann (Hesperian No. 137) of San Francisco; Samuel M. Shortridge Jr. (Menlo No. 185) of Menlo Park, incumbent; Eldred L. Meyer (Santa Monica Bay No. 267) of Santa Monica, incumbent.

William A. Reuter (Sepulveda No. 263) of San Pedro will be a candidate for Grand Outside Sentinel.

Rumor has it, too, that Eureka will be proposed as the meeting-place for the 1933 Grand Parlor, and Sacramento as the place for holding this year's Admission Day, September 9, celebration.—C.M.H.

GRAND TRUSTEE
STOCKTON GRAND PARLOR
Active Member of a Going Parlor

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS—Dear Sirs and Brothers:

At this time I wish to publicly announce that I will not aspire to any further official promotion in our Order. I am compelled to take this step owing to pressure of my personal affairs which will require my undivided attention in the future.

I visited the seventeen Parlors assigned to me and have found them all in a fair condition of prosperity some better off and some worse off.

At this time I also wish to thank my many friends and well-wishers for the assistance they have given me in the past and have promised me in the future in the way of fraternal promotion in the Order.

In conclusion I wish to say that Stockton Parlor No 7 intends to give the Grand Parlor a warm welcome and an all-around good time when they visit us in May, 1932.

Very sincerely and fraternally yours.

GEO. F. McNOBLE, Grand Trustee.

Stockton, February 15, 1932.

Flags Presented Courts.

Eureka—Humboldt No. 14, Arcata No. 20 and Ferndale No. 93 presented United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags to the two departments of the Humboldt County Superior Court. A. W. McDonald and Loren M. Nelson made the presentations on behalf of the Parlors, and Judges Harry W. Falk and Thomas H. Selvage accepted the flags.

At a meeting here February 8 of Humboldt County Past Presidents Association an initiatory team was named, composed of Dewey Danielsen, R. E. Byard, R. A. Timmons, J. V. McDonald, A. W. McDonald, C. H. Rasmussen, Len Yocom, R. C. Jacobsen, R. H. Flowers and T. C. Vreeland. March 7 the association will meet at Ferndale.

Natives at Orange Classic.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead No. 110 and Lugonia No. 241 N.D.G.W. had their day at the Twenty-second National Orange Show February 24, when Natives from all the southland gathered to view and participate in the classic. Following supper in the show's restaurant, entertainment features, under the supervision of Leslie D. Case, were presented in the main auditorium.

Louis Wolff was chairman of the general arrangements committee and Henry B. Peake had charge of the refreshments. The hand of welcome was extended by a reception committee which included Police Judge Donald E. VanLuven (chairman), Benjamin Harrison, Supervisor John Andreson Jr., Grand Organist Leslie Maloche, George J. Maloche, Jerome B. Kavanaugh, Robert W. Brazelton, William Starke, Joseph E. Rich and President Lynn A. Reed.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Oakland—February 9, Claremont No. 240 celebrated its twenty-fourth institution anniversary with a class initiation and banquet. This was also the occasion of the official visit of Grand Trustee Joseph M. McShane. A large number of members of the Order on both sides of the bay were present to extend good wishes to the Parlor for the future and to congratulate the members on achievements of the past. Charter Member Al Fink and Richard M. Hamb of Piedmont No. 120 gave interesting talks on the history of the Parlor.

February 13 the Parlor had a valentine dance which proved a very successful affair, both socially and financially. Ernest Dossa and his committee worked hard, and their efforts were not in vain, as the receipts of the evening were far beyond expectations. The members of Claremont contributed very generously to the ice carnival held at the Oakland Ice Arena for the benefit of the homeless children. The house was filled to capacity, and indications are the committee of arrangements will be able to turn over to the Central Committee a very substantial fund as Alameda County's share for carrying on the kiddies' work.

"Old Guards" and "Kids" at Work.

Calistoga—Calistoga No. 86 has well under way a campaign for members. Two rival teams are at work, the "old guards" and the "kids." J. C. Siemsen and E. E. Light are directing the former, and Henry Pocai and Louis Carlenzoli the latter. The losing team must provide a feast for the entire membership of the Parlor.

The contest is going over big. It will close March 21, when the officers, headed by President Frank Mariani, will initiate those brought into the fold. Several of the grand officers will be guests of Calistoga at that time.

Splendid Service Recognized.

San Diego—The entertainment committee of San Diego No. 108—R. E. Mahony, Burt W. Pauter and Marshall V. Cruze—gave the membership a big time February 3, when a program of music and dancing was presented. March 2 the committee will present boxing bouts and snappy musical numbers, to be followed by refreshments.

At its recent meeting in Berkeley, the California State Historical Association gave recognition to the splendid service of Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayhrofer, who successfully directed the restoration of Mission San Diego de Alcala, by electing him vice-president.

Joint Installations.

Saint Helena—Saint Helena No. 53 and La Junta No. 203 N.D.G.W. officers were jointly installed by District Deputies William R. Johnson and Zueletta Bellani, Edgar W. Johnson and Inez Costantini becoming the respective presidents. Walter Metzner was master of ceremonies and, with Mrs. Paul R. Alexander at the piano, led the community singing. Dainty refreshments were served. February 13 the Parlors gave their annual dance for the benefit of the homeless children.

Ferndale—Officers of Ferndale No. 93 and Oneonta No. 71 were jointly installed by District Deputies C. H. Rasmussen and Louise Hagen, O. R. Frame and Pearl Robinson becoming the respective presidents. On behalf of Ferndale, Henry Giacomini presented a past president emblem to Lee Diedricksen, and on behalf of Oneonta, Mrs. Hattie Roberts presented gifts to Mrs. Annie Fulton and District Deputy Hagen. Whist was followed by a fine supper.

Daughters Entertained.

Plymouth—Amador No. 17 entertained Amapola No. 80 N.D.G.W. at a delightful supper. Chester Gannon gave an interesting talk on the life of Joaquin Murietta, and there were brief addresses by Past Grand President Clarence E. Jarvis, Grand Trustee Gladys E. Noce, District Deputy Marguerite Davis and District Deputy Thomas Davis. Old-time dances were greatly enjoyed.

Three Initiated.

Santa Ana—Three candidates were initiated by Santa Ana No. 265 February 15, the work being conferred by the officers of the Parlor. This was the first result of a campaign for an increase of membership and to kill "old man depression." Following the initiation a tamale supper was enjoyed.

Unique Contest Under Way.

San Rafael—A big class of candidates was initiated February 15 by Mount Tamalpais No. 64. Visitors from Sea Point No. 158 (Sausalito), Nicasio No. 198 and other Parlors around the bay were in attendance. The ceremonies were conducted by the regular officers, who were highly praised for the impressive and efficient manner in which the ritual was exemplified.

The Parlor is conducting a rather unique membership contest between the regular officers, the past presidents and the "scrubs" or independent team, the losers to prepare and serve a banquet for the winners at the conclusion of the contest. Recording Secretary Manuel Andrade, captain of the "scrub" team, says he has a big surprise in store for his opponents. Monroe Label, captain of the past president team, declares he is confident of the outcome, and President A. W. Todt, captain of the regulars, is bursting with pride because his team has led the contest so far, all the initiates being brought in by that aggregation.

A banquet followed the initiation and a number of pleasing vocal and instrumental selections were rendered. Frank Kelly, who for several years enjoyed the proud distinction of being the only officer of Hibernian extraction in the Parlor, is organizing the musical talent in Mount Tamalpais. He is confident that his plan will contribute much to the success of the meetings, as many of the boys are most enthusiastic over the idea.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1932, as follows, together with their membership figures February 19, 1932:

Three Generations Present.

Palo Alto—Three generations of the Decker family were at the meeting of Palo Alto No. 216, January 26, when C. C. Decker Jr. was initiated. He is a grandson of Past Grand President Dr. Charles W. Decker (California No. 1) and a son of C. C. Decker Sr., past president No. 216. Officers of Palto Alto were installed by District Deputy A. S. Liguori, J. C. Bernal becoming president.

Annual Turkey Feast.

Fort Bragg—Following the annual turkey feast of Alder Glen No. 200, which was largely attended, officers were installed by District Deputy Ralph Todd, C. N. Simpson becoming president. At the close of the ceremonies the crowd were entertained by three boxing bouts.

Order's Work Extolled.

Folsom—Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington officially visited Granite No. 83 January 26 and delivered an address on the history of California, in the course of which he extolled the work of the Order. District Deputy Clyde Corcoran installed the Parlor's officers, J. M. Relvas becoming president. A banquet followed the meeting.

Novel Event.

Pleasanton—With husband and wife acting as installing officers, brother and sister were installed as presidents, respectively, of Pleasanton No. 244 and Pleasanton No. 237 N.D.G.W. District Deputy Frank Perry and wife, District Deputy Evelyn Perry, formally inducted Wm. Busch as president of No. 244 and his sister, Helena Busch, as president of No. 237. Visitors from sixteen Parlors and many townfolk attended the public ceremonies, after which a dance was held and refreshments were served. In attendance were Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler and Grand Outside Sentinel Gam Hurst.

Hall Association Elects Officers.

Sacramento—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Native Sons Hall Association of Sacramento, Assemblyman Percy G. West was re-elected secretary—for the twenty-fifth consecutive time. Other officers and directors chosen are: John J. Monteverde, president; Charles A. Root, vice-president; Henry Wittpen, treasurer; Irving D. Gibson, J. Frank Didion, Elwood F. Mier, Hugh B. Bradford, J. C. Boyd, M. F. Trebilcox and Roy C. Cothrin, directors.

Mrs. Carlson with a gift of china. The meeting-room was attractively decorated with liveoak boughs.

Following the meeting the assemblage joined Courtland No. 106 — which was entertaining Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington and Grand Marshal Horace J. Leavitt—at a banquet. The tables were adorned with small trees, valentines and nutcups. Joseph Berry was the toastmaster, Henry Ehrhardt entertained with songs, and the grand officers of both Orders responded to toasts. Victory Parlor's arrangements for the evening were perfected by these committees: Decorations—Alicia Buckley (chairman), Doris Fisher, Ethel Schiller. Refreshments—Marie Goodman (chairman), Clara Herringer, Clarice Ring, Martha Buckley.

Surprise Handkerchief Shower.

Santa Ana—Mrs. Wm. West, chairman veteran welfare committee Santa Ana No. 235, reported February 8 that seventy-five glasses of marmalade had been distributed to the boys at the San Fernando hospital. Mrs. Lillian Gant was elected to the board of trustees vacancy. Arrangements for the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson March 14 were given consideration. At refreshments, President Marion Crum was presented with a candle-lighted cake and a boquet of violets in recognition of her anniversary.

The Parlor's thimble club met February 17 at the home of Mrs. Walter Hiskey. The day was her birthday, and she was surprised with a handkerchief shower. Mrs. Gertrude Carter was complimented by a shower of mysterious lovely things. At a recent meeting of the club at Mrs. Raymond Ross' home a quilt, to be disposed of in the near-future for relief work, was finished.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Oakland—February 25 Aloha No. 106 celebrated its thirty-fourth anniversary with a party at the home of Past President Florence McLean. Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, chairman, and her social committee planned an evening of entertainment, dancing, cards and a late supper, with decorations in honor of George Washington.

The regular monthly whist, under the chairmanship of Past President Maud Mitchell, was held February 27 at the home of Grand Secretary Thaler. A Saint Patrick dance, under the chairmanship of Third Vice-president Caroline Schulze, will be given March 15. The decorations will be most attractive.

Winners Feted.

Oroville—A valentine party February 3 feted the winning group in the recent membership drive of Gold of Ophir No. 190. There were several visitors, and three candidates were initiated. In the banquetroom, where the tables were elaborately decorated with valentine favors, Mrs. Hattie Clark, captain of the winning side, was presented with a gift.

Addresses were made by Grand Trustee Florence Boyle, Mrs. Jeannie Murray and Mrs. Cornelia Sank. The committee in charge for the evening included Mms. Lois Tegrunde, Addie Roderick, Florence Boyle, Rosa Crum and Anna Bernhard.

Ripley Out-rippled.

Alturas—Alturas No. 159 had a dinner to commemorate the twenty-fourth institution anniversary of the Parlor, January 18. The artistic decorations were symbolic of California. Six charter members and the past presidents had places of honor at the festive board. Past President Dorothy Gloster out-rippled Ripley in a pictorial believe-it-or-not presentation of youthful photos of the past and present officers of No. 159. Grand Marshal Irma Laird, Past Grand President Catherine E. Gloster and Past President Bertie Auble responded to toasts, and Master Wilbur Fountain, in cowboy attire, entertained with songs.

A business session of the Parlor followed the dinner, and Supervising Deputy Dorothy Gloster installed the officers. Chairman Mildred Boyd reported the Christmas ball a social and financial success. Donations to several worthy projects were authorized. February 5 a valentine party, with dancing and cards, was largely attended.

Novel Presentation Gift Basket.

Alameda—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson paid an official visit to Encinal No. 156 February 11. Among the other visitors were Past Grand Presidents Estelle Evans and Addie Mosher, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Organist Lola Horgan and her glee club, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Deputy Grand Presidents Irma Murray and Augusta Huxsol. The hall and banquetroom were beautifully decorated.

Grand President Carlson spoke interestingly of the Order's projects and stressed the importance of the homeless children work and the Loyalty Pledge. She was handed a check for $65 toward Encinal's pledge, and on behalf of the Parlor a basket of gifts was presented to her by Sallie Harmola, attired as George Washington, Muriel Jarret, attired as Abraham Lincoln, and George Harmola and Jack Lavaggetto, attired as Negro boys. Gifts were also presented Past Grand Evans and District Deputy Murray, and all the other grand officers received corsages. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Irene Rose was chairman of the evening.

Ferns for Vets' Easter.

Santa Cruz—Past Grand President Stella Finkeldey, chairman Grand Parlor Veteran Welfare Committee, has received word from Miss Bertha C. Lovell, field director American Red Cross, Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, expressing the wish that the custom of sending potted ferns for Easter be carried out this year, and twenty-two will be sent, to be distributed to the various wards. She is also in receipt of the following letter:

"This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of February 7, 1932, concerning magazines that have been supplied this hospital by the Native Daughters of the Golden West during the past years. We have consulted our librarian and learn that it would be deeply appreciated by the patients here if instead of the 'Red Book' this year, 'Time' and 'Mid Week Pictorial' be substituted. The balance of the list as submitted by you is most satisfactory to our patients, and we thank you heartily on their behalf for your continued interest. Very truly yours, D. C. FARNSWORTH, medical officer in charge, Veterans Administration Hospital, San Fernando, California."

Entertainment Increases Attendance.

Fullerton—Grace No. 242 enjoyed sociables with games and refreshments after the February meetings. President Mattie Edwards insists on entertainment after every meeting and as a result the attendance has increased. Past President Helen Edwards opened her home for a public card party February 16, and a nice sum was realized for the Parlor's Loyalty Pledge fund.

Grace's sewing club had an all-day meeting at the home of President Edwards February 25. It was her birthday, and she was surprised with a shower. Callye Sparkes-Blum, recent bride, was the recipient of a silver gift from the Parlor February 15, when members called on her to wish her happiness. The Parlor plans to plant a tree in commemoration of the birth of the nation's first president, George Washington.

Goodly Sum Netted.

Elk Grove—A jamboree under the direction of Mrs. Laura Coons was given January 22 for the benefit of the Loyalty Pledge fund of Liberty No. 213. A fine program was presented, and about $65 was netted. In appreciation, the Parlor entertained Mrs. Coons and her assistants at a chicken dinner February 12.

Poppies Aid Homeless.

Modesto—Morada No. 199 and Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. had joint installation of officers, with District Deputies Effie Prothero and C. R. Gill officiating. A fine program was presented and addresses were made by Supervising Deputy Katherine Kopf and Mrs. Mae Givens. The Parlors had their joint monthly whist in February, nearly 300 being in attendance. The proceeds of these parties go to general relief work.

Morada's members met at the homes of Mrs. Phillpa Kerr and Mrs. Chas. Blaine February 12 and 19 and made poppies which were sold publicly the 27th for the benefit of the homeless children.

Past Presidents Honored.

San Jose—Vendome No. 100 honored its past presidents at an old-fashioned party February 17. Hazel Haub was in charge and directed a half-hour of minstrelsy. Mrs. Clara Gairaud presented a patriotic tableau, "Betsy Ross." In the diningroom a jolly time was had, and addresses were made by President Imogene Thompson, Marshal Anita Moore and Past President Alice Kady.

Installations.

Placerville—Officers of Marguerite No. 12 and Placerville No. 9 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed by District Deputies Nora Gray and Joseph Scherrer, Annie Jaeger and George M. Smith becoming the respective presidents. A short musical program was followed by a banquet. Appropriate gifts were presented Past President Bessie Waldron and District Deputy Gray by Marguerite.

Lodi—Ivy No. 88's officers were installed by District Deputy Alice McDonald, Elfieda Landback becoming president. The hall and tables were artistically decorated by Thirsa Hunt, Margaret Roberts and Mary Meehl, who were also the refreshment committee. The retiring president, Sarah J. Elwood, was presented with an emblematic pin, and District Deputy McDonald was presented with a gift.

Woodland—Officers of Woodland No. 90 have been installed, Ruth Hickey being the new president. Grand Vice-president Anna Armstrong and Past Grand President Mary E. Bell were among the many in attendance. A dinner followed the ceremonies.

San Luis Obispo—Officers of San Luisita No. 108 were installed February 11 by District Deputy Elsie Loose, Ida Miossi becoming president. Large delegations from San Miguel No. 94 and El Pinal No. 163 (Cambria) were present at the meeting, which closed with a delicious banquet.

Dixon—Officers of Mary E. Bell No. 224 were installed by District Deputy Wanda Abele February 4, Lena Nickum becoming president. Three candidates were initiated. Among the many visitors were Grand Vice-president Anna Mixon-Armstrong, Supervising Deputy Edna Richter, Past Grand Presidents Mary E. Bell and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron. A midnight supper was served at a table cleverly decorated by Mrs. Grace McFadyen in a color scheme of pink and green. February 6 the Parlor had a food sale for the benefit of the homeless children.

Past Presidents' Doings.

Santa Clara—Past Presidents Association No. 3 had an enjoyable meeting at the home of Secretary Mary G. Newton February 16. Three candidates were received. Mrs. Clara Gairaud conducted a program commemorating the birthdays of Edison, Lincoln and Washington.

Oroville—Butte County Past Presidents Association No. 5 was entertained February 5 at the home of Mrs. J. J. LaVoy. February 14 the association sponsored the annual party at the Buttee County Infirmary, the program honoring George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Saint Valentine.

Grass Valley—Officers of Nevada County Past President Association No. 6 were installed at Nevada City by Miss Annie Conlin, Margaret V. Nolan becoming president. Cards and refreshments followed the ceremonies. Members made aprons for the women at the Nevada County Hospital and presented them during an entertainment given at the institution. The recipients were delighted.

In Memoriam

ELIZABETH SCHMITT.

To the Officers and Members of Mission Parlor No. 227 N.D.G.W.:

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call our dearly beloved sister, Elizabeth Schmitt, into the great Heavenly Parlor above. We hold in fond memory her cheerful smile, her loving ways and her happy disposition. So suddenly she has been taken from us but, "Dear sister you are not forgotten. Though you are no more, still in memory you are with us, as you always were before." Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our deepest sympathy. It is our earnest prayer that God, in His infinite mercy, assuage their deep grief and send peace into their hearts. We here record our tribute of love and affection for one whose kindly ways endeared her to all who knew her. And be it further resolved, that our flag be draped in mourning, in due respect for our late sister, that a copy of these resolutions be spread in full upon our minutes, that a copy be sent to her family and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
ANN DIPPEL, Secretary,
MAME CUNEO,
INGE MEYER,
The Committee.

San Francisco, January 30, 1932.

EDNA ROMERO.

To the Officers and Members of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 Native Daughters of the Golden West—We, your committee appointed to draft a resolution of respect to the memory of our late beloved sister, Edna Romero, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has again entered our Parlor and taken from our midst our beloved sister, Edna Romero; while a new member, we will deeply feel the loss of her whose kind and gentle manner won the love and esteem of all who knew her. We realize the still greater loss of those who were nearest and dearest to her. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 Native Daughters of the Golden West, extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family; and be it further resolved, that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, and that a copy be sent to the family, and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
KATHERINE N. CONTERNO,
AMADA S. MACHADO,
KATHERINE C. WORSHAM,
Committee.

Santa Monica, February 1, 1932.

GERALDENE COPELAND.

To the Officers and Members of Donner Parlor No. 193 Native Daughters of the Golden West—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister, Geraldene Copeland, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to call to the Eternal Grand Parlor on High our beloved sister; and whereas, in the sudden demise of our sister it seems for the moment like the untimely passing of a rose, in the bud, those who knew and loved her find comfort in the everlasting wisdom of the Divine Providence in the knowledge that He has taken the rose to blossom to full beauty in the veritable Garden of Heaven. Whereas, in view of the loss we have sustained and the greater loss suffered by the motherless little ones, husband, mother, father and sisters, be it

Resolved, That the deepest sympathy of the Parlor be extended to her bereaved family; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be sent the bereaved family, and a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

EDNA HILL,
ANNA HUDSON,
ANNA PENDRY,
Committee.

Byron, February 9, 1932.

LENA MANNING.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call our dearly beloved sister and charter member, Lena Manning, into the Heavenly Parlor on High, we hold in fond memory her cheerful smile, her loving ways and happy disposition and whereas, Castro Parlor No. 178 Native Daughters of the Golden West, realizes the great loss which has been sustained by it in the passing of one whose kindly ways endeared her to all who knew her, we here record our tribute of love and affection; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to her family our deepest sympathy. It is our earnest prayer that God in His infinite mercy, ease their deep grief and send peace into their hearts; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, that an engrossed copy be sent her bereaved family, and that a copy be sent The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Approved: LAVINA WEGENER, President
ADELINE SANDERSFELD, Secretary.
San Francisco, February 13, 1932.

IDA DICKINSON.

To the Officers and Members of Plumas Pioneer Parlor No. 219 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister, Ida Dickinson, submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has again entered our Parlor and taken from our midst our beloved sister, Ida Dickinson, we deeply feel the loss of her whose kind and genial manner won the love of all who knew her, but with us there remains the memory of her devotion to our Order and her intense loyalty to its ideals, and we realize the still greater loss of those who were nearest and dearest to her therefore, be it,

Resolved, That we, the members of Plumas Pioneer Parlor No. 219 N.D.G.W., extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family; and be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to the family of our deceased sister and a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

dent Anna Pierce. In keeping with the plan to beautify Los Angeles and vicinity for the Olympic games, the Parlor will seed a vacant lot to California poppies.

Following the February 15 meeting Rose valli and Amelia Stryker as hostesses served a tamale supper. Plans were completed for the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, March 7. A membership campaign is under way and applications are being received from many young women. The Parlor has adopted a Native Son veteran at the Sawtelle National Soldiers Home, and he expresses appreciation for the attentions shown him in beautiful letters. At a recent meeting of Santa Monica Bay's sewing club Virginia, the 9-year-old daughter of Marie Barnes, spoke a little piece.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

Long Beach — Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. celebrated its twenty-fifth institution anniversary February 4, the banquetroom being charmingly decorated for the occasion. Charter Member Kate McFadyen, the first president, related the growth of the Parlor, and interesting events were told by Charter Members Eleanor Martin, Mabel Emery and Ella Ware.

February 18 No. 154 observed the Washington Bicentennial, a program being contributed by Hattie Ketcherside, Clara Fay and Daisy Hansen. In a contest dealing with the life of Washington, Mrs. Fay answered correctly most of the fourteen questions asked by Mrs. McFadyen and was awarded a prize. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the Parlor March 3. Zella L. Hodgdon and Daisy Hansen are in charge of a plunkett dinner to be held April 7. The next meeting of the thimble club will be at the home of Fannie McPherson.

PAST PRESIDENTS HONORED.

San Pedro—Past presidents night was observed by Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. February 26. The program was in charge of President Francis G. Fetzer, and the fish dinner was supervised by David Main and Paul Zirkel. Past President William A. Reuter presided, and among those honored were Roman D. Sepulveda, charter senior past president, and James H. Dodson Sr., charter junior past president. Past President Earl LeMoine of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 recently gave the Parlor an illustrated talk on California.

A BIT O' FARMING and GARDENING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

THERE'S MORE TO A VEGETABLE garden than a backache. True, you may get the backache, but you will get more. You will get health and strength as you use those muscles which should be used; muscles of the stomach walls will be soothed, and the exercise of gardening will reduce flesh that inactivity brings without welcome. More than this, a garden will reduce the family food bill, it will provide an abundant supply of fresh, high quality vegetables in season, it will furnish a supply for canning against the winter's needs, it furnishes food for substitution for more expensive foods, it provides for a more healthful diet, and, if you are interested, it gives you a chance to see how well you can produce and win prizes in the fall neighborhood or county fairs.

In most parts of California there has not been much winter gardening; spring work may be a little late. If it is, all right, don't rush things. Let the soil get dry enough to be really workable before you start operations. But as soon as it is, go to it! Turn up the earth, preferably turning under some barnyard manure at the same time, and let the weeds sprout. Then cultivate so as to kill the weeds and prepare a good seedbed. If commercial fertilizer is the only kind available, use it; it's good if it is the right kind. But be sure your garden gets something to make humus every year.

While exercise is all right, don't make any harder work of gardening than is necessary. In planning to plant, watch the distance between rows so that a wheel hoe or small push cultivator can be used. If a hoe is to be the implement, be sure you give plenty of room for its use. If the soil is dry enough, all the hardy vegetables should be planted at once; the more tender ones may follow as frost danger passes.

WATCH THE CUTWORM.

One of the toughest customers around the garden is the cutworm. It attacks vegetables as willingly as flowers, but it shows little preference. So, get after him early and stay after him late. Use a poison bran mash, which may be made as follows: dry mix a pound of bran and an ounce of calcium arsenate, then add a cup of black molasses and enough water to make it crumbly. This should be sprinkled on the ground in the evening; about three days will find the cutworms a minus quantity. Don't forget it is poison, though; children and chickens should be kept away from it.

DUSTING FOR GARDEN PESTS.

Whether to spray or dust for garden pests, such as the ever-present aphis, is a problem some gardeners have difficulty in answering. Either method is good, if the proper material is used and a thorough coverage is secured. Dust, however, has some advantages. Nicotine dust floats through the air and as soon as it reaches the aphis, it dies. Aphis usually are found where there is an oily appearance of the growth; that is the secretion of the insects. Sprays may be shed by the oil, but dust will stick tight. As aphis are sucking insects, they cannot be poisoned; a contact spray or dust must be used to kill them. Nicotine dust will be found effective, but if there is no dusting apparatus available and there is a spray outfit, use spray, for it has controlled aphis for many a year.

MILDEW OF ROSES.

Mildew of roses is an ever-present problem, one of the most vexatious and persistent with which the flower lover has to contend. It is worse on some varieties than others; this varies with districts. But granted it comes every year, the thing to do now is to apply lime-sulphur spray. Then keep after the mildew with finely ground sulphur dusted at frequent intervals. If the dust is fine and well applied, there should be little trouble with mildew. A help will be to irrigate the roses in the morning or as early in the day as possible; avoid evening irrigation, particularly with sprinklers. Let the rosebush go to bed as dry as possible.

GRAFTING PEACH TREES.

If any grafting is to be done on peach trees, this is the time to do it. Be sure the cuts are clean and smooth and that the cambium layers of the tree to be topworked and the scion are in touch; this is important. Any kind of graft will do, but be sure the cambium layers match. Use a good sealing wax and there should be no difficulty in working over trees to new tops or to new kinds of fruits, as far as that is concerned. For the back-yard gardener, grafting is a profitable hobby, for a single tree may carry enough varieties of different fruiting times to keep the table supplied all season.

PLENTY OF SOIL MOISTURE.

There's plenty of moisture in the soil as the state goes into the growing season. As a result, two mistakes are likely to follow. First, that there is enough to last all season and no irrigation—or very little—is necessary. Second, that the time for irrigation is at hand, and since the water is available, it might as well be used. The truth is, that irigation may not be as necessary as last year, but it may be necessary regardless. The soil auger is the only sure test. Don't pour water on land that has all it can hold; don't let crops suffer because there was an unusual amount of rainfall last winter. Get the auger or soil tube, and find out the needs beneath the surface, and be guided accordingly.

SPRING RENOVATION OF ALFALFA.

There has grown up in the state quite a tendency for renovation, or working up, of alfalfa fields in the spring. Under certain conditions this may be a good practice, may even be necessary; but until the grower is sure it is necessary, or a good practice at least, he should not tear into his alfalfa with a disk or spring-tooth harrow, just to be in style. If the land is hard and foul with weeds, perhaps after the first cutting it will be a good plan to run through the field with a disc harrow. But don't do too strenuous a job.

COCCIDIOSIS SEASON AGAIN.

Every spring when baby chicks start growing up into egg-producing pullets there are terrific losses from coccidiosis. The prevention is more simple than the cure. Be sure the premises are clean. See that the litter is not foul. Give the young birds plenty of air. Keep everything clean. And feed dried skim milk in the mash. If nothing but mash is fed, it should be twenty-five percent dried milk; if scratch is fed, the percentage should be forty. The cure is similar to the prevention. Dried milk should be added to the diet at once. The brooder floor should be thoroughly cleaned three times a day and the litter must be kept dry. The mash with dried milk addition should be fed not less than two weeks. When birds become affected, isolate them at once, of course.

WATCH FOR FROST.

The winter just past has been an unusually wet and cold season. There is abundant snow in the mountains for irigation, but there has been a continued chill in the air which may mean late frosts. The careful and cautious grower will have his heaters placed in the orchard when the blossoms are at the danger period. It costs about $10 an acre to have the equipment ready to save the crop; about one crop in five usually is seriously damaged by frost in districts where frost hits. In 1929 one orchard, saved by heating when neighboring trees bore no crop, returned $900 an acre. It paid. So be sure the heaters are ready, that fuel is available, that the thermometers are in good shape and that the warning service, whether by radio, mail or otherwise, is working and working infallibly.

MEASLES IN GRAPES.

This month is the time to spray for grape measles. Three pounds of sodium arsenate to fifty gallons of water, applied not later than the last week in March, should give a satisfactory control of this trouble.

CHICKWEED IN LAWNS.

Chickweed is likely to appear in any lawn, particularly where there is shade and plenty of moisture. If the weed is not allowed to go to seed, a drying out of the grass may kill it, as it is not at all resistant to dry weather conditions. However, if the seed is in the soil, this method of extermination will not be satisfactory. In that event, the chickweed patches might be dug out and the places re-sodded with good lawn. Iron sulphate will kill chickweed, also it will make desirable grasses look pretty sick. They will recover, though, while the weed will not. But if there are chickweed seeds this method will not be satisfactory. Repeated rakings and prevention of seed maturing will, in time, effect a cure.

APPLYING LAWN FERTILIZER.

The use of well-rotted barnyard manure is one of the best means of supplying plant food for the lawn; commercial fertilizers, however, will do the job well, and many prefer to use them because the appearance of the lawn is not marred and there is no other inconvenience from the prepared fertilizers. They may be sown dry, raked with a split bamboo lawn rake and then soaked in with water, or they may be dissolved in water and sprinkled on the grass. A sprinkling can is an easy means of applying the dissolved fertilizers. Follow directions in using fertilizers, so that the grass may not be burned. Most persons like to use grass catchers, and leave the lawn spic and span. If the grass is cut before it gets too long, however, a better practice is to let the clippings fall and rake them into the grass. Lime may be necessary once a year if this is done.

FOUNDER'S STATUE

Crespi of the Portola expedition on August 1, 1769, as 'having all the requisites for a large settlement.' The siege of Yorktown was at its hight when the good chronicler's recommendation was acted on by Governor Felipe de Neve, and El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de Los Angeles de Portiuncula was founded. Los Angeles was a half-century old when the first locomotive was built in the United States, and New York had just replaced gas with electric lights on Broadway when the city had celebrated its centennial.

"Felipe de Neve's burial place is as yet unknown. He died in Mexico. He was the son of Felipe de Neve y Noguera and Maria Perea y Padilla of Seville, Spain. The sword, carried by the founder of Los Angeles at the time he was governor of California, is now in the possession of his family, of which Jose Maria Blanco de Quintana y de Neve of Madrid is a descendant in the collateral line, as De Neve was unmarried. The silver hilt is engraved with motifs derived from the De Neve escutcheon or coat-of-arms. The coat-of-arms, painted upon linen cloth, was found among De Neve's papers after his death and was sent to his sister in Seville. The military devices on the escutcheon, which was granted in 1610 to Jusepe de Neve, are evidences of the martial leanings of members of the family."

community to pay for public improvements for the benefit, pleasure and convenience of all the citizens!

In Shanghai, the Japanese government called out its reserves—Jap civilians residing there and engaging in various pursuits.

Every Jap in this country, whether an American citizen by birth or a native of Japan, is also a reservist of the Rising Sun. And don't forget that, when the call comes from his worshiped mikado, he will respond!

Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania delivered at Springfield, Illinois, February 11, a most timely address on "Lincoln and Today," the occasion being the observance of the one hundred and third anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. He said:

"Never since he led it through the greatest crisis in its history has our country needed the Lincoln kind of leadership so desperately as now, when millions are in the deepest distress and tens of millions in great trouble. As Lincoln understood liberty, this Nation is not free today. How can men be free and equal when multimillionaires grow and multiply while millions go hungry and cold? How can the Nation be free when the policies of its government are dictated by a handful of the overrich? . . . How can the Nation be free when its leaders put business ahead of human welfare—when they rank money higher than men?

"Prosperity-bred 'tyrants'—the word is Lincoln's—are over us today. And they have brought upon the people the suffering that goes with tyranny, which is another name for government by autocrats, or plutocrats, or international bankers or public utilities, or any other control without the consent of the governed. . . . It is not the form of our government that the people need to change, it is the substance. Under the ancient form, a usurpation has grown up that is far more dangerous than any foreign invasion—a usurpation based on cunning, not on force, but all the harder to overcome on that account.

"What our government is being used for today is not the greatest good of the greatest number, but the greatest wealth of the smaller number. The magnates who control it are seeking through that control the utmost concentration of wealth and power in the hands of the smallest possible number. Their gain is the people's loss. God knows they are succeeding in their evil purpose.

"Let the people use the power that is theirs by every right, and return this government to the rule of the people. Let them ask for nothing that was not demanded in the Declaration and established in the Constitution. Let them ask for nothing that is not American to the core. But let them free themselves and their children from the chains of special privilege and concentrated wealth. Let us have majority rule once more in the United States."

The poem which follows was, according to the "Amador Ledger" of Jackson, recited in the Sutter Creek, Amador County, high school in 1861 by Mrs. Frances Dolores Williams, a Sutter Creek Pioneer who will be eighty years of age April 2:

Disturb not his slumbers; let Washington sleep
'Neath the boughs of the willow that over him weep.
His arm is unnerved, but his deeds remain bright
As the stars in the day, vaulted at night.

Oh, wake not the hero; his battles are o'er;
Let him rest undisturbed on Potomac's fair shore.
On the river's green border, so flowery drest,
With the hearts he loved fondly, let Washington rest.

Awake not his slumbers; tread lightly around.
'Tis the grave of a freeman, 'tis Liberty's mound
Thy name is immortal, our freedom ye won,
Brave sire of Columbia, our own Washington

Oh, wake not the hero, his battles are o'er;
Let him calmly rest on his dear native shore
While the stars and stripes of our country shall wave
O'er the land that can boast of a Washington grave.

tonio and the majestic San Jacinto. Here were the mighty chains of the West; here were the natural passes into the valley. Over to the northeast, stood a mountain of intricacy. It rose 2,000 feet above him. He saw the long streak of a ravine pointing downward, and spurring his horse with his bare heel he rode hard and fast away from his tribe and toward the scar in the side of the mountain.

CALIFORNIA'S 1931 MINERAL PRODUCTION CONSIDERABLY BELOW 1930 VALUE.

The total value of the mineral production of California for 1931 is conservatively estimated by the State Division of Mines, under the direction of State Mineralogist Walter W. Bradley, to have been $220,290,000. As there are more than fifty mineral substances on California's commercial list, it is impracticable at this date to give definite figures on all the more-important items.

The estimated total of $220,290,000 is a decrease of approximately $145,314,000 from the value of 1930 production. Gold is the only major mineral substance whose output showed an increased value over the previous year. Petroleum registered the largest decrease, with lesser decreases shown by cement, natural gas, metals, structural materials, industrial materials and salines. The value of the crude oil output was approximately 46 percent less, with a decrease of about 39,000,000 barrels in quantity from 1930.

Receipts of bullion showed an increase in the gold yield of about $1,250,000, compared with 1930, this being due to increased production in the principal lode mines, and to the large number of small placer operators, due to unemployment in other industries. The output from the dredges showed little change. Silver and copper showed large decreases in both quantity and value, while lead showed an increased quantity with a decreased value. The quicksilver output was approximately the same, but having a decreased value. The structural group showed a decrease of about 35 percent, as did building permits in fifty-three California cities. Both the industrial and saline groups showed likewise large decreases in value.

A BIT OF HISTORY

The Grizzly Bear received the following from Mrs. Josephine Mohr-Schlichtman of Bethany, San Joaquin County, the wife of Claus Schlichtman, who came to California from Pennsylvania in 1866:

I am a constant reader of The Grizzly Bear, and never miss the pages "Fifty Years Ago in California" and "Passing of the California Pioneer," and often come across names of oldtimers my father knew well.

My father, John Mohr, born June 27, 1834, in Germany, came to San Francisco in 1852 via the Isthmus of Panama, being seven weeks on a sailing vessel from Hamburg to New York. He passed on July 12, 1916, aged 82 years. He went in the cattle and tanning business, and later engaged in farming. He and his brother, Henry Mohr,—who came to California four times in the 1840s before he stayed here—ran a sailing boat between San Francisco and Mohr's Landing, on the San Joaquin River.

Mohr's Landing was about three-quarters of a mile northeast of what is now Bethany. Bethany was at first called Mohr Station. John Mohr deeded land as a gift to the Southern Pacific, with the understanding that it would put a station there. The name was afterward changed to Bethany, on account of there being other Moore's Stations, and railroad men, not being particular about spelling, confused the freight.

When they ran the boat from San Francisco to Mohr's Landing, they brought all the lumber and fencings—fencing was no small article then—for use there and in all the surrounding country for the first buildings and farm houses. Also sold groceries from the boat, before stores got started.

The first post office in this part of San Joaquin County was at Mohr's Landing. The first school was also there; in 1877 it was moved, and called the Lammenville school. Mrs. Baldwin was one of the first teachers. At Mohr's Landing was the Pioneer hotel, Steamboat saloon, blacksmith shops and grocery stores. Many families came to live there, also hundreds of unmarried men. Of the families, I remember the Hewsons, Servos, Allens, Mourinaus, Henesseys, Masseys, McLaughlins, Cline, Hay and many others.

John Mohr in 1868 married Marie Panz, a native of Germany, at the time a nurse in the Marine Hospital, San Francisco. She came to California in 1866. Their oldest daughter was born on Telegraph Hill in San Francisco. John Mohr saw the San Francisco Vigilantes hang ruffians and bandits from the end of a scantling put out of an upperstory window. After that, your life was safe for a while after dark.

The last elk was shot near Mohr's Landing. Antelope, deer, beaver and badger were still plentiful. Grizzly bears came down from the mountains in May and June to eat wild blackberries, growing plentifully along the river bank. Horsethieves were hung to the nearest tree.

This was all long before Tracy, Ellis, Midway, Byron, Brentwood and other railroad towns were thought of. All the grain and produce from the Livermore Valley was brought by team through Altamont Canyon to Mohr's Landing, and shipped by boat to San Francisco and other points. There were also very large grain warehouses at Mohr's Landing, and a wharf. Fish were so plentiful my father caught two tons in one night. Sturgeon, perch, black and striped bass were most abundant. Catfish were imported later, as were carp. Salmon weighed thirty pounds, sometimes.

More than explorer, too,
With restless breast
He pierced the calm of centuries as
He trekked the West.
Surveyor, engineer with

They blazed the way.
Planted the Bear Flag at Sonoma—
Heroic day!

And once near San Juan
With sixty men, defied
The brave Castro
And there on highest peak
The Flag did show.
He christened Golden Gate,
Became a senator and Almost president.
A life of strange vicissitudes
For Greatness meant.

And some there are who blame
And drag him in the mire,
Brave Pioneer,
But Californians honor him,
His name revere.
His trails are highways now,
All lighted up and down,
Wondrous to see,
And every light is tribute bright to
His memory.

MY MESSAGE

To All Native Born Californians

I, DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ, GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST, DO HEREBY APPEAL TO ALL NATIVE BORN CALIFORNIANS OF THE WHITE MALE RACE BORN WITHIN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OF THE AGE OF EIGHTEEN YEARS AND UPWARD, OF GOOD HEALTH AND CHARACTER, AND WHO BELIEVE IN THE EXISTENCE OF A SUPREME BEING, TO JOIN OUR FRATERNITY AND THEREBY ASSIST IN THE AIMS AND PURPOSES OF THE ORGANIZATION:

To arouse Loyalty and Patriotism for State and for Nation.

To elevate and improve the Manhood upon which the destiny of our country depends.

To encourage interest in all matters and measures relating to the material upbuilding of the State of California.

To assist in the development of the wonderful natural resources of California.

To protect the forests, conserve the waters, improve the rivers and the harbors, and beautify the towns and the cities.

To collect, make known and preserve the romantic history of California.

To restore and preserve all the historic landmarks of the State.

To provide homes for California's homeless children, regardless of race, creed or color.

To keep this State a paradise for the American Citizen by thwarting the organized efforts of all undesirable peoples to control its destiny.

THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST IS THE ONLY FRATERNITY IN EXISTENCE WHOSE MEMBERSHIP IS MADE UP EXCLUSIVELY OF WHITE NATIVE BORN AMERICANS.

. . . Builded upon the Foundation Stones of Friendship Loyalty

Charity

IT PRESENTS TO THE NATIVE BORN CALIFORNIAN THE MOST PRODUCTIVE FIELD IN WHICH TO SOW HIS ENERGIES, AND IF HE BE A FAITHFUL CULTIVATOR AND DESIRES TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED HIM, HE WILL REAP A RICH HARVEST IN THE KNOWLEDGE THAT HE HAS BEEN FAITHFUL TO CALIFORNIA AND DILIGENT IN PROTECTING ITS WELFARE.

DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ,
GRAND PRESIDENT N.S.G.W.

The undersigned, having formed a favorable opinion of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, desires additional information.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

CRIME—DISHONESTY—IS THE MASter today in these United States, and the people are its slaves! Naturally, the country is thoroughly depressed, for prosperity cannot abide amid dishonest surroundings. Either the root of the depression-sore must be reached, by casting out of government and business the dishonest, or the lifeblood of the nation will be completely sapped. Apparently, the slaves must rise in their might and do the casting, if it is to be done!

The Federal Congress has been in session since December. Other than to pass, at the urge of the national administration, legislation for the financial relief of the kings of dishonesty, what has been accomplished? Nothing! The common people—the slaves of today—have been given no consideration.

The country has an overabundance of almighty-dollar legislation. What it requires, is legislation that will eliminate the fraud, the inflated-credit, the deflation and the numerous other pests propagated by the dishonest. The successful farmer controls the pests that afflict his holdings. This nation, if it is to survive, must do likewise.

"How may we reduce our traffic accidents," will be the principal theme at a meeting of interested agencies to be held during May at Santa Cruz City.

Not by gabfest resolutions, but by prison sentences! Like the national prohibition law, the state auto law is a huge joke, because it is not fearlessly and impartially enforced. Thousands of people have been killed by drunken auto drivers. How many of those murderers have been prosecuted for that offense, and how many who have been brought to trial at all and proven guilty have been adequately punished?

Occasionally an "unknown" is apprehended, and then Justice moves swiftly. But in most cases, the offender is not of the "goat" class, and so the charge is reduced to "reckless driving." If convicted, he or she is placed on probation or given a nonsensical sentence that makes a mockery of the law. Particularly so, if the offending one be a "goodlooker"—for not all the drunken auto drivers are of the male persuasion—or of the "prominents."

The auto clubs and other traffic agencies must direct their campaign against overly-sympathetic and easily-influenced judges and other law-enforcement officials, if they are actually desirous of lessening the number of traffic accidents.

Representative LaGuardia of New York declared in the Federal House of Representatives: "The big bankers at the time they were selling their own securities on an inflated value knew that they were selling them at an inflated value, and any man who obtains money under misrepresentation—call it what you want in parliamentary language, . . . he is nothing but an ordinary thief and ought to be in jail. . . . Yes, I would hang a banker who stole from the people."

Not only the "big bankers," but numerous other dishonest financiers who brought about the depression should be in jail. True, there would be a considerable thinning of the ranks of the nation's "leaders" but the country would be supremely benefited. There is no possibility, however, of the national administration attempting to jail those birds. On the contrary, they are being aided financially by the government and thereby being encouraged to continue their dishonorable courses—to continue their legalized thievery.

"Things never were rottener than they are in the United States today," said E. Clemons Horst in a recent Sacramento address, "and some sweet day I hope The People will rise up and kick the churches out of politics."

Hasten that sweet day! It will come when, and not until, the law exempting church property from taxation be repealed. There may be a few churches which respect and obey that exemption-law, but the majority of them violate or evade its provisions.

Here is a bit of good news, from Glendale, Los Angeles County, which received no mention in the daily press: A Jap having the fruit concession in a large public market remarked that any Jap was better than six White men. A White butcher, hearing the remark, cleared his counter in one jump, and soon eight of Japan's "peaceful invasion army" were down and out. Three cheers for that Glendale butcher. May his kind increase!

Births in California last year totaled 81,533, a decrease, compared with 1930, of 2,829. Of the 1931 total, 12,886 were Mexis and 2,040 Japs—an addition of 14,926 objectionables to the state's population.

Public-school education cost the California taxpayers the enormous sum of $153,168,453 during 1931. That bill could, and should, be materially reduced by eliminating the many education-fads which provide high-salaried positions for "specialists" and other favorites of the politicians.

In the course of an address at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Vice-president Curtis said: "Today there are in our midst men of alien thought and race who would sow the seeds of discord and disunion among us; who would overthrow our cherished ideals and traditions. We must rid our beloved country of all such, and all alien criminals, and of all alien racketeers."

Why limit the ridding to aliens? This country has also a considerable number of dangerous citizens, many of them in high positions. They cannot be deported, but they can be dethroned.

Frank E. Elkins went from Beverly Hills, Los Angeles County, to Sonoma City to reside and, according to the "Index Tribune" of the latter place, was "glad to get away from the terrible conditions in the south . . . from the political graft," etc.

It was neither nice nor loyal of him to make such a public statement, although everyone knows that political graft and other rotten conditions afflict the City and the County of Los Angeles. Truly, the record is terrible!

There were 1,345 bank failures in the United States during 1930 and 2,298 in 1931. Not a few of them resulted from crooked management. In Canada, it is said, there has been not a single bank failure in years. Business conditions have been, and are, no worse in this country than in Canada.

That country, however, punishes criminally and ostracises socially the wreckers of financial institutions, whereas in the United States they are, as a rule, placed on probation and hoisted to the top of the social-ladder. If thievery be encouraged, robbery must be anticipated.

Rev. Clarence Reed, from the pulpit of the First Unitarian Church in Oakland, termed Japan "an international outlaw and a nation that should be treated as such," and declared "The communications of the Japanese foreign office and its diplomats contain hollow promises and are tainted with insincerity. . . . A treaty with Japan today has neither meaning nor sanctity. It is only a scrap of paper."

Japan is the same today as it has always been—a scheming nation, not to be trusted. It is encouraging to note, however, that the yellow bandages are gradually dropping from American eyes.

April 8 has been designated "bird day." What new racketeer stunt have the "big birds" ready for launching?

Finance Director Vandegrift denies the payroll increase in the State Government will be $11,000,000, but admits a $5,000,000 boost. At this time, no salary increase is justified, but the political-ball must be kept rolling even though the taxpayers be overburdened. The cost of government in California is outrageously high, and going higher. Something, other than talk, should be done to force a reduction.

"It is a sad commentary on American civilization and government when an aggrieved person is obliged to appeal to criminals rather than officers of the law," said United States Senator Steiwer of Oregon, commenting on the kidnaping of the Lindbergh boy.

Indeed it is! But what otherwise could be expected in a country where law is in the gutter? Some good may come from this diabolical crime; the masses may become aroused and put an end to the criminal-reign.

THE DESERT DAY

(E. E. KNAPP.)

In the desert when it's summer, with the sky as clear as glass
The hot sun hangs above you like a globe of molten brass;
The heat waves make the hill tops in the distance seem afloat,
And the breeze that stirs is burning like from a furnace throat.

You see enchanted cities rising from the sandy wastes,
With streets and avenues so wide, with verdure all embraced;
In the distance there are visions of lakes so cool and pure
That are only heat mirages, the desert siren's lure.

Like a dancing Dervish driven mad you'll see dust devils twirl
With columns made of yellow dust across the wastes they whirl;
The vultures hang suspended, moving neither tail nor wing,
Waiting patiently and soaring, watching for some dying thing.

The heat pours down increasing on the desert waste so hot,
That you wonder if this is the place they say that God forgot;
In rocky shade you seek to rest as you plod towards your goal,
And you thank the God above you when you reach the water hole.

MANY MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO NOTED FLAG RAISING SITE.

San Juan Bautista (San Benito County)—More than a thousand persons, among them many Native Sons and Daughters, made the annual pilgrimage March 6 to Fremont Peak, to commemorate the first raising of the Flag of the United States of America over California soil.

George Abbe was master of ceremonies, and the speakers included Fielding A. Hodges, Rose Rhyner, E. J. Leach and George H. Moore. Boy Scouts of America from Alameda and San Benito Counties participated in the program, and buglers from the Hollister American Legion sounded the call to the colors.

Public School Week—The thirteenth annual observance of Public School Week will commence April 25.

"'THAT MARK IS POINTING TO SOMEthing,' he said to himself as he neared his destination. When he came to it, he stopped, looked around, and saw before him a running stream. Sliding off of his horse, he worked his way to it through the underbrush. He knelt and let his fingers lightly touch the singing stream. He was surprised to find that the water was hot! You know, young men, some of my tribe are very superstitious and the young warrior at once believed that some good spirit had led him to this plentiful water. He marked the spot with a rock and dashed back to his men. With excited tones, he told them what he had found.

"'We must take possession of that place at once! It has healing waters, that stream!' exclaimed the young chief." "And did he take possession of it?" asked the youngest boy. "Certainly," continued the chief. "He then decided to make upon that mountain a lasting sear that would show itself for many miles. He pulled from his sheath of many arrows the longest, strongest and largest matras, carefully adjusted it in his colorful bow, drew it toward him with a strong, steady arm and then took careful aim, letting the arrow fly into the air and straight into the mountain side. There it remained! The point of the arrow was down, and this was the marking of the hot water spring! Some tribes believe that the mark of the arrowhead was caused by two gods having a terrible combat. One, in his madness, hurled his burning arrowhead from the sky and it settled itself in the side of that mountain, but my father's father was the one who told me of my forefather letting his arrow fly into the mountain. I have climbed its heights and have found two kinds of growth, a light and a dark, which might have been caused by the burning arrow."

"How large is the arrowhead, Chief Bill?" asked the boy nearest him. "That is hard to say, son," he replied. "But I can truthfully say that it is a quarter of a mile in length, 550 feet in width and it covers about seven and one-half acres. You can see for yourself how large it is when you are up to it. Too, if you will look at your flint arrowhead you will see that the two are very much alike. Whatever power made my ancestor do as he did is something not yet explained. But the mark has brought many people to its healing waters."

The old chief stopped to refill his pipe. The small group had now become under the spell of the story teller. Many questions were on the lips of all the youngsters, but no one wanted to interrupt this spell. It was all too wonderful!

"Old Bill, we have all wondered what the name San Bernardino means," said one of the boys after Chief Bill had relit his pipe. He grunted. "Well," he drawled, "you know that this valley was named after the good Saint Bernard. But the word in our language means 'bold as a bear.'" "How funny!" laughed one of the boys, "but why that name?"

"According to my father," continued the chief, "nature was bold as a bear when she laid out a valley like this. She was bold as a bear in building the mountains around here as she did. Our gods were also bold to let her do such a thing. My tribes believe and think that any unseen hand is bold that goes forth to the extent of putting fertile soil and letting the water flow where it is of the most use."

"Tell some more about the names of the mountains around here," said one of the boys who had crawled nearer the chief. "Well, let me see," he answered. "We are sitting in a protected place. Around us are four ranges of majestically built pieces of nature's work. To the east, the sun rises over Sierra de Yuciape and it sets behind Arroyo de Cajon, which name means a valley shaped like a box or a chest. If you will look closely, you too will see that the Pass has the shape like a box. That is why it is not a hardship to come into the valley. The mountain peak of Serroto Solo, meaning hill being alone, joins that of the Arroyo de Cajon. Look to the south and you see a colorful and well-built range of Lomeras, which means a ridge of hills or mountains. The mountain of the Arrowhead is directly to the north of us, and right beside it is the range of the El Faldo de Sierras, which my forefathers named 'The Brow of the Mountains.' It is well named, as you can see how smooth and flat it is on top. Its shape is like that of a brow."

"But where does San Gorgonia gets its name?" asked one of the youngsters. "I forgot that, young man, and I thank you for reminding me of it. Because of the bareness of the top and because much snow is found and very little vegetation grows on its peak, the name San Gorgonia means 'Gray Back.' The soil is always gray, even after the snow has melted! All of these peaks tower over 5,000 feet and many of them are 11,000 feet!"

"Oh!" exclaimed a chorus of young voices. "Yes, my dear friends," continued their story teller. "And if you climb upon those peaks, you can see a wonderful country. The pine and fir trees whisper their greetings to you and tell you of their beautiful life up there, and the many kinds of mountain birds always give you a warm welcome with their glad songs."

"Chief Bill, tell us about that stream of water running near here. It is always warm," said one of the older boys. "That," said the chief, "is a stream of water that comes from a warm creek in the mountains. It is a vein or an arm of the hot water springs in the Arrowhead region. It is there where your grandparents washed their clothes and made their coffee. This is the water in which they bathed. My forefathers told me that the devil became angry at some of his people and when he saw them bathing their bodies in this stream he poured a boiling solution into it, thus scalding the bathers. From then on, the creek and its adjoining stream have always been warm. The devil's solution had never become cooled!"

The sun had begun to sink behind the mighty Arroyo de Cajon. The old Indian chief was becoming weary. The boys were reluctant to leave, but seeing that their friend was becoming tired, the leader of the small band arose from his sitting position, nodded to the others, who were watching him, and they did likewise.

"Well, I guess we had better go home now, Chief Bill," said the leader. "We thank you a lot for that history lesson. We sure enjoyed it, didn't we, boys?" And there was a loud whoop in approval.

"I am glad that you enjoyed it and I hope that what I have told you will be of some benefit to you as you grow up. Any time that you want to know anything more about what is around you, just come to me, and I shall be glad to tell you what I know. Good night, boys." "Good night, Chief Bill," and the small group wended their way back into the mission for the vesper services.

The old chief arose painfully and slowly, took his pipe from his mouth, looked to the west, raised one arm above his head, and as he peered reverently into the dying shadows he said in slow tones, "The great God of Peace be ever upon this land!"

EPISODE 7.
MORMONISM.

In the early part of March 1852 a company was formed at the request of Brigham Young in Salt Lake City, Utah. "You people must travel slowly, but carefully, to California, through the Cajon Pass. I hear that the roads are very good now," Young told them. "You must cultivate the soil, grow grapes, cotton, olives, wheat and corn. You must help the padres who are already there to select suitable locations for the mail routes. I appoint Amasa M. Lyman and Charles Rich as your leaders, as they are capable to lead you through unpassable territory with safety. They can name the members of their own caravans, if they wish."

A few weeks later Lyman and Rich had formed three divisions. The first, under the direction of Rich himself, was piloted by Captain Jefferson Hunt. Caravan number two was under the supervision of Lyman, and was led by Captain Seeley. The third wagon train was under the leadership of the good Captain Andrew Lytle. The journey was hard and difficult, but the caravans treked onward, and it was Captain Seeley who led his wagon train into the pass June 11 of the same year (1852).

"Are we the first ones here?" asked a member of the train. "It looks like it," answered the captain. "What a marvelous group of trees! Look at the valley below us. We surely could not have picked out a better place."

"That looks like God's country," said one of the women. "It is," replied Captain Seeley, and he gave orders to make camp under the large sycamore trees.

June 20th the other two wagon trains arrived and made camp in the Cajon Canyon. They were tired, as they had had to combat early summer storms. Many of the roads had been washed out, and the mud was soft and slippery.

"Well, we're here," remarked Rich. "Where is my good friend Lyman?" "Over on the other side of the canyon," answered one of the wagon drivers. "Oh, I see him!" exclaimed Rich, and he proceeded to wave to the other members of the caravan.

"You know, I felt sorry for Brigham Young the day we left," said one of the women. "You did? Why?" asked Captain Hunt. "When he saw us leaving, he looked dejected and forlorn. He expected only twenty of us to come, but instead the whole community got excited and now, as far as I can make out, there are five hundred of us!" "Poor old Brigham," sighed another feminine member of the troupe. "He couldn't even tell us goodbye, as all were too excited to listen to farewells."

It took several days before the captain and his leaders were able to mount their horses and ride into the valley. Several weeks had passed before the final decision was made to purchase the grant of San Bernardino Rancho from the Lugos.

"We have looked all over the valley and I feel that the best move we can make is to settle a colony right here in San Bernardino. There is an abundance of feed for stock and the land looks as if it would be well worth cultivating. Some of my people are seriously thinking of building homes right here now!" said Lyman. "I'm ready to put the deal through, if you are, Brother Lyman," said Rich.

And so, in the early spring of 1852, the deed of San Bernardino was purchased for the sum of $77,000. Immediately following the buying of the rancho, and when everything looked prosperous, the Indians began to make things look uncomfortable for the peaceful colonists. Both Lyman and Rich decided that something should be done at once, so a messenger was sent posthaste to the coast, where a troop of United States volunteers were stationed.

"Captain Bean, we need help!" exclaimed the messenger. "Our people are in distress!" "I shall go at once!" and the captain ordered his men together and they followed the rider back to the valley.

"Here you are, the first wagon train to enter this great valley of San Bernardino, and you have met obstacles without fear," said the captain as he was holding a conference with Rich. "Yes, I guess you are right. But what are we to do to overcome these hostile tribes?" asked Rich.

Captain Bean looked around him, pondered a bit and then replied, "I would advise you to build a fort and stockades, and to take every precaution against these raids. It will take some time before these Indian tribes are tamed."

Two months passed, and the fort was constructed by the colonists. Two stockades were built, and the houses of adobe and logs were erected inside. Houses which had been built prior to the erection of the fort were moved within the enclosure. The houses were as one continuous room, with partitions separating the walls. The principal entrance to the fort was built on the east side and the gates were made to swing outward. Two additional gateways were provided, on the west and the north sides. The houses were set back from the gateways to protect them from fire. In the center of the fort ran Warm Creek, and the water was used for all purposes. Plans for small wells were made in case of emergency. One of the wagon drivers made a suggestion to use the wagon beds with canvas covers for sleeping apartments, and the idea turned out to be more than anticipated. Over 100 families lived within the walls of the fort, and the men were trained to take any necessary steps to protect their property.

A BIT O' FARMING and GARDENING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

THAT THE FARMER HAS AT LAST turned serious attention to the economics of agriculture, is indicated this year by meetings, institutes and conferences that are being held on the various phases of this subject. Where meetings formerly were held to discuss production matters, these are overshadowed now by marketing, cost accounting and similar angles of economics. The Giannini Foundation for Agricultural Economics at the University of California pioneered this work after its necessity was shown by the Agricultural Extension Service; the State Department of Agriculture is active in this regard; farm advisors are emphasizing it at every turn. co-operative marketing organizations are hard at work showing their members the various means by which profits can be increased after production problems for the year are solved.

Of course, marketing is at the head of the list. Co-operative marketing is being urged by all governmental agencies. And where a co-operative marketing association operates on strictly business lines, feeds the markets carefully so there is no over-supply, does its business cheaply and well, it is bound to be the most profitable means for the farmer to dispose of his crop. But it must operate as efficiently and cheaply as do private concerns, if it hopes to get and hold business. There are no dividends to be paid, save to the farmers themselves, and in just that measure the farmer may expect added profits, with some increase due to advertising and careful spread of the produce on the markets.

It is safe to say that this year's crop will be the highest in quality, the best in pack, and the most carefully distributed that California ever has placed on the markets of the United States and the world.

APHIS ALWAYS PRESENT.

Always in the garden is the aphis. Black leaf forty, mixed according to directions on the bottle, used as a spray, will give good results; so also will nicotine dust. An even better control agent is pyrethrum, to which a little soap has been added. This is easy to use, harmless to the plants and non-poisonous to humans. It is an almost sure-shot killer when it comes into contact with the plant lice or other insects. Used as a spray or injected into hills and along runs, it gives also a good control of ants. Ants and aphis usually go together; the control of both will be beneficial to the control of either.

CANKERWORMS ON TREES.

When the little green worms about an inch long begin to hang from the trees by strands of web, the annual invasion of the cankerworm is on. The females lay their eggs in the trees during the fall or spring, and the larvae descend on the webs. As the females cannot fly, they have to crawl up the trunks, so that bands of tanglefoot will prevent their ascent. If the tanglefoot has been neglected and the worms are already in evidence, spray the limbs and twigs with pyrethrum.

PLANTING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Chrysanthemums may be planted at any time now, and up to the middle of June. The ground should be thoroughly prepared, well worked up with rotted dairy manure and bone meal or wood ashes. Plant in rows two feet apart and from nine to twelve inches apart in the rows. Or if but one blossom to the stalk is wanted, they may be planted as close together as six inches in the row. Plant so that when the earth is firmed about them there will be a small depression to hold water. Keep the plants moist until well established; after that, irrigation in furrows every two weeks will be sufficient if enough water is applied to penetrate the soil to the depth of the roots. Cultivate to keep out all weeds that compete for water and plant food. Later treatment will depend upon the kind of flowers wanted. For large blossoms, pinch off all buds but the one to be developed. Cluster chrysanthemums need not be budded back so closely. If the plants are put out early and give indication of coming into blossom before the desired time, prune them back.

MASH AN ALL-YEAR DIET.

Mash should be fed all the year round, unless for some reason it is desired to give the laying flock a rest. In that case lighten up on the mash and increase the grain. Perhaps a little more mash and a little less grain should be fed in the summer than in the winter, but see that it is before the hens at all times in the hoppers. If the mash should be discontinued suddenly, the hens likely would be thrown into a molt and production would be much reduced.

THIN DECIDUOUS FRUIT EARLY.

In deciduous fruit, one of the main features of quality is the size. To secure size, the tree must not be allowed to carry more fruits than it can properly size up. Reducing the number of fruits on the tree will increase the size of those left and will not result in smaller tonnage. Peaches should be thinned before they reach the size of the end of the thumb, and should be spaced from four to six inches apart. Apricots may be thinned with less care, but the number of fruits left must be such that they will attain good size. The main thing in thinning is to get the job done before the pits develop and the vitality of the tree is drained.

BEANS FOR THE HOME GARDEN.

Beans for the home garden may be planted now, and two varieties should be sowed. One of the early bush varieties should be used for the first crop, and a pole bean for later use. Both may be planted at the same time, as the bush beans will be through by the time the later varieties are ready to supply the table. Bush bean rows should be about two and a half feet apart, with seed dropped about four inches apart. Pole beans should be planted in hills about three and a half feet apart with three or four plants to the hill. A stake about five feet in hight should be provided before the climbing stems appear. Irrigate frequently to keep the plants growing and to secure tender, stringless pods.

MELON PRODUCTION.

Nothing in the garden is more appreciated than the melon. From the home garden alone can the vine-ripened fruit be picked with its full flavor. Those who have experienced the half-green fruit often offered at stores will appreciate the incomparable quality of the home-grown melon. Cantaloupes require rich soil, as do casabas, persian melons, honey dews, santa claus melon, etc. Seed should be planted as soon as the danger of frost is over, unless the gardener is willing to undertake to protect them on nights when the temperature bids fair to go below the danger point. About ten or twelve seeds should be placed in a hill, and the plants thinned to two or three of the strongest when the fourth leaves appear. It is best to prepare beds six or seven feet in width, with the irrigation furrows between. The vines are trained away from the ditches. The seed should be planted on the southern or western edge of the bed. The other melons develop more slowly and do not become edible until late summer or fall. Until the fruit is well started, the plants should be dusted frequently with hydrated lime and arsenate, because of the spotted and striped cucumber beetles.

WATCH GRAPE MILDEW.

It is just about time to start the fight against grape mildew; if the battle does not begin on time there will be poor control and poor quality of fruit. When the shoots are from six to eight inches long the first dusting should be done; the second when they are from fifteen to eighteen inches in length; the third when they are from two to three feet. Pay no attention to blossoming. The sulphur should be finely ground and should be applied with a good blower so that a film of dust is left on the leaves, both on the upper and lower surfaces. Throwing handfuls of sulphur into the vines does no good.

SOW BUGS IN THE GARDEN.

Sow bugs are a perennial pest that come with the advent of spring and garden truck. They like sweet feed, so a mixture of one part paris green and five parts of brownsugar will aid in their control. Place the material in pans or on boards in the garden or the strawberry patch. Cover with boards, for the bugs will not work in the open. If the ground is quite damp, sugar will not be satisfactory in the bait mixture; use a pound of bran and enough water to make it crumbly when mixed with the ounce of paris green.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

TAKING THE CUE FROM THE GREAT out-of-doors and borrowing inspiration from nature's own palette, the shops are giving us the spring atmosphere. With so much loveliness offered, the feminine world can settle down to a really serious consideration of spring fashions, now that they are set before us. Variety, however, is tempered with good judgment.

Each costume seems designed for a specific purpose, or purposes. The silhouette has been simplified, with the result that one notes fewer peplums, frills and flounces.

Lines still point the way to smartness, not only the lines of the model, but the diagonal lines of various woolens and the lines formed by the ever-smart pintucking. Novelties are conspicuous by their absence, as also are freak clothes. Instead, we have smart suits and frocks. We are chic, rather than elegant, these days,—an infinitely better idea.

She will be very trim and jaunty, as neat as a pin, a bit gay and spirited, with deft touches of accenting color, crisp and dainty in every detail. That is, miss summer of nineteen thirty-two, according to fashion experts, who base their predictions upon what the styles are foreshadowing.

Smartness is everywhere in the jauntily tilted hats, in the sleek lines of evening gowns, in the trim neatness of sport outfits, and in the "just enough" accent of vivid color in shoes, hosiery, jewelry, coats, purses, suits, blouses and everything else.

Every little dress will have a jacket all its own. Or, if milady be clever, the tiny, perky coats and dresses will be combined in a dozen different relationships.

Those circular skirts which were so difficult to manage in last summer's breezes have been subdued into modified flares and pleats. Twelve inches from the ground is an average length, with longer for evening and perhaps a little shorter for sports wear.

Hats are uniform in only one point—they are not worn straight. Berets are numerous, sailors are "right." The flat-brimmed sailor hat would never recognize its own descendants, with perky brim twists and frisky angles. Flowers are used, not in quantity but in neat little clusters.

Shoes have gone sandal. They are cut and perforated in every conceivable way, and many are made of fabrics.

Fashion is young this season. Someone once said, "a woman is as young as her choice of clothes." However, that does not mean that good taste must not always play an important part in one's selection. It means simply that any woman may prolong her youth and enhance her charm through her clothes and, of course, the spring fashion helps this project with young colors and materials.

Prints gay and youthful are reappearing in new colorful arrangements. They are smaller in pattern than before and, if anything, daintier. White backgrounds with dainty pastel color combinations are popular, with blue leading the pageant of color in a hundred shades.

One pretty frock was displayed in blue of three shades. The frock itself was designed high-waisted, with a dainty georgette bodice attached to the skirt and trimmed with narrow lace. There was a little bolero jacket with sleeves to complete the picture.

Another frock, showing cape sleeves, was embroidered in white, which created a chic, finished effect. There was a sash of white and red, and a red band on the white shark-skin straw hat added the last touch of jauntiness.

This spring and summer seem to commend light colors, and for that reason fashion has compromised, the result being a combination of light and dark which is both striking and smart. Blue and black, brown and gold, red, white and blue are only a few of the myriad combinations suggested.

Chiffon or crepe roma combined with lace is another fetching idea of fashion. A charming example of this is a dinner gown of black crepe roma with a yoke of that new heaven-blue and a lace jacket of the same shade of blue. Blue accessories are to be worn with this costume.

The young business girl will like the new spring suits. For example, one of the six-buttoned, double-breasted models of wool crepe or jersey, with a white cotton mesh blouse and a bright-hued scarf. This, combined with a cute hat and pretty slippers, well assures her of being dressed in good taste for almost any daytime occasion. For more important occasions one can be "dressed up" by adding a fur scarf, a knot of flowers, a piece of costume jewelry or a more elaborate blouse.

Gloves have become very important. Combinations for general spring wear are black and navy blue with white, eggshell and beige and black with touches of silver. These same combinations obtained in bags and shoes find great favor. Some of the newest gloves for evening wear are elbow length of hand-made silk filet, hand-embroidered from the back of the hand to the elbow. A lacy edge is worked into the top of the glove in filet stitch. Daytime gloves are of kid in black and white with stitching of white. The ribbing on the back of the hand is done in heavy white twist. The gauntlet wrist of the white kid is open on the outer edge and laced across the opening with a black silk cord.

Knitted garments have great vogue this season. At least, fashion is knitted conscious. Not

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

APRIL 4, 1882, PRESIDENT CHESTER A. Arthur vetoed the anti-Chinese bill passed by the Federal Congress, giving as his reasons that it was ambiguous and violated a section of the treaty with China. His action caused widespread dissatisfaction in California, and in several localities he was burned in effigy by indignant citizens. Popular clamor was stilled by a report that Senator J. F. Miller had introduced a new bill eliminating the objectionable features found by the President in the one vetoed—and that it would be quickly rushed through to a finish. The veto again brought the San Francisco sandlot crowd and Dennis Kearney into the limelight.

Anticipating Chinese immigration would eventually be restricted by the United States, vessels were greatly in demand at China ports to bring a horde of the celestials to California while the coming was good, and tramp steamships were being sent there for the human cargoes. Five vessels, with more than 3,000 Chinks, arrived in the state during April.

An anti-Chinese convention held at San Francisco April 24 was attended by 124 delegates from labor and other organizations. G. R. Wilson was made the chairman. Out of it evolved the League of Freedom, which materialized and consolidated anti-Chinese sentiment.

April weather was beneficial to the state. A three-day norther which started the 15th was followed by nine days of showers. The month's rainfall was 1.99 inches.

On account of a feed shortage, Lankershim and Van Nuys, Los Angeles County sheepmen, sold to John Finnell of Tehama County in 1881 12,000 sheep at $1 a head. He drove 9,000 of them north, and left the remainder on the southern range. During April the price of sheep advanced to $2.50 a head, and Lankershim and Van Nuys bought back the 3,000 for $7,500.

Gulls were laying eggs and nesting on an island in Mono Lake. In one afternoon a party of hunters gathered 600 of the eggs.

Immense flocks of Baltimore orioles arrived in Santa Barbara and adjacent counties. They later moved to other localities.

General W. T. Sherman of Civil War fame came to California with a party April 19 and proceeded to the Yosemite Valley.

There was a big mining excitement in Nevada County. A deposit of auriferous gravel had been found in a buried channel at Mooney Flat, and many locations of acreage were being made.

The State Immigration Society, with headquarters at San Francisco, began its existence by sending to Eastern communities advertising matter inviting people there to settle in California. A Scotchman was in charge, and he was the representative of a colony of fifty families that were coming to the state from the Highlands. They desired to go into the dairy business, and he was looking for suitable lands and localities for them.

A four-story flourmill and several other buildings were destroyed by fire at Stockton, San Joaquin County, April 2. Estimated loss, $250,000.

The San Jose, Santa Clara County, residence of John Britt burned April 30. His wife, unable to escape, was cremated.

A coterie of Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N.S.G.W. members went to a picnic near Roseville, Placer County, April 26 in a tallyho drawn by four white horses. For headgear, they wore "plug" hats, and each was accompanied by a selected Native Daughter.

Nathan Barbour, a farmer in Suisun Valley, Solano County, since 1846, died there April 1.

J. C. Palmer, who came to California in 1849 and with other capitalists established the first bank in San Francisco, died at Oakland, Alameda County.

Garrett W. Ryckman, a Pioneer of 1849, died at San Francisco April 2 at the age of 87.

W. B. C. Brown, who came from Kentucky in 1851, died at Sacramento City April 2. He once was clerk of Sacramento County and comptroller of California.

Isaac Lankershim, who came in 1854, died at Los Angeles City April 10 at the age of 63.

James Spencer, since 1849 a Nevada County miner, died near Colfax, Placer County, April 19, aged 64.

What was claimed to be the biggest locomotive in the world, constructed in the Southern Pacific Shops at Sacramento City, was given a trial run April 16. It weighed sixty-one and one-half tons, and while it was then considered a monster, it was but a pigmy alongside locomotives now in use. It was later named "El Gubernador," and operated over the Tehachapi.

An Indian who threatened to kill a Colusa County farmer residing on Stony Creek was taken by a mob from the custody of a constable April 24 and hanged.

J. G. Van Mater of Oroville, Butte County, was attacked by a swarm of bees April 27. One stung him in the mouth, and in a few minutes he died from suffocation.

George Canmer and Thomas McGeeny went for a boat ride on the Sacramento River April 30 and both were drowned.

Alfred Den was thrown from a horse at Santa Barbara City April 19. His foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged to death.

Charles J. Kohler fell five stories down a San Francisco elevator shaft April 7 and was killed.

The three-months-old son of Wm. Allen, residing near Fresno City, was smothered to death April 16 by a house-cat which coiled across the infant's mouth and nose while asleep in his cradle.

A Russian named Raten shot at a man on a Sacramento City street April 10 and darted into an alley in an endeavor to escape. He was intercepted by ex-Sheriff James Lansing, whom he mortally wounded with a pistol shot. A mob of 3,000 gathered, intending to taken Raten from the jail and lynch him. The police force of twelve men being powerless, a company of state militia was called and dispersed the angry mob.

Three-year-old Elsie Mattern, waiting for a picnic train April 26 at Oakland, Alameda County, slipped away from her mother, rushed upon the track as the train approached and was crushed to death by the engine.

Thomas Nurse and Wm. Kirkland farmers of Ione Valley, Amador County, got into a dispute trespassing quarrel April 6, and Kirkland killed Nurse.

At the Derbec mine in Bloomfield Nevada County, the retortroom had twice been robbed of amalgam, so a trap gun was set. April 19 it was touched off, and one Chinaman was killed and another was wounded.

just old-fashion knitted, but fancifully minded in criss-crossings, basket weaves, drop stitches, ribbings and so on. A two piece knitted sports frock in a sort of nile green has a skirt woven diagonally with smart insets in which the weave runs in opposite directions. In the blouse, the shoulder line achieves that new, wide effect, and there is a soft rolled scarf of green and white. A neat knitted belt and puffed sleeves banded a little above the wrists complete a swagger effect.

Accessories displayed include a soft, white, draped beret with tabs of heavy ribbon over the right ear, black and white sandals and heavy white gauntlets. Brick red and navy blue pajamas are made of wool jersey for beach wear. Practical garments are made of sturdy fabrics. Belts are of navy blue patent leather, trimmed with ball buttons in red lacquer. Coats are made of cotton eponge, with large kimono sleeves.

Chiffon is making a strong come-back, both plain and lame weaves being used. There are also many who like the satin that has a new twist, especially when it is black. Ice blue satin is the newest, and tremendously popular.

Picnic Day—The annual picnic of the University of California Branch College of Agriculture will be held at Davis, Yolo County, April 16.

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

LOS ANGELES' LATEST HIGH-FINANCE scandal—a judgeship for a suit—involves more "prominent" citizens, including judges of the Superior Court. It is, in reality, but another act in the local investment-tragedy which has robbed thousands of innocent investors of billions of dollars. The "Holy [wholly rotten] City" has, through the manipulations of higherups, in the past few years made rapid progress toward a ranking position as a community where finance-gangsters rule and an invested-dollar is unsafe. One "investment" scheme after another has blown up, and no hardened guntotter had a thing to do with any of the wreckings. They were designed and executed by well-known home-town boys who are lavish spenders—of other people's honest earnings. Receivers for the defunct schemes must eat, and judges who pass on receivership fees must have fine clothes and be entertained with booze-and-female parties—even if mulcted investors must pay the additional freight.

Now, while the latest scandal has front-page publicity, promises galore of cleanups and clean-outs are passed along to the public, but, judging from the past record, nothing will, eventually, be done, and naturally no good will result from the expose. Having adequately proven their fitness, the involved ones will, in due time, be numbered among the local social-elect. Rumors via the grapevine are that judges other than those publicized were in on the elaborate "garden of eden" apartment-houses parties for payment of which the investors are out. Will they, also, be exposed, or are they too prominent? Along the "street" it is commonly stated that graft prevails generally in local receiverships. Will there be an investigation of the conduct of all receiverships, past and present? Horrors, no!

Governmentally, politically, and as an investment field, conditions in the "chemically pure" City of the Angels are notoriously rotten! They shine and stink in the moonlight and in the sunlight. And they are not going to improve unless the honest and decent citizens, vastly in the majority, make a thorough and impartial cleanup. The authorities can not or will not, for one reason or another, function as they should. The majority should organize and get on the job right now, and in some manner rid the community of the crooked minority. History repeats itself, and so it would seem that a vigilance committee, of the calibre of one which operated here effectively in the past, would be a blessing now. Something must be done, that's certain, if Los Angeles is to first come back, and then advance. A real newspaper, fearing no one and free of all entangling alliances, would do a world of good —and how Los Angeles does need such a news vendor!—C.M.H.

LOS ANGELES' FOUNDING SITE.

"Editor Grizzly Bear: March 12 a statue was placed at the Plaza. It was related that there was the spot where Governor Felipe de Neve stuck the point of his sword into the ground and this was the center of the founding of the Pueblo de Los Angeles. That is not correct, and is misleading to those who know nothing of past events. Future generations will believe it to be true, but it is not.

"The real spot where Governor Felipe de Neve stuck the point of his sword is in the center of what is now the block bounded by Sunset boulevard, Bellevue, New High and North Spring streets.

"FRIENDSHIP A HEAVENLY GIFT."

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. was officially visited by Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson March 2. Supper preceded the meeting, Grace Norton and an able committee being in charge. The exquisite table decorations, arranged by Grace Ducasse, Rose Lathrop and Evelyn Howell, carried out the pansy motif. A large crowd assembled in the meetingroom, tastefully adorned with flowers and ferns. The officers' march was very pretty, the white evening gowns being brightened by colorful pansy corsages. Eight candidates were initiated.

The Grand President gave a wonderful talk on the projects of the Order, and she highly complimented President Gertrude Allen and the Parlor and stated that, to date, No. 124 stood first in the number of initiates during her term. In conclusion, she said: "Friendship is a beautiful and heavenly gift, and so needed by us all. In creating fraternal love and harmony, life is sweet for a friendship we've made. Love and true friendship mean, oh, so much to each and every one of us." Addresses were also made by Founder Lilly O. R. Dyer, Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, District Deputy Catherine Ross, and Secretary Annie L. Adair of the Los Angeles homeless children committee. Louise Graeser played "On To California," composed by her for the Olympiad, and Sophia Stewart sang the refrain. Delicious refreshments terminated the delightful occasion.

The March 13 card party was largely attended. As a souvenir each guest received a small potted cactus plant. Ann Schiebush and Margaret Carter were in charge. March 16, City Mother Elizabeth Fisk spoke interestingly on the work of the mothers' bureau. The baked ham dinner of March 30 was served by Flora Holy, Edna Holcombe and Mary McAnany. The following went to San Diego to attend the official meeting there: President Gertrude Allen, Olinda Kirby, Ann Schiebusch, Sophia Stewart, Mattie Gara and Evelyn Howell.

Los Angeles' April calendar includes: 13th, monthly card party; 15th and 16th, rummage sale; 20th, nomination Merced Grand Parlor delegates; 27th, thirty-first institution anniversary celebration. Plans are under way for a family picnic May 1.—M.K.C.

CO-OPERATION THE SLOGAN.

Twenty-four members of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W., among them fourteen past presidents and Past Grand John T. Newell, gathered at the home of Howard Bentley March 21 and selected "co-operation" as the slogan in an organized campaign to push the Parlor and the Order in the south ahead. Charles W. Lyon offered some good suggestions. Refreshments were served by Mms. H. Bentley, R. W. Fryer and E. H. LeMoine.

A ritual team of the following past presidents was selected: Ray LeMoine, senior past president; Earl H. LeMoine, junior past president; Ronald Ross, president; Sidney B. Witkowski, first vice-president; Richard W. Fryer, second vice-president; Howard G. Bentley, third vice-president; Lewie W. Smith, marshal; Walter Fisher, inside sentinel; Roger Johnson, organist. The team will visit other Parlors and not only assist in the initiatory work, but will do everything possible to stimulate interest generally.

April 21, Los Angeles will sponsor an old-time "doings" to which all Natives and eligibles will be welcome. A buffet supper at 7 p. m. will be followed by a show of real talent under the auspices of "Sid" Witkowski and Charles Lloyd. "Don't miss this," is the warning of the co-operators. "Come along and have a good time as in days of yore." April 7 the Parlor will elect delegates to the Stockton Grand Parlor.

DELIGHTFUL PRE-EASTER BREAKFAST.

Members of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. are delighted to behold their statue of Felipe de Neve, founder of the city, which became a reality March 12. Now that that project, which was the outstanding work of the Parlor for more than two years, is an accomplished fact, attention will be turned to other worthwhile things. The presence of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson was second in importance to the presentation. She made an address at the ceremonies, paying high tribute to Californiana and expressing the hope that other organizations would emulate the example by presenting historical statuary.

Mrs. Carlson paid her official visit to the Parlor March 8 and was the honoree at a delightful pre-Easter breakfast, attended by 105 members and visiting friends. Most harmonious and lovely decorations were arranged by Mrs. Edith Adams and committee. An excellent program followed, the program chairman, Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, presenting Mrs. Charles W. Roadman, Mrs. Pearl Cole McMullan, Miss McKinley and Mrs. John W. Hunt. Three candidates were initiated.

The Grand President, in the course of her remarks, commended Californiana for its outstanding accomplishments. She gave the greatest praise to President Gertrude Tuttle, mentioning the fact she had present five aunts who take an active part in Native Daughter work. On the Parlor's behalf, Mrs. Irish presented Mrs. Carlson with a luncheon set. Other speakers were Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer and District Deputy Marguerite Dickinson. March 22, Mrs. William Behm was hostess at a card party which proved successful, both socially and financially.—O.L.

HOUSE WARMING.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. is now housed in the I.O.O.F. building at 1089 North Oxford avenue, corner Santa Monica boulevard, one block east of Western avenue. A monster house-warming is being arranged for April 11 by a committee including Henry G. Bodkin (chairman), Bernard Hiss, Lucien Griffin, C. L. Patterson and Martin Meza.

All members of the Order are cordially invited, and also eligibles, as the meeting will be open. Excellent entertainment is promised, and refreshments will be served. April 4 the Parlor will elect delegates to the Stockton Grand Parlor, and initiation will be held April 25. Hollywood is steadily increasing its membership, as it has a result-getting committee at work.

INTERPARLOR DANCE.

There was a goodly attendance at the Interparlor N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Committee's Saint Patrick dance March 17. Past Grands Herman C. Lichtenberger and Grace S. Stoermer were the guests of honor. Musical numbers were contributed by Emmet and Winston Flood, Julie Kellar and Louise Glaeser. Hostesses and hosts included Mary Noerenberg (chairman), Beulah VanLuven, Grace Norton, Past Grand John T. Newell, Harry Honn and Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer.

GLENDALE DANCE, APRIL 2.

Glendale—Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. entertained Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson at a banquet. Decorations were springtime flowers and favors. Several candidates were initiated at the meeting which followed. Other guests were Founder Lilly O. R. Dyer, Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, and Miss Marvel Thomas, organizer of the Parlor.

March 22 sixty members and their families enjoyed a wonderful potluck dinner served by

Native Daughters of the Golden West

MERCED CITY WILL BE THE MEETing-place of the Forty-sixth Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West. It will convene Monday, June 20, and the constitution prescribes that it shall continue in session for not more than four days. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson (Dolores No. 169) of San Francisco will preside throughout the Merced deliberations, and in all probability will be succeeded by Vice-president Anna M. Armstrong (Woodland No. 90) of Woodland.

Veritas No. 75 has charge of arrangements for the gathering, and a general committee headed by Hazel Laverty is attending to the details. May F. Givens (Mariposa No. 63) is chairman of the entertainment subcommittee which plans an interesting program.

The Grizzly Bear sought information as to their intentions from all prospective Grand Parlor office candidates, and passes along that received to press-time. Subordinate Parlors must elect their delegates the first meeting in May, and some prospectives are waiting to see what happens then:

Grand Secretary—Sallie R. Thaler (Aloha No. 106) of Oakland, incumbent.

Grand Marshal—Sadie Winn-Brainard (Califia No. 22) of Sacramento; Grand Trustee Gladys E. Noce (Amapola No. 80) of Sutter Creek; May F. Givens (Mariposa No. 63) of Cathay.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Elvena Woodard (Vallejo No. 195) of Vallejo; Hazel B. Hansen (Verdugo No. 240) of Glendale.

Grand Trustees (seven to be selected)—Edna B. Briggs (La Bandera No. 110) of Sacramento, incumbent; Florence D. Boyle (Gold of Ophir No. 190) of Oroville, incumbent; Florence D. Schoneman (Rudecinda No. 230) of San Pedro, incumbent.

Not even a rumor has reached The Grizzly Bear regarding the 1933 Grand Parlor meeting-place. The place to be fixed by the N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor for holding this year's Admission Day, September 9, celebration will, presumably, be endorsed by the Merced Grand Parlor.—C.M.H.

Twenty-second Birthday.

Pescadero—Ano Nuevo No. 180 celebrated its twenty-second birthday at Moss Beach. President Mamie Dias presided as toastmistress and presented the following charter members: Ida M. Mesquite, who organized the Parlor and was its charter president, Margaret Dias, Frances H. Moore, Eva Montivaldo, Lizzie Frey, Rose Bennett, Rose Francis, Lillian Woodhams, Susie Mattei and Margaret Goularti. Vocal selections were rendered by Flora Steele, and Harriet Williamson and Margaret H. Dias played several duets on the piano and saxaphone. Three generations were present—Francis H. Moore, her daughter Louise M. Williamson and her granddaughter Harriet.

Recently the Parlor initiated a large class of candidates, among them Mrs. Esther Armas Brown, born at Santa Cruz City in 1854.

Inspiring Address.

San Bernardino—Lugonia No. 241 had the pleasure March 9 of welcoming Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson and many visitors. In the afternoon there was an informal tea at Redlands, sponsored by those interested in the formation of a parlor there. A reception and dinner followed in the evening at San Bernardino. The unique tables decorations, arranged by First Vice-president Nola Fogler, were of eucalyptus bark, narcissus and greens. A four-piece girl orchestra furnished music.

At the Parlor meeting President Gladys Case Baker introduced the guests, among them Past Grand Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, organizer of Lugonia, Mrs. Omar Brainard, Helen Anderson and District Deputy Hazel Hansen. Eight candidates were initiated, and following the ceremonies Marshal Evelyn Shaddox and Organist Marguarite McKenzie, accompanied by Secretary Grace McHenry, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

Grand President Carlson gave an inspiring address, in the course of which she complimented Lugonia on its accomplishments and commended Miss Clara Barton for her history story, "The Romance of San Bernardino," appearing serially in The Grizzly Bear. Mrs. Carlson was presented with gifts of china, flowers and oranges, and the other grand officers were presented with boquets. The meetingroom was attractively decorated with baskets of colorful spring flowers, including the California poppy, by Clara Barton and committee.

Contributes to Landmark Purchase.

Alturas—At the Alturas Civic Club's annual luncheon Past Grand Dr. Louise C. Heilbron was the guest speaker, Grand Marshal Irma W. Laird chairman of the general arrangements committee and Past Grand Catherine E. Gloster toastmistress. Supervising Deputy Dorothy Gloser gave the opening address, and of the hostesses that presided over the twelve tables, each suggesting a month of the year, six were officers or past presidents of the Parlor. The following day Dr. Heilbron spoke before the Alturas Rotary Club.

March 3 Alturas authorized a cash donation toward the purchase of the historic Vallejo home in Sonoma County, and the purchase of tickets for Mount Lassen No. 215's Loyalty Pledge benefit. Several applications for membership were received. Many invited guests enjoyed bridge and refreshments after the business session. Members of the Parlor are planning a box of baby clothes for the homeless children.

Anniversary Observed.

Fort Bragg—March 3 marked the sixteenth anniversary of Fort Bragg No. 210. District Deputy Edna Kunzler was guest of honor and gave a reading on the flags of California. Delicious refreshments were served. A birthday cake with candles and decorations which called attention to Saint Patrick day made the tables very attractive.

Mms. Ruth Roberts and Mae Johnson entertained the sewing club March 18 at the former's home.

Entertaining Affair.

San Luis Obispo—San Luisita No. 108 entertained Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson. The hall was beautifully decorated with California poppies and fern, while the decorations of the banquetroom, where refreshments were served later in the evening, carried out the same motif with poppies, candles and greenery. An interesting address was given by the Grand President, and other speeches made up an entertaining affair. A group of local members accompanied Mrs. Carlson on her visit to Cambria.

Tune in, Folks.

San Jose—Supervising Deputy Clara Gairaud, a member of the Grand Parlor Publicity Committee, announces a Loyalty Pledge broadcast over K.Q.W. (San Jose) Saturday evening, April 16, 8 to 8:30. Past Grand Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, chairman of the Grand Parlor Loyalty Pledge Committee, will be heard in a five-minute talk from the Sacramento studio of K.Q.W. Mrs. Gairaud has arranged a program of talent. Be sure to tune in.

Old-fashioned Dance.

Santa Rosa—Santa Rosa No. 217 had an old-fashioned dance March 17 and it was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. Joe Avellar received a handsome quilt made by the Poppy club. The committee for the dance included Katherine Branstetter, Pearl Brucker, Jimella Cook and President Carrie Avellar. The Parlor will be represented by a float in the Santa Rosa rose festival during May.

Community Spirit Manifested.

Hollister—Committees of Copa de Oro No. 105 have carried out most successfully a series of highly entertaining social sessions. At an enjoyable leap year party unattached members were given valuable tips on "how to propose" and the best means of capturing husbands in 1932. Appetizing refreshments were served from a charmingly decorated tea table, where Hilda Thompson and Edna Hansen presided at the teapots.

March 10 the members "went irish," with games commemorative of Erin's patron saint. The Parlor has manifested its community spirit by donations to the San Benito County unemployment fund and the San Juan Plaza Preservation League.

Tree Dedicated to Washington.

Georgetown—March 7 El Dorado No. 186, under the direction of President Hattie E. Presby, planted a gigantea sequoia at the home of a charter member, Elizabeth Murdock. The tree was dedicated to the memory of the nation's first President, George Washington, whose two hundredth birthday is being observed in all communities this year. An appropriate program relating to Arbor Day was given, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Forfeit Paid.

San Rafael—In real old Erin fashion, sixty-five members of Marinita No. 198 enjoyed a delicious cornedbeef dinner March 14. The occasion was the outcome of the recent attendance contest. Frances Soldavini was captain of the losing team and she and her company paid their forfeit in this delightful manner. The banquet-room was decorated in the Saint Patrick motif. Guests of honor were Supervising Deputy Emma G. Foley and District Deputy Mae Shea. A large amount of food was left over, so Captain Soldavini notified the police department, and it was taken to the headquarters of the unemployed, called "The Jungles," where it was received with great delight.

Antoinette Hecht was chairman of a card party March 28, held to increase the homeless children fund. A basket of groceries was disposed of. The Parlor has subscribed to the Vallejo memorial fund.

General Assembly To Meet.

Oakland—The annual convention of the Past Presidents General Assembly will be held here April 8 and 9. Association No. 2 has charge of the arrangements, and Emilie Clifford is the general chairwoman. The program includes: 8th—reception and registration. 9th—luncheon 12:30 p.m., meeting and election 2 p.m., banquet 6:30 p.m. Elaborate entertainment features will be presented by a committee headed by Helen Cleu, among them an automobile tour of the bay cities.

tieth institution anniversary, celebrated the bicentennial of George Washington, and honored two of its charter members, Mmes. Jennie Costello and Mary Claus. The many in attendance at the big party made a spectacular appearance in costumes of the past. The banquetroom, where an elaborate supper was served, was beautifully decorated in patriotic colors. The committee in charge included Anna Johnson (chairman), Kathryn Moutoux, Mabel Thompson, Clara Berg, Julia Hill, Eugenia Waehlin, Juliet Bliss, Guilda Keller and Mayme Donnelly.

The Parlor plans, with the co-operation of Vallejo No. 77 N.S.G.W., to plant a tree in the new Memorial Park, atop Vallejo Hights, in honor of the Pioneers of Solano County.

Card Parties at Homes.

Merced—President Helen Krutosik has planned many social events for Veritas No. 75. Among them, each member of the Parlor is sponsoring a card party at her home. An immense grocery box is to be disposed of at a public card party April 5.

"You Try It."

Standish—Nataqua No. 152 has adopted a plan to get out the stay-at-homes: two captains were appointed, both choosing an equal number of members, and each team endeavoring to get out the most members. At the closing of the contest the losers are to fete the winners. The plan is creating great interest in Nataqua as well as in Honey Lake No. 198 N.S.G.W., and March 2 more than fifty members of the Parlors enjoyed refreshments together. "You try it!"

The Parlor's homeless children committee made and disposed of a beautiful silk quilt for the benefit of the kiddies.

Newlyweds Showered.

Sutter—South Butte No. 226 and Sutter No. 261 N.S.G.W. sponsored a surprise shower for Mr. and Mrs. (Necia Vagedes) Henry Correll, officers of the Parlors who were recently wedded. Sixty-two friends of the couple were in attendance, and they were the recipients of many gifts. The refreshments table was attractively decorated, the centerpiece being a white cake ornamented with red hearts.

The Parlors had a carnival March 16, and they soon will have a tree planting ceremony in honor of the bicentennial of George Washington.

Bronze Marker Dedicated.

San Diego—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to San Diego No. 208 March 5 was the occasion for a charming dinner party. A song, written in honor of and dedicated to Mrs. Carlson, was sung by the past presidents club. For the attractive table decorations, carrying out the Washington bicentennial idea, credit is due Martha Klindt.

Following the dinner was the meeting. Through the efforts of Edith Barngrover and committee the room had been made into a veritable garden of spring flowers. Several visitors were in attendance. Grand President Carlson gave a most interesting address, and was presented with a linen tea set. Sophia Stewart sang "I Love You, California," during the initiation ceremony and later favored with other songs. Light refreshments were served.

March 6, District Deputy Hazel B. Hansen entertained the grand officers at luncheon. In the afternoon a bronze marker was dedicated at Punta de los Muertos in memory of Spanish sailors buried there. The speakers, Grand President Carlson, Grand Trustee Florence D. Schoneman and N.S.G.W. Deputy Grand President Edward H. Dowell were introduced by Past Grand Dr. Louise C. Heilbron. The plaque, presented

HONORING GRAND PRESIDENT DR. Frank I. Gonzalez (Pacific No. 10), the San Francisco Native Son Parlors will conduct a joint class initiation in the auditorium of Native Son Building, 414 Mason street, the evening of Saturday, April 2. Invitations have been extended all adjacent Parlors, and many past and present grand officers will attend. The arrangements committee is headed by Harry Romick (Castro No. 232).

The ritual will be exemplified by the following picked team, selected by a committee headed by Jas. F. Stanley (Stanford No. 76): H. J. Ritter (Hesperian No. 137), senior past president; Joseph Tinney (Rincon No. 72), junior past president; David Simon (Castro No. 232), president; Otto Elvander (South San Francisco No. 157), first vice-president; Matthew Brady (South San Francisco No. 157), second vice-president; Peter Macarini (South San Francisco No. 157), third vice-president; Joseph Sugrowe (Pacific No. 10), marshal; John Schimelpfenig (Castro No. 232), inside sentinel; C. George Cuthbertson (Castro No. 232), organist.

CONTRA COSTA DAY AT N.D. HOME.

March 13 was Contra Costa day at the N.D. Home Sunday breakfast, and Past Grands Amy V. McAvoy and Estelle M. Evans were the hostesses. District Attorney James F. Hoey, N.S.G.W. Past Grand, was the speaker. Decorations were in keeping with the Saint Patrick theme. Visitors included Past Grands Addie L. Mosher, Dr. Mariana Bertola, Margaret G. Hill and Emma G. Foley, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini and N.S.G.W. Past Grand Charles Dodge.

NATIVE DAUGHTER PARLOR DOINGS.

Minerva No. 2 celebrated its forty-fifth birthday March 10 at a banquet. Chairman Marie McDonough extended a welcome and President Gertrude McDonough gave an interesting address. A letter, expressing regret at inability to be present, was read from Founder Lily O. R. Dyer, who instituted the Parlor March 10, 1887. A delightful program was followed by dancing.

Alta No. 3 celebrated its forty-fifth birthday March 12 at a banquet under the chairmanship of Mary Conner. The artistically decorated tables commemorated the Washington bicentennial, and the favors were unique. A program of music, dancing and bridge followed the feast. Among the many in attendance were President Catherine O'Reilly, Grand Trustee Annie C. Thuesen, Past Grand Margaret G. Hill and District Deputy Annie Franzen.

Orinda No. 56 had a baby shower for the benefit of the homeless children March 11, and a generous supply of clothes and shoes resulted. The Parlor is particularly interested in child welfare work and has adopted the children in the tubercular wards of the San Francisco hospital; every holiday they are remembered with candy and gifts. Orinda members born in January and February were entertained at a birthday party the latter part of February, and those born in March were entertained March 25; gifts were presented them on both occasions. First Vice-president Marie Stewart-McGrath, a recent bride, was given a surprise shower at the home of Outside Sentinel Mary Miner. Second Vice-president Emma McClure is the proud mother of a native son, born March 14.

The bicentennial of George Washington was the motif for another El Vespero No. 118 sociable. The drill team had charge, and under the leadership of Captain Mary Casey presented a play, "Making Our Flag." Games were followed by a typical early-day american dinner, served at tables beautifully and patriotically decorated. The merrymakers of the Parlor are sponsoring their second annual entertainment and dance, to be held April 2. Anne Godfrey is chairman. The proceeds will be added to No. 118's Loyalty Pledge fund.

Genevieve No. 132 had a Saint Patrick party March 17. Chairman Belle Foley was assisted by a very active committee. The refreshments tables were decorated in Ireland's national colors, green, white and gold. Enjoyable entertainment was provided by the Genevieve choral club, Betty Marquis, Rena Taube, Evelyn Dewight, Lillian Troy, Agnes Deasy, Nora Schefflin, the Genevieve merrymakers, Rose Regan and the youngsters.

Keith No. 137 celebrated its anniversary at a leap year dinner-dance. District Deputy Alice Boldemann and President Ethel Porter were guests of honor; the latter was presented with a gift by the Parlor. The committee in charge included Helen Mann, Ella Miller, Gertrude LaFortune, Vera Pander, Frances Blaettler, Hilma Rechter, Sallie Sullivan and Gladys Cruise. Washington's birthday was observed with appropriate songs and readings.

Members of Gabrielle No. 139 have donated to the Central Homeless Children Committee a most wonderful layette, containing duplicates of everything a baby wears. The dresses and slips are hand-embroidered in pink and blue. An accompanying card wishes the fortunate recipient health, wealth, happiness and a long and useful life of contentment.

Saint Patrick day was appropriately and enjoyably observed by Presidio No. 148 March 8. The refreshments committee served "jigg's favorite dish."

Linda Rosa No. 170 observed its twenty-third anniversary March 17. The Saint Patrick motif prevailed. Songs, recitations and cards provided entertainment. A miscellaneous shower was given Mrs. Frank Mallet, bride of a few weeks, last month.

NATIVE SON PARLOR DOINGS.

March 7 Golden Gate No. 29 initiated Frederick Thompson and Adolph Eberhart Jr. The latter is a son of Adolph Eberhart, forty-six years a member of the Parlor, forty-three years a past presiedent, forty-two years recording secretary and forty years secretary San Francisco Native Sons Hall Association; he is the dean of all secretaries, in point of service. A record number of No. 29's members were in attendance, and a very large number of visitors. Historian Peter Conmy presided during good of the order, and addresses were made by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Past Grands Lewis F. Byington and James A. Wilson, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Outside Sentinel Gam Hurst, Judge George W. Schonfeld, William J. Wynn and Adolph Eberhart Sr. A buffet supper followed the enjoyable meeting. In attendance were delegations from California, Pacific, San Francisco, Mission, El Dorado, Rincon, Stanford, South San Francisco, Precita, Olympus, El Capitan, Claremont, Piedmont, Niantic, Presidio, Castro, Hesperian and Balboa Parlors.

With President Eugene Herzog presiding, El Dorado No. 52 initiated Alfred J. Clary, chief San Francisco administrative officer, and Public Works Director William H. Worden. Splendid addresses were delivered by Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, District Deputy Robert Donohue and Peter B. Conmy. Among the many in attendance were Mayor Angelo Rossi and Speaker Edgar Levy of the State Assembly. Refreshments closed a very pleasant evening.

March 16 South San Francisco No. 157 honored the bicentennial of George Washington and Saint Patrick day. More than 200 partook of the "corned and" banquet. Past Grand Judge Fletcher A. Cutler was the principal speaker, his theme being the lives of George Washington and Saint Patrick; it was a masterful oration which drew forth tumultuous applause. Other speakers were Harmon D. Skillin, Hubert J. Caveney, District Deputy Thomas Dillon, Judge George W. Schonfeld, Ed. Allen, Sal Juliano, Ellis Blackman and Harry Rommick. Entertainment was provided by Lionel Smith, Carl Prignitz, Ed. Keating, Lloyd Dornell, George Nilan, Tom Keating, George Kendall and George Cerles.

Twin Peaks No. 214 remembered Saint Patrick's birthday at a bounteous dinner March 16. The table and room were attractively decorated with shamrocks and the flags of the United

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1860.)

JULES A. AURADOU, NATIVE OF FRANCE, 99; came to California in 1849 and mined in Placer County, farmed in Sonoma County and engaged in business in San Francisco; died at the latter city, survived by two sons. He was the oldest senior member of the Society of California Pioneers (San Francisco) and the sole survivor of the first group of Frenchmen to settle in this state. Quoting from an interview Dr. Henry duR. Phelan had with him at San Francisco in 1929:

"During the year 1848, the news of the discovery of gold in California reached France and inflamed the imagination of the people. The revolution and labor troubles had left thousands of men without employment. Emigration to California appeared to many as the solution of their difficulties. Auradou and his father joined the first group of French emigrants bound for California, and sailed from Havre in April 1849 on the three masted French ship 'Meuse,' an old whaler of 500 tons. This vessel could accommodate thirty four passengers, among whom there were no women. Besides the passengers, the 'Meuse' carried a cargo of provisions for California. While rounding Cape Horn the vessel ran into a storm which cost the lives of three sailors, who were washed overboard. Life preservers, boxes and crates were thrown to them, to no avail. The 'Meuse' reached San Francisco September 14, 1849, after a voyage of 173 days. After discharging her passengers and cargo she sailed for China and returned to France. As she was nearing Havre she was lost, with all on board, save the cabinboy and the captain, who became insane."

Mrs. Sarah Jane Lindsay-Bates, native of Indiana, 89; came across the plains in 1850, arriving at Union, now Arcata, Humboldt County, where she died, July 17 of that year; nine children survive. A delegation from Arcata Parlor No. 20 N.S.G.W. attended the obsequies of this Pioneer Mother.

William H. Throp, native of Alabama, 88; came across the plains in 1852; died at Fresno City, survived by a daughter. He was the builder of Fresno's first flourmill.

Mrs. Addie M. Turner, native of Michigan, 87; came across the plains in 1852; died at Alameda City, survived by three children. She was a former resident of Jackson, Amador County.

by Sadie Winn-Brainard of Sacramento, was accepted by President Sarah R. Miller. Sophie Stewart of Los Angeles added to the charm of the occasion by rendering several songs in her beautiful contralto voice. The afternoon concluded with a tea at the home of Alice H. Damarus, at which members of San Diego were hostesses to guests from the north.

Three Initiated.

Cambria—El Pinal No. 163 enjoyed a visit from Grand President Evelyn Carlson. The meeting was preceded by a luncheon, prepared by Mrs. George Steiner at her home. There were twelve visitors, and three candidates were initiated. The hall was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, a large bowl of poppies being placed before the president's station. The Grand President gave a very interesting talk on the work of the Order, and there were brief remarks from Miss Agnes Lee, Mms. Loose, Hill and Lauritson.

Children Guests.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell No. 168 had a party for the children of its members. Games were played and the guests presented a program. Refreshments were served at a table beautifully decorated in red, white and blue. Miss Alice Herman and Mrs. Olive Pearl had charge of the games, Mrs. Cora Hintz announced the program, Miss Icel Snyder was program chairman, and the following made up the refreshments committee: Mms. Lois Heberle, Ethel Estes, Ila Cole, June Wright, Josephine Alexander.

Aged Songbook Given School.

San Jose—Vendome No. 100 observed Arbor Day by joining with the P.T.A. of the Herbert Hoover junior high school and planting four trees, one of which was dedicated by Miss Tillie Brobaska to the California Pioneers. William H. Laurence, 95 year old Pioneer, told how the Pioneers served in the Civil War, and explaining Deputy Clara Gairaud read Goodbye's poem, "The Pioneer," published in the August 1931 Grizzly Bear. Mrs. Rosalie Andrews presented an aged family songbook to the school in memory of her father, Coleman Younger, founder of the Santa Clara County Pioneer Society.

Afternoon card parties for charitable purposes were sponsored during March by Mms. Fay Withycombe, Sue Mattel, Clara Gairaud, Julia Waddington and Grace Mussini. Evening social chairmen were Miss Dorothy Silas and Mrs. Alice Kady. March 16 an enjoyable 4-k-t, "Two Tables of Bridge," was presented and Irish music was enjoyed. Mrs. Stella Bragg directed the games. Mms. Julia Waddington, Emma Nelson and Clara Gairaud were recent hostesses to the Vendome past presidents club. Dainty baby quilts are being made for the homeless children by the club.

Poppy Sale Aids Children.

Bakersfield—A sale of more than a thousand golden poppies by El Tejon No. 239 netted a goodly sum for the homeless children. March 11 fifteen members accompanied Supervising Deputy Grace Davis to Desert Gold No. 250 (Mojave) to greet the Grand President on her official visit to that Parlor. March 13 a large group gathered at Kern County Park for Arbor Day exercises. Two flowering peach trees were planted. March 16 the second of a series of card parties was held at the home of Alice Phillips. A large crowd was in attendance. Tallies, score cards, etc., carried out the Saint Patrick motif.

Sons Are Supper Guests.

Oroville—Gold of Ophir No. 190 was entertained March 2 by Mms. Luretta Ross and Evelyn Joslyn, who interestingly recounted the early-day history of their pioneer families. After the meeting members of Argonaut No. 8 N.S.G.W. were guests at a tamale supper. An effective setting of violets and pink stock was arranged by President Alice Cundy and Vice-presidents Rosa Crum, Hattie Clark and Pearl Damon. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will be the Parlor's guest April 20.

Arbor Day Program.

Placerville—Members of Marguerite No. 12 met at the home of Nettie Wentworth for their annual Arbor Day program. Mary Swansborough was the honor-guest, and a crepe myrtle tree was dedicated to her memory. Participating in the program were Jane McCusker, Nora Gray, Ida Bailey, Agnes Schipp and President Annie Jaeger. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Wentworth following the exercises.

Projects Explained.

Mariposa—On the occasion of her official visit to Mariposa No. 63, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson in a pleasing and instructive manner explained the Order's projects. She was presented with a beautiful picture of Yosemite by Trustee Grace Trabucco, acting for the Parlor. A delicious banquet was served at tables decorated in red, white and yellow. Among the many in attendance were Supervising Deputy May F. Givens and District Deputy Eugenia Kahl.

Several Hundred at Card Party.

Modesto—Members of Morada No. 199 enjoyed a "kid's party." All were dressed in appropriate costumes, and games and cards were played. Ethel Mathiasen headed the committee in charge. The Parlor had its annual poppy day and sold poppies for the benefit of the homeless children. Mrs. Emma Smith entertained the sewing club at her home March 18.

Morada and Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. had their joint monthly card party March 16, and several hundred were in attendance. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed.

"One of the Girls."

Santa Ana—Santa No. 235 had a very large attendance March 14, the occasion being the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson. Thanks to the energy of First Vice-president Mildred Gray, the banquet tables were beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and graceful plants. Two candidates were initiated.

"Grand President Carlson, in the course of her instructive address on the Order's projects," says Recording Secretary Matilda Lemon, "won the hearts of her listeners with her charming, winsome manner. She was not only our Grand President, but one of the girls." Mrs. Carlson

SACRAMENTO—SACRAMENTO NO. 3, the second oldest Parlor in the Order, was instituted March 22, 1878. The fifty-fourth anniversary was celebrated with a banquet and highjinks, March 31, attended by grand officers and numerous other visitors. Irving D. Gibson was master of ceremonies, and following the feast the Parlor convened and the stations were filled by the older past presidents. The oldtimers maintaining a continuous membership of a half-century and more in No. 3 were presented with life memberships. The anniversary festivities were in charge of the following committee: June Longshore (chairman), Thomas W. McAuliffe, Frank Didion, Ervin Beale and John Major.

Some time ago, Treasurer Robert D. Finnie was appointed on the Parlor's goodwill committee. He had special greeting cards designed and sends one to each couple having a golden wedding anniversary and to each individual of 85 years and upward that come to his attention. These cards go not only to natives of the state but to others, and in return many letters of appreciation, expressing goodwill toward the Parlor and the Order, are received.

H. L. Drennon has been appointed chairman of Sacramento's committee to arrange for the joint annual outing of the Parlors of San Joaquin and Sacramento Counties. President Joe Hellinge Jr. heads a committee that is arranging for a dance jointly with La Bandera No. 110 N.D.G.W. April 29. The Parlor had a Saint Patrick night March 17, Archibald Mull Jr. delivering an address and Irish ballads being sung.

Joseph P. Lennon, Thomas W. McAuliffe and Arthur J. Delano had charge of the arrangements.

Opposes Wage Reductions.

San Diego—Over historic Fort Stockton, on the crest of Presidio Hill, the national colors are again flying, San Diego No. 108 having presented a new flag and halyard. March 10 the Parlor approved a resolution, presented by Edward H. Dowell, Gregory McHorney and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, opposing reduction in the wages of government employes.

The objection is based on the contention that any such reduction would be reflected in the wages paid employes of private concerns. Buying power is decreased proportionately with wage reductions, the Parlor contends.

Golden Anniversary.

Stockton—Over 600 members of the Order attended the celebration of Stockton No. 7's fiftieth (golden) institution anniversary March 14. They came from all parts of the state. Entertainment features were presented, and Warren Atherton, the master of ceremonies, introduced the following speakers: Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustee George F. McNoble, Superior Judge J. F. Pullen, R. J. Marraccini, Dr. George F. Pache, J. Solomon, Judge George Steele, Joseph Cross, J. L. Whiting, G. Wakeman, A. L. Levinsky, George Catts and Frank Rose.

Following dinner the oldtimers presided at the Parlor meeting, Past Grand President Hubert R. McNoble assuming the presidency. Reports on arrangements for the Grand Parlor, to be held here in May, were received with applause.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1932, as follows, together with their membership figures March 19, 1932:

Parlor	Jan. 1	Mch. 19	Gain	Loss
Ramona No. 109	1088	1087	....	1
South San Francisco No. 157	822	818	.	4

Interparlor Visits Beneficial.

Oakland—Claremont No. 240 was host March 22 to the past presidents and oldtimers at a get-together smoker. Members of East Bay Counties Past Presidents Assembly were also guests. A class of candidates were initiated, and a tasty repast was followed by whist. No. 240 is looking forward to a dance which will probably be sponsored by the drum corps, one of its live units.

Several members of Claremont recently visited Golden Gate No. 29 (San Francisco), and March 29 a delegation called on Athens No. 195 (Oakland). For some time a monthly visit has been paid to some Parlor in the bay area, and the Claremonters are positive that the visits are for the Order's general good, as they create goodfellowship.

Increased Membership—More Delegates.

Santa Rosa—Santa Rosa No. 28 celebrated its forty-eighth institution anniversary by initiating March 12 a large class of candidates. The ritual was faultlessly exemplified by a team from Mount Tamalpais No. 64 (San Rafael), and that Parlor's drum corps headed a parade through the streets previous to the meeting. Many other visitors were in attendance, from San Francisco, Petaluma, Sonoma and Sebastopol. A sumptuous banquet followed the ceremonies, and congratulatory addresses were delivered by prominent members of the Order.

Santa Rosa was instituted through the efforts of Dr. Charles W. Decker, now a Past Grand President. Its two remaining charter members, Thomas J. Hutchinson and William Irwin, were present at the anniversary festivities. During the past few months the Parlor has so increased its membership that it will be represented by four delegates at the Stockton Grand Parlor.

Santa Rosa City will have a rose carnival May 5, 6 and 7, and the Parlor has entered the contest for a cup to be awarded for the best decorated vacant lot. The property, through the efforts of the members, has been planted to a lawn. In the center is a large bear, made of flowers, with the initials N.S.G.W.

Membership Campaign Launched.

Santa Ana—A membership campaign was inaugurated by Santa Ana No. 265 March 7. Three teams, captained by Carl Schroeder, Harry Fulton and Alvin Selvidge, were named. Points are to be allowed for initiates, reinstatements and collections delinquent dues. At the conclusion of the contest, which is to run six weeks, the winning team will be guests of the two losing teams at a banquet. March 21 a program and refreshments were enjoyed.

State Flag Presented Legion.

Monterey—Monterey No. 75 presented a California State (Bear) Flag to Monterey Peninsula Post No. 41 American Legion March 10. Commander Ken Lyman welcomed the Natives, President John Thomsen made the presentation address and Past Commander W. A. Irvine responded. First Vice-president James W. Millington sang "I Love You, California." Others in the visiting delegation from the Parlor were Charter Member Grant Towle and Financial Secretary W. E. Parker.

Past Presidents Exemplify Ritual.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead No. 110 entertained the members of Lugonia No. 241 N.D.G.W. at a dinner, March 9, which was followed by a program and dancing. March 23 was initiation, and the ritual was exemplified by Past Presidents Bill Jasper, Donald E. VanLuven, Lester G. King, J. J. Cadd, Leslie Maloche, Harry Lord, George J. MacDonald, Ben Harrison and Joseph E. Rich.

The Parlor has a building committee composed of Harry M. Rouse (chairman), Will Shay, Jerry Doyle, O. W. Seccombe, J. A. Gregory, J. H. Hayden, Elmer Hoein, D. B. Livingston and John Hansen. A visit to San Diego No. 108 is on Arrowhead's April program.

Complimented for Increase.

Watsonville—Grand Trustee Jesse H. Miller officially visited Watsonville No. 65 March 8 and was greeted by a large attendance of the membership. He complimented the Parlor for its membership increase. Joseph Katen, accomplished pianist welcomed as a new member, favored with several selections. During the social hour interesting talks were made by President A. W. Batchelder and others.

Talk of Absorbing Interest.

San Rafael—March 15 several members of Mount Tamalpais No. 64 and Sea Point No. 158 (Sausalito) accepted an invitation from Castro No. 232 (San Francisco). Among the features on a splendid program were vocal and instrumental music, legerdemain, boxing bouts and an address. Captain Chas. Dullen delivered a talk of absorbing interest on the crime of kidnaping, dealing with cases of great importance and relating incidents in connection therewith of which the public is not generally cognizant. There have been no serious cases of kidnaping in California, he stated. In San Francisco there were two cases attracting considerable attention, but the motive in neither was gain; no ransom was demanded and the culprit was eventually caught and punished. A delicious repast was served at the conclusion of the entertainment. Harmon D. Skillin presided at the festivities.

March 21, was "Kelly's Irish Night" at Mount Tamalpais. Frank Kelly, master of ceremonies, planned the menu of cornbeef, cabbage and weak tea, and the program of vocal and instrumental music. It was one of those never-to-be-forgotten events in the annals of No. 64.

Eighteen Initiated.

Manteca —Manteca No. 271 initiated a class of eighteen candidates rounded up by Deputy Grand President Al Lobree. The ritual was exemplified by the Parlor officers headed by President Louis Ryan. Among the many in attendance were Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, and delegations from Stockton No. 7, Modesto No. 11 and Tracy No. 186. A splendid supper, served by members of Phoebe A. Hearst No. 214 N.D.G.W., was followed by dancing. Manteca plans to sponsor an orchestra.

Much Enthusiasm.

Castroville—Deputy Grand President John Thomsen installed the officers of Gabilan No. 132, B. A. McCoy becoming president. Previous to the ceremonies there was a largely attended banquet. Several fine addresses were listened to, and there was much enthusiasm.

Civic Endeavor.

Placerville—Placerville No. 9 is sponsoring a dance for April 16, the proceeds to go toward completion of the community swimming pool. The Parlor's band and basketball team were guests of Placerville at an entertainment and banquet. Hearty applause greeted the band, which rendered several selections, and for its excellent showing the basketball team was given a hearty vote of thanks.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Oakland—Piedmont No. 120 celebrated its forty-fifth institution anniversary March 10. Among the honor-guests was Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez. Superior Judge Lincoln S. Church was the principal speaker of the evening. Three charter members, G. D. McHugh, J. B. Donnelly and H. P. Brown, were in attendance.

Important Matters Discussed.

Courtland—Members of General John A. Sutter Past Presidents Assembly were guests of Courtland No. 106 March 21. Many important matters were discussed, among them the date of the next joint class initiation of the Sacramento County Parlors, the marking of historic landmarks and the P.P.A. General Assembly.

Golden Gaters Visitors.

Pleasanton—Pleasanton No. 244 received an official visit from Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, who was accompanied by a delegation from Golden Gate No. 29 (San Francisco). The grand officer spoke on the Order's activities, and other speakers were Past President Peter C. Madsen and Recording Secretary Ernest W. Schween of No. 244. A banquet terminated the meeting. The committee in charge for the evening included John Busch, Will Busch, John S. Silva, Ernest W. Schween, Tony Rabello Jr. and George Trimingham.

Record-Breaking Class.

Calistoga—The largest class of candidates ever initiated in the Napa Valley became members of Calistoga No. 86, March 21. In honor of the Parlor's sole surviving charter member, the initiates were referred to as "The C. E. Butler Class." There was a very large attendance, among the visitors being Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan and Grand Trustee Joseph J. McShane. The Parlor entertained royally. Details of the memorable event will appear in The Grizzly Bear for May.

Marin Show—The eighth annual Marin County Flower Show will be held at Mill Valley, April 20.

Spring Show—Sacramento City will have its annual Spring Flower Show, April 30-May 1.

Gala Week of Flowers—Riverside City will have its annual La Fiesta Floral, April 11-16.

highly commended President Marion Crum and all the Parlor's officers, as well as District Deputy Hazel Hansen. Other speakers were Founder Lily O. Reichling-Dyer, Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, Grand Trustee Florence D. Schoneman, District Deputy Hansen, Bertha Hitt, Santa Ana's organizer, and Kate McFadyen. The Grand President was the recipient of two lovely gifts, one from the Parlor and the other, a box of avocados, from Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hiskey. Among the visitors were District Deputies Fay, Towne, Hazel Hansen, Evans, Dickinson and Hiskey. Through Mrs. Walter Moore, chairman, the Parlor recently presented five baskets to needy families.

Secretary Returns to Post.

Petaluma—There was a large attendance, including several eligibles, at the March 1 meeting of Petaluma No. 222, presided over by President Elizabeth Dillon. Cards furnished entertainment and a ravioli dinner was greatly enjoyed. Edna Meadows, in charge, was assisted by Sisters Jennings, McCarter, Mattis, Metcalf and Miner. Mrs. Gladys Cheeka is the happy mother of twins, a son and a daughter, the Parlor presents spoons to all babies.

Recording Secretary Margaret Oeltjen, after a serious illness, was back at her desk March 15, to the delight of all. A Saint Patrick program was presented, followed by cards, and refreshments were served at tables bedecked in green. Past President Mary Garzoli, soon to become a bride, was given a surprise and presented with a silver gift. Valora Matthews, who planned the evening's doings, was assisted by Sisters Moreda, Olsen and Pedrotti. The Parlor's drill team will give a public card party April 5.

Many Visitors.

Lodi—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visited Ivy No. 88 March 16, a dinner preceding the meeting. There were many visitors, including Past Grands Mattie M. Stein, Carrie R. Durham and Mamie G. Peyton, and Grand Trustee Edna Briggs. A program was given and Mrs. Carlson was presented with a gift. Refreshments were served in the banquetroom, decorated with Saint Patrick motifs.

Founder Special Honor Guest.

Fullerton—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson paid her first visit to Parlors of the southland when she visited Grace No. 242 February 29. Dinner preceded the meeting; appointments throughout had a California motif, featuring golden poppies and candles. Following the feast the ritual was exemplified under the leadership of President Mattie Edwards. A class of candidates were initiated, three among them being direct descendants of the Yorba family.

Reports of all Parlor activities were given, and members were commended for their work. A gift of silver was presented to the Grand President, and beautiful corsages, made by President Edwards, were presented the visiting grand officers. Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, Grand Trustee Florence D. Schoneman, District Deputy Ora Evans and delegations from seven southland Parlors were present. A very special guest of honor was Founder Lily O. Dyer, and the Parlor was very happy to be her hostess. Nellie Cline presented a brief program. President Edwards sponsored a public waffle breakfast March 19 for the benefit of the Loyalty Pledge.

Past Presidents Doings.

Oakland—Association No. 2 had a reception March 28 in honor of Miss Josephine Clark, president General Assembly. Harriet Emerson, in charge, was assisted by all members affiliated with Piedmont No. 87.

Chico—Association No. 5 was entertained by Mrs. Marie Picanco at her home March 4. A card party, the proceeds of which will purchase a brick in the Pioneer Memorial Relics building in Oroville, was held March 12 at the Oroville home of Grand Trustee Florence D. Boyle.

Santa Rosa—Association No. 7 and escorts enjoyed a delicious italian dinner March 23. Cards followed the feast. Ruby Berger had charge of the entertainment.

Stockton—Association No. 8 was officially visited by Chief President Josephine Clark, who was presented with a gift by Mrs. E. R. Peyton. Four candidates were initiated, bringing the membership to ninety-five.

States of America, California and Ireland by Leo Pelt and committee. Speakers included Charles J. Powers, Edward P. McAuliffe, Supervisor James B. McSheehy and Grand Trustee Joseph J. McShane. Al Sandell of Twin Peaks has had wonderful success the past two years in handling amateur boxing contests. Under his direction the Parlor is now recognized as the leading organization in athletics.

James Lick No. 242 celebrated its one thousandth night in Redmen hall. Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig gave an instructive talk. Officers were installed by District Deputy Tom Dillon, Lawrence Muller becoming president. There were many visitors, and refreshments were served.

Bret Harte No. 260 was officially visited March 15 by Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, who told of the Order's aims and purposes, commended the Parlor officers for their ritual efforts and praised the members for attendance at meetings. Bret Harte initiates candidates at almost every meeting. Its drum corps will give a dance during April.

STOCKTON N. S. GRAND PARLOR

ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE BY Stockton Parlor No. 7 N.S.G.W. for the Fifty-fifth Native Son Grand Parlor which will be in session at the San Joaquin County government-seat May 16-19 are progressing most satisfactorily under the supervision of a committee, appointed by the Parlor: Ray Friedberger (chairman), R. D. Dorcey (secretary), Harry M. Herrmann (treasurer), W. P. Rothenbush, Ivan Hoult, Eugene Allison, George D. Avery, C. W. Walsh, Law T. Freitas, Frank Piccardo, W. I. Neely, Ralph Mitscher, F. R. Fernando, W. A. Strong and L. Buol. Subcommittees, in charge of various details, have these chairmen: transportation, W. A. Strong; banquet, Harry M. Herrmann; housing, W. I. Neeley; grand ball, W. P. Rothenbush; music, Ivan Hoult; entertainment, Law T. Freitas; printing, L. Buol; registration, R. D. Dorcey; night jinks, Frank Piccardo; badges, F. R. Fernando; reception, Eugene Allison and Ralph Mitscher; decorations, C. W. Walsh.

Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, who will preside during the Grand Parlor, and Grand Secretary John T. Regan were in Stockton last month and gave official approval to the plans outlined by the arrangements committee. Business sessions will be held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, in the Civic Memorial Auditorium.

Tuesday will be given over to a trip to the Calaveras Big Tree Grove, where a barbecue will be served by Chispa Parlor No. 139 (Murphys). The Calaveras Chamber of Commerce, the San Andreas Progressive Club and the Angels Booster Club will co-operate to make this outing a notable one. Other events on the entertainment program include a reception, a banquet, a highjinks and a grand ball. Special events for the visiting womenfolks are being arranged by Joaquin No. 5 and Caliz de Oro No. 205 N.D.G.W. Indications are that there will be a great many visitors in Stockton for the Grand Parlor, and they will be adequately cared for and thoroughly entertained.

In Memoriam

MARY HORGAN.

To the Officers and Members of Mission Parlor No. 227 N.D.G.W.—Again our Golden Chain of Fraternity has been severed by the angel of death, who has entered the portals of our Parlor for the second time within a month.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to call our dearly beloved sister, Mary Horgan, to our Eternal Parlor above, let us think of her as a rose that climbs the garden wall and blossoms on the other side. We shall hold in fond memory her cheerful smile, her loving ways and her jolly disposition.

Not dead to those who loved her
Not lost, but gone before;
She lives with us in memory
And will for ever more.

The trials, the sorrows and the disappointments that must come in every life, however shattered, are ended and our sister peacefully sleeps. Reverently then would we say, "Thy will be done." We hereby record our tribute of love and affection for one whose kindly ways endeared her to all her sisters.

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our sincere sympathy. It is our earnest prayer that God, in His infinite mercy, assuage their deep grief and send peace into their hearts. Be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning in due respect for our late sister; that a copy of these resolutions be spread in full upon our minutes; that a copy be sent to her family, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Sincerely and Fraternally in F.D.E.A.,

ANN DIPPEL,
INGE MAYER,
MAME CUNEO,
Committee.

San Francisco, February 23, 1932.

JOHN ELIAS SHAW SR.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called to the Heavenly Parlor on High our esteemed and beloved brother, John Elias Shaw Sr., and whereas, Pebble Beach Parlor No. 230 N.S.G.W. has lost a true and loyal member, his son and daughters a devoted father, his brothers and sisters an effectionate brother, and California one of her sons, therefore

Resolved, That the sympathy of the Parlor be extended the bereaved members of the family, and that the charter of the Parlor be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent his son, daughters, brothers and sisters; that a copy be spread in full upon the minutes of the Parlor, and also that a copy of these resolutions be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

ROXIE BRYANT POLLARD.

The Angel of Death has entered the portals of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. and removed from our midst our beloved member, Roxie Bryant Pollard.

Whereas, In her passing, the Parlor has lost a very loyal Native Daughter, therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to her bereaved family; and further be it resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning, that these resolutions be recorded on our minutes, and that copies be sent to the bereaved family, and to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

VIRGINIA EACHUS.

South Butte Parlor No. 226 N.D.G.W. has made the following resolution in memoriam of the late Virginia Eachus:

Whereas, The Dark Angel has visited us and called our beloved sister, Virginia Eachus, therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of South Butte Parlor No. 226 N.D.G.W., while realizing the Lord doeth all things well, yet feel the loss of our co-worker to be irreparable both to the Parlor and to the community; be it further resolved, that we extend to the husband, family and friends our profound sympathy and heartfelt prayers that they may have strength in this great affliction; and be it further resolved, that we will ever hold in tender remembrance the memory of our dear sister and the pleasant hours spent together.

ANTHALENA McPHERRIN,
ANNA L. McLEAN,
MYRTIE HAYNES,
Committee.

Sutter City, March 5, 1932.

ALICE BICKMORE.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our beloved sister, Alice Bickmore; in her passing a place in Veritas Parlor No. 75 N.D.G.W. has been made vacant, and we will greatly miss her bright and cheery presence.

Resolved, That our heartfelt sympathy be extended to the bereaved relatives, and may their grief be lessened by the memory of devotion and courage of the departed. "She has passed from this earth and its sorrow into the glad light of tomorrow." Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that a copy be sent to the husband and the son, and one to The Grizzly Bear.

MARGARET BROSKA.

To the Officers and Members of Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiments and deep-felt sympathy of the members of our Parlor on the death of Sister Margaret Broska, respectively submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take from our midst our beloved sister, Margaret Broska, whereas, in her passing our Parlor has lost a most highly esteemed sister and a greater loss has been sustained by those who are nearest and dearest to her, be it

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to His will, we are mindful of the vacant chair in our Parlor and feel that our members are honored to have been associated with one so kind and faithful; be it further resolved, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them for consolation to Him who doeth all things well, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our Parlor, that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine and that a copy be sent to the family of our deceased sister.

MARTIN JOHANSEN.

To the Officers and Members of Mount Tamalpais Parlor No. 64 N.S.G.W.:

Whereas, It has pleased the Supreme Ruler to call from his sphere of usefulness to his eternal rest our well beloved brother, Martin Johansen, and whereas, Brother Johansen was a kind and loving brother, son, husband and father, and a good neighbor whose passing is profoundly and sincerely mourned, who had endeared himself to all who knew him because of his readiness to respond at all times to the cry of distress and to the moan of the heart stricken and because of his unselfish devotion to the principles of democracy and to those of this great Order. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Parlor extend its most heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family in their hour of sorrow; and be it further resolved, that this Parlor stand in silence in respect to his memory, that the charter of the Parlor be draped for a period of thirty days, and that a copy of the resolutions be spread upon the minutes, a copy be forwarded to the family and a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Vera Carlson (chairman), Etta Fulkerth, Berenice Bickerdike and Margaret Donlan. A patriotic program followed, and the traveling flag was introduced. A card party was held March 16 at the home of Margaret Donlan, and the afternoon was enjoyed under the blossom-laden trees in the garden.

The next big event will be a dance, to be held jointly by Verdugo Parlor and Glendale Parlor No. 264 N.S.G.W. April 2 at Glen Arden Club, 357 West Arden, Glendale. All Natives and their friends are invited, and they are assured a wonderful time.

PAST GRANDS HONOR GUESTS.

Ocean Park—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. featured a Past Grands night March 28, Herman C. Lichtenberger, Sheriff William I. Traeger and John T. Newell being the honor-guests. At the same time, it was host to Troupe 10, Boy Scouts of America, which it sponsors. Dinner at 6:30 was followed by an interesting program and the initiation of a large class of candidates. There was a large outpouring of members of the Parlor and visitors. In addition to the guests of honor, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer was among the speakers.

April 8, Santa Monica Bay will have its annual dinner-dance at the Monte Carlo cafe of Harry O'Day in Culver City. May 8 has been selected as the date for the Parlor's annual barbecue and outing.

PLUNKETT DINNER AT LONG BEACH.

Long Beach—Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. entertained Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson at a dinner, following which five candidates were initiated. Other honor-guests were Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman, Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer and District Deputy Eva Mae Bemis.

The Parlor had two decorated cars in the fraternal day parade, one of the features of the week's celebration incident to the dedication of Long Beach's new municipal auditorium. March 12, on behalf of the Parlor, President Violet T. Henshilwood presented a California State (Bear) Flag to the city, Mayor Asa Fickling accepting the gift. The California thimble club met March 10 at the home of Mary Stultz and after a noontime luncheon worked on pillow tops.

Long Beach will give a plunkett dinner at 6:30 p. m. of April 7 at Knights Pythias hall, 339 Pacific avenue. Zella L. Hodgedon is the chairman and Daisy T. Hansen the assistant chairman. Everybody invited.

PACK THE HALL—BECOME INFORMED.

There was a large attendance at the March 18 open meeting of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. and a pleasing program was presented by Marion Parks, Marybelle Chapman, Mabel Straube, Jack Lewis, Dwight Crittenden and Edward LeVitt. Refreshments, prepared by "Chef" Charles Gassagne and assistants, followed in the clubrooms. At the meeting preceding the opening of the doors, Past Grand Herman C. Lichtenberger was authorized to raise a fund to purchase for the Parlor the Pio Pico collection of early-day relics. A start was made in the arrangements for No. 109's anniversary celebration in June.

During April, Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt will continue his enlightening talks on the state's early history; the 15th, his subject will be "Arcadian California," and for the 29th, "The Acquisition of California by the United States." All Natives and their friends are welcome to hear these addresses by an authority on history, and the hall should be packed. Other events on Ramona's April calendar are: 1st, election Stockton Grand Parlor delegates; 8th, initiation; 22nd, entertainment provided by the Parlor's troop of Boy Scouts of America, followed by refreshments.

DE NEVE STATUE PRESENTED.

With Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson and members of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. alone taking part, the unveiling and presentation of the bronze statue of Governor Don Felipe de Neve, founder of Los Angeles, gift to the city of that Parlor, was completed with a simple and impressive ceremony March 12. Throngs assembled around the pool in the Plaza, itself dedicated to De Neve fifty-nine years ago, from the midst of which the statue rises on its boulder pedestal. In the human background of the event the continuity of California's long and changeful history was strikingly shown. The program was carried out as detailed in The Grizzly Bear for March.

The colorful unveiling, with its accompaniment of spanish and military music, and in which the Spanish, the Mexican, the California and the United States of America flags were successively raised from over the statue, was conducted by Mrs. Arthur Wright, Mrs. Louis Boutier, Miss Mary E. Foy and Mrs. A. O. Evans chairman of the committee, all of whom were gowned in period costumes. Also costumed in the old California mode, Miss Marion Parks spoke on the historical significance of each flag as it was lifted. First monument of its kind erected in honor of the civil founder of a California city, the bronze statue has been highly praised since the unveiling.

Official presentation on behalf of the Parlor was made by Mrs. Ralph Tuttle, president. Sub-

Santa Barbara—Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126 N.D.G.W. was honored March 1 by an official visit from Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson. Colonial costumes and the colorful shawls and lacy mantillas of early Spanish-California mingled at the banquet. The occasion also marked the thirty-first anniversary of the Parlor, it having been instituted in 1901. Signifying the close relationship which Reina del Mar has with civic affairs, honored guests included Mayor Harvey F. Nielson, Fred Schauer, chairman of the local Washington bicentennial committee, and representatives of organizations with which the Parlor has been closely associated in civic, welfare and historical work. These included: Mrs. W. B. Metcalf, founder regent Santa Barbara chapter D.A.R.; Miss Eleanor Lau, regent LaCumbre chapter D.A.R.; Mrs. Verita Stoughton, regent Santa Barbara chapter D.A.R.; Mrs. Fred Jackson, regent Mission Canyon chapter D.A.R.; Mrs. Ernest H. Whittaker, president Dames of the American Colonists; Rev. Lawrence Mutter, O.F.M., guardian of the old mission; Samuel Sturgeon, president Old Spanish Days organization; Miss Elizabeth Mason, secretary Events committee Old Spanish Days; Mrs. Dorcas Pryor, Santa Barbara County Council Social Agencies; Mrs. Jane Carroll Boyd; Mrs. Nancy Woods Piney, Santa Barbara Public Library; Miss D. Regina Moorhead, executive secretary East Side Social Center; Miss Elizabeth Cudahy; Mrs. Edward Page, president Santa Barbara County Federation Women's Clubs; Mrs. James Thompson, president Santa Barbara Woman's Club; Mrs. J. Edwin McBride, president American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. S. H. Elliott, president Admiral Bacon Camp Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans; A. C. Dinsmore, N.S.G.W. district deputy grand president; Wesley McCormick, president Santa Barbara Parlor N.S.G.W.; Harry C. Sweetser, secretary Santa Barbara Parlor N.S.G.W.

MEMBERS PAST PRESIDENT UNIT REINA DEL MAR PARLOR N.D.G.W., SANTA BARBARA.

Reading left to right: Lower row—Mrs. William Vick, Miss Marian Arroqui, Mrs. Fred Acres, Mrs. George McCrea, Miss Lydia Scudelari, Mrs. Frank Sifford. Second row—Miss Vivian Cavett, Mrs. Donald Eby, Mrs. A. C. Warren, Mrs. Paul Miller, Miss Dorothy Graham. Third row—Mrs. John Mitchell, Mrs. Jack Vercota, Mrs. Clarence Longmire, Mrs. Paul Yule, Mrs. Wesley McCormick. Fourth row—Mrs. Wm. Quinn, Miss Ida Dardi, Miss Anna E. McCaughey, Mrs. Martin Coen, Mrs. Patrick Henry. Back row—Mrs. F. L. Birabent, Mrs. H. A. Spreitz, Mrs. Mamie Harrison, Miss Vera Pacheco, Mrs. Amelia Myers, Mrs. A. E. Platz, Miss Edna Sharpe, Mrs. L. V. Brady, Mrs. J. A. Callis.

Subsequently a banquet was held at which Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, a chater member of Californiana, presided. There, Mrs. Evans was presented with a lei of gardenias, in appreciation for her devoted efforts, over a period of two years, to bring the plan of the Felipe de Neve statue to fulfillment.

The presence of these visitors testified to the standing of the Parlor in the community, where it has worked steadily for the progress of the city. Reina del Mar is proud that its efforts have been so well understood in Santa Barbara, efforts which have resulted in an organization of activities that has prevented overlapping of effort with a consequent extension of results in all departments of work.

The theme of the banquet was the Washington bicentennial, and the California State (Bear) Flag and the flags of Spain and Mexico were mingled with the Flag of the United States of America in the decorations. Members of the Parlor's board of officers were gowned in colonial costumes with wide hoop-skirts, powdered wigs and curls; some wore the old-time bonnets. Members of the board are:

Past president, Mrs. A. C. Warren; president, Mrs. George McCrea; first vice-president, Mrs. Amelia Acres; second vice-president, Miss Marion Arroqui; third vice-president, Mrs. Jack Ross, recording secretary, Mrs. Paul Yule, financial secretary, Mrs. Paul Miller; treasurer, Miss Anna E. McCaughey, marshal, Mrs. Martin Coen; inside sentinel, Miss Ida Dardi, outside sentinel, Mrs. Clarence Longmire, organist, Mrs. Patrick Henry; trustees, Mrs. Donald Eby, Mrs. Wesley McCormick, Mrs. Jack Vercota; junior past president, Mrs. Wm. Quinn; senior past president, Mrs. John Mitchell.

Washington's heritage to this generation is one of devotion to country, Past Grand Dr. Mariana Bertola said in her address on "The Halo of Washington's Day as Reflected Upon Our Own." "The outstanding characteristic of Washington was his work for the amelioration of the conditions in the colonies. His first and last thoughts were for his country and its people, and California's heritage from Washington is its splendid welfare work." Dr. Bertola emphasized the importance of the family in the world effort for peace, and also discussed Washington as a human being—a character of greatness, honesty and courage. "He shared with his men what they endured, and that is the reason for his greatness." Dr. Bertola paid tribute to the work of Reina del Mar in welfare and constructive patriotic effort, and added a tribute to Miss Anna E. McCaughey, who has a state-wide reputation for child welfare activities. Miss McCaughey was given an ovation by the assemblage when introduced at the opening of the program. Mrs. A. C. Warren, who presided at the banquet, introduced Dr. Bertola and cited her work in child welfare and women's clubs, and also told of her part in placing the nation's flag in the ritual of the Order of Native Daughters.

Grand President Carlson spoke briefly on the gratitude which the state owes the Pioneers and the allegiance the state and nation gives to Washington, who was himself a great pioneer. Mayor Nielson had a brief word of tribute for the work of Reina del Mar, and Fred Schauer praised its efforts in marking historic spots. Dr. Charles E. Deuel, rector Trinity Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Miss Vera Pacheco arranged a program which included songs by Mrs. Daisy Prideaux of Ursula Parlor No. 1 (Jackson), accompanied by Miss Emma Lou Kurtz; harp selections by Mrs. Florence Lyans, vocal selections by the Parlor chorus with Mrs. Ruth Henry at the piano, dancing by Mrs. Theressa Janssens, and vocal duets by Misses Angelina Aliverti and Vera Pacheco. Souvenir copies of "The Club," containing the annual reports of the Parlor, were given as favors. Mrs. Evelyn Eby is the editor, and Mrs. Anita Nichols made the illustrations. Accompanying the Grand President were Grand Trustee Florence Dodson-Schoneman and Supervising Deputy Hazel B. Hansen. Also honored at the speakers' table were District Deputy Jane Vick and Past Grand Cora B. Sifford. Following the banquet the ritual was exemplified under the direction of the following committee:

District Deputy Jane Vick (chairman), Mmes. George McCrea (president), Martin Coen, John D. Ross, Patrick Henry, Laurence V. Brady, Clarence Longmire and Miss Estelle Myers. These twenty-four past presidents of Reina del Mar, headed by Miss Anna McCaughey, had charge of the event. Mmes. Amelia Myers, J. A. Callis, Emma Dale, F. L. Birabent, Jack Bannang, G. G. Leslie, L. V. Brady, I. Dardi, Alex Lord, Flora Stewart, C. F. Myers, Wm. Wilson, Wm. Vick, A. E. Plaz, H. A. Spreitz, Mamie Harrison, Wm. Belt, Wm. Quinn, John Mitchell, A. C. Warren, Misses Elisa Bottiani, Edna Sharpe, Vera Pacheco.

NATIVE SONS' AIMS AND DESIRES

PURE, UNSELFISH AND PATRIOTIC

"THE FIFTY-FIFTH SESSION OF THE Grand Parlor of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West will convene at Stockton, a typical city of California resting upon a foundation built by the toil and the grit of the Pioneers, and carried to its present commanding position in the commercial, the industrial and the agricultural life of California by patriotic and representative citizens. It occupies a unique position, in that it enjoys sea-water transportation which presages a great future for it in trade and commerce, and it stands at the entrance of the great agricultural San Joaquin Valley, contributing to the greatness of the State.

"Five hundred delegates, representing every section of the State, will be the guests of the City of Stockton, far famed for its hospitality and the warmth of its greeting. These Native Sons are coming with pleasant anticipation of the week they will remain in the city and its environs, and by their presence and their action they will truly represent the great Order to which they cling with filial piety. The committee on entertainment of Stockton Parlor No. 7 has arranged for a one-day visit to the old Mother Lode, where sites will be revisited that will bring vividly to the minds of the delegates the story of the men and the women of the days of '49 to whom the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is dedicated.

"This Order was founded in 1875, at a time when historian, poet and romancer were portraying in history, song and story the journey of the countless thousands who trekked across the continent and made the trip across the Isthmus and around the Horn, all striving to reach the goal of their ambition, for their talisman was 'gold,' and it is that epoch in the history of California that is appealing, and will forever live in the minds of all Native Sons who seek to perpetuate its history and immortalize the men and the women of that day.

"California has a wonderful history, and any organization that has for its purpose its perpetuation, not merely as a cold narrative of facts, but as a history that analyzes and emphasizes each succeeding event which marked an important forward movement in the advance of civilization, is to be commended as engaged in a laudable purpose.

"The youth of the Atlantic Coast are told again and again at their mothers' knees, in the schoolroom and in their later years the story of the Pilgrim Fathers, the Puritans, the Knickerbockers, the Cavaliers, the Quakers, the Revolutionary heroes. Their attention is directed to the great landmarks from Concord Bridge to Yorktown, and they are taught to revere buildings from the old State House at Philadelphia to the Capitol at Washington as landmarks standing out prominently in the history of the settlement and the development of the colonies that afterwards were merged into states.

"When these events were in the making, scenes were being enacted in California whose importance are now emphasized as inspiring patriotism, loyalty and love of country. Where can there be found greater lessons of daring and courage, and indomitable will that impelled the navigators of old, in their primitive boats, to sail the unknown seas until finally they effected landings along our own coast?—Cabrillo at San Diego, Vizcaino at Monterey, and Ferralo at Mendocino. They were the Pioneers making clear the pathway for those who were to follow.

"And when the first mission was planted upon the soil of California, there were planted also the seeds of Christianity that were to spread the gospel of kindness and of sympathy in an endeavor to better the conditions of human beings. From San Diego to Sonoma the Franciscan missions extended as a challenge to all invaders, and they held California until such time that it could be delivered to a people better equipped to hold and preserve it.

"We live again amid the scenes enacted in the old Town of Monterey, the center of Mexican

DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ OF SAN FRANCISCO,
GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

administration, where all the charm of an ideal life prevailed; where homes were open to all, and hospitality was spread with a lavish and free hand. It was colorful, musical and fascinating, and is woven into the history of our State, giving it a dash of vivid colors.

"The flinging of a new flag across the Western sky by Fremont interjected into the placid life of the State a thrill and an adventure that survive to the present day, and led to the adoption of the Bear Flag as the State emblem. The coming of Admiral Sloat to Monterey and the hoisting of the Stars and Stripes proclaimed the very climax of an advance in civilization that commenced at Plymouth Rock.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

The Grand Parlor N.S.G.W. not concluding its deliberations until May 19, and it being advisable to have the proceedings appear in the next (June) issue of The Grizzly Bear, the June number may be delayed in making its appearance. Forms for the regular departments of the June number will, however, close at the usual time, so news contributors and advertisers should be guided accordingly.

"When James W. Marshall discovered gold, as if by a magic wand, he summoned to California the greatest migration of human souls that the world had ever witnessed. It was an event that shaped the destiny of the American people, definitely established the western boundary line of the United States, and forever intrenched the American people as the arbiters of affairs in the Western Hemisphere.

"The red-shirted men of the Sierra, in quest of the gold that was to establish the financial prestige of the United States among the nations of the world, have written a chapter in the history of our State illuminated by their fraternity, their mutual sympathy, and their helpfulness towards each other. They gave to the world a rare exhibition of united brotherhood, immortalized in song and story.

"Toil-worn hands of men who met beneath the oaks at Monterey wrote the Constitution of a free state that gained the admission of California as the thirty-first state of the Union, at a time when the turning-point towards the preservation of the Union was in the balance.

"And then came a new people, with new hopes and ambitions, and they caused the transition of the State to a land of incomparable beauty—the fruitful groves of the Southland, the great valleys of San Joaquin, Sacramento, Napa and Sonoma, with their clinging vines, golden harvests and budding orchards. The great Sierra, passing through a second golden era, yields hydro-electric power which is communicated to each community and is a consequent blessing to mankind.

"Today we behold, and reverently pay homage to, a great imperial State, almost boundless in extent, with every variety of climate and resource. And it is because of all these things that the members of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, thrilled with a just and a generous pride, delight to recount each and every event; to visit and to assist in restoring each and every landmark; to write the history of the State through the medium of trained historians at the University of California, that the world may have an authentic account of all that has been enacted within the confines of the State of California; to visit the schools throughout the State, and enjoin upon the students love and veneration for the men and the women who, in every period of California's development, held the highest ideals of American citizenship; to foster a love of home, a love of country and loyalty to the flag, thus dedicating ourselves to a higher and a better life and, in some measure, manifesting a deep sense of gratitude for the wonderful heritage that has been handed to us to enjoy, to bless and to preserve.

"Such is the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Such are its members' aims and desires—pure, unselfish and patriotic. To California and its material progress, we dedicate this session of the Grand Parlor of our beloved Order, and to the citizens of Stockton we extend a cordial greeting as we come to you as sons of a common mother—California."

"Power dwells with cheerfulness; hope puts us in a working mood, while despair is no muse and untunes the working power."—Emerson.

"Great deeds cannot die; they with the sun and moon renew their light forever, blessing those that look on them."—Tennyson.

STOCKTON, AN INLAND SEAPORT, A HERITAGE OF THE PIONEER

Inez Henderson Pond

(Acting Publicity Secretary, Stockton Chamber of Commerce.)

AMBITION AND INITIATIVE OF THE early California Pioneer, Captain Charles M. Weber, in his desire to further the interests of the Americans and annex the land northeast of San Francisco, San Pablo and Suisun Bays and the San Joaquin River to the Union of States, brought into being the City of Stockton.

Romance and adventure, hardship and pestilence marked the birth of the tiny pueblo, known for a time by the euphonious name of Tuleburgh, chief settlement in the Vale de los Tules, now the Valley of the San Joaquin. The cat-tails which fluttered over the landscape to mark the course of the numerous tributaries of the rugged river suggested the title to the German, Weber. Later, after his friendship with Commodore Robert Stockton had been cemented in the struggles of the Mexican war, the name of the trading-post on his "Rancho del Campo de los Francesses" was changed to honor the American leader. Today, Stockton is one old city whose fortunes are woven in the struggle to bring California under the sheltering aegis of the United States that bears a good Anglo-Saxon name. Most of the pioneer cities whose histories measure in length with that of Stockton show the fingerprint of the Spaniard in their title.

Struggling down the snow-tipped Sierra, Captain Charles Weber, native of Homburg, Bavaria, a member of the famed Bidwell-Bartelson party, first saw the broad Valley of the San Joaquin in the latter part of October 1841. To eyes anticipating a land of orange groves and smiling vineyards, fired by tales of earlier immigrants who had visited the southern mission settlements, the land in its brown and mauve autumn garments seemed almost desolate. Distant Coast Range hills beckoned as but another barrier to the land of their desires. After a short rest at the hacienda of Dr. John Marsh at the foot of Mount Diablo, Weber and a small group of friends visited the banks of the San Joaquin and met a party of sturdy voyageurs of the Hudson's Bay Company, whose agents had been trapping and hunting along the many streams in that vicinity since 1828. Their cache at French Camp, five miles south of Stockton, marks the farthest point south to which those intrepid French-Canadians penetrated.

From them, Weber learned of the broad navigable channel which followed to the sea and offered constant communication with the struggling settlement of Yerba Buena, nestled against the hills which guarded the Golden Gate. He was told of the broad plains with their lush grasses for the feeding of great herds of cattle, of the streams stocked with fish and of the innumerable elk, antelope and deer that offered ample food supply. Mysteries of tide and currents of the waterways that spread like a silver seine over the valley were revealed to him.

Later, at the establishment of the German-Swiss, John Sutter, were unfolded the plans of the Americans, who grew restless under the happy-go-lucky regime of the fun-loving Mexicano, to found a new lone star state similar to that of Texas, or else subdivide Alta California along a line northeast of the San Francisco, San Pablo and Suisun Bays and annex it to the growing Oregon region. With these intrepid Americans, Captain Weber determined to cast in his fortunes. In 1843, when the time came to petition for a grant of eleven square leagues through his San Jose partner, Guillermo Gulnac, he chose to establish his rancho in the land east of the San Joaquin and thereby within the confines of the new state visioned by the eager Americans. It also lay in that noman's land conceded to the Indians by the arcadian dwellers along the coast, suffering periodically from the depredations of those cattle-stealing redmen.

The pueblo of his dreams in the midst of the "Rancho del Campo de los Francesses" was long in materializing. Guillermo Gulnac, his son, Juan, Peter Lassen, for whom the volcanic peak in northern California is named, and several vaqueros took a band of cattle into the territory after Micheltorena granted the request for land on January 18, 1843. Houses of the native oak which are dominant in the plains about Stockton were built and thatched with convenient tules. In July 1844, James Williams and several families also went onto the rancho and built their humble shelters, constructed corrals for their horses and cattle and planted peach seeds and fruit sprouts.

The call to arms by Micheltorena against the fiery Castro interrupted this pastoral idyl, and the settlers who held title to their lands through grace of the Mexican governor fell into march against that Californian whose cause was dear to their hearts. At the conclusion of hostilities, Williams and his friends went back to the rancho beyond the San Joaquin to take up their burden of tilling the soil.

AERIAL VIEW OF STOCKTON, PIONEER CITY AT GATEWAY OF SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

A new peril threatened them. On his return from a visit to the pueblo of San Jose, David Kelsey, who dwelt in a cabin near French Camp, came down with the dread smallpox. His wife and young daughter took the sufferer to the rancho store at Stockton for treatment, and the amateur doctor was so efficient the patient showed immediately the tell-tale eruption. Thereupon all fled to the shelter of the settlement at San Jose, leaving the Kelsey family to shift for themselves. Only a kindly cowherder remained to administer to the sick wife and child on the death of Kelsey in the fall of 1845. The disease spread to the Indians and the terrified natives watched their warriors, their squaws and their children fall as though marked by the hand of a malignant spirit. To avenge the loss of their tribesmen they descended upon the settlement and found only Thomas Lindsay in his cabin at Lindsay Point, site of the City Hall today, left to watch over the cattle roaming on the Weber rancho. Lindsay was killed and most of the cattle driven off to the hills by the Indians, serene in their confidence they had appeased their gods.

The war with Mexico followed, and at the conclusion of hostilities Captain Charles M. Weber, who had thrown himself heart and soul into the cause of the Americans, even suffering capture and probable internment in prison in Mexico except for his escape near Los Angeles, took up in earnest the settlement of his grant along the San Joaquin.

As the tiny village of Stockton was gaining strength after the infusion of new interest and capital, the cry of "gold" sounded by the messenger from Sutter's Fort enroute to the pueblo at San Jose in March 1848, left the settlement depopulated once more. The settlers abandoned all thought of building homes and gardens and deserted to the mines. Other eager miners, however, stumbled upon the humble outpost with its store started by Joe Buzzell, and almost over night a town of tents arose on the level plains. Day by day boatloads of fortune-seekers were landed upon the banks of the Stockton channel, and flags of every land flew from the masts of vessels whose crews sang in every language as they unloaded boxes and bales of goods for the mines.

Stockton grew in spite of itself, and the broad San Joaquin served as the main highway between San Francisco and the interior. Pack trains, creaking freighters laden with goods for the mines in the foothills and swaying stages filled with passengers wore roads to serve the Southern mines. The city, which served so long as the outfitting post for the region to the east, has maintained its prestige as the marketing center for an ever-increasing area for many decades. The enormous wagons with mules to drag them through the mud of winter and the dust of summer have given way to steam and electric railways which tap a growing district. Highways of smooth concrete spread out from the city like the spokes of a wheel to tie in with the three transcontinental railroads and communication by water. Heavy trucks speed the transportation of San Joaquin Valley products.

Modern initiative has secured federal and state aid to amplify Stockton's investment of $3,000,000 to improve existing waterways and construct a channel 26 feet deep and 450 feet wide on the surface and 100 feet wide on the bed of the channel to connect Stockton with deep water at Suisun Bay. A total of $6,000,000 is now being expended on dredging and construction of port facilities. Dredging of the turning basin, just west of historic Mormon Channel, has been completed and the contract for the building of an open dock and covered transit-sheds has been let. Building of the belt-line railway to serve the industrial area and the wharves along the deep-water channel is also under way.

The City of Stockton is building the first unit of the public belt-line railroad as far as the San Joaquin River. The railroads will build a bridge across the river and a line to serve the industrial area of Rough and Ready Island along the deep-water channel. A representative of each of the transcontinental carriers and one from the city will administer the belt-line road, which will insure from the very start that all factories in the industrial district will be saved switching charges and have equal access to water and rail service of all railroads.

Services of an expert in port development and construction have been secured. Colonel B. C. Allin, a recognized authority in port management who is known best perhaps for his success in the upbuilding of the Houston, Texas, harbor, and is called on frequently as a consultant in port plans both in the United States and abroad, is directing the building of Stockton's inland seaport. With an authority on transportation problems at the helm, Stockton is assured of getting off on the right foot in its development plans and eliminating many of the mistakes other municipalities have learned by experience and at great cost.

Stockton has enjoyed the balance-wheel of water transportation for many decades, and will

SHARKEY OIL STABILIZATION ACT

ENDORSED BY:

California State Chamber of Commerce, Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, Kern County Chamber of Commerce, Oakland Chamber of Commerce, Richmond Chamber of Commerce, San Diego Chamber of Commerce, San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, California Independent Oil Producers, Inc., Civic League of Improvement Club (S.F.), Matrons' Civic League of Los Angeles, Northern Federation of Civic Clubs, Oil Field, Gas Well & Refinery Workers of America Local No. 3, San Francisco Civic Union, San Joaquin Oil Producers Association, Service Station Owners Association (280 Independent Dealers), Southern California Independent Oil Operators, AND MANY OTHERS.

California's great petroleum resources are endangered and the financial stability of the oil industry hangs in the balance, and with the oil industry the economic security of the "Golden State."

Over-production of petroleum over a long period of years has put the oil industry in a chaotic condition. Oil well owners are getting no earnings, oil field workers are losing their jobs, the gasoline wars caused by the unrestrained flow are driving the service station operators to bankruptcy. The industry is going to ruin, and since it is the biggest in California the bad effect is being felt by all other business.

The United States Government itself has established the sound policy of conservation of our natural resources. Our fast diminishing forests are at last being saved and other of our resources are being conserved and protected by our government.

The conservation of oil is of paramount importance to the country as a matter of economic welfare and of national defense. The principle of conservation, which is the principle of the Sharkey Oil Control Act, has the fullest support of the Federal authorities.

Mr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior at Washington, voiced the unqualified approval and support of the Sharkey Stabilization Measure by the United States Government in the following words: "I trust the oil conservation act will have the full endorsement of the people of California. The Interior Department's action in requiring unit operation under all prospecting permits hereafter issued is directly in line with the conservation effort in California. The new regulations guard against over-production and competitive offset drilling. Oil prospecting under our stipulations requiring unit operation cannot injure the oil industry and will insure that when and if production is found on the public domain it will be developed in an orderly fashion."

The record of more than fifty companies, representing an aggregate of more than $80,000,000 in capital investment, now in the hands of receivers, is convincing proof of the pressing need of early enactment of the Sharkey Bill. Its enactment may not cure all the ills of the industry, but it would most certainly go far toward stabilizing present unsettlement.

The Sharkey Act is also in line with the general effort at stabilization of industry and business being directed by President Hoover. The Nation's resources are being thrown behind our financial institutions—our railroads—our industries and, to some extent, our farmers—for what purpose—stabilization—relief of unemployment and restoration of confidence.

All of the propaganda directed against the enactment of this measure presented by the few independent producers opposing it, who have raised the cry of "monopoly," "30 cent gas," "class legislation," etc., is convincingly and effectively answered by a recent statement issued by Governor William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma, who recently enforced a similar law in his own state with the aid of the militia. He declared: "This law is practically identical with that of my state which has resulted in beneficial results to the industry of the State as a whole; but for our law the situation could not have been in any way controlled. Our law has also resulted in saving the independent producer as a competitive factor in the industry."

only take again the prestige it once held as a port of call for ocean-going vessels. Gold which animated the tiny pueblo in its infancy and made certain its steady growth proved also a check, as the silt from the intensive development of the mineral resources of the Mother Lode gradually filled up the bed of the San Joaquin River and its tributaries.

Millions have been expended by the United States and the City of Stockton in dredging and maintaining the channel to a depth of nine feet to secure the movement of ships of light draft. On completion of the present deep-water channel, 85 percent of the shipping entering the Golden Gate may proceed ninety miles inland to unload their cargoes upon Stockton wharves and pick up the thousands of tons of goods produced in the Sacramento and the San Joaquin Valleys for coastal and intercoastal trade.

Savings of $900,000 in freight costs on 1,000,000 tons of products available for movement on the channel, rapidly nearing completion, was the impetus behind the co-operation of the United States Government in developing the inland waterway. The producer of the Pacific Coast, facing the longest haul and the highest freight charges for his farm goods of any agricultural community in the Union, is eager to grab at any saving in shipping costs, no matter how small. Railways and motorized vehicles, enjoying a practically floor-level haul in the interior valleys of the state, and having no ferry or bridge tolls or severe mountain grades, have been enabled to give shippers of the San Joaquin-Sacramento basin most attractive rates on goods destined for Stockton.

keting and distributing center for a long list of natural resources. Timber in the foothills and along the slopes of the Sierra Nevada gravitates to this city for remanufacture into countless commodities. Pencil slats made in Stockton are shipped now from this city for refinishing in factories of the Atlantic Coast and Germany. Nitrates from South America are brought to this city for making into fertilizers to be shipped from here to growers of the central valleys. Industry of the interior community has progressed along lines of its agricultural development.

Just as irrigation has brought about the necessity for special pumps, local industry has improved types that are sought today by farmers of South America and other foreign lands. Reclamation of a vast acreage of extremely fertile fields has resulted in the invention by local iron mills of machinery that has proved so efficient it has found call from foreign nations, and states beyond the Rockies.

Wool grown in the counties of the San Joaquin Valley finds its way to Stockton for treatment, and shipping to industrial centers of the Atlantic. Wool handled by local firms moves directly from shearing pens to this city by rail and truck, and the future holds important developments in shipping by boat. This city now handles about 3,000,000 out of the 15,000,000 pounds produced in the San Joaquin Valley. San Francisco today exports about 40,000,000 pounds of wool shorn on the Pacific Slope, and one of the interesting problems of the future will be the campaign to teach Western producers to utilize the shorter haul to Stoctkon with its consequent saving in time and expense of handling.

Products from the canneries, field and orchard originating near at home will serve to swell the export business out of this city when the new inland harbor is ready to welcome ocean-going shipping at the close of 1932.

Proximity of over one thousand miles of inland waterways to Stockton has brought about the growth of several boat-building plants along the channel. Steamers which are the pride of the river have left the ways in this city. Launches and barges which ply the countless streams serving the islands of the Delta, with their fabulous crops of onions, potatoes, corn, celery and asparagus, are made in this city. Pleasure cruisers that have become a byword among the boatmen of the nation also are manufactured in this city. Speed boats, racing craft, commodious cruisers and yachts, which are recognized for their fine workmanship wherever boating enthusiasts gather, go slipping into the water from the hands of local boat-builders.

While Stockton is a pioneer city, it has developed along orderly lines through the foresight of its founder, Captain Weber. Laid out in the checkerboard fashion by its planner, Major R. P. Hammond, father of the world-famous mining engineer, John Hays Hammond, the broad streets are proving their utility under modern traffic conditions.

The downtown court house square and the central plaza, after the fashion of old world Spanish cities, is an individual feature of the inland city. Parks scattered throughout the city through the generosity of the founder are a boon to children and a green oasis during the heat of summer. Trees planted along the highways form a green arch to temper the warmth of the valley sun, and the home gardens which surround the cozy Stockton residences are gay with color around the seasons. Stockton is essentially a home city, conservative as older communities are wont to be and just as comfortable and tolerant as only Western towns can be.

38 Continuous Years of Service

"ANGELS CAN DO NO MORE!"

Mary E. Brusie

(Secretary N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Central Homeless Children Committee.)

"THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE, always generous in granting space to the homeless children's work, expects an article for the Native Sons Grand Parlor edition. What special part of the work would you suggest that I write up this year?" asked the secretary of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children of a dear friend and member of the Order of Native Daughters. "I do not know which of the many angles of the committee's work involving various individuals would be of greatest interest to the members," she responded, "but I do suggest that you avoid stressing 'depression.' Forget that the Parlors are $2,707.22 behind last year's contribution, and $3,444.40 less than the year before; never mind that your Central Committee feels pessimistic concerning the year ahead, with increasing demands and decreasing revenue, and that we are starting another year with only sufficient funds to carry the work for six months. Write whatever comes into your poor, dull pate, but don't mention 'hard times'."

As a matter of fact, those who are engaged in the work have had a great deal to be grateful for during the past year, and know that the Parlors have made an extra effort to do their best against great odds. "Angels can do no more!"

Many children with their blood-parents have not fared as well as the homeless children who have been under the care and protection provided by the Native Sons and Native Daughters until the permanent home could be selected for them. One hundred ninety-four foster-homes have received children during this year; 180 different children have been placed. Since August 1910, when the work began, the total number of homes secured is 4,528, 4,031 children were placed and 497 re-placed.

The children have gone into their new homes in the best physical condition, because of scientific care and correct feeding, and, thanks to the Native Daughters, they have gone dressed in the sweetest and daintiest of clothes which never fail to call forth an expression of appreciation from the foster-mothers. The children of own parents have profited, too, by the lavish contribution of clothing from the Native Daughters —children whose parents have faced the need of placing them for adoption because of inability to provide for them.

The group of happy children pictured here are but twenty of the 4,031 children in our foster-homes. The following histories, only touched on, may be fitted to whichever child one chooses. Only the foster-parents who might read this page and find a familiar face will know which story refers to their child.

One little new-born baby girl was found in a gasoline station by the owner early one cold December morning, wrapped in newspapers and an old gray blanket. No name, no date of birth, no means of identifying or tracing the cowardly culprits who resorted to this fiendish method of ignoring their responsibility. The Native Daughters of the community were appealed to, and through court decree the baby was legally transferred to the Central Committee and placed in a receiving-home. After a few months of sadly-needed care the little foundling was chosen by a good man and woman of refinement, with hearts full of love, who had a lucrative business and owned their own home. They knew she needed them, and they realized her lack of history might not appeal to many individuals who demand a child with antecedents of rare perfection. That was six years ago. Now, this little doorstep baby is a bright, healthy, attractive child and a constant joy and credit to those who love her.

A mother and father, convinced that life held no further happiness for them together, decided to part. They placed their boy to board in a home of their selection, paid the board for two months, went their separate ways and promptly forgot all further obligation. All efforts to trace the parents proving unsuccessful, after two years the boy was declared an abandoned child and freed from the control of his parents. A physician and his wife are quite convinced that a child of their own never could have quite equaled this little adopted lad whose parents had failed him.

A mother died in the hospital when her baby was ten days old. The baby lived three weeks. Six other children were at home. The father, without a job, no money to pay rent and no one on whom to call, was a helpless individual who all through the years had depended on a frail, little woman. Two little brothers were ideally placed in a good home.

One little fellow had prayed to Saint Anthony for a baby sister since he could lisp a prayer. He went to the hospital to visit his mother, who was ill, and a nurse, knowing of his longing for a baby sister, took him to the nursery to see all the babies there. He could not play with them, much to his dismay, but he looked through the glass at all of the beds, with a baby in each one, and when he returned to his mother's room he said: "Mother, I am not going to pray to Saint Anthony any more for a baby sister. Miss S— is the one to go to." The Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children later found a sister for him. His joy has never waned, and his unselfishness in sharing is something which own brothers and sisters might well emulate.

A reporter of a San Francisco paper telephoned that he was sending a young girl with a baby to the office, 959 Phelan building, San Francisco, as she wanted to give her baby boy for adoption. The mother came in, a wholesome, bright-appearing girl, neatly dressed, no makeup, carrying in her arms a beautiful baby of eight months. She told her story of having lost both parents by death and of her inability to get the father of the baby to assume any of the financial burden. She lamented having to part with her boy, but she knew of no way to meet $30 a month for board, because she was without a position and had no one to keep her baby while she looked for one. The baby was sadly in need of clean clothes, so he was washed and dressed in the prettiest things that could be found, and there were many to choose from. We told the mother to meet us at the hospital the following morning for a physical examination of herself and baby, and that the worker would then take them to a home where the baby would be boarded until she found work. She said she could remain for the night at the address she had given, and left with her face wreathed in smiles, and the workers equally rejoiced that a way could be provided for the mother to keep her lovely boy.

The next morning the mother failed to keep her appointment and the worker found she had left the given address with her baby about 8 o'clock the evening before to "hitch-hike," she said, to San Diego. Perhaps she went to San Diego, but she did not take her boy, leaving him, instead, upon the steps of a lovely home in one of the best residential districts with this note: "Give my baby to the woman in the Phelan building in the Native Sons and Native Daughters office." A description of her was broadcast but she never was apprehended. Later, it was found that her elderly mother and father, respectable and hard-working had tried to prevail on their daughter to remain at home and care for her baby and the home, as the parents were both working in an effort to meet the payments on their home and thus avoid losing it. It was impossible for the grandparents to keep the baby, consequently putting him where he would be wanted seemed the wisest solution.

About others of the little ones pictured here we might tell the story of lack of watchfulness and restraint on the part of natural parents who allow their boy or girl to go dashing about at all times of day or night in automobiles, to obtain their view of life, or build up their standard from gallery seats in the movie theater. Some parents know nothing of the tragedy of a little one's advent into the world. Other parents know the truth, and bemoan the outraged girlhood and callous boyhood, but are too proud to face the world and keep the baby with his own.

Now that we have observed for twenty-two years hundreds of little ones develop into straightforward, law-abiding youths, we are convinced that a real chance in life seems assured for the adopted children, protected as they are by the vigilance and the understanding of foster fathers and mothers, who know all about the in

SANTA BARBARA — SANTA BARBARA No. 116 will soon be able to continue its highway beautification program inaugurated during the term of George A. Black as president. District Deputy A. C. Dinsmore and First Vice-president Philip Bradley recently visited Cambria No. 152, whose members assisted in securing a quantity of Monterey seedling pines. Judge A. S. Gay and M. L. Mayfield, past presidents of Cambria, effected an arrangement with the Phelan estate permitting the Native Sons to take these seedlings from property of the estate. "There have been cases of vandalism by tourists, so that owners of stands of these pines do not generally permit them to be disturbed," says District Deputy Dinsmore, "and we are gratified that the Phelan estate made an exception in our instance, thereby furthering our planting program."

Cambria Parlor had a banquet in honor of the two visitors from Santa Barbara and President Roy Cardoza formally presented the trees. First Vice-president Nick Storm was the toastmaster. The trees are being propagated at a nursery until certain they will thrive in the changed location. Meanwhile, No. 116 will seek a permit from the California State Highway Commission to plant them along the highway at Ortega Hill.

Santa Barbara's new million-dollar Eastside junior high school will be completed for the fall term. The Santa Barbara Board of Education, following a conference with a committee—A. C. Dinsmore and Clifford F. Rizor—from No. 116, delegated to the Native Sons authority to dedicate the structure. Santa Barbara's delegates to the Grand Parlor will confer with the grand officers at Stockton on plans for the dedication, which should be held in September or October.

Board Grand Officers Meets.

San Francisco—The Board of Grand Officers met April 2. In attendance were Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, who presided, Junior Past Grand John T. Newell, Grand First Vice Seth Millington, Grand Second Vice Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees George F. McNoble, Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., Jesse H. Miller, Joseph J. McShane, Frank M. Lane, John M. Burnett and Eldred L. Meyer. Past Grand Thomas Monahan was a visitor.

Motions prevailed that the Grand Secretary prepare a brief form upon which district deputies shall report to the Grand President; limiting the reports of visiting grand officers to one thousand words each; providing that the Grand First Vice and the Grand Secretary shall check all reports.

A letter was ordered sent Albert V. Mayrhofer and San Diego No. 108, commending them for splendid service rendered in the restoration of San Diego de Alcala Mission. The Board will submit to the Stockton Grand Parlor resolutions which, on adoption, will give official recognition by the Order to that great accomplishment.

Considerable other business of a routine nature was transacted, and the Board adjourned to the call of the Grand President.

Enviable Record.

Calistoga—As briefly remarked in the April Grizzly Bear, Calistoga No. 86 made an enviable record March 21, when it initiated a class of sixty-eight candidates, the largest percentage class ever initiated by any Parlor at any time, the membership of the Parlor going from 98 to 166. There were numerous visitors, including Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Past Grand Charles L. Dodge, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Third Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Trustee Joseph J. McShane and representatives from all surrounding Parlors.

The ritual was most impressively exemplified by Calistoga's prize team of past presidents: L. Carlenzoli, president; Felix Salmina, first vice; Henry Pocai, second vice; Edmund Molinari, third vice; Frederick Heitz, marshal; Theodore Tamagni, inside sentinel; Frank Pocai, senior past; Lionel Saviez, junior past. The class was known as the Charles E. Butler class, in honor of the sole surviving charter member of No. 86. A pleasing feature was the presentation of a past president emblem to Rev. Thomas J. McKeon, Past President Frank Pocai making the presentation address in behalf of the Parlor.

In rounding up this record class of candidates, Calistoga's membership was divided into two teams, the "Old Guard" and the "Young Guard." The youngsters were successful by a few points and so, carrying out the agreement, the old-timers treated them to a dinner at Kenny's farm April 11. Following the sumptuous outdoor feast, there was a program of enthusiastic addresses. Rev. McKeon was the toastmaster, and the speakers included Grand President Gonzalez, Nathan F. Coombs, Felix Salmina, Grand Third Vice-president Koenig, Past Grand Dodge, Grand Secretary Regan, Harmon D. Skillin and Mayor Andrew Rocca. A group led by Earle E. Brooks interspersed the talks with vocal and instrumental selections. Grand Trustees Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., Jesse H. Miller and Joseph J. McShane were among the many in attendance. Again Calistoga's "Old Guard" made history in celebrating their defeat by the "Young Guard."

[Calistoga is a small community, in population, in Napa County. What has been accomplished by Calistoga Parlor, without any "outside" assistance, can be duplicated by every Parlor of the Order, in large and small communities if the members of the several Parlors unite, and labor, to that end. NOW is the appointed time! California needs a large increase in the numerical strength of the Order. Let every Parlor respond to California's call for action!—Editor.]

Standingroom Only.

San Diego—Standingroom only was available at San Diego No. 108 April 6, when Arrowhead No. 110 (San Bernardino) paid a call. Among the numerous visitors were President Lynn A. Reed, Grand Organist Leslie Maloche and Judge Donald E. VanLuven of Arrowhead, District Deputy Walter E. Hiskey of Santa Ana No. 265, Ed L. Head of Stanford No. 76 (San Francisco) and Tallant Tubbs of Presidio No. 194 (San Francisco). The party lasted until well after midnight. Hill billies furnished music, and three three-round bouts were refereed by Judge Eugene Daney.

The committee of arrangements for the occasion included Wilbur Kelley, Martin J. Spangler, Burt W. Pauter, E. U. Emery, M. V. Cruze, President Gregory McHorney, John P. Murphy and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer.

Anniversary Celebrated.

Sacramento—Sutter Fort No. 241 celebrated its twenty-fourth institution anniversary with a banquet and entertainment. Past President Dr. D. L. Durst presided, and Grand Trustee Samuel M. Shortridge Jr. was the honor-guest and principal speaker.

While here, Grand Trustee Shortridge was also entertained at a dinner at the home of Albert W. Katzenstein, a member of the Parlor. The tables were decorated with California poppies and the placecards were miniature hula dancers.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1932, as follows, together with their membership figures April 19, 1932:

Historic Flag Loaned Library.

Oakland—Claremont No. 240 will place in the Golden Gate Library a Flag of the United States of America, the property of the Parlor, which saw service during the world war. In 1918 a request from Captain Darrow of Company A, Eighteenth Engineers, for a flag appeared in the local press. Harry Burns brought the matter to Claremont's attention and the Parlor offered to loan its silk parade flag, with the understanding that, if it survived the perils of the war, it would be returned. At the war's close Captain Darrow personally returned the flag and the treasured keepsake is now to be loaned the library for exhibition to the public.

April 19, Claremont was host to Argonaut No. 166 N.D.G.W. at a greatly enjoyed whist party and entertainment.

"Black Shirt" Fete.

Stockton—Stockton No. 7's annual "black shirt" night, sponsored by members of Italian descent, drew an attendance of over 300 April 11. Speakers included Frank Lane, Ralph Lane, Dr. S. W. R. Langdon, Past Grand Hubert R. McNoble, Grand Trustee George F. McNoble, Guard C. Darrah, George Steele, Ray Friedberger and Raymond S. Miller.

Louis F. Dentoni was chairman of the program committee and Frank Piccardo headed the committee of arrangements.

Bricks for Memorial Hall.

Oroville—Names of members of Argonaut No. 8, one of the oldest Parlors, will appear upon bronze plaques as wellwishers of Pioneer Memorial Relics Hall, soon to be dedicated. The Parlor has arranged for bricks in their honor, and also for a brick in its own name. The building is being erected by the local Native Daughters and Native Sons and will house a most interesting and valuable collection of early-day relics and historical data.

Observance Memorial Day Mandatory.

San Francisco—The Grand Parlor Printing and Supplies Committee—Fred H. Nickelson (chairman), Percy A. Marchant and W. G. Maison—April 15 communicated with the Subordinate Parlors, directing their attention to that section of the constitution which makes it mandatory for the Parlors to, in either of the two suggested methods, observe Memorial Day, May 30. The letter should be given prompt consideration.

Solano Pioneers Honored.

Vallejo—In honor of the Pioneer Fathers and Mothers of Solano County, Vallejo No. 77 and Vallejo No. 195 N.D.G.W. dedicated April 3 a tree and a bench in this city's new Memorial Park on Vallejo Hights. Five counties may be viewed from this vantage point, and a magnificent view of Mount Tamalpais is one of the many impressive sights.

Joseph E. Clavo was master of ceremonies, and addresses were delivered by Grand Presidents Evelyn I. Carlson and Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez. "Today we look upon California as one of the most beautiful spots in the entire universe," concluded Mrs. Carlson in telling of modern improvements. Supervisor Andrew Sheveland accepted the gifts. The junior high school brass quartet played "The Star Spangled Banner," and Al. St. John sang "I Love You, California." The committee in charge of the dedication included Elvena Woodard (chairman), Joseph E. Clavo, Carrie Congrave, Grace Birchmore and John Combs.

Will Endeavor to Stop Japs.

Santa Ana—Santa Ana No. 265 entertained April 18 a large delegation from Sepulveda No. 263 (San Pedro) headed by "Bill" Reuter. During the evening there was a heated discussion regarding the Jap and Philipino situation in this locality and Ivan Harper was named chairman of a committee which will endeavor to stop the spread of Jap-controlled produce marketing.

It was decided to feature May 29 a barbecue, at a place to be later announced. Dr. C. E. Price heads the arrangements committee. As a result of the membership campaign now in force, many applications for membership are being received by the Parlor.

May Day Outing.

Sacramento—The annual outing of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Parlors of Native Sons and Daughters will be held May 1, May Day, at Elk Grove. The committee announces everything in readiness. The feature of the day will be a baseball game between the Native Daughters of Sacramento and Courtland.

Visiting Grand Officer Pleased.

San Rafael—Grand Trustee John M. Burnett, accompanied by Past Grand Thomas Monahan and Harmon D. Skillin, officially visited Mount Tamalpais No. 64 April 18. Following initiation Grand Trustee Burnett praised the ritual officers, and expressed a great deal of satisfaction with the officers' reports.

The Parlor, he said, is one of the most active in the Order, showing a gain in membership and being in a sound financial condition. This, he said, is due not only to the activities of the membership, but also to the evident prosperous conditions prevailing in this locality, Marin County having suffered less than many other communities in California North from the depression.

Among other speakers were Harmon D. Skillin, Past Grand Monahan, County Coroner J. Ray Keaton and County Treasurer Chas. Red-

STOCKTON

Generous allowance always has been made for the schools, and the Stockton department of education ranks at the top of the nation's best. From kindergarten to post-graduate courses for the high school, equipment is the most modern and the finest. Domestic science and the manual arts receive recognition not only in the grade schools, but in vocational courses in the high school and a special trade school for those of grammar-school age. Through the co-operation of factory managers a coordinated system of school and trade training under actual working conditions has been worked out. With the establishment of the College of the Pacific in Stockton additional educational opportunities have been added. One of the oldest institutions of higher learning in the state, the local college has brought much of value to community life. Stockton itself enjoys the stimulus of youthful activity of a college town, and the cultural assets of lectures, concerts and plays given on the campus.

In listing the cultural advantages of Stockton, one must include the Louis Terah Haggin Memorial Art Gallery and Pioneer Historical Museum. Erected through the generosity of Mrs. Robert McKee of New York as a tribute to her Pioneer Father, the lifetime collection of Haggin, noted art connoisseur, has been made available to the public. Through the activity of the San Joaquin Historical Society, many descendants of early residents of the county have given to the fund that has made possible the building itself and its ever-growing collection of historical relics.

In the south hall and that on the ground floor are housed countless interesting mementos of pioneer life. Fine porcelain and silverware, brought around the Horn or across the plains in a prairie schooner to grace the new homes in the West, are displayed by the side of humble kitchen utensils that knew service in farm and mining camp. Old-fashioned wedding finery, fine bits of home-spun, silken quilts with a bit of history in every scrap, dolls of long ago and childish playthings may be seen. A quaint old perambulator of the vintage of 1860, fire-engines that were the pride of Stockton's early-day volunteer fire department, miniatures of early residents, firearms, pieces of old harness that checked the pace of the patient oxen, and innumerable other relics may be viewed. To the historian as well as the casual sightseer, much of interest may be studied in that collection with its hint of the romance of a more adventurous era.

To the student of early California history every road leading out of Stockton has its bit of story to tell. Highways that were the despair of the Pioneer, when the adobe took on the slick consistency of clay under winter rains, are smooth as glass today. Express stages were wont to boast of making the trip to Sonora, Tuolumne County, in eleven hours, and in this modern era the motorist leaves town at a comfortable hour, visits Sonora, historic Jamestown, Columbia and Tuttletown, haunt of Mark Twain and his pals, the "Gillis boys," and is whisked across the Stanislaus to Melones, Carson Hill and Angels Camp, quaint old towns built by the Argonauts. On the way home he may idle through San Andreas, government seat of Calaveras County, and visit Double Springs, site of the old seat of county government, and be whirled through Lockeford, founded by a group of New England settlers who set out from Boston in 1849 and built a town that still holds true to the traditions of its founders. By evenfall, he will be back in Stockton.

While Stockton is proud of its background of the old, and cherishes the roots nourished by the toil of its Pioneer merchants and builders, it looks to the future with supreme confidence. With the advent of ocean-going shipping another era of progress is imminent, and Stockton citizens are bending every effort to make a success of the project that has been close to their hearts for many years. Construction of facilities to handle expected cargoes is now under way, and Stockton is determined to offer service to shippers throughout the interior of the state that will assure the growth of its harbor.

OAKS OF SAN JOAQUIN

(JAMES B. O'FARRELL.)

All green and grey they stand today the fields of wheat between
To link us with the golden past, the Oaks of San Joaquin.
The mattock and the spade are still, the scars they made grow green
And the Argonauts are sleeping 'neath the Oaks of San Joaquin.

But nightly when the stars grow dim and fogs lie thick and cold
They come again with sluice and pan to dig and delve for gold.
They revel and they live again the lawless days of yore,
They strip Earth's garments from her breast, to loot her golden store.

Their covered wagons stand again beneath a sheltering tree,
Their tents and tattered garments flaunt the night wind from the sea
And oxen with their yokes unslung lie down, 'mid grasses green
Where moonbeams fleck the checkered shade from the Oaks of San Joaquin.

From Sutter's Buttes to Monterey to sate a hunger keen
They ply their unrequited task unhallowed and unseen,
But when the first faint streaks of dawn above the hills are seen
They sink into the shadows of the Oaks of San Joaquin.

Padre and Don alike are gone from sunburned hill and plain
But shadows of the oaks abide to lure them back again
And when the sheep lie sheltered now where cooling shadows lean
Perhaps the padres pray again for the souls of San Joaquin.

Though Commerce craves their sturdy trunks to line her ships of steel
No hand has fashioned forth a mast, no adz has shaped a keel,
No axe has left its sordid mark nor fire has dimmed their green,
For guardian angels watch above the Oaks of San Joaquin.

The giant trees with roots outspread still fling their streamers gay
To grant again a trysting place to the Loves of Yesterday,
And Loves that dream in endless sleep, by mortal eyes unseen
Again a blessed tryst may keep 'neath the Oaks of San Joaquin.

Before the Cross was lifted up on Mission San Jose
The savage stalked with stealthy tread between these trunks so grey,
And still they stand to bless the land, make glad the fertile scene,
Where Peace and Plenty lie beneath the Oaks of San Joaquin.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

PRESIDENT CHESTER A. ARTHUR signed May 8, 1882, the anti-Chinese bill, introduced by Senator J. F. Miller, and passed by the United States Congress. There was great rejoicing throughout California, and in a number of communities salutes of a hundred guns were fired. The measure was not to go into effect until August, and in the meantime the Chinese continued to come as fast as ships could be obtained to transport them.

During May, five ships, with 4,000 Chinks, arrived. On the "Altenower" were many cases of smallpox. The "Straitmore," with a registered capacity of 814, had 1,130 aboard. Its owners had to pay a fine of $50 for each of the excess 316, the total amounting to $15,800, but as they received $45 for each Chinaman landed they were out but $5 a head.

The Woman's Protective League was organized May 18 at San Francisco. Its object was to induce housewives to dispense with Chinese servants and give employment to White women.

May was a disastrous month for growing crops. A norther started the 5th and blew for three days, spreading disaster throughout the grainfields. A frost the 17th did great damage to vineyards, orchards and vegetable gardens.

May, too, was the great picnic month of the year, and numerous outdoor gatherings were held May Day. The largest, at Woodward's Gardens in San Francisco, was attended by 24,000, including 15,000 schoolchildren.

A picnic at Hock Farm, Sutter County, attended by the sons of toil, developed into an enthusiastic anti-debris meeting.

Veterans of the Mexican War, members of the Grand Army of the Republic and two companies of the California National Guard gathered near Stockton, San Joaquin County, for a joint three-day encampment May 10.

The Pacific Coast Railroad Company was incorporated to build an eighty-mile narrow-gauge railway connecting with the San Luis Obispo and Santa Maria Valley line. William Norris was the promoter.

Leland Stanford, Charles Crocker and other capitalists incorporated a company, with $500,000 capital, to build and operate a cable street-railway in San Francisco.

G. W. Funk of the Pacific Coast Land Bureau secured options on large acreages in San Luis Obispo County. From Kansas, 500 families were coming to settle there.

A Napa County genius applied for a patent on a device to make night-driving safe. It consisted of an electric light attached to a horse's forehead above the eyes. "Juice" was supplied by wires from a battery in the vehicle.

An oak tree, seven and one-third feet in diameter at its base, felled at Newville, Colusa County, was cut into 400 seven-foot posts and 75 cords of stovewood. The product netted $230.

A cave discovered near Buena Vista, Yolo County, was found to be inhabited by spiders, many of them as large as canary birds.

A new theater, with a seating capacity of 1,500, was opened May 10 at Stockton, San Joaquin County.

There was a boom in Napa Valley real estate, and many owners refused to sell at any price. A 200-acre vineyard, sold May 1 for $17,000, was re-sold May 20 for $24,000.

A vein of bituminous coal was discovered at Point Loma, San Diego County.

Piute squaws found rich placer diggings near Bodie, Mono County, and were accumulating wealth from the finds.

Cultivating a vineyard near Middle Bar, Amador County, the plow exposed a seam of gold quartz from which a fortune was being extracted.

A lode of ore, ninety percent iron, was found at Sheep Ranch, Calaveras County. It was 300 feet wide and was traced for two miles.

At Moore Flat, Nevada County, an eighty-five-pound quartz boulder was found May 21. It was oval in shape, and was encircled by an inch-wide gold band. It was valued at $2,000.

District Attorney M. C. Berry of Sutter County went to Dutch Flat, Placer County, to serve injunction papers on the Hickey hydraulic mine. While on the property, he was thoroughly drenched, a giant monitor being "accidentally" turned his way.

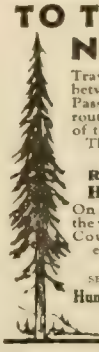
Claude Chana, a member of the first party that set out to relieve the ill-fated Donner Party, died May 24. He came to California from France in 1846 and located a domain on Bear River, near what is now Wheatland, Yuba County. At one time he was rated as worth $100,000, but he died a poor man.

Francis B. Murdock, who came from Maryland in 1850 and established a newspaper in 1853, died May 18 at San Jose, Santa Clara County, aged 77.

The fifteenth annual convention of the State Sundayschool Association was held at Stockton, San Joaquin County. The two hundred delegates, from nearly every county of the state, represented 41,418 scholars.

Five hundred fishermen were, it was estimated, engaged in seining salmon in Carquinez Straits.

Mrs. J. D. Hamill of Oakland, Alameda County, May 18 gave birth to a child, and two days later she gave birth to two more children. She was now the mother of ten children.



A church and two saloons were burned at Sierra City, Sierra County, May 5, and the same day fire destroyed Krug's store at Centerville, Alameda County, with a $15,000 loss.

A portion of the business section of Davisville, Yolo County, burned May 10, causing a $30,000 loss, and May 16 Garber's store in Garberville, Humboldt County, was destroyed, the loss being $25,000.

May 9 an incendiary set fire to a Chico, Butte County, planingmill, which was burned. The embers started another fire, a half-mile away, and six dwellings, with barns and outbuildings, were destroyed; loss, $30,000.

OAKLAND—THE TENTH ANNUAL SESSION of the Past Presidents General Assembly was held April 9, with Chief President Josephine Clark presiding. Among the many in attendance were Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Junior Past Grand President Estelle M. Evans, Grand Trustees Edna Briggs, Ethel Begley and Willow Borba, Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Founder Leah Magner-Williams of the Past Presidents Association, Past Chief Presidents Winnie Buckingham, Anna G. Loser, Josephine Schmidt, Susie K. Christ, Millie Tietjen and Lily May Tilden.

Association No. 2, the hostess, spared no effort to please the delegates. Chairman Emilie J. Clifford of the general arrangements committee was assisted by the following chairmen of sub-committees: Winnie Buckingham, Helen R. Cleu, Freda Reichhold, Helen Ring, Elizabeth B. Goodman, Frances McGovern, May C. Ward and Minnie Noyes.

Past Grand Emma G. Foley and Jennie Brown, being original officers of the first assembly, were made permanent members of the General Association. San Francisco was selected as the meeting-place for the 1933 session; Association No. 1 will be hostess. Officers were selected as follows:

MRS. LEAH MAGNER-WILLIAMS, Founder Past Presidents Association.

Cora Stobing, chief president; Josephine Clark, junior past chief president; Emilie J. Clifford, chief vice-president; Winifred Halter, chief marshal; Anna G. Loser, chief secretary; Emma G. Foley, chief treasurer; Antha Locklin, chief organist; Margaret Grote-Hill, chief inside sentinel; Elizabeth B. Goodman, chief outside sentinel; Mamie Davis, Willow Borba, Mattie M. Stein, Edna D. Sampson and Julia Waddington, directors.

Past Presidents Association No. 1 (San Francisco) was instituted by the Founder, Mrs. Leah Magner-Williams, July 1, 1904. There are now eight associations, with a membership of 675, which make up the General Assembly. The purposes of the organization are: "To further the interests and wellbeing of the Order of N.D.G.W.; to encourage members of Subordinate Parlors in the work of the Order and to bring about a higher understanding and appreciation of the objects, purposes and aims of the N.D.G.W.; to cultivate and encourage sociability and fraternity among the members throughout the state, and generally, to foster and enlarge upon the work of the Order and to be an incentive to members to pass through the chairs."

Tree Plantings.

Fullerton—In recognition of the George Washington bicentennial, Grace No. 242 planted two trees April 2—a liveoak at Hillcrest Park, Fullerton, and a California redwood at the Placentia schoolgrounds. The history and landmarks committee, Carrie McFadden-Ford chairman, presented the following program: Salute to The Flag; "George Washington's Prayer," Carrie Ford; "The George Washington Bicentennial," Carrie Sheppard; "Trees and Tree Planting," Kate Hill; clarionet solo, "Trees," Roy Hill; dedication of trees, President Mattie Edwards.

Past President Mary Rothaermel sponsored a public card party April 28 for the benefit of the Loyalty Fund. Hostesses for all-day April meetings of the Parlor's homeless children sewing circle were Lena Wagner and Kate Hill.

"A Day in School."

Etna—A public hijinks was given April 8 by Eschscholtzia No. 112 for the benefit of its Loyalty Pledge fund. An infinite variety of costumes caused much amusement. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Leland Smith, garbed as an old-fashion lady, and Mrs. Lester Calloway, impersonating a dude.

The program opened with an exhortation by "Deacon Jones," none other than District Deputy Lettie Lewis. Then followed vocal and instrumental selections by Elvira Wilson, Helen Lewis, Virginia Horn, Olive and Esther Buchner and Marjorie Anne Derham. A one-act play, "A Day in School," concluded the program. Grand Inside Sentinel Minna K. Horn was the very cross teacher, and the unruly pupils included Sadie Buchner, Clara Farr, Dorice Young, Lottie Tucker, Bernice Smith, Eleanora Dannenbrink, Evelyn Pitman and District Deputy Ada Wilson. Dancing and refreshments terminated the happy affair.

Past Presidents Honor Guests.

Oakland—Piedmont No. 87 had forty of its past presidents as guests of honor April 14. A delightful program, under the direction of Chairman Dorothy Davis, was presented, including vocal numbers by Edwin Healey, son of Edna Healey, a member of the Parlor. Bridge and whist were followed by a sumptuous banquet.

Kern District Meet.

Bakersfield—At the call of Supervising Deputy Grace S. Dorris, the Kern County Parlors—Miocene No. 228, El Tejon No. 239, Desert Gold No. 250—had a district meeting April 15. The lodgeroom was decorated with baskets of lovely orange blossoms. District Deputy May Givens was instructor of the evening and highly commended the officers of El Tejon. Two candidates were initiated, plans were made for Past President Mary B. Hampson to present a California State (Bear) Flag to the Jefferson grammar school during educational week, and a committee was appointed to arrange a Mothers Day program, the Pioneer Mothers of Kern County to be special guests. Among the numerous presentations was that of an emblematic pin to Past President Mayme Towne.

Preceding the meeting a banquet was served, the tables being beautifully decorated with roses. Short talks were given by District Deputies Miranda Seright and Evalyn Towne, President George Taylor of Bakersfield No. 42 N.S.G.W., Deputy Grand President Al Lobree and Principal H. A. Spindt of the Kern County union high school. Entertainment numbers were contributed by Wimmer Cooper, American Legion Auxiliary, Margaret Carlisle, Ila Kirk and Margaret Stramler.

In arranging for this wonderful gathering Supervising Deputy Dorris was assisted by Florence Hinderliter, Mayme Towne, Jewell Wade, Jennie Dennis, Mary Hampson, Catherine Dodenhoff, Edith Swett, Ernestine Edwards and Anna Scott. May 25 the newly-formed past presidents club of El Tejon will sponsor a card party.

Silver Tea.

San Bernardino—Lugonia No. 241 had a card party for the benefit of the homeless children April 13. Hand-embroidered pillowslips were disposed of and refreshments were served. Plans for an old-fashion southern ham dinner, in charge of Nola Fogler, were made.

Six candidates were initiated April 27, and the social hour at the conclusion of the ceremonies was in charge of Edith Wilson, captain of the losing team in the recent membership campaign. The history and landmarks committee of the Parlor sponsored a silver tea at the home of Chairman Clara Barton, April 30. An interesting program was presented and refreshments were served.

State's History Portrayed.

Stockton—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visited Caliz de Oro No. 206, April 1 and among the honored guests was Past Grand May C. Boldemann, who instituted the Parlor Dinner preceded the meeting, over which Mrs Roscoe Platt, president, presided. Grand President Carlson was the recipient of a gift, the presentation of which was arranged by Miss Roberta Foley. Stages of the history of California were portrayed by Lura Day, Buelah Grattan Katherine Wilde, Clarice Cook and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson.

During the evening plans were formulated for the spring informal dance, May 7. Mrs. Lawrence Johnson is the general chairman.

To Initiate Large Class.

Petaluma—Petaluma No. 222 had a card party April 5 for the benefit of its drill team. Captain Anne Dickson had charge of the cards playing. April 19 several more applications were received, and in the near-future a large class of candidates will be initiated by President Elizabeth Dillon and her corps of officers. Following the meeting cards were played, Nelli Pometta and Anne Dickson being in charge, and dainty refreshments were served by Edna Meadows and Pearl Lopez.

Sonoma County Past Presidents Association No. 7 met in Petaluma April 13 at the home of President Mastrup. Delegates to the General Assembly reported, interesting programs were outlined and refreshments were served.

Tells of Early-Day Life.

Oroville—At the April 6 meeting of Gold of Ophir No. 190, Laura Kloss told of the early day life of her mother's people in California. Alta B. Baldwin was named chairman of the Parlor's committee to serve on the national educational program. A committee composed of

HOME BEAUTIFUL

A STORY OF THE HOME, YOU ASK Why, the story of the Home is glorious, it is an epic! The struggles, the heartaches, the overcoming of obstacles, the enthusiasm engendered the loyalty that has sprung into flame the achievement of a big thing actually built in stone and steel, and the spirit of Home fire burning constitute a saga to light the souls of young and old!

The foundation story has been written many times; this will be the fireside story. It has long been a standing joke that a large body of women cannot live together peacefully. Of course, that is a joke. Women are like their brothers. The fireside at the Home is inviting to peace, and comfort. Our older women there find it especially peaceful. It is good, when ill to have kind ministering hands attend to one and it is good for the spirit to know that others take an interest in one!

Our beautiful Home has been selected by several young women as the scene of their wedding. There seems to be something "catching" about it, as rumor has it that several others are about to take the important step. It may be the atmosphere of the Home life that turns one's thought to a home of her own.

We are feeling the depression as well as everybody else, but the fact remains that we have few vacancies. Our second-Sunday-of-the-month breakfast at 9 a. m. is always a success. A memory book has been bought and the name of all contributing in honor of dear ones passed away will be entered therein. We desire to make this volume worthy of being handed down to posterity, and so the leaves are to be illuminated.

It is not quite three years since we started to pay off a $60,000 mortgage on the Home. The response throughout the Order has been so wonderful that the mortgage today is $9,300. Every Native Daughter, in the years to come, wants to be able to say, "I had a share in the building of the Home." So, come on, with goodwill and enthusiasm, and join us!

Mmes. Arena Keith (chairman), E. Steadman, Lauretta Ross and George Sollars served refreshments at tables decorated in seasonable flowers.

Mmes. Frank O'Brien, Walter Brown and Frank Mekellos were hostesses April 1 to Butte County Past Presidents Association No. 5 at the former's home. Gifts were presented Mmes. Frank Boyle, Alvin Bills and Lauretta Ross.

Marker for Landmark.

Alturas—Alturas No. 159 had a delightful social April 7, ten tables of bridge players making merry. Refreshments were served. A class of candidates will be initiated May 5.

A bronze marker, the gift of Sadie Winn-Brainard, is soon to be dedicated by the Parlor at Chimney Rock, one of a group of pyramids near Alturas about which cluster Indian legends. It is a landmark of the old military trail leading from Fort Bidwell, Modoc County, to Yreka, Siskiyou County. The marker will be dedicated to the memory of all Modoc County Pioneers.

Benefit Quilt Ready for Disposal.

Santa Ana—At the April 11 meeting of Santa Ana No. 235 the benefit quilt was reported as finished and ready for disposal. Clara Gerken was awarded the prize in a selling contest for the benefit of the Parlor's veteran welfare work. Mae West, chairman veteran welfare committee, was a recent visitor to San Fernando Hospital, taking the boys several boxes of easter candy, and also visited a veteran at the Sawtelle National Soldiers Home. In observance of national educational week a speaker addressed the Parlor April 25 on an appropriate subject.

Aprilfool Banquet.

Colusa—Colus No. 194 had an aprilfool banquet April 5. The table was adorned with cheeseweeds and large boquets of yellow mustard in coffee cans. Placecards were funny-papers pictures, and paper towels were used as napkins. Four kerosene lamps provided the only light. Thimbles, buttons, safetypins and a ring were baked in the cakes, and the lucky finders of the "trinkets" were rewarded with prizes.

Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson paid her official visit to the Parlor April 18. A banquet preceded the meeting at which twelve candidates were initiated.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of May, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

26th—La Dorado No. 236, San Francisco.
27th—Liberty No. 213, Elk Grove
31st—Tamelpa No. 231, Mill Valley

Officers Congratulated.

Sutter Creek—Amapola No. 80 received an official visit from Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson April 14. A dinner in her honor preceded the meeting, at which 100 members of the Order were present, including fifteen grand officers and representatives of twenty-one Parlors. Following the dinner a program was presented. During the evening garments made by the Parlor members for the homeless children were displayed. The ritual was exemplified by the officers of No. 80, with President Harriet Clemens presiding.

Grand President Carlson gave an interesting address, commending the officers for their perfect work and congratulating the Parlor for having completed its Loyalty Pledge. On the Parlor's behalf Grand Trustee Gladys E. Noce presented a gift of china to Mrs. Carlson, and gifts and flowers were presented to Founder Lilly O. Dyer, Junior Past Grand Estelle M. Evans, Grand Vice-president Anna M. Armstrong, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley, Willow Borba, Edna Briggs, Anna Thuesen and Gladys Noce, Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grands Ella Caminetti, Emma Foley and Dr. Eva Rasmussen, Supervising Deputy Emma Wright and District Deputy Margaret Davis.

Past Presidents Birthday Hostesses.

San Diego—The seventeenth birthday anniversary of San Diego No. 208 was celebrated April 13, with the past presidents as hostesses.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

SILK ENSEMBLES ARE IMPORTANT FOR the early summer, so treat yourself to at least one suit this season. Never have suits been quite so winsome and wearable. We have veered away from the strictly tailor-made. The short coat is kinder to the wearer than the long fitted coat which adds years. The short jacket is jaunty and has a dashing air. A navy blue of heavy rough tussah may be worn with a blouse or guimpe of white or beige with stripes in red and blue.

Even the sports clothes follow the straight and narrow path when it comes to the silhouette. Provision is made for comfort in walking by godets so placed that the slim line of the skirt is not materially widened.

The tailored note of the more dressy mode is cleverly blended into the general scheme without altering the theme of neatness. Elegance is not in fashion, and we prefer to be neat and youthful to achieve chic. One must dwell constantly on the youthful aspect of the mode. Women seek youth not through girlish frocks or models meant for their daughters, but through frocks that, by virtue of their cut, line and detail, create a neat, trig and lithe line with an absence of all but the most essential details.

The military note that sounds through the new collections means that buttons, many buttons, must be worn, for what is a uniform without bright buttons embellishing it? Double-breasted as well as diagonal closings must all be marked by buttons. New coats, especially the unfurred models, are tremendously smart, trig and youthful. One is made of a loosely woven woolen material with a diagonal, wide, raised rib and features the military motif and buttons. The double-breasted closing has three nickel buttons at each side and two at the cuffs. Flaring triangular pockets are attached to each side of the front panel.

All of us want slim figures—natural, or achieved through much sacrifice and care. So we want frocks to set off the form to best advantage.

For some reason, more mystery and romance seem to attach to the springtime brides, not that their prospects for "living happily ever after" are any better, but merely the season itself. No lovelier time of year could be found. With summer days just ahead, bridal wardrobes can be so much more comprehensive. By virtue of priority, white satin is the first choice. As a matter of fact, there is no worthy substitute for the gown of bridal satin, the all-enveloping tulle veil and the symbolic orange blossoms. The bride's choice of costume may rest on an enchanting afternoon frock of blush pink lace with matching jacket, pastel chiffon, or any one of the smart sheers. If the ceremony is due to take place in an out-of-doors setting during the warmer months, then lovely nets, organdies, swisses, or any of the exquisite cotton weaves that have fashionable approval, may be used.

Summer styles struck an economical note, being easily adaptable to silk, wool, crepes and cotton. The latter, once lowly, is now used for everything from evening wraps to bathing suits. Many smart women have met the new season half-way by being forehanded in assembling a cool, comfortable and tubable wardrobe. The vogue for meshes goes merrily on with lace batistes. Skirts are trig and trim, gored, pleated or slightly flared. Higher waistlines prevail, and sleeves are either omitted entirely or are very brief. They exhibit a number of lacy patterns in eyelet embroidery, and go in for self-fabric or self-color. Batiste pleatings, contrasting velvet ribbon bows in tub frock collections are the smart details that have received attention. Bias cuts, extended shoulders, fichus, capelets and many, many buttons, cords and twills are very much in the fabric picture. Piques are used to fashion some of the loveliest costumes. Jacket frocks are as much in evidence here as in the various other ranges. Linens are fulfilling their early season promise.

Each spring much charm and flattery can be, and are, packed into a wisp of straw with a perky bow or an artfully placed cluster of flowers. The new hats are simply grand. Every model is most wearable, and all are youthful, even to other than the very young woman. On every head we see rakish hats tilted over one ear, while the opposite side of the head is sometimes almost entirely exposed. Say what you will about this fashion, there can be no gainsaying its youthful and gay appeal. These hats must have expertly placed trimming to accentuate their lines and must never be overtrimmed. Ribbon is being used in plain bands and shirred fancy loops and rosettes. When flowers are used it is usually to the extent of one or two gardenias. Hats and frocks must match.

Not in many a day have style designers been in such perfect accord regarding what constitutes costume chic. Accessories add so much, we are enjoying many novelties. No sooner do we acquire one article of apparel than we become aware of its inability to function alone. One thing calls for another, and many others sound like extravagance, but really are not, as in most cases they are interchangeable.

Blue is enjoying a period of social prominence as a costume color. In the blue range we have flax, midnight, nassau, colonial and the good old navy, not to mention various other shades. Brown or russet accessories are deemed a bit smarter, though we have a wide range of blue ones. Brown is also indicated as the ideal accessory color. With beige, the tricolor theme has been the subject of unlimited variation. Sports accessories have been largely responsible for the increasing popularity of red, white and blue scarfs, which constitutes style news of first importance. This applies, also, to formal as well as street and sports clothes. A scarf is not always what it started out to be. It may turn itself into a draped collar and sash end, or make a dashing belt.

LEGALIZED MONOPOLY

MORE MEN Out of Work

—That's what OIL CONTROL (Proposition No. 1) will mean to the people of California if approved by the voters at the election of May 3.

It is the SHARKey bill, this Proposition No. 1, which attempted to masquerade as "Oil Conservation" until detected by the California State Court of Appeal and given its proper title of OIL CONTROL.

Surely the people of California cannot be bamboozled into voting for such a measure.

Kill legalized monopoly by voting NO on OIL CONTROL (Proposition No. 1) at the primary election on May 3.

WARNING!

STOP, LOOK, LISTEN! Great sums of money are now being spent, and far greater sums will be spent by the Major Oil Corporations in every conceivable form of propaganda before election day in the attempt to put over the SHARKey bill. Millions for monopoly! Fat salaried executives do not care how they spend their stockholders' money to play their own cunning game. The best guess is that the people of California will not be fooled no matter how great the flood of paid advertising, paid speakers, radio and propaganda! Vote to kill legalized monopoly by voting NO on OIL CONTROL (PROPOSITION NO. 1) on MAY 3.

FIFTY-FIFTH N.S.G.W. GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE FIFTY-FIFTH GRAND PARLOR OF the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will convene at Stockton, San Joaquin County, Monday, May 16, at 10:30 a. m. Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez (Pacific No. 10) of San Francisco will preside, and at the close of the deliberations he will automatically become the Junior Past Grand President.

The Grand Parlor sessions will be held in the Civic Memorial Auditorium, in the Civic Center, Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. Any member of the Order is privileged to attend. Stockton also entertained the Grand Parlor in 1921, the Forty-fourth session being held there, with the then Grand President, James F. Hoey (Mount Diablo No. 101) of Martinez presiding. It was at that session that John T. Regan (South San Francisco No. 157) of San Francisco was elected to the important office of Grand Secretary, which he has ever since admirably filled.

The reports of the grand officers and the Grand Parlor committees to the five hundred delegates representing the one hundred and fifty-five Subordinate Parlors will set forth the progress made by the Order during 1931 and will, in all likelihood, contain important recommendations for future action. That of Grand Secretary Regan will detail the condition of the Subordinate Parlors. Those of 450 and more members, with their assets, include:

	Members	Assets
Ramona No. 109	1088	$41,498.24
South San Francisco No. 157	822	47,661.39
Castro No. 232	700	12,582.29
Stanford No. 76	614	24,711.46
Arrowhead No. 110	609	24,064.86
Twin Peaks No. 214	585	9,257.55
Stockton No. 7	549	49,319.99
Piedmont No. 120	523	21,230.57

Others, with assets of $20,000 and more, together with their membership-figures, are:

	Members	Assets
San Jose No. 22	358	$59,972.01
Sacramento No. 3	366	44,408.64
Pacific No. 10	397	42,192.65
Presidio No. 194	382	35,769.30
Amador No. 17	144	33,237.76
Santa Lucia No. 97	46	33,049.62
Placerville No. 9	282	31,778.79
Napa No. 62	329	30,058.86
Observatory No. 177	196	29,043.87
Redwood No. 66	183	28,169.89
Sunset No. 26	305	23,058.13
California No. 1	372	22,704.76
Eden No. 113	104	22,231.18
Excelsior No. 31	127	20,577.11

From these figures, it will be noted that Ramona No. 109 (Los Angeles) continues its lead as the largest, numerically, in the Order, and that San Jose No. 22 remains the wealthiest, financially. Santa Lucia No. 97 (Salinas) has the greatest percapita wealth.

At the close of 1931, Subordinate Parlors had total convertible assets of $1,283,974.29, including $304,623.53 cash on hand. Their 1931 receipts totaled $368,373.40, and their disbursements $358,452.14. They paid benefits totaling $115,559.56 to 1,724 members.

During 1931 the Subordinate Parlors presented United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags to the following schools, Grand President Gonzalez and the Board of Grand Officers officiating at all the ceremonies: San Jose No. 22, Peter H. Burnett junior high school; Fremont No. 44 (Hollister), San Benito junior college; Redwood No. 66 (Redwood City), Peninsula Avenue grammar school; Ferndale No. 93, The Island school; Santa Lucia No. 97 (Salinas), El Sausal school; Sea Point No. 158 (Sausalito), The Park school; Lower Lake No. 159, Upper Lake union grammar school; Observatory No. 177 (San Jose), Herbert Hoover junior high school; Estudillo No. 223 (San Leandro), McKinley school; Bret Harte No. 260 (San Francisco), Farragut school.

If there be any fact-foundation for the numerous rumors that are floating about, considerable legislation, some of it destructive in nature, will be presented at the Stockton Grand Parlor. Sure, there will most likely be the usual quantity of resolutions, also, dealing with almost every conceivable subject—of concern to the Order and otherwise. The quality ones will be given due consideration, and the remainder will possibly, as they certainly should, be wastebasketed without consideration.

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

"Oldman rumor" persistently declares there will be presented at Stockton surprise candidates for most of the Grand Parlor elective offices Every effort has been made to secure definit declarations of intentions from many of th prospective "darkhorses." A couple have repu diated the rumors, while others, most promi nently mentioned, if they responded at all t the query, gave evasive answers. The followin list of candidates is compiled from authentic in formation received direct by the Grizzly Bear

Grand President—Grand First Vice-presiden Seth Millington (Colusa No. 69) of Gridley.

Grand First Vice-president—Grand Secon Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell (Sant Rosa No. 28) of Santa Rosa.

Grand Second Vice-president—Grand Thir Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig (Golden Gat No. 29) of San Francisco.

Grand Marshal—Grand Inside Sentinel W. B. O'Brien (Alameda No. 47) of Alameda City.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel Gam Hurst (Piedmont No. 120) of Oakland.

Grand Outside Sentinel—William A. Reuter (Sepulveda No. 263) of San Pedro.

Grand Trustees (seven to be selected)—Jesse H. Miller (California No. 1) of San Francisco, incumbent; Henry S. Lyon (Placerville No. 9) of Placerville; John M. Burnett (San Jose No. 22) of San Jose; Grand Marshal Horace J. Leavitt (Mount Bally No. 87) of Weaverville, Charles H. Spengemann (Hesperian No. 137) of San Francisco; Samuel M. Shortridge Jr. (Menlo No. 185) of Menlo Park, incumbent; Joseph J. McShane (Twin Peaks No. 214) of San Francisco, incumbent; Eldred L. Meyer (Santa Monica Bay No. 267) of Santa Monica, incumbent.

The Grand Organist and the Historiographer, additional grand officers, will be appointed by the incoming Grand President.

There is a possibility that the Humboldt County Parlors will invite the next (1933) Grand Parlor to meet in Eureka, and Auburn No. 59 may seek the honor in behalf of Auburn, Placer County.

Latest advices from Sacramento are that the Capital City Parlors are desirous of having this year's Admission Day, September 9, there, "but there remain a couple of hurdles to get over" before a final decision is reached. If those obstacles are satisfactorily negotiated, Sacramento will ask for the celebration.

WANTS LAND LAW PERFECTED.

Petaluma (Sonoma County)—Petaluma Parlor No. 27 N.S.G.W. adopted April 11 the following resolutions, which will be introduced by its delegates at the Stockton Grand Parlor:

"Whereas, The appeal to the Supreme Court of the State of California of the so-called 'Fujita case,' by the Sonoma County District Attorney, which case involved the question of escheat of lands purchased by minor children of one A. P. Fujita, Japanese, by fraud, has been lost by Sonoma County as of March 1, 1932; and

"Whereas, After years of faithful work by the Sonoma County District Attorney, it is with deep disappointment that we realize this decision will further open avenues of acquisition of California lands by questionable subterfuge and deceitful evasion of the intent of the law, written into the statutes to prevent acquisition of such lands by nationals ineligible to our citizenship; it is

"Resolved, By this [Grand Parlor] of the Native Sons of the Golden West, that our State Attorney General, together with any other capable legal ability, be called upon, before the meeting of the next Legislature, to prepare amendment or change in said Land Law which will fully correct beyond question the flimsy and disgracefully widespread evasion of the law now prevalent in our state."

CALIFORNIA'S NATIONAL FOREST CAMPGROUNDS HAVE COLORFUL NAMES.

Visitors to the 1,252 campgrounds in the eighteen national forests of California will find that the Federal Forest Service has preserved the names given those spots by the pioneers and the forty-niners. Among many camp names suggestive of frontier days are Bacon Rind, Bear Heaven, Dog Town, Graveyard, Hell Creek, Hog Pen Springs, Hobo Hot Springs, Murderers Bar, Pie Canyon, Poison Meadow, Toad Wells and Whiskey Creek.

Why such names were applied to the beauty spots of the national forests where now the summer visitors find recreation and rest, is usually unknown. Once given, these designations have remained to record some forgotten incident in the early history of California.

FORMER EL DORADO N.S. OFFICIAL DEAD.

Placerville (El Dorado County)—Abe Darlington, for sixteen years district attorney of this county, where he was born sixty-four years ago, died April 20 survived by a wife and two children. He was affiliated with Placerville Parlor No. 9 N.S.G.W., and frequently represented it at the Grand Parlor.

Music Festival—With schools of Marin, Sonoma, Napa and Mendocino Counties participating, the annual Music Festival will be held at San Rafael, May 6.

Fiddletown Celebration—Historic Fiddletown, now Oleta, Amador County, will celebrate May 7 its eighty-third birthday.

Lake's Flower Show—The annual Lake County Flower Show will be held at Lakeport, May 7.

Rose Festival—Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, will revive its annual Rose Festival, May 5-8.

Raisin Classic—Fresno City will stage its annual Raisin Festival, May 14.

Regatta—Stockton, San Joaquin County, will stage its sixth annual regatta, May 28-30.

SUTTER'S FORT

(At Sacramento, California.)

(BETTY L. WHITSELL.)

All glorified today
With planted shrubs and trees
And grass clipped short
It stands, like some great giant tomb,
This Sutter's Fort.
Such sacred quietness
All blessed in its decline
Once strong retreat,
For bands of restless pioneers,
A manor-seat.

Behind adobe walls
The Swiss John Sutter lived in Authority.
With artisans and savages
West's royalty.
He was the potentate
With flocks and herds and mills
And grants of land
That yielded wheat for men and beast
At his command.

Some forty miles above
The fort there came the cry
Gold! Gold! Gold! Gold!
Calm reason left. That cry was heard
By young and old.
A thirst it was—weird thirst
That seized men everywhere
An awful crave
For magic power—denying that Dread thing—the grave.

They left John Sutter's fields
Forgot his herds and shops
Stole everything.
Pathetically, they left him there
Deserted king!

STOCKTON N.S.G.W. PROGRAM

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

STOCKTON PARLOR NO. 7 N.S.G.W. HAS charge of the arrangements for and the entertainment of the Fifty-fifth Grand Parlor, and "old seven," the home-Parlor of Past Grand President Hubert R. McNoble, can be relied on to adequately care for the needs of its guests and to provide ample entertainment for them. Here is the program:

May 15 (Sunday) — Registration opens at noon at the headquarters, Stockton Hotel, East Weber avenue. In the evening, open house at N.S.G.W. Hall, Main and San Joaquin streets; entertainment and dancing.

May 16 (Monday)—All-day Grand Parlor session in the Civic Memorial Auditorium. For the womenfolks, lunch at the Stockton Golf and Country Club, followed by a visit to the Pioneer Museum, the state hospital and other local places of interest. In the evening, class initiation, in the Civic Auditorium; the officers of Stockton Parlor No. 7 will exemplify the ritual. For the ladies, a card party at N.S.G.W. Hall.

May 17 (Tuesday)—All-day trip to the Calaveras Big Trees; the auto caravan will leave Stockton at 8:30 a. m., and lunch will be served at the grove under the supervision of Chispa Parlor No. 139 (Murphys). In the evening, Grand Parlor banquet; Grand Trustee George F. McNoble will be the toastmaster, and the speakers will include Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, Edwin A. Meserve and Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington. For the womenfolks, a theater party.

May 18 (Wednesday)—All-day Grand Parlor session. The womenfolks will be taken for an auto ride along the Sacramento River, returning for lunch, served under the auspices of Ivy Parlor No. 88 N.D.G.W. (Lodi), at the Lodi Ladies Improvement Club. In the evening, the grand ball, in the Civic Auditorium, which will be preceded by a drill by members of Joaquin Parlor No. 5 N.D.G.W., commencing promptly at nine o'clock. Governor James Rolph Jr. will be in attendance. Floor Director W. P. Rothenbush will be assisted by the following floor managers, all members of Stockton Parlor No. 7: Ray Dorcey, Harry Herrmann, Fred Fernando, Laurence Buol, Irvin Neeley, W. A. Strong, Clarence Walsh, Alden Carey, Alex. Tschierschky, Fred Krumb, John Fisher, Joel Beck Jr., John Gallagher, Ben Waller, George Witherow, Arthur Libhart, George Avery, Ray Lamb and Glenn Kennedy.

May 19 (Thursday)—All-day Grand Parlor session, concluding with installation of the newly-elected grand officers.

The general committee of Stockton Parlor No. 7 that is handling all the details includes: Ray Friedberger (chairman), Walter P. Rothenbush (vice-chairman), Ray D. Dorcey (secretary), Harry M. Herrmann (treasurer), Ivan Hoult, Eugene Allison, George D. Avery, C. W. Walsh, Law T. Freitas, Frank Piccardo, W. I. Neely, Ralph Mitscher, F. R. Fernando, W. A. Strong and L. Buol.

Subcommittee chairmen are: W. A. Strong (transportation), H. M. Herrmann (banquet), W. I. Neeley (housing), W. P. Rothenbush (grand ball), I. F. Hoult (music), L. T. Freitas (banquet entertainment), L. Buol (printing), R. D. Dorcey (registration), F. Piccardo (jinks), F. R. Fernando (badges), R. A. Mitscher and E. Allison (reception), C. W. Walsh (decorations), G. D. Avery (publicity).

Past Grand President Hubert R. McNoble, Warren A. Atherton and George A. Dietz compose the committee arranging for the Calaveras Big Trees outing. At the grove, characteristic Calaveras County hospitality will be dispensed by a committee composed of D. Fricat, C. T. Mills, G. H. Treat, D. W. Brice and H. Bardin. The San Andreas band will furnish music, and there will be some speakers. On the return trip places of historic interest will be visited, including Mercer Cave (Murphys), Moaning Cave (Vallecito), Double Springs, San Andreas and Angels Camp.

Stockton's Native Daughters have a joint committee assisting in arranging for the entertainment of the womenfolks: Joaquin Parlor No. 5—Vera Johnson, Nan Drais, Grace Bessac, Matty Porter, Katherine Wilson and Margaret Paxton. Caliz de Oro Parlor No. 206—Clarice Cook, Mura Day, Christine Neeley, Cathryn Wilde and Florence Carlson.

THE HOST PARLOR.

Stockton Parlor No. 7 was instituted March 12, 1881, by the then Grand President, Frank Higgins, now deceased. Three of the original fifteen charter members are still affiliated with the Parlor—Leroy S. Atwood, Ralph P. Lane and Frank E. Lane. In 1883, according to the "History of Stockton Parlor," the "prosperity and zeal of the Parlor attracting the attention of the Grand Parlor, Stockton was selected for the holding by the Order at large of the first general celebration of the anniversary of Admission Day. Curtis H. Lindley of this Parlor was elected Grand Marshal, and under his excellent management the celebration was made a grand success and an event in the history of the Order."

The Parlor moved into its present home, where it maintains lodge and club rooms, January 1, 1920. It has always taken an active interest in affairs of the Order and has joined heartily in all worthwhile civic undertakings,

RAY FRIEDBERGER,
Chairman General Committee.

HARRY HERRMANN,
Treasurer General Committee.

RAY DORCEY,
Secretary General Committee.

PRACTICE RECIPROCITY BY ALWAYS PATRONIZING GRIZZLY BEAR ADVERTISERS

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

SPEAKING BEFORE A UNITED STATES Senate committee the other day, Matthew Woll of the American Federation of Labor said, "Is it that we want revolution in this country? The remarkable thing to me is, that labor has been so calm, so conservative during the depression. But let that condition continue and I'll not venture to say what labor shall do."

Many men conversant with national conditions have hinted that a revolution is coming in this country unless the National Government legislates to relieve the masses. Dollar-relief has been extended the "financially-depressed" higherup moneykings who, through dishonest but within-the-law tactics brought on the depression, but naught but propaganda has been passed out to those in dire need—the common people.

Truly, unless there be an awakening and a change of policy in Washington, serious times, not that long-promised prosperity, are just around the corner!

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling of the United States Navy recently declared: "The large number of aliens in the Hawaiian Islands is a matter of grave concern to our National Government, and years of study by civilian, military and naval authorities of the probable attitude of certain island-born Orientals has led to the conclusion that but doubtful reliance can be placed upon their loyalty to the United States in event of war with an Oriental power." There is no doubt, whatever, that every Jap, irrespective of where he may have been born or where he may be hibernating, would be loyal first, last and always to Japan.

Representative Yamashiro, a Jap member of the Hawaiian Legislature, said the Admiral's doubts "give me a pain in my neck." It would be a glorious thing, indeed, if all the Japs in the United States and its possessions would become so generally afflicted with pain-in-the-neck that they would hasten to Japan for relief and permanent residence. This nation would be greatly relieved, and benefited, by the exodus.

In a decision rendered April 19, the California Supreme Court declared constitutional the state's public works alien employment act passed by the last Legislature.

That's fine! Now, the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West should "go to the bat" and see that the law is strictly and impartially enforced. The law itself is of no value, unless put into effect. Its enforcement will help mightily to clarify labor conditions in this state, and make it possible for a White citizen to secure employment.

This (May) issue is the three hundred and first number of The Grizzly Bear, the magazine having been published continuously since May 1907—a quarter-century. The Grizzly Bear has not achieved perfection—far from it. It has, however, in addition to publicizing the Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters, featured the state's glorious history, and presented facts on important public questions for the enlightenment and the guidance of its readers. It has played no favorites, and has been influenced neither by the almightiness nor the lowliness of any individual or combination of individuals.

There is suspicion that the monkeywrench which gummed the machinery of the Los Angeles receivership-racket was the loaning of money to a couple of so-called men of the Gospel. Was someone "influenced" to pull that "boner?" Had not those gents been prominently mentioned, would the dailies have "spilled the beans?"

Reports "along the street" have it that the receivership-racket has been in vogue in Los Angeles for several years. Why not go back, say, five years, have a thorough and honest investigation, and see what and who can be uncovered?

There is an increasing demand for submission of the prohibition question to a national referendum, and it should be complied with. Then, if the majority vote to retain the law, the skyscraping hotel, as well as the cellar, speakeasies should be forced to respect it. The law can be enforced, if the powers-that-be choose to enforce it.

Motor-vehicle traffic deaths in California last year totaled 2,591—216 per month. In 1930, 2,384—198 per month. The slaughter goes on, and most of it is accomplished by drunken auto drivers. Every day this heading appears over a newspaper article: "Drunken Driver Given Probation." That accounts for the mounting death-figures, and there will be no lessening in the number of slaughtered until judges fearlessly and impartially enforce the traffic law and suspend the probation-practice.

A report to the United States Senate, April 4, on the social, economic and law-enforcement conditions in the Hawaiian Islands said: "We found a condition of inefficiency in the administration of justice which, in effect, constituted an invitation to the commission of crime."

The identical condition exists throughout the United States mainland, too,—inefficiency plus dishonesty. Administration of justice? It is to laugh! Justice is not possible of administration in a country which has enthroned dishonesty. First, get rid of the crooks—the dishonest in the governmental, the business, the professional and the social life of the nation—and then justice will prevail.

Registration in California's fifty-eight counties for the May 3 presidential primary totals 2,377,710, Los Angeles County alone being credited with 1,040,644 registered voters. The combined southern counties—Santa Barbara, Ventura, San Bernardino, Orange, Riverside, San Diego, Imperial, Kern, Inyo and Los Angeles—have a total registration of 1,367,673—more than one-half the state's total.

For the good of the nation and the state,—for your own good—get out and vote. Don't be a ballotbox slacker! Do your own thinking. Don't be misled by propaganda that fills the air and the daily press. Let your conscience be your only guide, and vote right!

June 16 has been proclaimed "California Farm Products Day." Why not a day for the relief of the suffering farmer who produces those products?

Influences in Washington are endeavoring to have the Federal Congress put off action on a bill, reported unanimously by the House Committee on Immigration, that further reduces the number of aliens admissible under existing quotas and applies quotas to all countries whose nationals are now admissible free of quotas. The pretext is advanced that, as few foreigners are coming in, the legislation is not necessary. The pretext is an insult to American intelligence!

Experience proves the legislation is necessary. Cheap alien labor, hired on arrival and fired when convenient, is always a heavy burden on the taxpayers. The country, and particularly California, is overloaded with that class of labor in flush-times, in order that certain interests may have cheap, newly-imported workers for their requirements, and then the balance of the taxbearers must, via the public-charity course, lug the burden along when those laborers are discharged. A leaky roof should be repaired when it is not raining! Now is the time to enact this needed relief measure, known as House Bill No. 10602.

Millions of dollars to help meet the national treasury deficit could be harvested if the Federal Government would eliminate from the income-tax law the provision exempting employes of The People from payment of the tax. There is no reason whatever, except political, why all such, elective or appointive, should not pay the tax. They are regularly well paid, are not bowed down with dollar-raising worries and have the protection of government. Why should they, or any other class of citizens, be exempt?

Anent the agitation for bonus payments now by the Federal Government to war veterans, Willard Straight Post, New York, last month made public this telegram, sent to the national commander of the American Legion:

"We demand discontinuance of Washington lobby and all attempts to coerce Congress to vote additional billions and special privileges which will thereby degrade patriotism of war service, imperil government finances, gouge taxpayers and make the word 'veteran' synonymous with panhandler and grafter."

"Undoubtedly, 'Grizzly Growls' in April strikes home to many a heart," says a Los Angeles reader of The Grizzly Bear, and she then asks, "Are none of us to escape the heavy hand of the money power?" In answer, these words of Gerald Massey:

"O men, bowed down with labor,
O women, young, yet old,
O hearts, oppressed in the toilers' breast,
And crushed with the power of gold;
Keep on, with your weary struggle,
Against triumphant might;
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right."

What the country needs most, is fewer damphool laws and more equity—correction of the many deficiencies in sane laws.

The California Council on Oriental Relations, composed of yellow-dollar worshipers, has agents in the field advocating the quota for Orientals. Keep your eye on that outfit!

The United States Supreme Court April 11 rendered a decision of vast importance to California investors who lost heavily through the wrecking—from the inside, by crooked officials,—of many financial enterprises.

The court holds that creditors have valid claims against the directors and the stockholders of all such concerns existent prior to the repeal,

DORMIDERA

(MINNA McGARVEY.)

The early Californians
In their soft, poetic tongue,
Gave a name to our golden poppy,
Lovely as ever sung.

All day it paints the valleys
And the hills with leafy gold,
But at darkening hint of sundown,
Dreaming, the petals fold.

Sweet sleepy-head of flowers
When the slanting shadows creep!
Called, caressingly, Dormidera,
"Drowsy One" curled in sleep.

THINK THIS OVER!

The order of Native Sons of the Golden West is, we believe, with the exception of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, the only organization that limits membership exclusively to NATIVE-BORN AMERICANS.

Knowing the serious conditions in this country today, this fact alone should impel every Native Son of California to immediately SEEK AFFILIATION with that American-born and American-operated institution, the man-power and wealth of which are pledged to the protection of American institutions in times of peace as well as in times of war.

THE ROMANCE OF SAN BERNARDINO

Clara M. Barton

(Copyrighted, 1931, by the Author.)

"LISTEN, YOU MEN," DEMANDED CAPtain Jefferson Hunt, "you must take my advice. I want at least 150 able-bodied men who are capable of performing a good service, know how to handle a gun and are not afraid to fight, to help me organize a military company. The object is to be prepared to squelch the anger of the Indians. Uncle Grief, our respected colored man, has a large tin horn and has promised to use it as a bugle for giving signals. Are you in favor of the action?" "Aye, aye, sir!" answered a half-hundred voices. Captain Hunt smiled. "You fellows sound like a bunch of sailors on a heavy sea!"

Though elaborate preparations had been made, the Indians made no attack, much to the disappointment of some of the colonists, who had hoped to experience the thrill of an Indian onslaught. For one year the colonists lived happily within the walls of the fort. Then Lyman and Rich decided to make some improvements. The fort was taken down, bit by bit, and the logs, adobe bricks and other building materials were used for the construction of stores, houses and barns.

"It is too bad to destroy such a pretentious fort, but I feel that we need have no more fear of the enemy, and it would be unwise to let the fort material decay and become useless," remarked Rich, and the men all agreed.

Bishop Tenny, an active member of the Lyman caravan, located in the old mission building, and he, with several others of the Lyman and Rich wagon trains, constructed a serviceable irrigation ditch, named Tenny ditch. "The water must come from the Mill Creek zanja," said Tenny, "as that creek seems to have the most water at this time of year." "Yes," remarked Lyman, "and too, this ought to be the foundation of the water system for future generations."

Captain Hunt was delegated to command men of the colony who were to build a road up West Twin Creek Canyon, now known as Waterman Canyon, in order to reach the timber lands. A few months later Captain Hunt was supervising the construction of three sawmills. These supplied the lumber for the Mormons' houses. During the latter part of 1852 a large flourmill was built, and this was the producing center of flour for many years.

When the Mormon colonists received the grant of San Bernardino from the Lugos in 1852, the property was in Los Angeles County, and in 1853 Captain Hunt was delegated by Lyman and Rich to represent Los Angeles County in the State Legislature.

"The settlement of San Bernardino is a thriving one, but we are so far away from the county seat that many of the people want the county divided. We desire to be in a county of our own," Captain Hunt told the legislators. Soon afterward the separation was made, the county being divided and the boundaries marked and approved.

"This county is now the largest in the world," said Rich. "Yes?" asked a doubting Los Angeles County representative. "Certainly," answered the captain. "We are owning 23,472 square miles, 200 miles from east to west and 150 miles from north to south. We should be in line with the best overland routes."

Early in 1853 the Mormons decided that since San Bernardino was separated from Los Angeles, it was time to lay out a lasting settlement. Plans were drawn, but none seemed suitable. "Let's get H. G. Sherwood here from Salt Lake. He can help us, as he laid out Salt Lake," said Rich.

Sherwood was soon drawing the plat of the town. Because of its location, the situations of the buildings and the size and shape of the cultivated lands, the town was laid out in a most perfect square. It was one mile square, containing eight acres, and was laid out in blocks with wide streets running at right angles. Both Lyman and Rich looked at this new sight with pride. They had conquered the winter rains, and the settlement itself was already attracting members of other wagon trains.

The first public building to be erected was the Council House, constructed by Lyman and Rich. It was used as a general office of all Mormon interests, both religious and secular. It boasted of one room below and one above, and a wicker fence surrounded it. But as the ground settled the walls began to crack and the interior became badly damaged. Braces were set against the walls and every precaution was taken to avert damage from weather conditions.

"Father, we simply must have a house to live in. I'm tired of the condition we are now in," said Mrs. Lyman number one, and the other four wives nodded in approval. "I'm sorry, and I shall do all I can to relieve your situation," replied Lyman. Soon afterward he and his five loyal wives were comfortably domiciled in the first two-story adobe house. Happiness once more reigned for his family.

But his pride and joy was a young son, born to his wife Priscilla. He was the first White child born in the valley, and was duly named Lorenzo Snow Lyman. Priscilla and the boy had the privilege of residing in their choice of the house which, for the convenience of the other wives, had been partitioned into various rooms known as apartments. The kitchen and diningroom, however, were together. The wives disapproved of the arrangement, so remained in their own apartments. The house had no windows, but the sun-rays came through a skylight. Lyman had worked out his plans and had the place built beside that of the Council House. The home was soon destroyed by fire.

Charles Rich looked at his partner, Amasa Lyman, with envious eyes. "Mind if I build a house like yours for my family?" asked Rich. "Why not, brother?" answered Lyman. In time Rich had his three wives comfortably settled in a four-room house and the occupants were more than satisfied with the arrangements.

"It will soon be the Fourth of July, Charley, do you realize that?" said Lyman to Rich as they were overlooking their settlement. "How time does fly!" answered Rich. "What are we going to do to celebrate it, brother Amasa?" "We ought to get some one to help us. I wonder if John Brown Senior can handle it." "Don't see why he couldn't," and the two men strode over to the Council House to interview Brown.

After listening to the plans of both men, Brown agreed to accept the responsibility and proceeded to go to Fort Tejon to secure the American Flag from the platoon stationed there. On his return a platform was built of logs, and a huge pole was made from an arm of a large cedar-pine tree. Extensive preparations were made, and soon everyone was prepared to celebrate the first Fourth of July in the settlement of San Bernardino.

The Mormons soon discovered a controversy in which they were playing a prominent part. The Gentiles were arriving! Because these newcomers did not understand the religion of the Mormons, considerable hard feeling grew out of the existing conditions.

"We must curtail these people's feelings at once!" said Rich. "We cannot let our lives and their lives become a disagreeable affair, while we are all together. We must live in harmony." "There is Ambrose Hunt, Brother Charles," said Amasa Lyman. "Why cannot we have Hunt buy from us some of our land? It seems to be the only solution for this disturbance." "I don't think the elders will allow it, but it will do no harm to ask them."

The feeling between the two parties had now become so strong a small battle raged, but with no casualties. Jerome Benson, once an active member of the Mormons, left the church and decided to attend to some of the affairs of the other side. He was said to be the direct cause of the miniature uprising between the Mormons and the Independents. However, a fort was built southeast of the town and named after him.

The character of the Mormons, who were largely responsible for the laying out of the city and the county, was peaceful, industrious, sincere and earnest, and they were loyal to their beliefs. Their hearty co-operation with every undertaking was in strong contrast to the attitude of the shiftless and prejudiced people. In the six years they had been living in the settlement, prior to their recall to Salt Lake, they had constructed two schoolrooms, the Council House, several store buildings, a flourmill, three sawmills, irrigation ditches and good dirt roads, and had developed domestic water. They had brought a large portion of the 36,000 acres under cultivation. Lyman and Rich worked hard, and were successful in establishing a pony route and stageline between San Bernardino and Los Angeles. The Mormons proved that small farms were profitable, and the Gentiles soon became convinced that the Mormons had paved the way for something that was soon to develop into a new territory.

Jefferson Hunt has been called the pioneer of the Mormon settlement and the father of San Bernardino County. He was captain of the Mormon battalion, and had made two trips from Salt Lake to Southern California. It was he who guided the Mormon colonists into the valley and gave worthwhile advice to Lyman and Rich in their construction of the colony. He took a very prominent part in the building of the fort and was the leader of their military organization. Under his capable direction the road through Waterman Canyon to the timber district was constructed, and he was the owner of the first sawmill. Soon after his arrival in the valley, Hunt was successful in securing a contract from the county to carry mail from Los Angeles to

"THE OLD RANCHER" BRINGS EARLY-DAY THRILLS INTO CALIFORNIA HOMES.

Of particular interest to all Native Sons and Daughters is the new series of radio programs, "Historical Southern California," being presented by the Pacific Electric Railway and Motor Transit Stages of Los Angeles. These programs, formerly broadcast at 6:45 p.m. Thursdays and 7:30 p. m. Sundays, are now presented Tuesdays and Fridays from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

"Historical Southern California" consists of dramatic re-enactments, in music and story, of the most exciting and important episodes in the history of Southern California. Actual occurrences are used as the basis for the dramas, so that in everything except actual dialogue, of which there remains no record, the episodes are entirely accurate historically. Dialogue is written by Dick Creedon.

"THE OLD RANCHER."

To set the stage for the action and provide transition from scene to scene, the stories are presented as reminiscences of "The Old Rancher," a role played by Harold DeBray, a native of Monrovia, California, who knows and loves the southland and its romantic history. It is said that in all his years of stage experience, DeBray has never played a role for which he was more ideally suited than "The Old Rancher."

The endeavor of the sponsors is to combine genuine entertainment with historical value. Among the subjects already treated are the founding of Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Bernardino, the landing of Joseph Chapman, the first California gold discovery (in Placerita Canyon), the Warner vs. Chapo legal case, the Irving affair, and others. Whenever a story is logically connected with a present-day community, either through geographical locale or subject matter, the broadcast is dedicated to that city.

Programs are under the joint direction of Paul Rickenbacker and Seymour Hastings, representing the sponsors. The entire KHJ staff is employed, including Raymond Paige and his orchestra, Elvia Allman, Vera Van, George Gramlich, Robert Swan, Charles Forsythe, Lindsay McHarrie and other artists as required. The sponsors of the programs welcome suggestions and constructive criticism from Native Sons and Daughters, and urge all members to tune in each Tuesday and Friday night at 8:30.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

in November 1930, of Section 1, Article XII of the California State Constitution. In other words, the repeal was not retroactive. Perhaps, therefore, some of the many millions lost by innocent investors may be recovered.

Here's good news: An announcement of the Federal Labor Department women's bureau says married women are not employed as new teachers in 77 percent of 1,500 American city school systems. All of California's cities should be included among the number.

Only 37 percent of the cities permit single-women teachers to continue teaching after marriage, while more than one-half of the remaining 63 percent require the teachers to resign at once if they marry. Get the married women with able-bodied husbands out of the schools and other endeavors and there will be fewer childless homes, fewer delinquent minors and fewer divorces.

Declaring "concentrated wealth" has resulted from "control of government" exercised by the nation's richest men, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania declared in a recent Cleveland, Ohio, address that he has faith that the American people, "who have the power to set things right but do not use it," are getting ready to act.

They should waste no more valuable time getting ready, but act now!

In the United States Senate last month, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho gave figures showing that Great Britain's armament outlay last year was $678,000,000, France's $517,000,000 and Italy's $348,000,000. "From these," he declared, "it is plain that Europe is more completely armed than she has been at any time since the armistice with Germany was signed." And yet, a moratorium on behalf of those countries was forced through the Federal Congress by the national administration—at the expense, as usual, of the American taxpayers.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, speaking on the budget, made reference to that moratorium and read a recent statement by a New York financier,—one of the "big boys"—advocating cancellation of those foreign governments' debts to this nation in order that their debts to private interests here might be paid. Senator Johnson said:

"Talk of the terrific fix we are in! Tell us we cannot balance the budget! And then in the very beginning of the year, when the thing is obvious and known, give $250,000,000 to Europe that is paid to international bankers on short-term credit. And get ready, as I believe those who are in control of us are getting ready, to give another moratorium of $275,000,000 in the middle of this year,—$520,000,000 in all. April 5, Britain paid $200,000,000 on the big loan received previously from American bankers. It was repaid before it came due. Repaid to whom? Why, repaid of course to our masters, [a nationally known banking concern]. What we forget in all this talk of debt cancellation and reduction is that every penny lost in the process has to be made up by American taxpayers. Every dollar of it. Remember that!"

According to a report of the state controller, the bonded debt of the state, the county and the municipal governments of California totaled, at the close of the June 30, 1931, fiscal year, $876,278,331—$154.35 percapita. This is an increase over the previous fiscal year of $35,971,965. During the past ten years, while property values have increased but 89 percent, the bonded debt has advanced 172 percent.

It is about time the people of California stopped mortgaging the state's future! Any and every bond proposition submitted should be swatted by the taxpayers, until complete recovery from the spending orgy promoted by interests which wax rich from bond issues.

Big financial institutions apparently are using the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act to take money from the Federal Treasury to pay off their own loans, declared United States Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas in a radio broadcast April 5. "It seems to me," he said, "that the Congress has been deceived and the country has been betrayed by powerful banking interests working through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation." His suspicions are probably well founded, for the "powerful banking interests" have had much experience along those lines.

Senator Capper referred particularly to the "loan" made the Missouri Pacific railroad, and continued: "The Reconstruction Finance Corporation reached into the Federal Treasury and gave these [three financial institutions which he named] banking firms dollars worth at least 30 percent more in purchasing power than the dollars they had lent the Missouri Pacific in the first place. This in addition to the interest they received on the loans."

From February 2 to April 19 the Reconstruction Finance Corporation authorized loans aggregating $370,437,802 to 1,757 institutions; in the same period, repayments totaled $11,384,263. The Corporation is authorized to loan $2,000,000,000—of The People's money. As security, it accepts the paper of the borrowers, mostly "big financial institutions." What percentage of the loans will be repaid, dollar for dollar, in coin of the realm? Is the way being paved for yet another moratorium, distant from three to five years, to further relieve the masters, the international bankers, and further distress the slaves, the common people?

BOOK REVIEWS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

"THE VISIT OF THE 'RURIK' TO SAN FRANCISCO IN 1816."

By August C. Mahr; Stanford University Press, Publisher, Stanford University, California; Price, $1.50 Paper, $2.00 Cloth.

This highly interesting publication deals with the visit of the little Russian brig, "Rurik," in the Bay of San Francisco, from October 2 to November 1 of 1816. The vessel was in command of Lieutenant Otto von Kotzebue, and Adelbert von Chamisso, familiar to the lover of German romantic literature and to the student of botanical taxonomy, was the "naturalist of the expedition." The voyage of the "Rurik" was a scientific expedition with the double purpose of exploring certain parts of the South Sea and of investigating the possibility of a northeast passage through Bering Strait into the Arctic Sea and thence into the Atlantic.

Author Mahr, professor of German at the Ohio State University, aptly describes the work: "This book is intended for everybody interested in the past of California in general and that of the city of San Francisco in particular. The reader will find it to be a collective travel-diary, containing the impressions which a group of intelligent travelers received from a visit to the Spanish mission and military post of San Francisco in the year 1816. Moreover, it embodies the results of their scientific investigation of the region visited and includes the various documents which their Spanish hosts considered advisable to file in the California archives with regard to the foreign guests. In order to facilitate the use of the book, a new English translation or a previously printed one has been added to each contribution originally written in German, French, Spanish, or Latin."

The volume has several most valuable illustrations, reproductions from the lithographs made for Louis Choris' "Voyage Pittoresque Autour du Monde," Paris, 1822. The frontispiece, "Eschscholtzia Californica," is a reproduction of the first picture ever drawn of a California poppy; the original accompanied Chamisso's first description of that flower in "Horae Physicae Berolinenses," Bonnae, 1820. Then there is a "View of the Presidio of San Francisco in 1816," and also a drawing of "Ursus Griseus," the grizzly bear of North America.

"THE MISSION OF SAN ANTONIO DE PADUA"

By Frances Rand Smith; Stanford University Press, Publisher, Stanford University, California; Price $3.50.

San Antonio de Padua, near Jolon, Monterey County, is the third oldest in the chain of California's Franciscan missions; it was founded July 14, 1771. The book reviews early explorations in the region, the establishment of the mission, its change of location and its subsequent history. For the first time, the mission's distinctive type of architecture and its system of irrigation are analyzed. The legend of an Indian woman, Agueda, is also presented. The book is extensively illustrated.

THE ROMANCE

Salt Lake, and this soon led to other important mail contracts throughout the state.

Captain Hunt was born in Kentucky in 1805 and was married to Miss Celia Mount in 1853. Both were baptised into the Mormon church soon after their marriage. When the Mormon battalion was organized, Hunt and his two sons, Gilbert and Marshall, were among the first to enlist and they soon became active in military activities in the Mormon city. This led them to the rancho of San Bernardino, and soon afterward they bought much stock and land from the Lugos.

Captain Jefferson Hunt was a man of strong character and very sincere in his beliefs. He was fitted to be a leader, because of his level-headedness, clear-sightedness and strong will. He filled a large place in the early and the late history of San Bernardino. He died at Oxford, Idaho, in the spring of 1866. Mrs. Hunt survived him, but passed away in 1897 at the home of her daughter. Captain Hunt had eleven children. Eighty-nine grandchildren, one hundred forty-nine great-grandchildren and seventy-nine great-great-grandchildren are his descendants.

It was through Captain Jefferson Hunt's civic activities and pride in the valley that wagon trains from the other states were attracted, and it was through his efforts that San Bernardino had its streets named after the Pioneers and the mother Mormon city. The foundation of the city, laid by him, is a solid one.

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1860.)

MRS. LEUTITIA LARISSA KILGORE-Beckley, native of Iowa, 83; with her parents crossed the plains to California in 1850 and practically ever since had resided in Colusa County; died at Grimes, survived by three sons.

Mrs. Priscilla Hale-Pendegast, native of Missouri, 82; with her parents, the late Jesse and Sarah A. Clark, crossed the plains in 1852; died at Los Angeles City, her home for thirty-seven years, survived by two sons, Lyle (Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W.) and Ernest Pendegast.

Mrs. Sarah Jane Theobald-Macy, native of Missouri, 83; crossed the plains in 1852 and settled in Sacramento County; died at Sacramento City, survived by four children.

Charles Harris, native of Illinois, 83; came in 1852; died at San Francisco. He was an old-time printer, and for several years published the "Mariposa Gazette" and the "Merced Weekly Star."

Mrs. Lucy Poor-Hoxsie, native of Ohio, 85; came in 1852 and settled in Sacramento County; died at Mormon Island, survived by two sons.

Mrs. Mary Jane Cravens, native of New York; crossed the plains in 1852 and settled in Placer County; died at Sacramento City, survived by a daughter.

Joseph Marion Moore, native of Arkansas, 80; crossed the plains in 1853 and long resided in Butte County; died at Magalia, survived by a wife and six children.

Mrs. Emma Harris-Dill, native of Wisconsin, 81; crossed the plains in 1853 and resided in El Dorado and San Joaquin Counties; died near Clements, survived by six children.

Mrs. Edna Ladd-Kingsley, native of New York, 89; came across the plains in 1853; died at San Francisco, survived by four children. Her father, the late Harvey C. Ladd, built in 1855 the Point Loma lighthouse, off San Diego.

Mrs. Margaret Chandler, born in 1854 while her parents were enroute across the plains, died at San Diego City; she long resided in Humboldt and San Mateo Counties.

Junior Baker Booth, 89; came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1854 and long resided in Stanislaus and Tuolumne Counties; died at Uplands, San Bernardino County, survived by five children.

Mrs. Mary McGhee-Lessley, born in 1854 while her parents were enroute across the plains, died at Oakland, Alameda County; eleven children survive. She resided many years in Amador County.

Mrs. Hannah Young-Larson, native of Maine, 100; came via Cape Horn in 1858; died at Santa Cruz City, survived by six children.

Albert J. Look, native of Michigan, 83; came in 1857 and for a half-century resided in Humboldt County; died at Bell, Los Angeles County, survived by four children.

Allen A. Curtis, native of Iowa, 78; came in 1857; died at Thompson Flat, Butte County, survived by four children.

Mrs. Margaret Fortna-Hicok, native of Missouri, 73; as a three-months-old babe came via the Isthmus of Panama in 1859; died at Colusa City, survived by two children.

James McGlynn, native of Ireland, 91; came in 1858; died at San Jose, Santa Clara County, survived by a wife and eight children.

George E. Lewis, native of Kentucky, 75; came across the plains in 1859 and resided for some time in Yuba County; died at Lompoc, Santa Barbara County, survived by a wife and five children.

John Holt, native of England, 93; came in 1858 and settled in Placer County; died at Roseville.

William Jaspar Ford, native of Missouri, 90, came in 1859; died at San Leandro, Alameda County, survived by a wife and six children. He long resided in Yolo and Colusa Counties.

Fred N. Beal, native of Massachusetts, 74, since 1859 a resident of Calaveras County; died at Paloma, survived by a wife and a daughter.

ding. The latter paid a most eloquent tribute to his friend, Past Grand Monahan, and sang the praises of Nicasio, the geographical center of Marin County, and Nicasio No. 183, "the wealthiest Parlor, percapita, of any in the Order."

Looking Ahead.

Sacramento That Sacramento No. 3 may be well represented at Admission Day, September 9, celebrations, a uniform committee was named to devise ways and means of providing funds to assist in outfitting the members. The first effort of the committee Lew Wallace (chairman), E. Beall, A. Nicolosi, J. Major, J. Fitzhenry, H. Drennon, R. Cothrin, J. Longshore and F. Didion—was a dance April 22 at Native Sons Auditorium. A nine-piece orchestra provided "hot music to drive dull care away."

Past Presidents Active.

Oakland—Several members of East Bay Counties Assembly No. 3 Past Presidents, headed by Governor F. H. Robson, journeyed April 16 to Sonoma to participate in the joint meeting of the Sonoma and the Marin Counties Assemblies. A large delegation, headed by Governor Louis Erb, was also present from San Francisco Assembly No. 1, whose officers exemplified the ritual for the benefit of a class of candidates. A tasty repast was served by Sonoma Assembly, and at the invitation of Toastmaster Erb addresses were made by Grand Trustee Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., Harmon D. Skillin, J. Hartley Russell, Charles H. Spengemann, Director General J. F. Stanley and Past Governor General Virgil Orengo.

East Bay initiated several candidates March 28, and another large class will be presented June 23. A class initiation is being arranged for among the Parlors of Contra Costa County, which is in the jurisdiction of Assembly No. 3

Many Visitors.

Ukiah—Grand Trustee John M. Burnett paid an official visit to Ukiah No. 71, April 1. Past Grand President Thomas Monahan and several members of Santa Rosa No. 28 and Broderick No. 117 (Point Arena) were also visitors. One candidate was initiated, and at the conclusion of the meeting a banquet was served, and several enthusiastic addresses were delivered.

Chief Justice Weds.

Berkeley—Mrs. Lucile M. Scoonover and Chief Justice William H. Waste of the California Supreme Court, affiliated with Berkeley No. 210, were wedded April 16. Following a honeymoon auto tour of the southland they will reside here.

SARAH SCOTT.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom, to call from this earthly sphere our beloved sister, Sarah Scott; and whereas, Sister Sarah Scott was a charter member of Sterling Parlor No. 146, N.D.G.W., it is imminently fitting that we should place on record our heartfelt sympathy for her bereaved family, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Sterling Parlor No. 146 extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy in this, their hour of sorrow, and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor that a copy be sent to the family of our departed sister, and that a copy be forwarded to The Grizzly Bear.

Yours in P.D.F.A.,

VERA LAEDERICH
ETHEL SCHMALHOLZ,

ELIZABETH HILLARD DUNN.

To the Officers and Members of Plumas Pioneer Parlor No. 219 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of love and respect in memory of our departed sister, do submit the following:

Once again we bow to the will of Almighty God, who has seen fit to claim His own from amongst our membership and taken to His heavenly home our esteemed sister, pioneer and highly respected citizen of Plumas County, Elizabeth Hillard Dunn; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the sympathy of the Parlor be extended to the bereaved family and our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days; and a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor.

EDITH M. BERNARD.

To the Officers and Members of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 Native Daughters of the Golden West: Again, the Angel of Death has entered the portals of our Parlor and our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our beloved sister, Edith M. Bernard.

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our deepest sympathy. It is our earnest prayer that God in His mercy assuage their deep grief and send peace to their hearts, for She is not dead to those who love her, not lost, but gone before. She lives with us in memory, and will forever more. We shall hold in fond memory her cheerful smile, her loving ways and always helping hand. Be it further resolved, that our charter be draped for thirty days and a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes and a copy sent to the bereaved family and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted in Friendship, Loyalty and Charity

MOTHER PARLOR COMMEMORATES FOUNDING OF THE N.D.G.W. ORDER

(EMMA BOARMAN WRIGHT, Recording Secretary Ursula No. 1.)

JACKSON (AMADOR COUNTY)—THE AFternoon of April 12, Ursula Parlor No. 1 N.D.G.W. with impressive ceremonies unveiled and dedicated a bronze plaque at the Dayton building on Main street, Jackson, to commemorate the founding of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West on that spot, September 11, 1886.

On that day, almost forty-five years ago, twenty-four California-born young ladies assembled in the reading-room of the Old Pioneer Hall in the basement of this building, in response to a call issued by Miss Lilly O. Reichling. When Miss Reichling revealed the object of the meeting, her purpose met an enthusiastic response, and thirteen of the young women signed the memorandum which dedicated their efforts to the task before them. This precious document is now preserved by Ursula Parlor in safe-deposit, and is the original protocol of association of the Order.

The commemorative ceremonies were in charge of a committee consisting of the resident charter members of Ursula Parlor, and elaborate preparations were made. Consent of Howard Dayton, the owner of the building, had been eagerly given, and the bronze tablet, cast by L. de Rome of Oakland, was in place and draped with the American Flag. Traffic was suspended during the hours of the ceremony, and a large assembly gathered to hear the exercises. Distinguished visitors present included Mrs. Lilly O. Reichling-Dyer, the Founder; Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Vice-president Anna Mixon-Armstrong, Past Grand Presidents Estelle M. Evans, Esther Sullivan, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Mary E. Bell and Ella E. Caminetti, Grand Trustees Gladys Noce and Edna Briggs. Letters and telegrams of regret were received from all other grand officers, and from the grand officers of the Native Sons.

The ceremonies opened with selections by the Ladies' Band of Jackson, after which Miss Margaret Molfino, president of Ursula Parlor, welcomed the assemblage and introduced the chairman of the day, Mrs. Emma Boarman Wright, a charter member of the Mother Parlor, and supervising district deputy grand president. Mrs. Wright spoke briefly of the first historic gathering in the little basement-room, and of the momentous outcome of that meeting; of the great Order which sprung from that small beginning, and of the magnificent accomplishments of the Order. In happy phrases she welcomed and introduced the speakers on the program, rendering tribute to each, in order.

THE BRONZE PLAQUE.
—Pierce Photo, Jackson.

Andrew Perovich of Excelsior Parlor No. 31 N.S.G.W. on behalf of that Order expressed the sympathetic appreciation of the Native Sons, praised the worthy service of commemorative marking, and proffered the co-operation of that organization in every effort to preserve and mark the historic spots of our commonwealth.

The tablet then was dedicated by Mrs. Henrietta O'Neill, a charter member of Ursula Parlor, in a highly impressive and dramatic address. At the conclusion of her remarks, she stepped to the tablet and, assisted by the Worthy Founder, Mrs. Dyer, drew aside the emblem that veiled the plaque.

The Founder then briefly sketched the events of that historic day in September 1886, and told some of the events and impulses that led up to the meeting, the problems that confronted the little group of pioneering women, and the trials and vicissitudes of their early struggles. Music by the Ladies' Band, "Auld Lang Syne" by the audience, and a brief introduction of the notable guests assembled closed this very interesting and noteworthy observance.

CHARTER MEMBERS THE MOTHER PARLOR.

Mrs. Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand President, reviewed the civic work of the Order, and spoke of its many projects; she extended her congratulations to Ursula Parlor upon its commemoration of this historic event in the Order's life. "Dreaming" was rendered by a trio consisting of Mrs. Henrietta Eudey, Mrs. Leah Peters and Miss Frances Schacht, with Mrs. Alex. Gibson at the piano.

Mrs. Gladys Noce, Grand Trustee, offered a moving tribute to the Worthy Founder, Mrs. Lilly O. Reichling-Dyer, whose inspired genius has set a light to guide the feet of thousands along the path of service. Mrs. Estelle M. Evans, Past Grand President, sang "Trees," accompanied by Miss Frances Schacht at the piano. Mrs. Evans' effort was highly appreciated, and she responded to an encore.

A facsimile of the tablet is shown in the accompanying illustration. Here is shown the full charter-roll of the Mother Parlor,—the thirty-three original members of the Order.

Of the thirteen original signers September 11, 1886, seven are still members of the Order, and all of these were present at the dedicatory ceremonies. Two others are still living, but no longer are members of the Order. One of these, Miss Margaret Stasal, was also present at this re-union; the other, Mrs. Ellen Boarman Harrington of Berkeley, was not able to be present.

In addition to the thirteen original signatories, twenty others signed the roster prior to the closing of the charter, October 29, 1886. Of these only four remain who are members of the Order, and two of these, Past Grand President Ella E. Caminetti and Miss Mellie Peck, were present at the meeting.

Out of the total charter list of thirty-three, eleven are still living and affiliated with the Order; all of these were present at Jackson April 12, with the exception of two. Eleven charter members have passed away, and eleven have severed their relations with the Order.

This enumeration is of great historic importance, for these charter members of Ursula Parlor No. 1 will ever stand as the pioneers of this great Order. The listing is of additional importance from the fact that, in all probability, never again will so large a number of the charter-roll be assembled together in reunion.

Of the eleven charter members who still survive and retain their membership in the Order, the nine here named were present and appear in the photo accompanying this narrative. They are: Lilly O. R. Dyer, the Founder; Rose Stasal Nellie Fontenrose, Emma Boarman Wright, Hettie G. O'Neill, Flora Podesta, Rose G. Carley, Ella E. Caminetti, Past Grand President, and Mellie Peek. The two who were absent are Mary Folger Bowers of Retsil, Wash., and Annie Fullen Magee of Mare Island. The photo also shows Miss Margaret Stasal, the first recording secretary of Ursula Parlor; Miss Stasal is no longer affiliated with the Order.

In Memoriam

EMMA RAMOS.
Initiated July 6, 1913; died March 25, 1932.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Emma Ramos submit the following:

Again the Angel of Death has entered our Parlor, and taken from our midst our beloved sister, Emma Ramos. We tenderly condole with her bereaved family in this, their hour of trial and affliction, and commend them for consolation to Him who doeth all things well. Let us not think of her as dead, but of having preceded us to that golden shore where she now dwells as one of the daughters of that better land, and where she waits to welcome us as we, too, pass through that golden gate. By her death her family has been deprived of a loving and devoted mother and Encinal Parlor No. 156 N.D.G.W. a sister whose noble character and kind disposition endeared her to all.

Resolved, That our deep sympathy be extended to her sorrowing family; may God bless those near and dear to her. Furthermore, be it resolved, that a page of our records be dedicated to her memory, that our charter be draped for thirty days, and that this tribute of affection to her memory be sent to the bereaved family and a copy to The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

Sincerely and fraternally, in P.D.F.A.,
IRENE ROSE,
MARTHA E. DUNLEAVY,
LAURA E. FISHER,
Committee.

Near Orland, Glenn County, the home of Briggs Flack was destroyed by fire May 17. His wife, her 12-year-old sister and a baby were fatally burned.

The town of Willows, Glenn County, excepting two fireproof buildings, went up in smoke May 30. The estimated loss was $300,000.

The overland stage from Oregon State was stopped May 24 fourteen miles north of Redding, Shasta County, by robbers who took the express box but did not disturb the passengers.

The stage for Chico, Butte County, was held up at Deadman Hill by two men and a boy, all masked. The three passengers were relieved of their money and jewelry.

Mrs. French and her two children, in a buggy, were May 8 crossing the San Joaquin River via ferryboat at Grayson. The horses backed the buggy off the ferry and all were drowned.

Mrs. A. D. Kemp, while visiting a soapstone mine near Hollister, San Benito County, was waved upon and killed May 8.

Matches in the pocket of Robert Pringle, an Oakland, Alameda County, lad, ignited and set his clothes afire, and he was fatally burned.

Twelve-year-old Edwin Stevens of Grass Valley, Nevada County, was instantly killed May 16 by the accidental discharge of a gun.

Two miners, Clendenning and Record, having no money with which to pay the toll to cross a bridge over the Yuba River near Bloomfield, attempted to swim the stream. The former was drowned.

Joseph Cullen, an oldtimer of Hollister, San Benito County, was killed May 15 by the accidental discharge of a rifle.

John R. and James G. Troy, brothers employed as pressmen in San Francisco, started home, intoxicated, May 2. They quarreled, both drew pocketknives and James was killed.

SON OF NOTED CALIFORNIA PIONEER RESTS IN NEVADA COUNTY CEMETERY.

Alphonse Sutter, son of General John A. Sutter, lies buried in the Pine Grove cemetery at Nevada City, Nevada County. His grave will be among those to be decorated by the Native Sons on Memorial Day, May 30. The "Morning Union," in a story on famous graves in the cemetery, says:

"On the western slope of the hill rests Alphonse Sutter, son of General John A. Sutter. The young man was born in Switzerland and followed his father to this state in 1856. He was appointed aide to Governor Bigler with the rank of colonel. During the maneuvers of the notorious Walker at Nicaragua, he raised a company and went south to assist. There he contracted the dreaded consumption and returned for the benefit of his health. It was a vain hope. He passed on in 1863, leaving a wife and one son.

"His grave is encircled by an iron fence and stone coping and is marked by a simple marble shaft, all due to the energy and financial aid of Hydraulic Parlor No. 56, N.S.G.W. [Nevada City], which annually pays tribute to his memory."

Frog Jump—Angels, Calaveras County, will stage its annual international Frog Jumping Classic, May 14 and 15.

Medico Meet—The California Medical Association will have its annual convention May 2-5 at Pasadena, Los Angeles County.

That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding one per cent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member must be given.)

The Grizzly Bear Publishing Co., a Corporation, is the owner. 1259 shares of the 7500 authorized shares of stock have been sold. Names all stockholders, and amount stock held by each, attached hereto.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

None

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company, but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bonafide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stocks, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is————(This information is required from daily publications only.)

N.D.G.W. HIGHLY COMMENDED FOR VETERAN WELFARE ENDEAVOR.

Past Grand President Stella Finkeldey, chairman Grand Parlor N.D.G.W. Veterans Welfare Committee, received the following letters, which testify to the splendid work being done by the Native Daughters:

We wish to thank you for the twenty packages of razor blades which we received March 1. The gift will be greatly appreciated by the patients here, as it is something that is a constant necessity.—MRS. LAURA MACMILLAN, Field Director U. S. Marine Hospital, Mare Island."

"We received your letter of March 19, and are pleased to know that you have so generously put in an order for candy for this hospital at Easter time. The patients will greatly enjoy this treat.—MRS. LAURA MACMILLAN, Field Director U. S. Marine Hospital, Mare Island."

"Could you have seen our wards Easter morning, you would realize how much the beautiful ferns, sent by the members of your Order, meant not only to the patients but to all who saw them. The Recreation Hall also was beautified by your gift, and these lovely ferns formed its principal ornament when a picture of the room was taken on Sunday evening just after the services. These pictures were taken by order of the War Department, and we hope very much we may have one to show you on your next visit to the hospital. On behalf of the patients please accept our most sincere appreciation, and also that of Fred Barrier, who was delighted to receive the little plant you were so thoughtful to send him. You should see the pleasure he has taken in it.—MISS BERTHA C. LOVELL, Field Director, MISS WILLIE L. HATCH, Recreation Worker Letterman General Hospital U.S.A., San Francisco."

"The small candles and the 300 chocolate rabbits for our Easter tables and trays arrived in good time and in good condition. The amount of small candles sent was ample for nicely filling our nut cups, and the chocolate rabbits made such a nice additional tray favor. We want to express to you our sincere thanks and warm appreciation for again making possible the use of the gay little cups sent to us by the Pasadena Red Cross Juniors. The nut cups were beautifully made and in exquisite pastel shades. Our chief dietitian and her assistants asked that their thanks be included with ours as they are always more than delighted at being able to give such a festive, decorative touch to their tables and trays. We want you to know that we truly appreciate your remembrance of us at the different holiday seasons. With best of wishes to you and to the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, (MISS) FRANCES MAYNARD, Senior Recreational Aide Veterans Administration, Whipple, Arizona."

"Your card of March 25 and the box arrived the same day, that is, last Saturday. This is certainly a wonderful shipment of socks; and even more coming. The Native Daughters of the Golden West are indeed kind to us, and you may be sure the patients are going to be given much pleasure and comfort from the warmth these lovely socks will provide. The light weight style is very popular with them this time of year and during the fall. In behalf of our hospitalized veterans, the hospital administration wishes to extend to the Native Daughters of the Golden West our sincere thanks for the socks and to express our appreciation of the deep interest which your organization takes in the welfare of our sick people.—(MISS) IRMA ANDERSON, Senior Recreational Aide Veterans Administration Hospital, Livermore, California."

They filled the various stations and also served a collation, including a beautifully decorated birthday cake. A program was presented by Pearl Simpson, Evelyn Wurzell, Irma A. Heilbron, Martha Klindt and Ann Wood. Gifts were presented Supervising Deputy Ann Wood and President Sarah Miller. The second of a series of three card parties was held April 27.

Members of San Diego's past presidents club were entertained by Ann Wood and Martha Klindt at the former's Imperial Beach cottage. A dozen appetites, sharpened by the drive around the bay, did full justice to a delicious and bountiful italian dinner. The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. Sofia Sharpe.

Shower for Bride.

Oakland –A surprise bridal shower was given by Aloha No. 106 April 5 in honor of District Deputy Mildred Brandt-Erwin, and she received many lovely gifts. Refreshments were served. A very successful whist party was held at the home of Past President Jennie Peterson.

The social committee, under the chairmanship of Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, is actively planning for the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to the Parlor, May 24. Educational week and the birthday of Oakland will be observed at one of the first meetings in May.

Twelve Initiated.

Modesto—The initiation of twelve candidates by Morada No. 199 April 13 was witnessed by a large assemblage. President Eleanor Lewis presided. The hall, decorated with spring flowers by Pearl Gordon and a committee, resembled a real flower garden. Refreshments, in charge of Emma Smith, were served at tables decorated in pastel shades. Among those in attendance were Supervising Deputy Irene Kopf, Effie Prothero and May Givens. Jointly with Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W., the Parlor had a public whist party April 20. Dancing followed the play and refreshments were served.

A party for those members of Morada whose birthdays come in January, February and March was held March 24. Games were played and refreshments, including a large cake lighted with green candles, were served. A gift was presented each guest.

District Meeting To Be Held.

Napa—Eschol No. 16 entertained twenty-five members of La Junta No. 203 (Saint Helena) April 11. Games were played, and a banquet was served under the supervision of Caroline Boggs. A district meeting is to be held at Saint Helena May 14, with Napa, Lake and Solano Counties Parlors participating. Supervising Deputy Elvena Woodard is in charge.

Card Party.

Crockett—Carquinez No. 234 had a card party April 6 at which several tables of whist and bridge were in operation. The Parlor will give other parties every two or three months.

Mission Sesquicentennial—Ventura City celebrated April 3 the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding, March 31, 1782, of the Mission San Buenaventura.

Women's Gathering—The California Federation of Women's Clubs will meet in annual convention at Los Angeles City, May 4-6.

Fiesta—San Jose, Santa Clara County, will have its annual Fiesta de las Roses, May 19-21.

THE GRIZZLY BEAR

A BIT O' FARMING and GARDENING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

WITH THE FEDERAL FARM BOARD, the University of California through its Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics, and the State Department of Agriculture all co-operating in an effort to solve the marketing problem for the farmers of the state, some progress should be made. Indeed, it is but fair to say that some progress already has been made and that indications point to better conditions in the distribution and sale of the specialty crops of California.

There is heard, still, the demand that the farmer be given a price for his produce that will pay costs of production plus a fair margin of profit. Much as this is to be desired, it is impossible of attainment, as often has been pointed out by those who have made a real study of the situation. People will pay just so much for foodstuffs of a certain kind; when the price gets beyond what they are willing to pay, they will substitute something else, even though it be less desirable. The solution of the problem is not in an attempt of this kind. Rather, it is in the production and distribution, together with an efficient sales organization.

Production must be curtailed to the point where the product can be marketed at a profit, or new markets must be opened up and old ones stimulated to take greater supplies. Even then, only what the consumers will take at a price fair to the farmer can be produced on an economically sound basis. Curtailment of production, particularly in tree crops, is in the hands of the producer. He does not have to pull out orchards, necessarily; he can thin down the crop on the trees. This, of course, will take the concerted action of every farmer, not a few. But the problem of the farmers cannot be solved until they are a unit in any action they may take. Nothing less than full co-operation can satisfactorily save the situation. Such action will succeed where legislation has failed; its weakness is the weakness of human nature, the greed of some individuals to profit at the expense of others.

BUDDING AND GRAFTING WALNUTS.

Whether it is best to graft or to bud walnuts will not be settled here. If the owner desires to start work now, he may do so by budding at almost any time during the summer, and then grafting in the spring where the buds do not take. In budding now use dormant buds taken from mature trees where they have failed to push out early, or from cold-storage scions cut last winter.

FOR BETTER ROSES.

The rose bush likes a soil rich in humus and nitrogen. So see that the soil is built up the year round. These means, combined, would make an almost ideal combination: manure in the fall, bone meal in the winter, wood ashes at either time, and a good commercial fertilizer in the spring. Incidentally, don't wet the foliage of roses in the late afternoon or evening unless additional trouble, from mildew, is desired. If mildew appears, either dusting with finely ground sulphur, or spraying with the proper oil emulsion, will control it. The oil also will control the aphis.

BERRY THINNING OF GRAPES.

Thinning grapes on the vine is a subject too long to be intelligently discussed here, but it is a practice that under the right conditions will pay big results to the vineyardist. The thinning is done by snipping out clusters here and there from the bunch. Usually the yield in pounds is greater and the quality better.

FLOWERS TO PLANT IN MAY.

There are dozens of flowers that may be started this month, and while many of them are kinds that the ordinary gardener does not know, there are plenty of the old reliables that should be remembered this month. In no other state, it is safe to say, is such diversity of blossom possible as in California.

GROWING THE HYDRANGEA.

One evergreen shrub that is popular in California is the hydrangea, which thrives everywhere it is given protection from the too-hot sun, and where it gets plenty of moisture. One thing that tends to its popularity, aside from the beauty of the shrub and its masses of blossom, is that there are no serious pests or diseases to attack it. The hydrangea asks little but shade and water. The difference in color of the blossoms is caused by the condition of the soil. An acid soil usually gives blue flowers where an alkaline soil will give pink, from the same variety.

CARROTS EASY TO GROW.

Since the value of vegetables in the diet has become an important topic, no one vegetable has grown more in popularity than the carrot, palatable and easy to grow. Carrots may be obtained from the garden in most parts of the state at any time of the year. The soil should be well pulverized before the seed is planted, and if there is a tendency to crust, the surface should be kept damp so that the plants may come through.

GARDEN CULTIVATION.

Cultivation in the garden has two primary purposes: to keep the weeds down and to preserve the surface of the soil from baking and cracking. Further than this, there is no need for cultivation; constant stirring of the soil does no good; indeed, by turning the soil over and exposing to the sun, it may be damaged. Weeds rob the soil of moisture and plant food; kill them while they are small.

In irrigating the garden, it is better to water along the rows by running furrows than to use overhead sprinkling. Many foliage diseases result from the wetting of the leaves of the plants; often these can be avoided by furrow irrigation. Irrigation should not be frequent, but it should be thorough.

WRY NECK IN HENS.

Lack of exercise and eating of over-stimulating feeds may result in wry neck of hens. This is manifested by the hens holding their heads back and looking up. When the trouble appears, feed a mash with a large proportion of bran, and plenty of greens. Epsom salts, one pound to 125 hens, also will help. Those affected may well be taken from the flock and given a teaspoonful of castor oil each. Sometimes wry neck is a chronic stage of coccidiosis. In this event, use the same control, and feed plenty of milk, either dry or liquid.

WATCH THE WEEDS.

Weeds are water wasters. While it is true there is some water taken from the soil by evaporation, most of it goes out through the leaves or plants by transpiration. Consequently, every weed that grows in the field or orchard or garden is wasting water that in irrigated districts costs money. Be sure that cultivation is frequent and thorough enough to kill the weeds. Cultivation beyond that point is a waste of time.

PRUNING FOR EARLY CANTALOUPES.

While it is a practice not generally followed, the pinching back of cantaloupe vines when they are five or six joints in length is held by many growers to force early production. Pinch the tips or cut them off at this stage and the melons will be from a week to ten days earlier, is the claim made by those who have tried this plan. If the melons were not fed with a well-rotted manure fertilizer before planting, it will be a good thing to give them a side dressing of complete fertilizer, about 5-10-5. Soak it in with the irrigation water; how much good it will do will depend upon the fertility of the soil. Melons are strong feeders and need to be given added plant food in most soils.

FEEDING THE WEANED COLT.

A colt after leaving its mother's side should be given feed rich in protein, calcium and phosphorus. Good pasture is the main thing, preferably blue grass if it is available. For concentrates use wheat bran, cottonseed meal, soybeans and cowpeas—all rich in protein. Alfalfa and barley will do, but oats are better. Milk is not necessary, once the colt has been weaned. Most important of all, however, is the pasture, nature's own feed for the young and growing horse.

BIRDS IN THE GARDEN.

The only real method to prevent bird damage to garden crops, particularly while they are young, is to screen them so that the birds cannot get at them. Scarecrows and strings festooned with strips of paper or white cloth are of doubtful value. Spraying with nicotine sulphate may give good results, but this is not by any means certain. As the plants attain size, the danger from birds becomes less.

A large general committee of Veritas has outned, and submitted to the Grand President for pproval, an attractive entertainment program, nd is attending to all the many other details. azel Laverty is chairman of the general comittee, and Eugenia Kahl is the vice-chairman. he several subcommittees are headed by the ollowing: Pauline Zirker (reception), Helen rutosik (finance), Mildred Heinzen (publicity), lay F. Givens (entertainment), Zelphia Thomas decorations), Margaret Thornton (registration nd reservations), Mary Vanden Heuval (hous1g), Alma Fowler (badges), Fleurette Levy printing), Marion Pulcifer (transportation), ucille Cunningham (dance), Lena Guild punch), Sylvia Rose (refreshments).

While some additional candidates for Grand arlor offices made their intentions known dur1g April, there are several prospectives who ill not definitely declare themselves until the ubordinate Parlors choose their delegates dur1g May. Rumors are numerous about the San rancisco Bay that every office will have two or 1ore contestants. The Grizzly Bear has atempted to get the lowdown and the highup on 1e office situation, and from reliable informaon received to presstime presents this lineup:

Grand President—Grand Vice-president Anna ixon-Armstrong (Woodland No. 90) of Woodnd.

Grand Vice-president—Grand Marshal Irma V. Laird (Alturas No. 159) of Alturas.

Grand Secretary—Sallie R. Thaler (Aloha No. 06) of Oakland, incumbent.

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ (Yosemite lo. 83) of San Francisco, incumbent.

Grand Marshal—Sadie Winn-Brainard (Califia lo. 22) of Sacramento; Grand Trustee Gladys . Noce (Amapola No. 80) of Sutter Creek; lay F. Givens (Mariposa No. 63) of Cathay.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Gunther-Giannini (Orinda No. 56) of San Francisco.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Elvena Woodard (Vallejo No. 195) of Vallejo; Hazel B Hansen (Verdugo No. 240) of Glendale.

Grand Trustees (seven to be selected)—Anna Thuesen (Alta No. 3) of San Francisco, incumbent; Edna B. Briggs (La Bandera No. 110) of Sacramento, incumbent; Jane Vick (Reina del Mar No. 126) of Santa Barbara; Alice M. Lane (Castro No. 178) of San Francisco; Florence D. Boyle (Gold of Ophir No. 190) of Oroville, incumbent; Ethel S. Begley (Marinita No. 198) of San Rafael, incumbent; Willow Borba (Santa Rosa No. 217) of Sebastopol, incumbent; Florence D. Schoneman (Rudecinda No. 230) of San Pedro, incumbent.

Still, not even a whisper regarding the probable meeting-place of the 1933 Grand Parlor. The June Grizzly Bear will give all the Merced Grand Parlor news that can be gathered from dependable sources.—C.M.H.

LIFE OF NOTED CALIFORNIA PIONEER DEPICTED IN HISTORICAL PAGEANT.

Williams (Colusa County)—A pageant depicting the life of one of California's noted Pioneers, Dr. Robert B. Semple, was featured here April 22. His remains are interred in the local cemetery, and above the grave is a moss-covered marble slab inscribed "Robert Semple, died October 25, 1854, aged 48 years, 8 months, 22 days." The proceeds of the pageant will be used to mark his grave with a bronze monument.

Dr. Semple, a native of Kentucky, arrived at Sutter Fort (Sacramento) Christmas Day of 1845. He was a member of the Bear Flag Party which, June 14, 1846, raised the California Republic Flag at Sonoma. At Monterey, August 15, 1846, he issued the state's first newspaper, "The Californian," which in May 1847 was moved to Yerba Buena (San Francisco) and later sold to the "California Star." In 1847 he located the site of the present City of Colusa.

He also laid out the present City of Benicia, Solano County, and constructed and operated the first ferry across Carquinez Straits. He also organized the state's first mail service; April 19, 1849, two soldiers on horseback left San Francisco and San Diego, met half-way, exchanged mail sacks and returned to their starting points.

Dr. Semple was the president of California's First Constitutional Convention, which assembled at Monterey, September 1, 1849. He died at Williams, October 25, 1854.

[Dr. Semple was the father of Mrs. Mary E. Turman, affiliated with the long-since-defunct Lydia Parlor No. 15 N.D.G.W. (Colusa City), and she was the elective Past Grand President of a portion of the First and all of Second Grand Parlors, during the time that Tina L. Kane presided as Grand President.—Editor.]

dependence of "flaming youth" and stand eager and equipped to give the necessary firm but quiet handling, and are able to exert the truest moral and religious influence.

This making of a worthwhile citizen is what keeps this project of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters a sacred one, in times of war or peace, tranquillity or despondency, prosperity or depression.

CONDITION OF FINANCES.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Homeless Children Committee's financial statement for the year April 1, 1931, to March 31, 1932, gives the total operating receipts as $20,893.85, $14,127.98 of which amount came from Native Son and Native Daughter sources, $402.85 from friends, $893.90 from interest and dividends, $5,555.57 from board refunds. The year's operating expenses totaled $29,999.24. The operating deficit for the year was $9,105.39.

Bequests totaling $15,750 were received, from the estates of Senator James D. Phelan $10,000, Charles VanDamme $5,000, Max Wagner $250, Dora Washburn $500. These offset the operating deficit, and made the actual cash gain for the year $6,444.61. The Central Committee's available cash March 31, 1932, was $15,012.56.

MOTHER N.S. GRAND SECRETARY DEAD.

San Francisco—Mrs. Mary Regan, mother of John T. Regan (South San Francisco Parlor No. 157), Grand Secretary N.S.G.W., passed away March 27. She was a native of Ireland, aged 87, and had resided here since 1872.

Bret Harte Pageant—Columbia, Tuolumne County, will have its second annual Bret Harte Pageant, May 27-29.

"THE HOUNDS"

(PETER T. CONMY,
Historian Golden Gate Parlor N.S.G.W.)

THE DISCOVERY OF GOLD IN CALIfornia in 1849 gave impetus to people all over the world to migrate to the valleys and the foothills of the Sacramento and the San Joaquin and to the Sierra Nevada in search of gold. In every popular migration two classes of people are represented, the upright and the evil. The California gold rush was no exception. A great many bad people came here in 1848, 1849 and 1850—the scum of society from the underworld of Eastern cities and from ports of Europe.

The old saying, "birds of a feather flock together," is proved by the quick and startling manner in which undesirables in San Francisco in 1848 found companionship in each other. They organized under the name of "Regulators," professed to be a political organization. To further disguise their real motives, the "Regulators" called their meeting-place "Tammany Hall," which indicated a political club, such as the famous Tammany organization of New York, was being maintained. The "Regulators" were not interested in the civic welfare of the young city, however. They were banded for lawlessness and crime. In the absence of a well-organized government it was a relatively easy matter for a band of ruffians to "get by" with almost any type of illegal adventure upon which they might embark. Foreigners, especially the Spanish and the Mexicans, were made the objects of raids and maraudings of the "Regulators," who came to be known by another name which truly fit them, "The Hounds." Night after night the unfortunate foreign residents were robbed, beaten, wounded, and frequently murdered by "The Hounds."

San Francisco was not alone the sufferer, but the nearby settlements of the east bay were also attacked under the guise of protecting Americans from the foreigners. Regarding "The Hounds," Soule wrote in 1854: "To such a daring extent were matters carried that the body, proud of their strength and numbers, attempted a sort of military display, and on Sundays armed with bludgeons and loaded revolvers, paraded the streets in open daylight, with drum and fife playing and banners flying. It was in the dead of night, however, that their outrages were done. Then they would march to the tents of known Chilenos and tearing them down, rob and spoil the contents of value, and shamefully mistreat and even murder the inmates."

Things went from bad to worse. In one of their attacks a foreigner accidentally killed an innocent American whom he thought to be a "Hound." This caused "The Hounds" to do more violent wrongs than ever. June 15, 1849, they perpetrated a most savage and cruel attack in the broad daylight of a Sunday afternoon. This was the beginning of the end. The next day saw the upright men of the community seeking retribution and an end of lawlessness and strife. At the behest of Captain Bezer Simmons and Samuel Brannan, Alcalde Leavenworth called a mass meeting of citizens in Portsmouth Square. Funds were subscribed to aid the mistreated foreigners and 230 men present volunteered, and were commissioned, as special constables by the alcalde.

In anticipation of the establishment of a state government, a sheriff was elected in the person of J. J. Ellis. The wrongdoers were speedily apprehended and jailed on board the U. S. frigate "Warren," at anchor in the bay. A district attorney was elected, and also judges. A grand jury was empanelled and brought indictments against "The Hounds." The exact charges were, "conspiracy, riot, robbery, and assault with intent to kill." At the ensuing trial a verdict of guilty was returned. The leaders were sentenced to ten years in whatever prison the governor of California might select. The less-important members of the gang were given lighter sentences. However, the sentences were never executed. This was due to the absence of a state government and to the corrupt politics of the times. The desired result was achieved; that is, "The Hounds" as a factor in San Francisco life ceased to exist. The strong arm of righteousness had asserted itself. Lawlessness arose again, however, and in 1851 and in 1856 it was necessary to organize Vigilance Committees.

HISTORIC LANDMARK.

San Francisco is rich in a historic past but woefully lacking in the presence of landmarks of that past. This is due to the fact that between 1849 and 1851 some six great fires swept away various portions of the young and growing city. Most of what survived was, in turn, lost. This is due to the great fire and earthquake of 1906. In the large downtown district of the city there is hardly a structure that can be called a landmark now. The old church next door to Native Sons Building was one until replaced by the present structure. Temple Emmanuel was also a historic building until it gave way to the marvelous building known as "450 Sutter."

At California street and Grant avenue there is, however, a building standing whose walls were erected nearly eighty years ago—old St. Mary's Church. July 7, 1853, the cornerstone of that church was laid by Archbishop Alemany. It was to be the cathedral of the archdiocese of San Francisco. The interior was gutted by the 1906 fire, but was rebuilt within the original walls. As far as can be ascertained this is, therefore, the oldest structure in the downtown section of San Francisco.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

After an absence of six weeks from San Francisco, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson was greeted by more than 250 Native Daughters at her official visit to Guadalupe No. 153 March 28. Preceding the meeting a dinner was served at which the Grand President, District Deputy Katherine Keating and President Florence Pyne were honor-guests. The tables were tastefully decorated in keeping with the Easter season. Other grand officers present were Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley and Willow Borba, and Past Grand Margaret Hill. While the Grand President was being escorted to her seat of honor Kathleen Keenan sang "We Love You," and as each grand officer was being escorted she was presented with a small gift. Two candidates were initiated, and the officers exemplified the ritual in a very creditable manner; the Parlor has initiated twenty-five candidates this year.

Guadalupe takes a lively interest in all the projects of the Order, and on this occasion showed its interest in the Home by presenting the Grand President with a check for $175 toward the Loyalty Pledge. A beautiful layette, consisting of about 200 dainty articles for the homeless children, was on display. A letter from Letterman Hospital thanked the Parlor for the delightful Easter party. A token in appreciation of splendid work and long service on the veterans committee was presented Organist Carmel Parenti.

Grand President Carlson, in her usual interesting manner, delivered an inspiring address on the progress and the projects of the Order and thanked Guadalupe for the splendid reception given to her. A gift of china was presented her as a remembrance of the very happy evening. Following the meeting dainty refreshments were served. Much credit is due May Marchant and her committees who were responsible for the success of the affair.

Over 350 ere present to extend greetings, among them rand Trustees Ethel Begley, Anna Thuesen and illow Borba, Past Grands Emma Foley, Mar-ret Hill, Dr. Louise Heilbron and Mae Himes-oonan, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini d Grand Organist Lola Horgan. Two candi-ates were initiated. Christine Brougham pre-ded, and Grand President Carlson highly com-imented the officers for their splendid exempli-ation of the ritual. The San Francisco glee ub, organized by District Deputy Agnes Curry, ntertained during the evening, Grand Organist organ acting as accompanist.

NATIVE SON DOINGS.

Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 entertained April 3 in honor of its delegates to the Stockton rand Parlor. There were entertainment fea-ures and refreshments in abundance. The even-g's feature was the address of Grand Trustee Joseph J. McShane, who told of visits to the Parlors in his district. He stated that, with few exceptions, they showed strong gains, both numerically and financially, and he particularly praised the splendid example set by Calistoga No. 86.

The drum corps of Bret Harte No. 260 is making fine progress and will soon be ready for appearance in public. To provide uniform funds the Parlor sponsored a dance April 23. The horseshoe team is being led to victory by Brother Allen. The neighborhood whist games are proving popular in the Ingleside district. They are held the first Tuesday of each month in American Legion Hall.

In Memoriam

SHE HAS PASSED, BUT MEMORY LINGERS.

"It was with sad and heavy hearts, indeed, that the members of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 N.D.G.W. assembled to bid our last farewell to Sister Nellie Rader. For over thirty years Mrs. Rader has been a member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West and has ever been an inspiration of sterling womanhood to those who knew her. Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to those of her immediate family.

"And now that she has left us,
We'll miss those kindly smiles.
We'll miss that ever-welcome hand
That shortened lonely miles.
For a friendship such as her's will last.
And memory's hand will scroll
Her worth on golden pages
Of our Pioneer Honor roll.
And there's a golden gate that's wide,
Where eternity is sweet,
Where we shall see her smiling face
And outstretched hand to greet.
Let's hold her as our guiding star,
And tread the path she trod,
And trust when we hear our bugle call,
Like her, we'll be with God."

MARGARET BARRETT, Secretary.

UNIVERSITY SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA FEATURES CALIFORNIA HISTORY

(ROCKWELL D. HUNT, Ph.D., Dean of the Graduate School of the University of Southern California.)

EVEN A CURSORY PERUSAL OF THE records leaves no doubt concerning the interest in promoting the study of California and Western American history taken by the University of Southern California. No group of citizens will be more ready to recognize in this a valuable service to the larger community and a contribution to the welfare of the state than the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

On coming to the University of Southern California in 1908, the writer, having already lectured at Stanford University and the University of the Pacific, immediately introduced a course in Pacific Slope history, described as follows: "Special lecture course, with special reference to California. Primarily for advanced college students and teachers. One hour throughout the year." This course, popular from the beginning, was later expanded to two units throughout the year. In 1921-22 courses in Latin-American colonies and Latin-American republics were added by Doctor William H. Teeter, who had enjoyed extensive residence in South America.

In 1923, Rolland A. Vandegrift, now State Finance Director, was brought to the University to give special emphasis to California and Latin-American history. Having been a Native Sons Travelling Fellow in the University of California, he possessed high qualifications for the position. Not only did he take over the course in Pacific Slope history but, with the writer of this, he organized a seminar for graduate students who already had a background for research work.

When Professor Vandegrift left the University to take up other work in 1925, Doctor Owen C. Coy was secured to assume charge of the rapidly developing classes in Pacific Slope history. He added a full year course in the history of the West, and became director of the graduate seminar in Pacific Slope history, as well as the undergraduate course in California history. Doctor Coy is well known throughout the state as Manager of the State Historical Association, a coordinating body supported by public funds. An author of note in this particular field, as well as a popular teacher and lecturer, he is devoting himself with marked success to the development and promotion of the study of California history. He is regarded as one of the foremost authorities on the gold days and the development of the American state.

In 1927-28, Doctor George Hammond was added to the University faculty. He is recognized as one of the most capable of the many students of Professor H. E. Bolton of the University of California. He at once took over the classes in Latin-American history, his special field, and added a course in the history of Mexico. Later he organized a graduate seminar in Latin-American history. Doctor Hammond is the founder of the Quivera Society, which publishes important documents in the early Latin-American field, and is a productive and very enthusiastic scholar.

Enough has been said to indicate that the University of Southern California is very much alive to the interests of the rich field of California history, and the thorough cultivation of this field. It should be added that in the magnificent new Edward L. Doheny Junior Memorial Library, now rapidly approaching completion, ample provision has been made for giving California history the prominent place it deserves. The librarian, Miss Charlotte Brown, has omitted nothing making for the complete equipment of this important department. Taking everything into consideration, it is gratifying to be able to report to the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West that the University of Southern California has made commendable progress and undoubtedly will continue to expand its work in the history of California and the Southwest,—a field of endeavor at once so attractive in itself and so dear to the entire membership of both Orders.

"ON TO CALIFORNIA."

What could be more fitting for the great recognition California has received in being awarded the tenth Olympiad, soon to be held in Los Angeles, than an Olympic song composed by a Native Daughter? No song has been more favorably received than "On To California," which overflows with rhythm and melody. It was an instant success.

The composer, Louise Graeser, is a member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. She presented "On To California" to the Parlor, which has had it published. All the receipts from its sale go to the Parlor. Buy a copy, at twenty-five cents, from Composer Graeser (PLeasant 7882), Sophie Stewart (ORegon 6369), who has sung "On To California" on numerous occasions recently, or President Gertrude Allen (CApitol

TO FEAST ON RABBITS.

It looked like old times around the meeting-place of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. April 21, when all the local Parlors were well represented and several of No. 45's oldtimers put in an appearance. The attractions were a buffet supper and entertainment, both of which were greatly enjoyed by the big crowd. Sidney B. Witkowski and Charles Lloyd were in charge, and among their many assistants were Albert Metz, District Deputy Al Cron, Walter Fisher, Harold Linden, Marshal Anthony Pierce and First Vice-president Owen S. Adams. Incidentally, the date was also the birthday anniversary of Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell.

May 12, Los Angeles will have initiation, and on the 19th an open meeting. May 26 a rabbit feast will be the attraction, the rabbits to be supplied by Leslie Packard. A ritual team of past presidents has been organized by Lewie W. Smith. Many members of the Parlor plan to visit Stockton during the Grand Parlor session.

PRE-OLYMPIC SUPPER-DANCE.

Chairman Ora Evans of the Felipe de Neve statue committee of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. was honored by a pretty surprise, April 5, carried out at the luncheon table. At her plate was a lovely flower basket with ferns, and at each place was a beautiful rosebud. Filing around the table and paying tribute to Mrs. Evans for her efforts, the members arranged the rosebuds artistically in the basket, which was then presented to her. A program, arranged by Trustee Flora Jacobson, presented Irene Roselle in a monologue and Olive Lopez. At the April 19 meeting, Second Vice-president Ysabel Galt was hostess at a delightful bridge tea at which a number of prospective members were guests. Homemade marmalade and the needlework of a large sewing circle made lovely table trophies.

Headed by President Gertrude Joughin-Tuttle, a large committee had a jolly potluck dinner at the home of Mrs. Edward A. Tabor April 21 and decided that, instead of the rose-and-gold spring ball, Californiana will give a pre-Olympic supper-dance May 21. Bridge will be provided for those who do not care to trip the light fantastic. Many features, including a number of surprise events, are planned for the entertainment of guests. It is hoped to stage the event in the University of Southern California gymnasium, but definite announcement of the place will be later announced.

BUILDING EMPIRE OF THE PACIFIC.

There was a large attendance at the April 1 meeting of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., the occasion being a welcome home to Frank A. Duggan, recently returned from New York City. Many of the former Sierra Madreites were out. Among the speakers were Past Grand Presidents Herman C. Lichtenberger and William I. Traeger, Ray Howard, Percy Eisen, Charles Easton and Dr. George C. Sabichi. With First Vice-president Adams presiding, a class of candidates were initiated April 8. Addresses were made by Judge Walton Wood, Ernest Orfila and Isham Adams, the latter speaking for the class. Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt continued his interesting talks on California history April 15 and 29.

May 6, Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez will visit Ramona. May 20, President Chandos Bush will speak on "The Immigration Question." May 27, officers will be nominated at a short business session, after which Dr. Hunt will speak on "Building the Empire of the Pacific." All-comers will be welcome to hear the talk, and they will benefit by doing so.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.

President Gertrude Allen closed her April message to the members of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. with: "We need women with courage to tackle the hardest thing, with feet that climb and hands that cling and hearts that never forget to sing; with spirits that help when others are down, that know how to scatter the darkest frown, that love their neighbors and love their town." There was a large crowd at the April 13 card party and everyone had a good time; Miss Edith Strain had charge.

A class of eight candidates were initiated April 20. Several of the members had an enjoyable outing April 17 at the Wrightwood mountain home of Mary McAnany. The Parlor's institution anniversary was observed April 27. It was a big night, commencing with a potluck supper and concluding with "some" program. The sewing circle met April 4 at the home of Los Angeles' May program includes: May Day picnic, the 1st, at Sycamore Grove; election delegates to Merced Grand Parlor, the 4th; card party, one of the bridge tourney, the 11th; nomination officers for July-December term, the 18th. The 25th will be a social night of a nature to be later announced.

TO INITIATE LARGE CLASS.

An immense crowd attended the housewarming of the new home of Hollywood No. 196 N.S.G.W. April 11 and all were profuse in their praise of the commodious and uptodate quarters. Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer headed a large delegation of Santa Monica Bay No. 267 members, and all the other county Parlors were well represented.

President Leo Aggeler welcomed the guests and introduced as the master of ceremonies Henry G. Bodkin. Among the many speakers were John Costello, J. E. McCurdy, Superior Judges Walton Wood, Joseph Sproul and Reuben Schmidt. Several entertainment features were presented and well received, and refreshments were served. The overcoat went to J. Hartley Russell (Stanford No. 76) of San Francisco.

May 2, Hollywood will initiate a large class of candidates in honor of Judge Joseph P. Sproul. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Lucien Griffin, R. L. Patterson, Fred Youell, Martin Meza, Harold Thomas and Ed Black. Officers for the July-December term will be nominated May 23. No meeting May 30, account of Decoration Day.

DANCE AT GLENDALE, MAY 7.

Glendale—To assist in beautifying Glendale for the Olympics, Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. will plant a lot on Brand boulevard. Four candidates were initiated April 26, and in observance of educational week G. A. Wheatley addressed the Parlor.

A card party was held April 8 at the home of President Betty Sanders, the hostesses being Mayme Kirri, Berenice Bickerdike and Florence Pratt. Bridge and five hundred were played, high scores going to Carol Payne and Mildred Leach. The next card party will be held at the home of Dorothy Ravn.

The May dance of Verdugo and Glendale N.S.G.W. will be held the 7th at the Masonic Temple, 234 South Brand boulevard. Nan Hutchinson and Harvey Gillette head the committee. All Natives and their friends are invited, and a splendid time is assured.

FIESTA AND BARBECUE MAY 8.

Ocean Park—All arrangements have been completed by Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. for its second annual fiesta and barbecue, to be held May 8 in Santa Monica Canyon. Arrows will point the way to the scene of the festivities. The grounds will open at 10 a. m., a barbecue supervised by Jack Dailey and Jack Nelson will be served at noon, and dancing will begin at 2 p. m. Many attractions will be provided in the way of entertainment, and awards will be made for the most original early-day costumes. Members of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. will participate.

Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez will attend the fiesta and the following evening, May 9, will visit No. 267. In his honor, a large class of candidates will be initiated, Santa Monica Bay having invited all the Parlors in San Bernardino, Orange and Los Angeles Counties to bring in their candidates for the occasion and they have agreed to do so. Headed by Dr. Leland Clark and accompanied by Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, big delegations of Santa Monica Bay members visited all the neighboring Parlors during the past month, including Arrowhead No. 110 at San Bernardino and Sepulveda No. 263 at San Pedro. The dinner-dance at the cafe of Harry O'Day in Culver City April 8 was well attended. Junior Past Grand President and Mrs. Newell were honor-guests, and Mrs. Domenic Conterno went away with a handsome doll presented by Mrs. O'Day.

PLAQUE WILL HONOR NOTED PIONEER.

nento, at 2 p. m. of May 12 at Houghton Park Mrs. Houghton was a member of the Reed Don ner Party, captained by her father, George Don ner, which came overland to California in 1846 She was the author of "The Expedition of the Donner Party," written at the Houghton home, now the site of Houghton Park, a portion of which was given Long Beach by the family. The plaque will be presented by President Violet T. Kenshilwood. Miss Eliza Houghton, a member of the Parlor, will be a guest of honor and give an address. At noon of this day the mothers and members will be entertained at a covered-dish luncheon, in charge of District Deputy Clara Fay, at the clubhouse.

The dinner-and-card party of April 7, First Vice-president Zella Hodgedon chairman, was a social and financial success. A social gathering, with cards, was March 30 enjoyed at the home of Kate McFadyen. The thimble club met April 4 at the home of Daisy T. Hanson. At a recent meeting of the Parlor the bedspread made and donated by Lois McDonald was awarded Mrs. . Cutting.

May 5, Long Beach will have a card party. The committee in charge is Eleanor Johnson chairman), Charlotte Wharton and Mary Stultz. A cooked food sale at the municipal market is planned for May 7. Alice Waldow is the chairman.

BOXING AND WRESTLING PROMISED.

Glendale—Glendale Parlor No. 264 N.S.G.W. is looking forward to a boxing and wrestling event which Leslie Schellbach promises in the near-future. The monthly dances being held jointly with the Native Daughters are great successes, due in no small measure to the energetic efforts of Chairman Harvey Gillette and President Phillip Molen. The Parlor will be at the May 9 meeting of Santa Monica Bay No. 267 a hundred percent, and will have several candidates for initiation.

MANY SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

San Pedro — Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. has planned many social affairs for the near-future. April 26 a card party was held, and April 28 the Florencita thimble club, an auxiliary of the Parlor, sponsored a spanish lunch. A get-together meeting with Sepulveda No. 263 N.S.G.W. was held April 29. Music by an eighty-piece boys' band was the feature.

BIG CROWD AT DANCE.

San Pedro—Eight hundred persons attended the annual spring ball given April 2 by Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. John P. Paradieu was general chairman of the committee in charge. April 18 some thirty members of the Parlor, led by District Deputy Edward E. Baldwin, President Francis G. Fetzer and Past President William A. Reuter, paid a visit to Santa Ana No. 265.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Thurmond Clarke (Ramona N.S.) has been appointed a municipal judge.

RANGE HORSE

(N. H. DUNNING.)

He comes athirst, in country strange to him,
And yet he finds the water-hole. He drinks
With gladdened heart! And all unconsciously
Gives silent thanks throughout thirst-slaked hours.
Say what men will, we yet must sternly ask,
How did he know? We pray that Power within
Still guides him safely through the unknown ways.

SITE FIRST RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN CALIFORNIA TO BE MARKED.

Following out the movement in California to mark places of historical interest, the Federal War Department has been requested by Representative Phil D. Swing to set aside a plot of ground on Ballast Point, Fort Rosecrans Military Reservation, San Diego, upon which to erect a suitable monument marking the place where the first religious services were held by White men in this state. In the year 1602 Vizcaino, sailing up the Pacific coast from Mexico, entered San Diego Harbor, landing at Ballast Point, where religious devotions were offered to God for the safety of the expedition.

The California State Historical Society, the Native Sons of the Golden West and others have appealed to Representative Swing to secure the necessary permission to place a two-ton native granite boulder upon the site, with a suitable bronze plate describing the historical importance of the spot. No objection is anticipated from the War Department.

HIBISCUS IN CALIFORNIA.

The growing popularity of the hibiscus has led to the planting of varieties not suited to the climate, with discouraging results. In the districts where frost is likely to occur, the hibiscus syriacus or althea should be used. This is hardy, but has not been given a great deal of attention, although it comes in a wide range of colors from red and crimson to white. The Chinese hibiscus, or hibiscus rosa-sinensis, is seen often in the frost-free areas of the southern parts of the state and is listed by most nurserymen. It requires ample heat as well as freedom from killing frosts.

Huge Expenditures—The Federal Government estimates $1,353,000,000 will be spent during 1932 for public road and bridge construction and maintenance.

Pier Dedication—San Diego City dedicated its new million-dollar pier March 25.

In Memoriam

ADELINE PEARCE.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst one of our Pioneer Mothers and a member of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., Adeline Pearce, and whereas we feel we have lost a loyal and true member and the daughters a loving mother, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend our sincere sympathy to the family, and may these words offer them consolation "She has passed from this earth and its sorrows to the bright lights of tomorrow." She was privileged to see our beloved California grow to the great State which it is today. Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, a copy be sent the family, and one to The Grizzly Bear.

To All Native Born Californians

I, DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ, GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST, DO HEREBY APPEAL TO ALL NATIVE BORN CALIFORNIANS OF THE WHITE MALE RACE BORN WITHIN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OF THE AGE OF EIGHTEEN YEARS AND UPWARD, OF GOOD HEALTH AND CHARACTER, AND WHO BELIEVE IN THE EXISTENCE OF A SUPREME BEING, TO JOIN OUR FRATERNITY AND THEREBY ASSIST IN THE AIMS AND PURPOSES OF THE ORGANIZATION:

To arouse Loyalty and Patriotism for State and for Nation.

To elevate and improve the Manhood upon which the destiny of our country depends.

To encourage interest in all matters and measures relating to the material upbuilding of the State of California.

To assist in the development of the wonderful natural resources of California.

To protect the forests, conserve the waters, improve the rivers and the harbors, and beautify the towns and the cities.

To collect, make known and preserve the romantic history of California.

To restore and preserve all the historic landmarks of the State.

To provide homes for California's homeless children, regardless of race, creed or color.

To keep this State a paradise for the American Citizen by thwarting the organized efforts of all undesirable peoples to control its destiny.

THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST IS THE ONLY FRATERNITY IN EXISTENCE WHOSE MEMBERSHIP IS MADE UP EXCLUSIVELY OF WHITE NATIVE BORN AMERICANS.

. . . Builded upon the Foundation Stones of [Friendship Loyalty Charity

IT PRESENTS TO THE NATIVE BORN CALIFORNIAN THE MOST PRODUCTIVE FIELD IN WHICH TO SOW HIS ENERGIES, AND IF HE BE A FAITHFUL CULTIVATOR AND DESIRES TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED HIM, HE WILL REAP A RICH HARVEST IN THE KNOWLEDGE THAT HE HAS BEEN FAITHFUL TO CALIFORNIA AND DILIGENT IN PROTECTING ITS WELFARE.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

The Federal Congress has been in session a half-year and, other than to glut the record with messages from the national administration and mouthings by the fire-eaters and the spellbinders, nothing has been done to get at the root of the depression, which expands while the Congress and the administration bicker. Proposed legislation to encourage a return to normalcy has been confined exclusively to the dollar—the almighty god of the powers-that-be.

Dishonesty—petty and otherwise, in high and in low places,—is the root of all of the nation's economic ills! It is the cancer, resultant from dollar-worship, that is gnawing away the very vitals of this country and hastening its doom. Has one single effort been made at Washington or other government-centers to curb dishonesty? NO! For the reason that dishonesty has too closely linked crooks and government. No attempt has been made to provide legislation to curb the activities of the dishonest; there has been not even a suggestion to do so. But legislation has been both suggested and adopted to relieve the dishonest who brought on the depression.

Conditions in this country are a colossal shame! A nation of unexcelled resources rapidly going to decay, simply because the masses, who are honest generally, have permitted a dishonest minority to usurp control, in government, in business and in all other lines of endeavor. Arise in your might, Americans, and repossess that which is yours, through the ballotbox and through complete ostracization of the dishonest! Until honesty is again enthroned in these United States of America, there positively can be no lasting return to normalcy!

Taxpayers of California should be on the lookout for more bond issues which, according to grapevine reports, are in the making for submission to the voters. Of course, the big talk will be the unemployed, in whose name many financial deals have already been slipped over—for the benefit of those who wax richer from bond issues. Swat, decisively, any and all proposed bond issues!

George Washington was the first President of the United States! May 9 the Federal State Department issued an announcement that he was, "not only actually and really but also in the most strict legal sense as well," despite claims that John Hanson or Thomas McKean were first presidents.

Hanson was "President of the United States in Congress assembled," and not the "President of the United States of America." McKean was elected to succeed Samuel Huntington, to preside over the Continental Congress, before the ratification of the Articles of Confederation.

A writer in a national magazine opines that the reason the United States is in such a precarious situation today is because American credit has been lavishly extended foreign nations. He says: "The burden of Europe's private debts to this country is now greater than the burden of the war debt, and the war debt, with arrears of interest, is greater today than it was the day peace was signed."

More than $20,000,000,000 of American capital, public and private, has been "invested" in foreign countries since the United States decided to enter the world war—decided to sacrifice thousands upon thousands of precious American lives to protect the investments of crooked financiers. As the writer well concludes, had that vast sum been used in the United States in productive enterprises of even doubtful value or in building projects in the great cities, this country would at least have the improvements and the betterments thus made, but now it has only scraps of paper. And he might have also concluded that there is excellent ground for suspicion that, in time, such of those scraps of paper as were in possession of the financial highboys when the big jam came will be found in the strongbox of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation as security for liberal loans. And then will be slipped over another moratorium, also at the expense of the honest masses.

"There are many firms that are following a short-sighted policy of unnecessary retrenchment in advertising," said a recent speaker at the San Francisco Exchange Club. The firm that believes it can save money, even in these times, by stopping its advertising is in the same category as the fellow who thinks he can save time by stopping the clock. Advertising is a necessity, not a luxury, and the wise firm, organization and individual recognizes it as such and acts accordingly.

ORDER OF NATIVE DAUGHTERS
HAS JUSTIFIED ITSELF IN EYES OF WORLD

Evelyn I. Carlson
(GRAND PRESIDENT.)

THE FORTY-SIXTH ANNUAL GRAND Parlor of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West will convene June 20 in the City of Merced, the gateway to California's glorious Yosemite National Park, famous the world over for its natural and unsurpassed scenic wonders.

"While I am happy to close my year's work and to report the Order in a substantial condition, financially and numerically, there is sadness within my heart that I must sever my contacts, as the presiding officer, with the members of our organization, whose many kindnesses and warmth of greetings have made this the happiest year of my life.

"I am truly grateful for the opportunity given me by my sisters to serve as the Grand President and to traverse, in my official capacity, the length and the breadth of California, the most productive and enchanting wonderland of all the world. It has been the most instructive and inspiring lesson of my life, and the principles upon which our Order was founded—'Love of Home, Devotion to our Flag, Veneration to the Pioneers, and Abiding Faith in the existence of God'—have been more indelibly impressed upon my mind.

"Our beloved Pioneers taught us the lessons of fortitude and fidelity, openly displayed throughout the organization's existence and pending, in great measure, toward our success.

"In reviewing my work as Grand President—the personal inspection of one hundred sixty-three Subordinate Parlors and the institution of Ontario Parlor No. 251, which bids fair to be an active unit of our Order,—I wish to mention, briefly, the year's results.

HOMELESS CHILDREN.

"One of the most worthy projects of our Order is the placing of homeless children in suitable homes, a service carried on, jointly with the Order of Native Sons, for twenty-two years. The Subordinate Parlors in every section have given loyal support, and contributed willingly and generously of their time and money, but during these trying days and the curtailment of expenses in every avenue, the homeless children cause has been affected. While we have been fortunate in carrying on this worthy project for so many years, I would ask that each and every Parlor make a special effort during the coming year to double its contribution, so that we may continue with this most important endeavor.

"To our state secretary, Miss Mary E. Brusie, and the Central Committee we are indeed indebted beyond expression for the years of loyal and efficient service rendered, a service that has no equal. Personal thanks are herewith expressed to the Native Daughter Parlors which, through their sewing clubs, have contributed this year more garments for the children than any previous record discloses.

MEMBERSHIP.

"As a constructive, fraternal and humane organization, the Order of Native Daughters, as well as the Order of Native Sons, has justified itself in the eyes of the world for welfare work of various kinds, and the emergencies that have risen in these times of stress have not found our organization wanting.

"It seems easy to give from one's store of abundance when times are good and the world is prosperous with happy, contented people, but it requires a generous, self-sacrificing spirit to divide, in times of uncertainty, one's small savings and worldly goods with others less fortunate. And so, because of the loving fraternal consideration manifested toward our members by the Parlors, we have prevented, as it were, a great many of our sisters leaving our fraternity by extending to them a helping hand, with the assurance that their dues would be provided for them in one way or another.

"Up to the present writing, an increase of our hundred forty-seven members has been voted during the year, which should be most gratifying to all.

PUBLICITY.

"Publicity is of the greatest importance to any organization, and is as necessary for the success of a fraternity as for a commercial enterprise. And so, we should constantly keep our activities before the public through the mediums of our local newspapers, to whom we are indebted, as well as to Clarence Hunt, editor of The Grizzly Bear Magazine, who has co-operated so well with our Parlors as well as with the Grand President.

"Radio stations K.Q.W. (San Jose), K.T.A.B. (Oakland) and K.G.O. (San Francisco) have been most generous with their facilities, thereby giving us the opportunity of contacting many sections that otherwise would have been impossible for us to reach.

NATIVE DAUGHTER HOME.

"Another project dear to every heart is the Native Daughter Home, at 555 Baker street, San Francisco, one of the finest of its kind in the country. The work in behalf of the Home has been one of love, and the efforts of Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola, as chairman, and the efficient Home Committee are recognized and appreciated by every member of our Order. For, though the Home is but three years old, the mortgage of $60,000 which rested upon it at the time of its completion, has been reduced to $7,900. A wonderful accomplishment, and such a tribute to all Native Daughters!

MRS. EVELYN I. CARLSON OF SAN FRANCISCO, GRAND PRESIDENT N.D.G.W.

AIMS AND OBJECTS of the
ORDER OF NATIVE DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

To cultivate state pride.
To aid state development.
To advance state progress.
To promote the study of California history.
To preserve California's landmarks, relics and traditions.
To honor and keep in memory California's Pioneers.
To stimulate and inspire patriotism.
To assist in the work of americanization.
To encourage higher education for women, as evidenced by the Order's liberal college scholarship.
To guarantee social enjoyment, mental improvement and mutual benefit to members.
To care, conjointly with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, for the orphaned children of California, of whatever class, color or creed, by placing them in permanent homes through legal adoption proceedings, thus engaging in the most humanitarian of public welfare work, that of improving the future citizenship of the state.

If YOU were born in California and believe in these principles, you should be a member of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West.

"'For here's the joy we've worked for,
Here's the scene we've longed to see—
Ours—a Home—all mirth and gladness,
Where our members like to be.'

SCHOLARSHIPS.

"The scholarships that we maintain at the University of California at Berkeley, the University of California at Los Angeles, and Mills College in Oakland offer to the members of our Order opportunity to enlarge their intellectual sphere.

"Many people go through life without having their nature opened up to any great extent. Perhaps this has been caused by lack of opportunity—they have been unable to get in an ambitious state of mind; so, for this reason, the Native Daughters of the Golden West offer these scholarships through competitive examinations—to those young students of our fraternity who have ambition and wish to make the most of their time and talents.

"A certain director of education has said: 'Those who, in youth, achieve the invincible armor—Education—are prepared for the conquest of life.'

VETERAN WELFARE.

"Veteran welfare work has been steadily going on, and the Subordinate Parlors are to be commended most highly for the splendid interest they have displayed in the veterans in the Army and the Navy hospitals of California, Washington and Arizona—particularly so, during the past year.

"The little luxuries we supply, such as candies, cigarettes, fruits, magazines and other numerous gifts, bring sunshine and consolation to the heroes who have been placed in the hospitals in an effort to restore their health and to mend their broken limbs. This is a labor of love and gratitude, and that the men appreciate the attention is evidenced in many ways.

HISTORY AND LANDMARKS.

"History and landmarks committees in the Subordinate Parlors are constantly on the lookout for historical spots to be marked and landmarks to be restored. There is still much to be done in this regard, and those who labor for the preservation of all that is colorful and interesting in California are to be congratulated.

"The Pioneer Fathers and Mothers spent their lives making of this great State a home for happy people. Every hour of their time was filled with a desire to serve the State and the communities in which they lived. Therefore we, as native Californians, should, by our conduct in life, prove that we are living in full power for good, and uphold the traditions of our beloved State.

REDWOOD GROVE.

"Another project which we have manifested interest in, is the conservation of our state redwood groves, for we have given much time, thought and money to the acquisition of forty-six acres of majestic redwood trees in Humboldt County, known as the 'Redwood Memorial Grove' and dedicated to the Pioneers of California. One thing that remains for us to do, and should be cared for at the earliest possible moment, is the placing of a bronze plaque, as a marker, upon the boulder in the grove provided for that purpose, so that the passing traveler may know of our pride in our State and its vast resources.

ANOTHER PAGE.

"Thus another page is added to the history of our organization, and it is with gratitude in my heart to the members of our Order for their faithful service that I rapidly approach the close of my year's activities as Grand President. I ask the full co-operation of everyone in behalf of my very worthy successor, Anna Mixon-Armstrong, who will automatically carry on the duties of this important office.

"Fraternal societies, like all other worldly institutions, are no greater than the men and the women who constitute their membership. And so, the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West has achieved success because of the great number of unselfish women who have retained their membership therein under all conditions and who have done and are doing their part, in various ways, to make our Order an admirable and an admired one."

Electricians' Gathering—The Pacific Coast Electrical Association will have its annual convention at Pasadena, Los Angeles County, June 14-17.

46th NATIVE DAUGHTER GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

MONDAY, JUNE 20, THE FORTY-sixth annual Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West will convene at Merced City for a four-day session. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, affiliated with Dolores Parlor No. 169 (San Francisco), will preside throughout the deliberations, and at their conclusion will automatically become the junior past grand president. The sessions of the Grand Parlor will be held daily, commencing at 9 a. m., in the American Legion Hall. The nomination of grand officers is set for Tuesday morning, the election for Wednesday morning, and the installation for Thursday evening.

The closing Grand Parlor year has been an exceptionally successful one for the Order, considering general conditions. There has been a membership net gain of approximately five hundred, and a Parlor, Ontario No. 251, was instituted at Ontario, San Bernardino County. Before the convening of the Merced session another parlor will be instituted in San Francisco, and other parlors are well on the road to institution.

The finances are in splendid condition. The mortgage on the Home in San Francisco has been materially reduced, and it is not beyond the realm of possibility that, by adjournment of the Merced Grand Parlor, the mortgage will be paid in full. In the financing of the Home and other projects, the Native Daughters have, by thorough co-operation, accomplished near-miracles. They are successful, as an organized group, because they deserve success. They labor indefatigably to that end.

According to information received direct by The Grizzly Bear from the Subordinate Parlors of the Order, Joaquin No. 5 (Stockton) continues to hold the lead as numerically the strongest Parlor, having a membership of 282. Other Parlors with a membership in excess of 200 are: Los Angeles No. 124, 252; Twin Peaks No. 185 (San Francisco), 230; Woodland No. 90, 215; Sutter No. 111 (Sacramento), 212; Marguerite No. 12 (Placerville), 206; Castro No. 178 (San Francisco), 203.

RESOLUTIONS TO BE PROPOSED.

Several resolutions will come before the Grand Parlor for consideration. The Grizzly Bear has been advised of the following:

By Bonita Parlor No. 10 (Redwood City), providing "that the Subordinate Parlor president, by virtue of her office, be delegate number one to the Grand Parlor from each Parlor."

By Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, stipulating that each Subordinate Parlor shall be entitled to one Grand Parlor delegate at large, and one additional delegate for each seventy-five members.

By Clear Lake Parlor No. 135 (Middletown), asking relief for California Indians at the hands of the Federal Government.

By San Diego Parlor No. 208, seeking an appropriation of $139 from the Grand Parlor for the San Diego de Alcala Mission restoration fund. If made, the total contributed by the Native Daughters to this endeavor will reach $500.

By Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 (San Pedro), petitioning the Grand Parlor to allow "the Subordinate Parlors to pledge daughters, sisters, relatives and friends of members from the age of twelve to the Parlors," and "that this organization be known as the Bear Cubs of Native Daughterism."

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

By communicating with all the Subordinate Parlors and the many "rumored" candidates, The Grizzly Bear is enabled to announce the candidacies of several aspirants for Grand Parlor office honors. The list is complete, insofar as definite information has been received, but it is not complete if gossip be founded on fact. For, there are whisperings that every elective office, excepting the grand presidency, will have two, or more, seekers. Be that as it may, here is the authentic "dope" received by The Grizzly Bear:

Grand President—Grand Vice-president Anna Mixon-Armstrong (Woodland No. 90) of Woodland.

Grand Vice-president—Grand Marshal Irma W. Laird (Alturas No. 159) of Alturas.

Grand Secretary—Sallie R. Thaler (Aloha No. 106) of Oakland, incumbent.

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ (Yosemite No. 83) of San Francisco, incumbent.

Grand Marshal—Sadie Winn-Brainard (Califia No. 22) of Sacramento; Grand Trustee Gladys E. Noce (Amapola No. 80) of Sutter Creek; May F. Givens (Mariposa No. 63) of Cathay.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Gunther-Giannini (Orinda No. 56) of San Francisco.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Elvena Woodard (Vallejo No. 195) of Vallejo; Hazel B. Hansen (Verdugo No. 240) of Glendale.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

JUNE 1882 WAS A DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION month in California, and nearly every county of the state held a convention to nominate county officeseekers and to select delegates to the state convention, which met at San Jose, Santa Clara County, June 20. John Boggs of Colusa County was made chairman, and on the fourteenth ballot General George Stoneman of Los Angeles defeated George Hearst of San Francisco for the nomination for governor. The convention was anti-Chinese and anti-Sunday-closing law, and straddled the debris question. The warhorses sniffed victory, as the state had gone Democratic in 1880 and the Republican party was blamed for the many economic ills affecting the state.

Judge Jackson Temple rendered his decision June 12 in the celebrated debris case of the State of California vs. the Gold Run, Placer County, hydraulic mine. It was lengthy, and nailed down the lid upon the hydraulic mines' coffin, consequently the lowlands were jubilant and the highlands depressed. The decision was to be appealed, it was announced. The trial consumed fifty-eight days, and it was estimated the eleven attorneys engaged in the combat were paid $100,000 in fees.

The annual session of the N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor was held in Sacramento City, commencing June 7, nine Subordinate Parlors being represented by forty delegates. John H. Grady of San Francisco, recently deceased, was elected Grand President. Sacramento Parlor No. 3 was host at a banquet at which John T. Stafford was the toastmaster and Ed. F. Cohn's quartet entertained with songs. A grand ball June 10 was an entertainment feature.

Five ships arrived from China ports during the month, bringing 5,000 additional Chinamen to add to the state's Mongolian horde.

An earthquake felt from Sonoma County down to Santa Cruz County occurred at 5:40 a. m. of June 27.

An artesian well being sunk near Tulare City, June 1, at a depth of 324 feet, struck a flow of water claimed to be the largest yet found in the state. It was estimated at 1,500,000 gallons a day.

Fire June 20 on an Oakland, Alameda County, pier destroyed several ships and freight cars, causing a $100,000 loss.

A. Smith's tinshop at Sierraville, Sierra County, burned June 26 and in attempting to save valuable papers he lost his life.

The Day hotel at Sucker Flat burned June 24, causing a loss of $5,000.

June 21 a whirlwind passed over a portion of Merced, blowing down several buildings and starting a number of fires.

San Francisco's school census showed: Whites, 27,852 boys, 27,073 girls; Negroes, 119 boys, 83 girls; Chinese, 273. Sacramento City's school census showed: Whites, 2,390 boys, 2,503 girls; Negroes, 35 boys, 42 girls.

A masked man stopped the stage a half-mile north of Redding, Shasta County, June 26 and demanded the express box. As it was fastened to the bed of the stage his request could not be complied with, so he vamoosed.

Dent Young and Billy Murray, oldtime Shasta County prospectors, June 3 found a quartz seam along Flat Creek that yielded in one day thirteen ounces of gold worth $234.

The steamer "Escambia," loaded with a $90,000 wheat cargo, sailed June 19 through the Golden Gate for Europe. About five miles out it capsized and sunk. Twenty-one of its crew of twenty-five were drowned.

The State Immigration Association had 10,000 copies of a "boost" pamphlet printed in English and German for distribution throughout the world, except in China, to induce immigration to California.

A combination of ten of the state's flourmills were monthly making up a cargo of 20,000 barrels of flour, which was being sent to Europe, where it was being disposed of at good profit.

R. Nadeau this month commenced the erection of a theater at First and Spring streets, Los Angeles City.

R. E. Houghton prosecuted Editor Maude of the "Kern County Press" for criminal libel, and lost. June 1 the citizens of Bakersfield burned Houghton in effigy on the main street.

A red-and-blue halo around the sun was observed June 13. It created much excitement, and many considered it a bad omen.

George Wiggins of Red Bluff, Tehama County, got married June 1 and went on a prolonged spree, which ended with his drowning in an attempt to recover his hat, which had blown into a stream.

A train derailment June 17 near Glenwood, Santa Cruz County, claimed the life of Fireman John McNamara.

June 25 six young people went for a sail on San Francisco Bay. The boat capsized, and Ida, George and Christina Redfield, aged, respectively, 19, 16 and 12 years, were drowned.

Charlie Hutchins and Johnny Averill were drowned June 17 while bathing in a Los Angeles City zanja.

At Napa City in March, Dolores Garcia shot M. L. Stillwagon. Recovering from the wound, Stillwagon met Garcia on the street June 24 and shot and killed him.

"Boney" Jewell, a Negro character of Sacramento City, June 4 went on a spree, became obstreperous and landed in jail. In the police court, asked to offer a defense, he said: "I've risen and low'r'd de curtin of de Metpolitn theata from de first perform on de leventh day of August '56 until de fourth of June, near twenty-six yeahs, and I've risen wi' Booth, McCullough, Shakespeare and oder brudders and sisterns. Sunday de job quits me and I gets drunk. Jedge, does yo blame me?" The judge did not.

Silas Woodford, Siskiyou County Pioneer, committed suicide in a cave near Callahan.

Robert McGregor, Cherokee, Butte County, miner, was caved upon and killed June 6.

J. Taylor and J. A. Peterson, miners from the Calico district, had breakfast together in San Bernardino City June 8 and got into a quarrel. Taylor drew a revolver and killed Peterson, and then committed suicide.

James Weston, one of a picnic party, was drowned June 6 while bathing off Angel Island.

FIRST NATIVE CALIFORNIA DAUGHTER BORN OF AMERICAN PARENTS

"The lady who enjoys the distinction of being the first native California daughter, born of American parents, is Mrs. Mary Semple Turman of Colusa. She was born at Benicia, Solano County, on the 22nd of November, 1848. She is the daughter of Dr. Robert Semple, who came to California in 1845, and who married Miss Frances Ann Cooper in 1847, this wedding being the first one celebrated in California in which both contracting parties were Americans.

"In 1846 Dr. Semple started the first newspaper ever published in California. It was called 'The Californian' and was published in Monterey. Dr. Semple was also President of the first Constitutional Convention ever held in this state, and helped to frame the old Constitution. Mrs. Turman is not at all ashamed of her age but is proud of the distinction."

(The above, which came to The Grizzly Bear from Founder Lilly O. Reichling-Dyer of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, appeared in the "Record-Union" of Sacramento City of June 14, 1892, in connection with publicity concerning the Order. Founder Dyer says Mrs. Mary Semple-Turman was elected Past Grand President of the Order when the First Grand Parlor was organized in 1887.—Editor.

PRACTICE RECIPROCITY BY ALWAYS PATRONIZING GRIZZLY BEAR ADVERTISERS

PROCEEDINGS FIFTY-FIFTH N. S. GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE FIFTY-FIFTH GRAND PARLOR OF the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West was in session at Stockton, San Joaquin County, May 16, 18 and 19. Due to the unavoidable absence of Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington presided. He was advanced to the Grand Presidency, and following his installation, just preceding adjournment, he requested the co-operation of the entire membership of the Order.

The Fifty-fifth was a resolution Grand Parlor, seventy-two resolves being introduced. For a time, when some of those dealing with finances were under consideration, the debate indicated lasting antagonisms would be created. But, due to skillful navigating of the stormy waters by the Acting Grand President, the "battles" ended with all forces safely and happily anchored in the harbor of harmony. A synopsis of what transpired follows:

REPORTS.

The activities of the Order, recorded in the reports of the grand officers, have heretofore been given publicity in The Grizzly Bear.

The report of Grand Treasurer John A. Corotto showed a cash balance in the treasury March 31, 1932, of $54,064.16, $16,752.87 of the amount being in the general fund.

The report of the Butano Forest Preservation Committee, O. H. Foster (Santa Cruz No. 26) chairman, said "The outlook for the preservation of this magnificent forest of virgin redwoods is brighter than ever before."

The report of the "Lone Grave" Committee, Dr. C. W. Chapman (Hydraulic No. 56) chairman, stated "a sentiment exists which justifies a tribute being established at the spot [seven miles east of Nevada City, Nevada County,] in the name of the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. and the people of the State of California."

The report of the State of the Order Committee regretted "the tragic accident which made it impossible for Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez to preside. . . . Before meeting with the accident he had done a tremendous amount of work in visiting the Subordinate Parlors and attending dedications and public functions, both of an official and a semiofficial character. Few Grand Presidents worked as industriously and as sincerely for the upbuilding of the Order during a most strenuous period as did Grand President Gonzalez."

LAW CHANGES.

The following changes in the governing laws were made, the abbreviations "G.P.C." and "S.P.C." referring, respectively, to the Grand Parlor Constitution and the Constitution for Subordinate Parlors:

Art. VI, Sec. 12, Art. X, Sec. 2 and Art. XI, Sec. 9 G.P.C. all amended by eliminating reference to withholding the semiannual password from a Parlor delinquent in Grand Parlor payments.

Art. VI, Sec. 14 G.P.C. amended to provide that members of the Visiting Board shall "visit those Parlors in the district closest to their respective homes. . . . But no grand officer shall visit the same district twice in the same year."

Art. VIII, Sec. 3 G.P.C. amended to provide for appointment of "A Committee on Education, of five members," and Art. IX G.P.C. amended to provide a new section, No. 20, defining the duties of said committee.

Art. XI, Sec. 8 G.P.C. amended by entirely new wording defining how "Members of a suspended, extinct or dissolved Parlor, and suspended members thereof, may, after such suspension, extinction or dissolution, apply for membership in any Parlor."

Art. VII Sec. 5 S.P.C. amended by entirely new wording defining how "A member suspended for the non-payment of dues may be reinstated to membership in the Order."

Several suggested changes in the Ritual were referred to the 1933 Grand Parlor for consideration.

The application-for-membership blank was amended to include these additional queries: "Have you ever been a member of the Order? If so, in what Parlor."

LEGISLATION ENACTED.

Appropriation for the traveling history fellowship at the University of California was eliminated.

Grass Valley, Nevada County, was selected as the meeting-place of the Fifty-sixth (1933) Grand Parlor.

A Forestry and Conservation Committee of five members, to be appointed by the Grand President, was authorized.

The grand officers were requested to "give full publicity in the Advanced Reports of all of the major activities of the preceding twelve months."

Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, was "designated as the place for the state-wide celebration of California's Admission Day, September 9, 1933." [No place was designated for this year's state-wide celebration.—Editor.]

The usual appropriation for publishing the "Official Directory of Parlors of the N.S.G.W." in The Grizzly Bear, the official publication of the Order, was continued.

A budget totaling $29,625 was approved, and the percapita tax was fixed at $1.10,—the lowest in many years—payable in quarterly installments, commencing June 1, of 30c, 30c, 25c and 25c. Included in the budget are these appropriations: Organization work $4,500, landmarks work $500, mileage Stockton session $2,500, Grand Secretary salary $4,500 and salaries assistants in his office $3,900.

A suggested plan for districting the state for organization work in the Order's behalf was referred to the incoming Board of Grand Officers.

to the popular vote of the citizens of the respec tive States."

Favoring "increasing rather than decreasin the obligation of Citizenship and our power o National Defense."

Petitioning the Federal Senate "to amend th Naval Appropriation Bill by deleting from it th provision limiting the rank of Naval Reserv officers on permanent active duty to Lieutenan thereby preserving for California and the natio the present standard of Naval Reserve ade quacy."

Requesting "the Park Commission of th State of California to provide from State fund an appropriation for the restoration and preser vation of the Pio Pico homestead landmark nea Whittier, Los Angeles County.

Expressing "deep appreciation to Albert V Mayrhofer [San Diego Parlor No. 208] for hi successful efforts to completely restore San Di ego de Alcala Mission, rededicated Septembe 13, 1931."

Petitioning California's representatives in th Federal Congress "to do all in their power t maintain the salaries of Government employe in their present status."

Extending "to all Native Sons of the Golde West . . . a most hearty and cordial invitatio

SETH MILLINGTON OF GRIDLEY, GRAND PRESIDENT OF THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST.

Eight Subordinate Parlors were, for good and sufficient reasons, relieved of their indebtedness to the Grand Parlor for fines, percapita, etc.

RESOLUTIONS APPROVED.

Expressing "regrets at the inability of Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez to be present and preside," and also expressing "best wishes for his speedy recovery and also the recovery of Mrs. Gonzalez."

Endorsing "the National Education Week movement of the National Education Association as a proper exercise for the Parlors of this Order to sponsor."

Petitioning "the Congress of the United States to submit the 'Repeal of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America' to attend the" Tenth Olympiad, to be held a Los Angeles City from July 20 to August 15 1932.

Endorsing and supporting "the 'Back to Good Times Movement," and to "assist in carrying it forward to complete success."

Extending thanks to all those who contributed to the success of the session and provided entertainment for the members of the Grand Parlor.

Thanking Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, "acting Grand President, for the able impartial and masterful manner in which he presided over the deliberations."

RESOLUTIONS REFERRED.

A resolution calling for appointment of a committee "to devise ways and means of discourag-ng the employment of Filipinos in all lines of ndustry," was referred to the California Joint mmigration Committee, with which the Order is dentified.

Resolutions, calling on the State Legislature o amend the California Alien Land Law so as o "fully correct beyond question the flimsy and lisgracefully widespread evasion of the law now prevalent in our State," and petitioning "the proper State authorities to amend the Fish and Game Laws of the State of California, to forbid he issuance of fishing permits to aliens ineligible to citizenship," were referred to the incoming Board of Grand Officers.

GRAND OFFICERS-ELECT.

At the election for grand officers May 19, 383 ballots were cast, and the following were elected:

Grand President, Seth Millington (Colusa No. 69).

Grand First Vice-president, Justice Emmet Seawell (Santa Rosa No. 28).

Grand Second Vice-president, Chas. A. Koenig (Golden Gate No. 29).

Grand Third Vice-president, Harmon D. Skillin (Castro No. 232).

Grand Secretary, John T. Regan (South San Francisco No. 157).

Grand Treasurer, John A. Corotto (San Jose No. 22).

Grand Marshal, W. B. O'Brien (Alameda No. 17).

Grand Inside Sentinel, Gam Hurst (Piedmont No. 120).

Grand Outside Sentinel, William A. Reuter Sepulveda No. 263).

Grand Trustees (in order of vote received), Jesse H. Miller (California No. 1), Eldred L. Meyer (Santa Monica Bay No. 267), John M. Burnett (San Jose No. 22), Henry S. Lyon (Placerville No. 9), Joseph J. McShane (Twin Peaks No. 214), Horace J. Leavitt (Mount Bally No. 37) and Charles H. Spengemann (Hesperian No. 237).

HARMON D. SKILLIN,
Elected Grand Third Vice-president.

They, with a proxy for Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez (Pacific No. 10), who automatically became the Junior Past Grand President, were installed by Past Grand John T. Newell, who was assisted by Past Grands Charles L. Dodge and William J. Hayes, and Clarence M. Hunt (Sacramento No. 1). Grand President Millington, following his installation, completed the Board of Grand Officers by the appointment of:

Leslie Maloche (Arrowhead No. 110) as Grand Organist.

Chester F. Gannon (Sunset No. 26) as Historiographer.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Services in memory of members of the Order who departed during the year were held the afternoon of May 16. Junior Past Grand President John T. Newell presided, and eulogies were delivered by Grand Trustee Jesse H. Miller, Henry S. Lyon (Placerville No. 9), Harmon D. Skillin (Castro No. 232), Past Grand Daniel A. Ryan and H. W. Amphlett (Redwood No. 66). Vocal selections were rendered by Grand Inside Sentinel W. B. O'Brien, accompanied by Grand Organist Leslie Maloche.

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

As an expression of sympathy for Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the Grand Parlor stood at attention for a moment just before the noon recess the opening day.

Dr. Herbert Eugene Bolton, head of the history department of the University of California, addressed the Grand Parlor May 16 on the accomplishments of the traveling history fellows.

Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson extended May 18 greetings on behalf of the Order of Native Daughters. Her enlightening remarks were applauded. She was accompanied by Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Junior Past Grand President Estelle M. Evans, Past Grand President Mamie G. Peyton and Carmelita Luhr (Aloha Parlor No. 106).

The outstanding feature of the session—at least, that is the writer's opinion,—was the unexpected—the talk May 19 of Rev. Thomas J. McKeon (Calistoga Parlor No. 86) who, contrary to his will, was prevailed on to address the Grand Parlor. He spoke from the heart, in plain language understood by all, and his admonitions contained much wholesome food for honest and unbiased thought. Too bad, for the Order's good, the whole membership of the Order were not assembled to hear him.

Past Grand Hubert R. McNoble entertained the Past Grands at supper at his home May 18. Dr. Charles W. Decker, elected Grand President in 1886, was among those assembled. After the feast the annual confab was on, and John T. Newell was welcomed as the "baby" member of the Past Grand Presidents Association.

The entertainment program, arranged by Stockton Parlor No. 7, was carried out as published in The Grizzly Bear for May.

PROSPECT OF GROWTH

SETH MILLINGTON, AFFILIATED WITH Colusa Parlor No. 69 and a resident of Gridley, Butte County, became the Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West May 19. At the urgent solicitation of the editor of The Grizzly Bear, on his return home from the Stockton Grand Parlor he prepared this statement, setting forth his idea of the Order and its prospect of growth. It should be read and thoroughly digested by every Native Son, for it contains most excellent suggestions—suggestions which, if put into effect, assure the growth and the permanency of the Order:

"The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, like all other fraternal societies, has reached the point where the ordinary appeals to eligible candidates do not bring about the old reaction. There is no question that the sun of the fraternal society has passed its zenith, and only those which have some special appeal, such as religion or love of country, are going to survive. Our Order is in the latter class, and the appeal that we make is not limited to the platitudes that are the stock-in-trade of the ordinary fraternal society, but goes deeper and makes its appeal to the love of the native land.

"It has been my thought for many years that it was a mistake for the Native Sons of the Golden West ever to have entered upon the field of the secret society. The only justification for our existence is as a patriotic historic society, and the idea of secret signs and passwords is irreconcilable with that thought.

"It is my belief that the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West will enter upon a great period of growth and prosperity just as soon as we abandon all of the secrecy, symbols, mummery and so-called mysticism of the fraternal society and come out into the open for what we really are and for what we have always been, an honorary historic society dedicated to the preservation of the beautiful and romantic history of California, to the marking with appropriate monuments of the spots where deeds of pioneer historic interest took place, to the preservation of the written record so the future generations may read and know.

"These thoughts are in full consonance with all the ideals of the Order and involve nothing more than the abandonment of all symbolic work, secret signs and passwords. It is my further thought that it might be appropriate to retain these signs, symbols and words, not as active parts of our procedure, but as a memory of the period in our existence when they were actually used. I further believe that the passwords should be retained, to be used on the infrequent occasion when it might be desired to make our meeting secret. I can see no objection to the open meeting for the ordinary transaction of business or initiations, although this, of course, would involve material changes in the oath, particularly eliminating the pledges of secrecy.

"With this statement of my idea of the Order and its prospect of growth, I am going to call upon the members to demonstrate that the pioneer spirit that developed this empire has not been lost in their sons, and that in this period of economic stress we can carry on the work of the Order and develop its influence by deeds, actions, and the enlarging of the membership.

"The Order came into existence largely by reason of the belief of its founder that the sons of California were the ones upon whom the duty of preserving the history of California would fall without burden and would confer a pleasure on them. That we have pursued the course for fifty-eight years with few deviations is shown by the achievements of the Order. From one end of the state to the other historic spots are marked with monuments, ancient structures of dons, padres and forty-niners have been reconstructed and preserved, largely through our efforts and almost always at our instigation.

"I am not overlooking the homeless children movement and the remarkable success in placing homeless children in childless homes that this Order has carried on for twenty-five years, nor the assistance that has accrued to the members through payment of sick benefits, and the host of other things that the Order has stood for and still stands for, but I regard all of these latter as side issues to the main purpose. Any Order with the charity to do so and the industry to carry it out could provide for homeless children. Dozens of fraternal societies provide sickness and disability benefits and death payments, and while any Order could dedicate itself to the proposition of preserving California's history, such an attempt would be an usurpation of the field that is ours as a birthright and this birthright is too dear to us to for one moment permit its neglect or allow anyone else to encroach upon the field of our endeavor.

"I want to assure the members of the Order that, while I have the above views of the future of the Order, and what it stands for, I do not propose to institute any radical changes, but at the next Grand Parlor, with the help of those who feel the same as I do, to propose such changes as are in line with the origin and destiny of the Order. I also believe that our ritual has too little reference to the period of the padres or of Spain and Mexico, and as a consequence does not reflect at all the pioneer period of the southland. There can be no question that the American period is the one with which we have the closest connection, being that of our own forebears, but it is equally true that the first civilization on the Pacific Coast was established by the Spanish discoverers and explorers. They made the original discoveries and the first explorations over a century before the first American crossed the Sierra. That period deserves a place in our work far greater than it now receives, and inasmuch as that period represents the pioneering of the south, I believe that the south would be drawn closer to the Order by enlarging on the activities that gave it the opportunity to be the wonderland that it is today.

"The work of dedicating public buildings will go on this year, probably to a greater extent than the last few years, as this activity places the Order before the public eye and is one of the opportunities to interest eligible Californians.

"I believe that the Grand Parlor which has just closed was a constructive one. There can be no question that the members came there more earnestly and sincerely desiring to do something constructive for the Order than has been true of many Grand Parlors, and demonstrated a strength of opinion in their own thoughts that was only equaled by the tolerance in considering the views of those opposed. And there is no question, in my mind, that we all returned to our homes firmly convinced that great strides had been made, and equally convinced that those who did not agree on details were just as sincere in their efforts.

"It is idle to talk of achieving anything without having that basic strength which large membership gives. Fifty thousand speak with twice the volume of twenty-five thousand, and provide double the means of carrying out the activities.

"The last thing in my desires would be to see the Order crowded with members who do not appreciate what it stands for, and I would very much prefer to see it stand still than to put on intensive drives to sign anyone who would put his name on an application blank. But there are literally thousands of native Californians eligible to join the Order who appreciate the beauties and the glories of their state and would contribute to its advancement if the agency be presented to them. Those are the kind of members that I would like to see in, and they exist by the thousands, unapproached and unsolicited, only waiting for the opportunity to become members. The reaching of that class, with the assistance of the members who want the Order to advance, will be my goal."

Native Daughters of the Golden West

OROVILLE—MAY 12 SAW THE REALization of a dream of twenty years, when Gold of Ophir No. 190 and Argonaut No. 8 N.S.G.W. dedicated their "forty-niner stone cabin" in which will be preserved the history and earlyday relics of the Golden State. Hundreds gathered to hear the program, arranged by the board of directors of the Butte County Pioneer Memorial Association, which is composed solely of members of the Parlors.

Cyril Macdonald was chairman of the day and Alta Baldwin led the community singing. Grand Trustee Florence Danforth-Boyle, president of the association's board of directors, told how the $10,000 project was financed. The histories of Gold of Ophir and Argonaut were related, respectively, by Irene Lund and George F. Jones Grand Marshal Irma Laird told of the objects and accomplishments of the Order of Native Daughters, and Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington spoke for the Order of Native Sons. Past Grand Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen paid tribute to the Pioneers, and Grand Second Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell, the main speaker of the day, gave an inspiring historical discourse.

The building was dedicated by the Native Sons, those participating being Grand First Vice Millington, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Second Vice Seawell, Grand Third Vice Chas. A. Koenig and Past Grand Fred H. Greely. Governor James Rolph Jr. was also in attendance. Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, unable to be present, sent this telegram: "Deeply regret my absence. May your influence always be beneficial to your community. Congratulations to the Native Daughters and Native Sons of Oroville."

The building is unique in design. It is constructed of native Butte County rock and will stand for centuries. Two large bronze plaques adorn the walls. One is an honor-roll of Pioneers and the other contains the names of well-wishers. For each name on the two rolls a "memorial brick" has been purchased. Officers and directors of the Butte County Pioneer Memorial Association are: Florence D. Boyle, president; Frank W. Boyle, secretary; Irene E. Lund, treasurer; W. H. Hibbard, Anna Bernhard and J. Emory Sutherland.

Begin the Day in Happy Spirit.

San Bruno—San Bruno No. 246 and visiting members from San Francisco, Santa Clara and San Mateo Counties welcomed Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson on her official visit May 13. The meeting-hall was prettily decorated with roses and multi-colored sweetpeas, and the pastel arrangement of the opening march was made uniform by colorful corsages of pansies.

In her address, the Grand President commended the officers and members of San Bruno on their splendid accomplishments. In conclusion she said: "Those of us who begin our day in a happy spirit with the will to do our work as best we can, will lay down to rest at the end of that day satisfied and happy—our work well done." Addresses were also made by Past Grand Mae Himes Noonan, founder of San Bruno; Grand Trustee Willow Borba, Supervising Deputy Clara Gairaud and District Deputy Hattie Kelley. Gifts were presented Mrs. Carlson and District Deputy Kelley by President Dolores Gilcrest. Delightful refreshments terminated this enjoyable occasion, leaving in the heart of San Bruno the memory of a most beloved Grand President whose kindliness and sweet sincerity endear her to the heart of every Native Daughter. The decorations and refreshments were under the direction of Edythe Knoles.—E.A.F.

Dual Birthday Party.

San Bernardino—Lugonia No. 241 had a dual birthday party May 11, celebrating the fifth institution anniversary of the Parlor and the birthday of Grand Trustee Florence Dodson-Schoneman, founder of Lugonia. The supper tables were beautifully decorated in spring flowers, and there were two birthday cakes; one, decorated in pink, was presented the "mother" of Lugonia, and the other, decorated in yellow, was presented the Parlor. Social Chairman Nola Fogler had charge of the dinner and the table arrangements.

At the meeting which followed the feast Mrs. Schoneman gave a splendid address, and plans were completed by the history and landmarks committee for marking the site of San Bernardino's first public building. Cards and a social hour concluded the evening. May 25 five candidates were initiated.

To Restore Landmark.

Susanville—In recognition of the Washington bicentennial, Susanville No. 243 planted at the "Old Fort" an evergreen tree which was dedicated to Lassen County Pioneers. Zella Mae Arnold, great-granddaughter of Governor Isaac Roop, builder of the fort in 1854, assisted President Maybelle Long in the ceremonies. The local Natives plan to restore this most important landmark in Lassen County for the housing of earlyday relics.

District Deputy Erma Gibson Haley, accompanied by thirty members of Nataqua No. 152 (Standish), visited Susanville April 19 and entertained the latter with a clever drama which made a decided hit. Refreshments completed a most enjoyable evening.

Outstanding Event.

Colusa—The official visit of Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson to Colus No. 194 was an outstanding event in local fraternal circles. Other grand officers attending were Grand Vice-president Anna Armstrong, Grand Trustees Florence Boyle and Edna Briggs, Past Grands Esther Sullivan and Dr. Louise Heilbron, District Deputy Vivian Hastings and Supervising Deputy Mary Meade. Twelve candidates were initiated and there were numerous presentations.

Previous to the meeting the visitors were guests at a largely attended banquet at which President Marjorie Buck presided. Speakers included Grand President Carlson, President Burton Smart of Colusa No. 69 N.S.G.W. and Governor Phil J. Humburg Jr. of Fred H. Greely N.S.G.W. Past Presidents Assembly. The drum corps of Colusa N.S.G.W., directed by P. J. Cook, also attended.

Mothers Entertained.

Salinas—Aleli No. 102 initiated two candidates May 12. Bridge followed, directed by Mrs. Paul Brindero, and refreshments were served at tables decorated with pink and blue flowers. May 26 the mothers were entertained. A musical program was directed by Mrs. Brindero, and a banquet was served by a committee headed by Mrs. Tillie Fry.

"Baby's" First Party.

Ontario—Ontario No. 251, the "baby" Parlor, had its first public social affair, a benefit card supper, April 21. Roses and sweetpeas were used in the decorations, and a tempting light supper was served. The committee in charge included Mms. John Baxter (chairman), Lemuel Graves, Irvin Kremer, Hubert Lucas.

The birthday anniversaries of Mms. Adele Serio Frankish and Dorothea Drew Lucas, members of the Parlor, were the motif for an enjoyable affair at the home of the former. Each was presented with a gift. District Deputy Genevieve Hiskey was a guest. Mrs. Frankish is the president of Ontario.

Grand President's Official Itinerary.

San Francisco—During the month of June, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

6th—Snow Peak No. 176, Truckee.
7th—Fern No. 123, Folsom.
11th—Dolores No. 169, San Francisco.

Scott Valley Pioneers Reminisce.

Etna—Eschscholtzia No. 112 had the pleasure of entertaining the older mothers of Scott Valley on Mothers Day. The program, arranged by District Deputy Ada Wilson, consisted of vocal numbers by Dolores McCrary, Lois Custer and Elvira Wilson, readings by Laura Chadbourne, Gladys Young and Laura Greene, and a minuet danced by Harriet Holzhauser, Rae Smith, Alma Quigley and Velma Smith. The accompanists were Ada Wilson, Eleanor Campbell, Evelyn Pitman and Grand Inside Sentinel Minna K. Horn. At the close of the program refreshments were served at tables attractively decorated by Anita Tucker with baskets of spring flowers. Interesting talks, reminiscent of early days in the valley, were given by some of the Pioneers present.

Guests of Native Sons.

Modesto—Members of Morada No. 199 were special guests of Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. at a get-together party. Over one hundred guests were present. An amateur entertainment was presented by members of Morada. Refreshments were served at midnight, and dancing and cards were enjoyed during the evening.

Drill Team Assists.

Sutter—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visited South Butte No. 226, Marysville No. 162 and Camp Far West No. 218 (Wheatland) in joint session here. Among the many other visitors in attendance were Grand Vice-president Anna Armstrong, Grand Trustees Edna Briggs and Willow Borba, Past Grands Dr Louise Heilbron and Esther Sullivan, Supervising Deputies Mary Meade and Cecelia Gomes District Deputies Josephine Norris and Bernice Simpson.

A class of candidates were initiated, the officiating officers, with Miss Doris McKiernan as president, being assisted in the floor work by a drill team wearing white dresses with red military capes lined in yellow. Grand President Carlson gave an interesting talk, and numerous gifts were presented. A spanish supper concluded the evening.

"The Minister's Mistake."

Sausalito—Twelve Parlors were represented at the official visit of Grand President Evelyn I Carlson to Sea Point No. 196. Among the guests were Grand Outside Sentinel Orinda Giannini Grand Trustees Anna Thuesen and Ethel Begley and Past Grand Emma G. Foley. Previous to the Parlor meeting the grand officers were guests at dinner.

The officers of Sea Point were complimented for their ritual work, gifts were presented the honored guests, and a comedy, "The Minister's Mistake," received hearty applause.

Prospective Citizens Entertained.

Santa Ana—Santa Ana No. 235 entertained the Pioneer Mothers of Orange County at an afternoon tea and program May 9. Mrs. Elizabeth Ross-Foote, descendant of Jacob Ross, one of California's earliest Pioneers, was awarded a handsome boquet for having longest resided in Orange County, and 88-year-old Mrs. Emerson the oldest in age, was also given a remembrance Refreshments were served from a table with handsome appointments, among them two silver tea urns, 125 years old, the property of Olive Seba. The committee in charge included Florence Watson, Estelle Dresser, Genevieve Hiskey Mae West, Olive Seba. President Marion Crum presided.

May 23 the Parlor entertained a class of prospective citizens with an americanization program. May 29 it joined with Santa Ana No. 265 N.S.G.W. in a picnic at Irvine Park. May 12 the thimble club had an all-day meeting at the home of Olive Witt; the members are making clothing for welfare work.

Appreciative.

Santa Cruz—Past Grand President Stella Finkeldey, chairman Grand Parlor Veterans Welfare Committee, received the following acknowledgment, which is self explanatory:

"I wish to acknowledge your kind letter of April 19th in which you give the following list of magazine subscriptions shortly to be sent to the Red Cross House of the Naval Hospital: 2 copies of 'Popular Mechanics,' 1 copy 'Time,' 1 copy of 'Western Flying.' They are exactly the choices of magazines that will reach a wide circle of interests here. It is with the greatest pleasure that we look forward to the subscriptions. Be very sure that we shall take the greatest possible care of these files as they build up so that as many as possible may have access to them Pleae accept our heartfelt thanks for this splendid gift Very sincerely yours, MRS. MARY WYSOR KEEFER, field director, by Mrs. Arthur Gleason, recreation worker."

"Loyalty Cook Book."

Santa Rosa—In recognition of its birthday Santa Rosa No. 217 had a dinner May 18. Following the feast two candidates were initiated There was a large attendance and the evening was greatly enjoyed.

The "Loyalty Cook Book," prepared by Grand Trustee Willow Borba and sponsored by the Parlor, will soon be ready for distribution. It contains over a thousand recipes, many of them favorites of Native Daughters throughout the state. Funds realized from the book's sale will go toward Santa Rosa's Loyalty Pledge for the Home.

Gorgeous Decorations.

Chico — Elaborate entertainment honored Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson when she officially visited Annie K. Bidwell No. 168. Gorgeous decorations, in which quantities of flowers and greenery were used, were a feature. Three candidates were initiated. An attractive program was directed by Olive Pearl, several presentations were made, and refreshments were served under the supervision of Josephine Alexander. Among the many visitors were Grand Trustees Edna Briggs and Florence Beebe, Past Grands Dr. Louise Heilbron and Esther Sullivan, Supervising Deputy Cora Hintz, District Deputies Edna Brown, Alice Bass and Mary Meade.

The Parlor has voted to co-operate in requesting eating places of the state to advertise California products during the Olympic games.

Treasury Enriched.

Sierraville—A bicentennial affair given by Imogen No. 134 was greatly enjoyed by many. A play, "Eaglesfeather," short playlets and a flag drill made up the program. The drill seemed to be of special interest to the audience. Dancing and refreshments followed. The returns from this affair added a large sum to the Parlor treasury. A party was later given by the members of Imogen in honor of those who helped prepare for the bicentennial. Modern and old-fashion dances were featured, and refreshments were served.

Interesting Letter From Veteran.

Stockton—Caliz de Oro No. 206 sponsored a spring dance May 7, the proceeds going to the homeless children fund. At the May 3 meeting a very interesting letter from George Samuelson, a world war veteran in the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Livermore adopted by the Parlor, was read. A committee was named to arrange for an evening bridge party at the home of Henrietta Quevillon. The evening concluded with games and light refreshments arranged for by the social committee.

Charming Party for Brides.

Bakersfield—Paying honor to Pioneer Mothers of California and Kern County, El Tejon No. 239 sponsored a delightful party at Jastro Park May 15. Mrs. Ralph Sanders, chairman of the arrangements committee, welcomed the guests, an interesting program was presented and refreshments were served.

May 20 the Parlor initiated four candidates, and had a charming party for the recent brides—Jean Helling-Landes, Margaret Stockton-LaVelle, Mayme Efird-Towne, Bessie Wible-Walker—and two members who will be June brides—Margaret Stramler, Juanita Avery. Each was presented with a gift. A country-store card party, directed by the past presidents, was held May 25, and the handmade quilt donated by President Gladys Cooper was awarded.

State Flag Given Library.

Fullerton—April 25, Grace No. 242 presented a California State (Bear) Flag to the Placentia Public Library, the program being in charge of the history and landmarks committee, Carrie Ford chairman. Nellie Cline gave the history of the flag, and the presentation was made by President Mattie Edwards. Lucanna McFadden, chairman of the library board of trustees, accepted the flag. Within the next few weeks the Parlor will place a marker on the site of Portola's camp, near Brea.

The sewing circle of No. 242 spent a busy day May 13 with Erna Watts, hostess. Lucanna McFadden May 20 sponsored a public card party; it was a lovely affair, and netted a nice sum for the Loyalty Pledge. May 27 was pioneer and oldtimers day; Grace was hostess at the Ebell clubhouse, furnishing a noonday luncheon, which was followed by a program and visiting. It was a very enjoyable occasion.

Kitchen Shower for Bride.

Alturas—Alturas No. 159 was hostess May 5 to a delegation from Mount Lassen No. 215 (Bieber). After the business session husbands and "boy friends" joined the party and bridge was enjoyed. Refreshments were served and then Eleanor Walls Asher, the Parlor's latest bride, was given a kitchen shower. Alturas is planting a memory garden in the Civic Club grounds.

The Parlor recently sent a box of beautiful "adoption clothes" to the Central Homeless Children Committee. A delegation from Alturas visited Mount Lassen No. 215 May 26, and June 1 Susanville No. 243 and Nataqua No. 152 (Standish) will be visited.

Teacher-Members Honored.

Marysville—Marysville No. 162 has participated monthly in historical programs featuring Washington's bicentennial. Educational week was observed with a program to which Gertrude Cable, E. Lunney Ryan, Agnes W. Meade and Past Grand Esther Sullivan contributed interesting addresses. Grand Marshal Irma Laird was a May 11 visitor.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

FIGURE-MOLDING IS CHIC FOR SUMmertime in foundation garments. New styles have made their appearance and new fabrics and new trimmings combine in a variety of models never equaled for beauty. This season has brought with it many subtle changes in the smart silhouette, and modern corsetry recognizes all these tendencies and gives us the correct foundation garment for each and every one. The aim is not so much to change the figure, as to mold it—to revive, as far as possible, youthful lines by controlling the diaphragm and lifting the bust.

Conspicuous among the newer style trends in the new corsetry are: high-waisted, accentuated bust lines in girdles and brassieres, and combinations even in models for the full figure, backless evening combinations for all; new fastenings, including covered slide metal fasteners; short lacings at side or back to give nipped-in effect; two-way stretch elastic in every type of one-piece garment as well as girdles. Unquestionably the greatest improvement made in corsetry has to do with the two-way elastic feature. It gives greater resiliency and durability, stays in place on the body, assuring perfect figure-control, and carries with it the assurance of non-shrinkage after washing.

Then we have the new garments that are described as something between lingerie and corset types, due to the fact that more and more women are wearing their foundation garments next to the body and call for materials that can be laundered as readily as lingerie.

The new modes give the blouse and skirt a high fashion rank. No one is above being economical these days, yet every woman should hesitate before sacrificing her chic for the sake of a few pennies. A wise way to economize is to make one's own, and continue to have a wardrobe made up of the newest and smartest styles. One skirt and several blouses in different colors and materials will provide several entire changes. Skirts are straighter, with fullness placed low, have slim hiplines, sensible and becoming lengths. Jackets are shorter, high, and trim of waist. There are broad-shoulder, hip-length types, nipped in at the waist.

A new evening jacket is high necked and collarless, with enormous sleeves. Molded bust-lines through surplice closings, criss-cross collars, drapery, directoire types are new for evening.

Some of the highlights of the new mode are: higher waists through wide belts, cuffs above the belt on skirts, skirts built up onto the bodice, capes rivaling jackets, cape effects on jackets, coats and frocks for every occasion.

Another concession to "readjustment" days is the use of checked and plaid gingham, pique, wooly looking cottons, printed voiles. All the new cottons have "surface interest"—rough ribbed and crinkly effects in silk and wool, mesh fabrics, stripes and polka dots—and are worn for almost every occasion.

You will become devoted to the scarf, both as a collar and as a separate issue, and combine colors courageously and feel more than pleased with the striking results.

Choosing the new summer weaves is more a matter of "feeling" than seeing, on account of rough-and-ready surfaces. Cotton meshes, lacy woolens and seersucker are a few of the open-work weaves. In nubby surfaces there are tweed and ratine effects. Heavier silks have a decided pebbled surface. Semi-sheer dull crepes are noteworthy in both formal day and night modes.

Again this summer we are leaning to linen as the ideal fabric for warm weather clothes. White and blue continue to be in great favor, being shown for all types of summer things.

Above the waistline you find the new things—draped necklines and bloused sleeves. A ruffled blouse of embroidered batiste has a pleated frill around its wide rever. Pretty collar, cuffs and vestee are made of organdy, which just sits upon the shoulders with its ends looped over and the cuffs tied on. As for the vestee, it will do complimentary things to the suit, made single or double breasted. A bow can be used instead of a blouse under a suit.

The new silk organdie that will be seen everywhere this summer is a little more sophisticated than its cotton sister and will be welcomed for evening wear, as well as for more gala occasions. A frock of printed or silk organdie with simple bodice and long, graceful skirt, worn with a little fitted jacket, will, no doubt, prove to be one of the coming season's successes.

A dress of the smartest of printed silk organdie is plaid, in a bold design of yellow, orange, brown. The skirt reaches to the instep, and is flaring. With the dress is worn a short-fitted jacket of chocolate-colored silk with a collar cut in points, and with points on the cuffs of the very brief sleeves.

Satin is popular for evening frocks, despite the insistance of the mode on frocks of the informal type for evening. Cut and line are very important in the new evening frocks, with seams and empiecements used both as decorative treatment and to define the silhouette. Much satin is being shown here, for the satin gown, when well done, has an air of distinction and can be really regal.

Another very new evening combination is of a lovely glowing shade of ivory satin and pale tobacco-colored satin. The deeper tone is used for facing on the frills and a fitted jacket. The dress has a softly draped bodice, and a diagonal closing edged with a circular cut frill which tapers off at the waistline. All edges of the jacket are bordered with zibeline fur.

There are prints and prints now. In a new kind, the effect is sort of shimmering, like the good old moire silk.

Afternoon slippers are still of the pump style, which is perhaps the only one of all the shoes that has not been cut-out. There are also thin strapped sandals for this type of footwear. Dainty kid and patent open-work shoes make the wearing of special stockings necessary. These are made without reinforced soles or toes and are fragile but better looking.

SAN FRANCISCO

A LARGE GROUP OF NATIVE DAUGHters, including grand officers and representatives of twenty-five Subordinate Parlors, attended the Mothers Day breakfast at the Home, May 8. The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers. Past Grands Ariana W. Stirling and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron were the hostesses. Past Grand Emma Gruber-Foley presented numerous birthday remembrances to Past Grand Dr. Mariana Bertola.

Tributes to mothers were paid in addresses by Past Grands Stirling and Genevieve Baker, and Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson. Selections were rendered by Ann Godfrey, Katherine McLean and Isabelle Theirbault. Sixteen young members of Coloma Parlor No. 212, captained by Louise Finch, journeyed from Sacramento to stage a May Day drill which won enthusiastic applause.

In honor of her mother, Sadie Winn-Brainard (Califia No. 22), Katherine Jones (Califia No. 22) of Sacramento presented to the Home a beautiful bronze plaque depicting a Pioneer Mother and her babes. Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler informed the assemblage that the "Mother" Parlor of the Order of Native Daughters, Ursula No. 1 of Jackson, Amador County, had not forgotten Mothers Day, and had sent to Past Grand Heilbron, the "mother" of the Loyalty Pledge, a check for $280, thus placing Ursula in the hundred-percent list of Parlors.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS DOINGS.

Complimenting the San Francisco Glee Club of seventy-four members and Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson gave a bridge luncheon at the Native Daughter Home April 30. Following the lunch, which was served at tables beautifully decorated in orchid and pink, cards were enjoyed and attractive prizes were awarded the lucky players. For the past two years Grand Organist Horgan has personally instructed the members of the glee club, and the splendid musical numbers presented at the many Parlors have added greatly to the pleasure of the Grand President's visits.

Success again crowned the efforts of the card committee of Alta Parlor No. 3 on the occasion of the bridge-whist party May 6. Taxing the auditorium of the beautiful Home building to capacity, the players vied happily for the many attractive prizes. The dutch auction of home-made cakes, conducted by Frank McDonald, was quite spirited and most profitable. The next activity will be a bridge-luncheon June 10. May L. MacDonald, chairman of the committee, is being assisted by Grand Trustee Annie C. Thuesen and the officers of the Parlor. Alta has high hopes of completing its Loyalty Pledge for the 1932 Grand Parlor.

A dinner to celebrate the thirty-sixth anniversary of La Estrella Parlor No. 89 was held May 12 and was attended by many members and their friends, including District Deputy Agnes Ryan. The tables were beautifully decorated with choice seasonal flowers in pastel shades. Interesting talks and games made this a most delightful affair. Much merriment was created by the reading of several telegrams supposed to have been sent by persons in the public eye. June 3 the Parlor will give a card party at the Home. Georgia Thierbach is sponsoring the affair.

Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 had its monthly card party April 27. Members and their families attended, also the members of Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S.G.W. The card parties are held the fourth Wednesday of each month for the benefit of the Loyalty Pledge. Refreshments are served after the games. May 11 Mothers Day was celebrated in a befitting manner. The members were seated at a large table beautifully decorated with flowers from home gardens.

Mothers of the members of Presidio Parlor No. 148 were the guests of honor of their daughters at a most enjoyable mothers night program May 5. Sadie Romick headed the committee in charge. A program was rendered by the O'Neill sisters, through the courtesy and kindness of Sister McCormick. Bridge and other games were provided for, and every mother and nearly every member went home with gifts and prizes. District Deputy May Noble was in attendance.

Guadalupe Parlor No. 153 celebrated public schools week by presenting April 28 an appropriate program. Miss Mary F. Mooney (Darina No. 114), director of texts and libraries of the San Francisco school department, was the speaker of the evening and chose for her topic "The Place of California History in the School Curriculum." Slides of early California and San Francisco were shown. Musical numbers were rendered by Maude Daley (James Lick No. 220) and Etta Morris (Alta No. 3). A "Toast to the Flag" was given by Maude Daley. The committee in charge of the affair was May McCarthy, Pauline Des Roches and Mary O'Connell.

May 9, Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 entertained Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, and the large attendance of members indicated their pleasure in being privileged to meet with her. The numerous visitors included several grand officers. The hall and banquetroom were beautified by decorations carrying out the Washington bicentennial motif. The work of all the officers was highly praised by the Grand President. A novel idea was the rendition of an original song of welcome as Mrs. Carlson was escorted to a seat of honor. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Past President Pauline Gaetjen was chairwoman of the evening. May 23, Golden Gate celebrated mothers night.

Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola, chairman of the Grand Parlor Home Committee, was tendered a surprise birthday reception at the May 8 Home breakfast. A shower of birthday greetings evidenced that the beloved Past Grand has a host of friends.

NATIVE SON DOINGS.

In observance of the Washington bicentennial, Stanford Parlor No. 76 sponsored "A Night in '76" May 10. The program included vocal and instrumental music and vaudeville numbers. A. J. Cloud, deputy school superintendent, was the main speaker.

The ninth institution anniversary of Bret Harte Parlor No. 260 was celebrated by a delegation of members attending the leaping-frog classic at Angels Camp, Calaveras County. It was a fitting place to celebrate, the site having been made famous by the Parlor's namesake, Bret Harte, the author. No. 260's drum corps paraded in the main event, and received much favorable comment. Those who participated are enthusiastic in their praise of Angels Camp hospitality.

THE LOST CITY

(SARAH HAMMOND KELLY.)

Towers of ivory, roofs of jade,
Sapphire gate in a wall of gold;
Bright was the city our fair dreams made,
Ere we grew fearful and tired and old.

Riot of color and breath of Spring,
Tulip and pansy and lilac tree,
Petals brushed by a butterfly's wing,
Cooled by a breeze from the silver sea;

Sails of silk by a pearl-white beach,
Shallow stream where the rushes lean,
Purple of grape and rose of peach,
Flash of feathers, crimson and green;

Towers of ivory, roofs of jade,
Crumbled and broken and gray with mold,
Hidden in forests where dim trails fade,
Now we've grown fearful and tired and old.

Native Sons of the Golden West

DR. FRANK I. GONZALEZ (PACIFIC No. 10) of San Francisco, Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, did not, as was his right, preside at the Fifty-fifth Grand Parlor, in session at Stockton last month. Fate denied him that honor, which would have fully recompensed him for the many years of faithful service devoted to the Order. While traveling south to visit Parlors there, he and his wife were severely injured in an auto accident near Santa Barbara, May 4, and they have since been confined in a hospital in that city, where they have been given every attention by Santa Barbara No. 116 members.

At the opening of the Stockton Grand Parlor, Grand First Vice-president Seth Millington, who presided, announced that he had just wired Grand President Gonzalez that next year he would extend him the privilege of opening the Fifty-sixth Grand Parlor. The following telegram was received from Grand President Gonzalez: "My dear brothers, words are inadequate to express the feeling I have in my heart at this time, being denied the privilege, honor and pleasure of presiding at this Grand Parlor. I send congratulations, and best wishes for a most successful session."—C.M.H.

Oratorical Contest.

Elk Grove—A large assemblage gathered at the Elk Grove high school May 16 for the eighteenth annual oratorical contest sponsored by Elk Grove No. 41. One of the rules of the contest is that all the orations must be concerned with California's past history or future development. The judges were Justice Hugh L. Preston, Francis Cochrane (Ramona No. 109) and Mrs. Maud Keltner.

First honors went to Jack Bitzer, whose topic was "California's Human Sequoias," and he was presented the trophy-cup by Miss June Grove, winner of last year's contest. Other contestants, and their subjects, were: Elmarine Latta, "History of the Presbyterian Church;" Mary Veach, "The Beauties and Resources of Yosemite;" Wilma Stewart, "Fremont;" Laverle Elam, "Yosemite;" Nels Evans, "The Vigilantes;" Laverl Carlisle, "The Telegraph in California;" Ruth Taylor, "The Covered Wagon." Each was given a present by President Krull of Liberty No. 213 N.D.G.W.

During the evening the high school band, directed by Earl Nichols, rendered several selections, and Harold Sassman and Lowe Coons were heard in vocal numbers. An interesting feature was the showing of oldtime relics.

Picnic.

Auburn—Auburn No. 59 and Auburn No. 233 N.D.G.W. will give a picnic June 12. Guests will include all residents who came here prior to 1875. The joint committee of arrangements includes: No. 59—E. H. Gum, P. W. Smith, J. G. Walsh and Guy Lukens. No. 233—Mms. Wm. Macy, J. A. Livingston, J. A. Shields and M. Beemis, and Miss Oveta Walsh.

Memorial Services.

Downieville—In recognition of Memorial Day, Downieville No. 92 and Naomi No. 36 N.D.G.W. sponsored memorial services May 29. Following a program the members of the Parlors, joined by the schoolchildren and citizens generally, proceeded to the cemetery, where the graves of departed members, as well as those of soldiers, were decorated.

Barstow Initiation.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead No. 110 had a supper May 25 and then heard the reports of its delegates to the Stockton Grand Parlor. May 28 the Parlor initiated a class of candidates at Barstow. Following the ceremonies, which were conducted by President Lynn A. Reed and his assistant officers, a banquet was served. Arrangements are well under way for Arrowhead's annual roundup, in June. Secretary "Bob" Brazelton was an onlooker at Stockton.

Pioneers Entertained.

Oroville—The fourteenth annual entertainment for the Pioneers given by Argonaut No. 8 and Gold of Ophir No. 190 N.D.G.W. was largely attended. Members of the Parlors in earlyday costumes greeted the guests and President Alice Cundy of No. 190 extended a welcome. Quantities of flowers adorned the banquetroom and the tables. A program was presented by Ramilda Ralph, Betty Boyle, Earl Ward Jr., Harriet Jacoby, Earl Ward Sr., Rosa Crum, Frank O'Brien, Bill Palmer, Addie Roderick, Grand Trustee Florence Boyle, Jim Hedge and Leota Brinkerhoff.

Among the Pioneers, and the years of their arrival in California, were C. L. Duhem 1852, Mrs. Caroline Reagan 1853, Edwin Skinner 1854, Mrs. Jennie LaPoint 1857. Pioneer Natives, and the years of their birth, included Mrs. Romeo Breeden 1849, Mrs. Mary Abbott 1853, B. F. Darby 1854, Miss Fredericka Braden 1854, William Mobley 1855, J. H. Hillman 1856, James Nisbet 1857, Mrs. Estella Russell 1858, Fred Faul 1859. Most of the latter were born, or have lived the greater part of their lives, in Butte County. All the guests, oldtimers and natives, related reminiscences. Mayor Sam Marks gave an interesting talk, and First Vice-president Frank O'Brien of Argonaut bade the guests farewell until the next entertainment for their pleasure.

Enjoys The Grizzly Bear.

The following came to The Grizzly Bear from Assemblyman Percy G. West (Sunset No. 26) of Sacramento: "I inclose my check for a renewal of my subscription to The Grizzly Bear, which I have read for twenty-five years and enjoy very much. 'Happenings of Fifty Years Ago,' by Thomas R. Jones [Sacramento No. 3], itself is well worth the subscription price."

Annual Reunion.

Madera—Madera No. 130 had its annual picnic reunion at the site of the Savage monument, and there was a large attendance of members, their families and friends. County Treasurer William Hughes spoke on the history of Madera County, relating first-hand information, and a baseball game provided recreation. The committee in charge included Kenneth Hughes, Fred Barnett, Cornelius Noble and Joseph Barcroft.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1932, as follows, together with their membership figures May 20, 1932:

Parlor.	Jan. 1	May 20	Gain	Loss
Ramona No. 109	1088	1085	....	3
South San Francisco No. 157	822	812	....	10

Rewarded With "Outpost of Empire."

Pleasanton—In an essay contest sponsored by Pleasanton No. 244, Miss Mildred Sorensen was declared the winner. Her subject was "Thomas Starr King." As a reward, she was presented with "Outpost of Empire," written by Dr. Herbert Eugene Bolton, head of the University of California's history department, and dealing with the history of San Francisco. Miss Blair Logue, second in the contest, was also presented with a California history book.

Anniversary Observed.

Calistoga—Calistoga No. 86 observed its forty-sixth institution anniversary May 2. Past Presidents E. E. Light, A. Cavagnaro, W. D. Tucker, J. C. Siemsen, F. Pocai and A. M. Emerick were in the chairs, the former presiding. The hall was packed, a large delegation from Saint Helena No. 53 being among the crowd. The evening's feature was a talk on "Old Times and Old Timers" by N. F. Coombs (Napa No. 62). A fine supper was served, and instrumental and vocal selections were rendered. It was a memorable night.

The Parlor has appointed a committee to arrange a week-end home-coming for former Calistogans. The townspeople will be asked to cooperate, and it is believed the event can be made a long-to-be-remembered civic day.

Mothers Day Entertainment.

Redwood City—Redwood No. 66 was host May 5 to Bonita No. 10 N.D.G.W., their families and friends at a Mothers Day entertainment. Past Grand Fletcher A. Cutler was the principal speaker, and others who contributed to the program were the firemen's orchestra, L. W. Fowler director, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hohberger, Kendall Towne, Adolph Zanetti, Harry and Kenneth Mollenhaer, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Phillips and Duncan Reynard.

Dancing and cards were provided, and a supper was served. The arrangements committee consisted of Edwin Holmquist (chairman), C. M. Junker, C. Rockwell, S. E. Marcus and L. Lodi.

N.S. FORMER JUSTICE PASSES.

San Francisco Judge Frank M. Angellotti, former Chief Justice of the California Supreme Court, died May 23 survived by a wife and a daughter. He was a native of Marin County, affiliated with Mount Tamalpais Parlor No. 64 N.S.G.W. (San Rafael) and frequently represented the Parlor in the Grand Parlor.

EXPERIMENTAL FOREST ESTABLISHED.

The Swayne Mountain experimental forest, the first to be established in California by the Federal Agricultural Department forest service, has been set aside in the Lassen National Forest. The 6,000 acres will be used as a laboratory for forestry experiments and research. Later on, one or more portions will be selected and designated as "natural forests" and will be left unmolested for the purpose of scientific study.

Auto Output Declined—World auto output in 1931, including trucks and buses, totaled 3,042,069, which is 1,084,401 units less than the 1930 output, according to an announcement of the Federal Commerce Department.

Bicentennial Quarter—As a feature of the nation-wide George Washington bicentennial, the Federal Treasury Department will issue a new George Washington quarter-dollar.

Visalia Rodeo—Visalia, Tulare County, will stage a rodeo June 3-5.

In Memoriam

FRANCES E. WESTOVER.

Whereas, The Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to take from our midst a dear sister and friend, Sister Frances Westover,

Resolved, That Stirling Parlor No. 146 N.D.G.W. extends through this committee its sincere sympathy to the bereaved husband, Mr. W. E. Westover, and other members of the family; be it further resolved, that a copy of this letter be sent to the husband, one to the local paper, one be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, and a copy be forwarded to The Grizzly Bear.

Yours in P.D.F.A.,

MARGARET M. DELP,
VERA LAEDERICH,
ADA ERICSSON,
Committee.

Pittsburg, May 5, 1932.

JOHN FISHER AMES.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His divine wisdom, to remove from our midst and associations our highly esteemed and beloved brother, John Fisher Ames; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Ames, Sebastopol Parlor No. 143 N.S.G.W. mourns the loss of one of its loyal and faithful members, one who ever held seriously those cardinal virtues of our Order. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we will miss our departed brother, nevertheless the memory of his associations will ever remain fresh in our memory, and that we extend the hand of sympathy to the bereaved family in this, their hour of sorrow, and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this meeting, and that a copy be sent to the family of our departed brother, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Sebastopol, May 6, 1932.

ANNIE FENNON.

After a life of devotion to family and friends, it has been the wish of He who knoweth all things best to take to that heavenly home our beloved sister, Annie Fennon.

The services of Annie Fennon to Angelita Parlor No. 92 N.D.G.W. are a bright spot in our history, the passing of our sister is a loss to the community in which she lived, and to our Parlor. And it is hereby resolved, that her beautiful character, filled with good deeds and kindly thoughts, will always live in our memories.

"Sleep on, dear heart, such lives as thine
Have not been lived in vain
But shed an influence rare, divine,
On lives that here remain."

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

THROUGH THE EFFORTS OF A COMmittee appointed by Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., the attention of Governor James Rolph Jr. has been called to the condition of the Pico mansion at Whittier, and the restoration of the famous Pico blue ash tree at the doorway of the landmark has recently been completed under the direction of D. G. Milbrath of the State Department of Agriculture. The big spreading tree, planted in 1830, has undergone extensive pruning and surgery estimated to prolong its life far beyond the century mark. Steps have also been taken to perpetuate the tree by guarding young sprouts to supplant the parent, though this will not be necessary now for many years.

The Pico mansion, home of the last Mexican governor of California and at one time a thirty-room adobe house, was the scene of many tradition-making festivities. The ash tree, a splendid spectacle for the tourist, unusual in size and beauty as well as in historical associations, guards the entrance to the historic house.

All Natives and other lovers of California are interested in such historic old places as the Pico mansion, and there are but a few of these old adobes left. Attention must be given this one soon, as the building is crumbling. It has been the property of the State of California for eighteen years.—J. Harvey McCarthy.

LET'S ALL BE PEPTOMISTS.

The Olympiad song, "On To California," dedicated to Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. by the composer, Louise Graeser, and being sung at numerous functions by Sophia Stewart, has been most favorably received. Copies may be obtained from any member of the Parlor. No. 124 had many visitors May 4, including President Betty Saunders (Verdugo No. 240), Grand Trustee Florence Schoneman and Past Grand President Margaret Grote-Hill. Jennie Raymond proposed organization of a swimming class, and Irene Eden and Peggy Ambler spoke on the opening of the Olympic swimming-pool. The card party May 11, Olinda Kirby chairman, was largely attended.

"A pessimist," says President Gertrude Allen, "is one who sits down and says 'It can't be done.' An optimist says 'Everything is wonderful and it can be done,' then he sits down and waits for someone to do it. The peptomist says 'It can be done,' then he rolls up his sleeves and does it. Let's all be peptomists!" Los Angeles' June calendar includes: 1st, election officers. 8th, card party, last of bridge tournament. 15th, initiation. 22nd, no meeting account Grand Parlor. 29th, all nations dinner dance—a novel idea; sports or informal dress for the occasion; excellent food served by Edna Holcomb.

ANNIVERSARY STAG BARBECUE.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. has made great preparations for a stag barbecue to be held June 12 at Glen Oaks, Glendale, in recognition of its forty-fifth institution anniversary. Walter Slosson, in charge, will have the assistance of Ray Rehart, Charles Gassagne, John Stahl, the Drouet "gang" and Fred Staebler. Plenty of sports, food galore and other attractions are promised. All Native Sons are invited, but reservations must be made in advance through Secretary John V. Scott.

June 3 the Parlor will elect officers for the July-December term, June 10 will be initiation night, and June 17 President Chandos Bush will give his delayed talk on "Immigration." June 7, through the kindness of J. Harvey McCarthy, Superior Judge Ruben S. Schmidt will present United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags to the Carthay Center high school.

ANNIVERSARY LUNCHEON.

One of the most interesting meetings of the year for Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. was that of May 17. A sort of reciprocity luncheon was enjoyed with the members of the executive board of the Euterpe Opera Reading Club, of which two members of the Parlor, President Gertrude Tuttle and Mrs. Ora E. Evans, are officers. A delightful program was provided by Chairman Florence Irish, who also belongs to Euterpe, numbers being contributed by Harriet Ware and Mary Teitsworth. Chairman Lela Tabor of the homeless children committee was authorized to keep an album of babies under her supervision.

In recognition of the Parlor's birthday anniversary a bridge luncheon was held May 26 at the home of Mrs. Earl Osborn. Mrs. Matilda J. Murdock was general chairman of arrangements, Mrs. Wilfred L. Chapman directed the program, and President Tuttle headed the guest hostesses.

BANQUET, TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY.

The annual banquet of Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W., in celebration of its institution anniversary, will be held June 6. Governor James Rolph Jr. will be the guest of honor, and a fine entertainment program has been arranged. Invitations have been sent the grand officers and prominent persons throughout the state. Reservations, at two dollars per plate, must be made with Bernard G. Hiss, chairman of the arrangements committee, 622 Hollingsworth building, Sixth and Hill streets. Other members of the committee are Lucien Griffin, Martin Maza, C. L. Patterson, Fred Youell, Jack Gorman, Everett Beesley, James E. Kirby, Henry G. Bodkin and Municipal Judge Leo Aggeler.

The initiation May 2 by Hollywood of the Superior Judge Joseph P. Sproul class of candidates drew a large crowd. Henry G. Bodkin presided during good of the order, and among the speakers were Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, District Deputy Al Cron, Les Shellback, J. E. McCurdy, Philip D. Molen and Judge Sproul. John J. Ford, son of the lately deceased W. Joseph Ford, spoke for the initiates, six in number. Refreshments were served at the meeting's close.

SYMPHONIES UNDER THE STARS.

The opening of Hollywood Bowl's eleventh annual season of "symphonies under the stars" has been set for July 5. The concerts will run continuously for eight weeks and will close August 26, according to Glenn M. Tindall, manager of the bowl. Every effort will be made, says the management, to make the season the greatest in bowl history.

Parlor No. 264 N.S.G.W. was most successful, 110 couples having a splendid time. The next dance will be given June 11 at Masonic Temple, 234 South Brand boulevard, under the supervision of the same capable joint committee headed by Nan Hutchinson and Harvey Gillett.

District Deputy Ruth Ruiz visited Verdugo May 10, and at the meeting's close refreshments were served at the home of First Vice-president Vera Carlson. In keeping with the Olympics beautification project, the Parlor is planting a lot on Brand boulevard.

HUGE SUCCESS.

Ocean Park—The class initiation May 9 sponsored by Santa Monica Bay Parlor No 267 N.S.G.W. in honor of Grand President Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, who could not attend because of an auto accident that overtook him enroute, was a huge success. There was a very large crowd, every Parlor in the southland being well represented, Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116 sending an extra-large delegation. All present attached their signatures to a greetings-parchment which was delivered to Grand President Gonzalez.

Nineteen candidates were initiated, they being supplied by Ramona No. 109, Santa Barbara No. 116, Sepulveda No. 263, Glendale No. 264, Santa Ana No. 265 and Santa Monica Bay No. 267. The ritual was most creditably exemplified by No. 267's officers, with Claude J. Wiseman as president and J. E. McCurdy as marshal, and at the conclusion of the ceremonies Past Grand William I. Traeger delivered a splendid address for the benefit of the initiates. Among the many other speakers were Past Grand Herman C. Lichtenberger, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, Grand Organist Leslie Maloche, District Deputies A. C. Dinsmore, Al Cron, Edward E. Baldwin and Walter E. Hiskey. At the meeting's conclusion refreshments were served and an entertainment program was presented.

PLAQUE HONORING PIONEER DEDICATED.

Long Beach—The annual observance of Mothers Day by Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. at Houghton Park May 12 was largely attended. Luncheon was served on artistically decorated tables by a committee consisting of District Deputy Clara Fay (chairman), President Violet T. Henshilwood, Past President Daisy T. Hansen and First Vice-president Zella L. Hodgedon. A sincere welcome was extended the mother-guests by Charter President Kate McFadyen. A program was presented.

After the luncheon the bronze plaque in honor of Mrs. Eliza Donner-Houghton, referred to in The Grizzly Bear for May, was dedicated. The inscription reads: "In memory of Eliza Donner Houghton, member of Donner Party 1846. Dedicated May 12, 1932, by Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W." The plaque is a gift to the Parlor from Sadie Winn-Brainard (Califia No. 22) of Sacramento. Speakers included President Hensilwood, who presented the plaque, Miss Eliza Houghton, Grand Trustee Florence D. Schoneman, and Park Superintendent Peter Mohrbacker, who accepted the gift.

Long Beach's card party May 5, with Eleanor Johnson in charge, was greatly enjoyed, and the cooked-food sale May 7, Alice Waldow chairman, netted a neat sum. Recent meetings of the Parlor's thimble club have been held at the homes of Kate McFadyen, Daisy T. Hansen and Genevieve Dalton.

TO ROUND UP ELIGIBLES.

San Pedro—During June and July Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. will round up eligibles and hopes to add many to its membership-roll. A noontime tamale dinner was served at the Y.W.C.A. May 24, and in June, at the same time and place, an enchilada feast will be served.

WORTHY, BUT POOR, FAMILY ADOPTED.

Ocean Park—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. celebrated May 2 its fourth institution anniversary, and all but eighteen of its entire membership were in attendance. District Deputy Flora Holy and the senior past presidents were guests of honor. Active in arranging for the party were Charter President Rosalie F. Hyde, Past Presidents Reta Smith, Mary Stevens, Joey Denton, Anna Pierce and Mary Meyer, and Treasurer Hazel McCreary.

Chairman Marie Barnes of the homeless children committee announced a benefit card party, the afternoon of June 6 at Fuller Hall. A very interesting program was presented under the direction of Hazel McCreary during public-school week. The Parlor has adopted a worthy, but poor, family; milk is provided for the children, and from time to time showers of food and clothing are held. A new feature in No. 245 is the birthday card, sent each member on her

May 18 the Parlor had its annual picnic at Hammond Grove in honor of the teacher members, who have departed for their summer vacations.

Flags for New Citizens.

Vallejo—In the Solano County Superior Court, the americanization committee of Vallejo No. 195 presented April 25 United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags to fifteen candidates for citizenship. Chairman Juliette Bliss made the presentations, and accompanying each state flag was a resume of its history, prepared by her. Judge William T. O'Donnell thanked the Native Daughters for their interest.

May 4 the Parlor had a surprise social in honor of District Deputy Julia Hill, who was presented with a gift of appreciation. Whist and swimming were enjoyed, and refreshments were served.

Tiny Garments Displayed.

Fort Bragg—At a well-attended meeting May 5, Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visited Fort Bragg No. 210. One candidate was initiated. The Grand President spoke interestingly on the Order's work and commended President Elsie Bryans, the other Parlor officers and District Deputy Edna Kunzler.

The first sight that greeted the guests as they entered the diningroom was an attractive display of tiny garments for the homeless children, strikingly arranged. An efficient committee had beautifully decorated the tables with pink roses, and a delicious supper was served. Gifts were presented Mrs. Carlson and District Deputy Kunzler, and words of appreciation from them brought to a close the happy evening.

Annual Mothers Night.

Woodland—Approximately 300 attended the annual mothers night banquet and entertainment of Woodland No. 90 May 5, among them being Grand Vice-president Anna Armstrong, Grand Trustee Edna Briggs, Past Grands Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen and Mary E. Bell. All mothers were presented with flowers. President Ruth Hickey extended a welcome, and Charter Member Harriet Lee was the toastmistress. A group sang "Mothers," a burlesque radio skit was presented, and a "haywire" orchestra furnished music. Miss Nell Proctor led the community singing.

Family Night.

San Luis Obispo—San Luisita No. 108 had a family night, when members and their families were entertained. Whist was the main attraction. The hall and banquetroom were attractively decorated with flowers, and refreshments were served.

Pupils' Efforts Please.

Sonoma—An excellent Washington bicentennial program was presented May 9 by Sonoma No. 209 and Sonoma No. 111 N.S.G.W. for the pleasure of their members and immediate families. Principal J. F. Prestwood of the Sonoma grammar school gave an interesting address on "The Life of Washington," and pupils of El Verano school, directed by Margaret Corcoran, a member of No. 209, were roundly applauded for their contributions to the program. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Catherine Bulotti was general chairman.

Five Past Grands Guests.

Manteca—Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson officially visited Phoebe A. Hearst No. 214 April 27. There were many visitors, and several candidates were initiated. A program was presented, and the Grand President was the recipient of gifts. California poppies were used in the decorations. Committees in charge were: Refreshment—Eva Gustafson, Margaret Dempsey, Bertha Smith, Pearl Briggs. Program and decorations—Angella Perry, Willa Wilson, Leonia Fulton, Nan Napier, Amelia Rodgers. In attendance were Past Grands Carrie Roesch-Durham, Mamie G. Peyton, Mattie M. Stein, Pearl Lamb and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron.

Arbor Day the Parlor planted trees in honor of Pioneer Lizzie Wolf and two deceased members, Georgia Meredith and Virginia Lyons Paul.

U. C. SUMMER SESSIONS AS USUAL.

Through misunderstanding, many harbor the erroneous belief that the University of California has abandoned the 1932 summer sessions. The sessions will be, as usual, conducted by the university on both the Berkeley and the Los Angeles campuses, both opening June 27.

Stanislaus First—Last year, Stanislaus County ranked first as the butter-producing section of California, its production totaling 7,337,522 pounds. Fresno County ranked second and Humboldt County third.

Big Trees—There are 17,000 Big Trees in California, according to the Federal Interior Department, 8,772 of them being in the Sequoia National Park.

Bankers' Meet—The American Institute of Banking will have a nation-wide meeting at Los Angeles City, June 7-11.

Endeavorers' Meet—The California Christian Endeavor will meet in annual convention at Visalia, Tulare County, June 23-26.

Water Bonds—May 3, San Francisco voted $6,500,000 bonds for continuing its Hetch Hetchy water project.

THE ROMANCE OF SAN BERNARDINO

EPISODE 8.
PIONEERS.

THE SAN BERNARDINO SOCIETY OF California Pioneers received its organization papers from the county January 21, 1888. Signers of the document were John Brown Sr., John Brown Jr., J. W. Waters, George Lord, S. P. Waite, G. W. Suttenfield, H. M. Willis, N. G. Gill, W. F. Holcomb, R. T. Roberts and De LaM. Woodward.

Listen, my dears, while I relate
About the founders of this great State.
It was the year of forty-nine
That these brave folk, each one sublime,
Decided to invade the big gold rush
Which created excitement in a hush.

So with oxen team of old
This little band became quite bold.
Their trials were many, and hardships, too,
Were all endured by these brave few.
They had their joys and also their griefs,
But still they held the same beliefs.

And now we find from mount to sea
A wonderful valley for you and me.
And all the world with envious eyes
Looks to this State of Paradise.
We've found our happiness and our wealth,
Good cheer, too, to bring us health.

Oh Pioneer great, oh Pioneer wise,
In you, the founder's wisdom lies!
'Twas you who paved the way so great
And gave to us our Golden State.
So let's not forget the ones so dear,
Our noble people, our own Pioneer!

These Pioneers of San Bernardino City and County met with obstacles, great and small. They faced danger from the Indians; trudged through the burning sands of the desert and over rugged mountains; met disasters with a smile, and their courage was tested under a severe strain. The Pioneers started the work that was carried on from the eighteenth to the twentieth century. It was they who laid the foundation upon which to build the present structure. They had no fear, their word was as good as their bond. The early Pioneers were people of great endurance, and they adopted the customs and laws of the country. They were trusted and respected by the native Californians, and held offices as advisors. Large trains of wagons were brought into the valley by these men and women who had come before. Stories of bear fighting were related, and experiences endured were never forgotten.

The Pioneers cultivated social virtues and have preserved that portion of the history of San Bernardino with which they have been associated. They have joined in all undertakings for the advancement of the community, and they have demonstrated that they are bound by ties of brotherhood.

The Pioneers were responsible for the city's incorporation in 1854, and its disincorporation March 6, 1863. There was a reason for the latter, and in 1869 the problem was solved and San Bernardino was re-incorporated as a town. The first official act of the settlers during the year 1853 was to appoint a man to handle the incoming and outgoing mail arriving by pony express or by stage. The United States Government had not established an authorized postoffice, as the mail had been so light there was no need for one. The Pioneers took it upon themselves to elect a mail distributor, and D. M. Thomas, who was at that time appointed judge, was selected to attend to all postal affairs. His "office" was in the Council House, but he distributed mail from his hat in front of the fort, and he continued so to do until recalled to Salt Lake with the rest of the Mormons. He drew no salary, and distributed the mail once a month.

After Thomas resigned the Pioneers became uneasy. "Now what?" asked one of the settlers. "We must have someone to attend to all of our mail." It was not long before the second postmaster was selected. Being the first and only doctor, and having the first drug store, Dr. Ben Barton was selected, and from 1857 to 1860 he served. During his term as postmaster the United States Government began to take an interest in the city's affairs and Dr. Barton was officially recognized by Washington, thus making him the first government postmaster. He had previously built an adobe building in which he had his office and drug store, and he fitted out a corner of the store which he thought would be suitable for the distribution of the mail. Because of this and because the postal activities were carried on under roof, Dr. Barton was officially recognized by the United States Government as postmaster and received a small compensation.

The mail was received once a month by horseback until the stagecoaches were firmly established, when it was delivered once a week. At the postoffice, names were called, and all unclaimed mail was put into a box for further investigation by the latecomers. Following Dr. Barton's term as postmaster the name of Dr. Peacock was forwarded to Washington with a recommendation from the settlers, and he, too, was officially appointed. From then on, Washington continued the service established by the Pioneers.

Dr. Barton came with his small family to California in 1854 and made his first home in El Monte, where two sons were born. He did not tarry there long and followed the wagon trains to San Bernardino. On arrival, he recognized the many advantages. With his family he established himself in the mission and remained there during the building of the three-story brick house by the Indians. As the family grew, a daughter was born within the walls of the mission. Assisted by his sons, he planted the first vineyard and orange orchard. This revived interest in cultivation of the soil, and soon advanced strides were made.

San Bernardino was expanding. The Pioneers wasted neither time nor energy, and constructed three large stores, stocked with goods. These were owned by Meyerstein, Calisher and Ancker. It was not long, however, before seventeen more stores were built. A livery stable, the only one of its kind and owned by Brazelton, was opened and the business was a prosperous one. This idea of a stable inspired a saddler, who opened a harness repair shop, and thus Foy became the first dealer of leather in the town and he was kept busy. Then a hotel, built by Starke, was erected, and was well occupied and the center of all social activities. In 1859 a group of amateurs formed a dramatic club, the San Bernardino Dramatic Association, and they produced plays that created much amusement.

The Pioneers did not stop here, however. Soon a group of writers and editors banded together and June 16, 1860, the first newspaper, christened the "San Bernardino Herald," appeared under the capable management of Judson J. Ames. A rival newspaper came into the field in 1862, but died a natural death; it was called the "San Bernardino Patriot." In 1861 J. S. Waite became editor of the "Herald." In 1858 the first Union Sundayschool and Church was organized, at the request of those who did not embrace the Mormon religion.

The first school was held in a brush structure constructed by the Mormons in the fort and was taught by Rupert Lee. The Pioneers objected strenuously to this, and erected a tent in which school and church services were held. Shortly thereafter a large building of brick and adobe was erected for those purposes. Here the first schoolbell was hung, and when, in 1871, a two-story brick building was erected, the bell was moved with appropriate ceremonies. This was the beginning of a well-established school system throughout the valley. William Stout was the first superintendent and principal of all the schools. The San Bernardino Collegiate School the first private school in the county, was opened August 25, 1862, by Captain J. C. Allsop.

The first established church of San Bernardino was that of Saint Paul's Methodist Church South, and it is the pioneer church of the county. Here, in 1858, all denominations came to worship under the ministry of Rev. Burns, but it was Father Glover who kept up the strength and fervor of this little church. The first step in establishing a Protestant church was taken by Miss Ellen Pratt, who organized a Sundayschool in a private home. The First Methodist Church was organized in 1867, and Rev. L. M. Leihy was appointed pastor in charge; he, in turn, appointed Rev. Adam Bland as his successor. Dr. J. C. Peacock presented the church with a lot and at his own expense fitted up a small chapel. A Congregational Church was erected in 1864 and M. H. Crafts induced the officials of that denomination to send Rev. J. A. Johnson to fill the pulpit. A Baptist Church was then organized by Dr. Ben Barton, Rev. I. C. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Shackleford, Mrs. Huldah Johnson, Ezra Kerfoot and John Culberston. A Catholic Church, "Little Church of Aqua Mansa," came into being in the early '50s with Father Peter Birmingham in charge.

The outstanding organization which has done so much for the San Bernardino Pioneers is Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West. The Order seeks to establish in the hearts of all sons of California pride of nativity and love of birthplace. Its origin is patriotic, and its purpose is to perpetuate in memory the days and the deeds of the Pioneers. Arrowhead Parlor was organized by a true son of a Pioneer, Dan D. Rich, who was elected its first president and who navigated the Parlor through many hard storms. Lugonia Parlor No. 241 is the third Parlor of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West to be organized in San Bernardino. Florence Dodson-Schoneman was its founder, and Lois Aldridge-Johnson was its charter president. It is most active in preserving the landmarks and the history of the early days.

Headed "Advice on Taxation," the following, by H. A. Goetsch of Wadena, Minn., appeared in the "Congressional Record" recently:

Tax the people, tax with care,
To help the multimillionaire.
Tax the farmer, tax his fowl.
Tax the dog, and tax his howl.
Tax the hen and tax her egg
And let the bloomin' mudsill beg.
Tax the pig and tax his squeal,
Tax his boots, run down at heel;
Tax his horses, tax his lands,
Tax the blisters on his hands.
Tax his plow and tax his clothes,
Tax the rag that wipes his nose;
Tax his house and tax his bed,
Tax the bald spot on his head.
Tax the ox, and tax the ass,
Tax his "Henry," tax the gas;
Tax the road that he must pass,
And make him travel o'er the grass.
Tax his cow, and tax his calf,
Tax him if he dares to laugh;
He is just a common man,
So tax the cuss just all you can.
Tax the laborer—be discreet—
Tax him walking on the street.
Tax his bread and tax his meat;
Tax the shoes clear off his feet.
Tax the payroll, tax the sale,
Tax his hard-earned paper kale;
Tax his pipe and tax his smoke—
Teach him government is no joke.
Tax their coffins—tax their shrouds,
Tax their souls beyond the clouds.
Tax the farmer, tax his flocks;
Tax the servants, tax their socks.
Tax the living, tax the dead;
Tax the unborn, ere they're fed.
Tax the water, tax the air—
Tax the sunlight if you dare.
Tax them all, and tax them well.
Tax them to the gates of hell!
But close your eyes so you can't see
The coupon-clipper go tax free.

Planning Conference—A National City Planning Conference will be held June 13-16 at Hollywood, Los Angeles County.

River Pageant—Healdsburg, Sonoma County, will hold its annual Russian River Pageant-Fiesta, June 17-19.

birthday: Third Vice-president Burke is chairman.

Secretary Rosalie F. Hyde of Santa Monica Bay submitted a poem in the Los Angeles Breakfast Club's Olympics verse contest. There were 1,500 contributors, and she received honorable mention. Her verse, entitled "California's Greeting," follows.

"A welcome wide as our sunlit skies
To those who come from other lands,
To match their talents with our own,
And forge the links of golden hands
Of Friendships hitherto unknown.
Our glory in the Olympic games,
Our glory in the fame its names
Of those who come so brave and bold,
Shall be the theme of songs of praise
When tales of the Olympiad are told."

GRIZZLY GROWLS

The Federal Congress has been for some time attempting to balance the budget but, lacking a balance of reasoning power, little progress has been made.

Every person knows the National Government must meet its obligations, and every person appears to want to saddle the necessary taxburden on the other fellow. The only fair, honest and equable tax for the present emergency is the general sales tax. The Congress should levy that, and then adjourn.

Several papers of the state last month, in giving publicity to the N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor, said, "The annual contribution toward publication of The Grizzly Bear Magazine was suspended." THAT IS NOT A FACT! The usual appropriation for the magazine was made, although resolutions to suspend it were considered. It is likely those not overly friendly toward The Grizzly Bear gave the resolutions to the press before final action had been taken thereon, with the deliberate intent to injure the magazine.

Wherever one goes, the main topic of conversation is prohibition,—blamed for all the nation's economic ills—which shows the effectiveness of well-directed and adequately-financed propaganda. Prohibition has faults aplenty,—due mostly, however, to faulty administration of the law,—but is not responsible for this nation's sad plight.

Prohibition is a minor issue, and the booze-or-no-booze discussion, when questions of paramount importance should have consideration, are nauseating. The prohibition propaganda is, in fact, but a smoke-screen to divert attention from nation-wide corruption, and [illegible] in high positions and protected and [illegible] governmental agencies. Forget prohibition for the time being, and labor to eliminate dishonest officials from public office and private enterprise.

For the August primary, 2,377,710 California citizens were registered, and 1,383,236 performed their main duty as citizens by casting their ballots. The remainder, 994,474, probably are so thoroughly disgusted with the rottenness in government they would not exercise their voting privilege. Unawares, perhaps, they thus aided the political gangsters, for the latter thrive because of the apathy of the average citizen. Good government cannot be expected without good citizenship, and the first requisite of good citizenship is to vote always, for the right.

Los Angeles, always to the forefront with the biggest, the best and the largest in all lines, not excepting financial sharpsters, recently added to its wealth-of-fame two "renowned" Fish-ermen. Frank hooked $492,590 from the AMCo investment-lake and Brother Ray landed $189,553. Both are now sojourning in San Quentin, but they will soon be back among the "prominents," for "de dollah am shure" a loud and efficient speaker in these days of enthroned crookedness.

The AMCo lake went dry, the same as many other of Los Angeles' numerous investment enterprises. It has been conservatively estimated investing-suckers put into them around a billion dollars. What will they get out? Experience only, for, after the promoters, the receivers, the attorneys and the judiciary get theirs, nothing else remains. The chemically-pure city certainly has established a fine record as an investment center!

In the Federal House of Representatives, May 13, the chaplain, asking comfort for Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, whose baby boy was found murdered, prayed the Eternal God to "Cleanse the arteries of our whole country where breed and

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

WHILE THE CORNER AROUND which prosperity is supposed to lurk continues to be somewhat obscure, there are indications that agriculture may be on the upgrade, that a turning point will be reached this year. The so-called "bottom" of the depression has been theoretically reached several times; actually, it seems to be in sight. Whatever conditions may be on farms, in the final analysis the soil always can be depended upon to yield a livelihood. Food can be secured from the soil; it does not grow in the city pavements.

The last census figures showed there are 45,000 farms in California on which there is not a cent of mortgaged indebtedness. Nearly half the farming area of the state is free from debt, despite the rigors of the economic situation. No other industry can show a like statement. And while this year does not give promise of being one of unusual profit for the farmer, it is not to be one which will show abnormal losses,—that is, losses heavier than have been taken in other recent years.

Production problems have not been solved as yet; there are many of them to be worked out. But agriculture has advanced farther along production lines than with marketing. Hence the stress now is laid on the economic situation, and with all agencies co-operating indications are that there will be progress recorded this year. Nevertheless, the prosperity of agriculture must accompany that of the nation; when buying power returns the farmer will sell his goods at a profit. But better marketing conditions will aid and hasten this, by affording better distribution and quality for the consumer.

HUMUS IN THE SOIL.

Much has been said and written about humus in the soil. A questioner asks how to get it there. Well, any organic matter turned under the surface and left to decompose will add to the humus. Weeds, plowed or spaded under, will add humus; so, too, will manure; lawn clippings will help. Anything that grows or has grown in the field or garden can be turned under, with profit to the condition of the soil as regards humus. Cover crops are turned under for this purpose, in part. Addition of humus to the soil will increase its tilth, or condition, will stop baking and packing, will aid in retention of moisture, and will increase the productivity of the soil. Plow or spade under all weeds, discarded plants, lawn clippings, straw, manure and other organic matter whenever it is available.

SEEDS AND BULBS FOR JUNE.

Most of the flowers with small seeds should be planted in flats for transplanting; many of the larger seeded kinds will do better if thus started before being placed in the beds where they are to bloom. This month (June) there still are many flowers that may be started for late blooming. For planting in flats, this includes english daisy, calendula, cockscomb, cornflower, cineraria, coreopsis, cosmos, sweet william, foxglove, candytuft, stock, forgetmenot, petunia, phlox and tufted pansy. Zinnias and marigolds may be planted in beds, if desired, but no time will be lost in using flats and more and stronger plants usually will develop. Most of these flowers could be transplanted from flats to the garden now, if started earlier; there are many kinds of flowers that can be planted at almost any time.

It is getting late for bulbs and roots, but there still are some that may be planted. Cannas, dahlias, gladiola, tuberoses, german iris, cinnamon vine and madeira vine still will do well, although this is just about the latest that they can be put into the ground with any hope of success in most places. Too, a great deal depends upon the locality; some places in the state where the weather is far ahead of the average cannot be depended upon to give good results even now. On the other hand, in the mountain districts there still is much time, save that the season will end early in the fall. The grower must take the climatic conditions of his locality into consideration, for recommendations can be given only for the average conditions in the valleys.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

As the earlier vegetables in the garden are used and space left by them becomes available, plant with some other kind that will go ahead under summer weather conditions and make a crop. In California, it is possible to plant some kind of vegetable every month in the year. Beets, carrots, peas, radishes and turnips may be planted in the coast counties at any time. In the interior valleys there are some months in the winter when soil and temperature conditions are such that these will not make satisfactory growth, but generally speaking there always can be vegetables in the garden save in the colder districts of the foothills and mountains. Sweetcorn may be planted anywhere this month, in addition to the vegetables named, and tomato plants may be set out in the home garden with prospects for success in producing late fruits.

TO CONTROL SLUGS.

While snails may be controlled by the use of a poison bait, slugs ordinarily must have different treatment. One part of calcium arsenate, mixed dry with 15 parts of wheat bran and lightly moistened will usually do away with snails, if spread around where they feed. Care must be used so that domestic animals and birds do not get the bait. With slugs, a spray made of half a pound of ordinary alum dissolved in a gallon of hot water, then cooled, will be effective. It must, however, be applied at night when the slugs are active so that it will reach them. The treatment should be repeated at intervals of two or three weeks.

SUMMER CITRUS FERTILIZATION.

Organic matter, such as bulky manure, may be applied to citrus groves this month or next, if convenient. Some groves will be found to be showing a tinge of yellow in the foliage. Ordinarily this is caused by a lack of nitrogen, although in some cases it may be due to the presence of toxic salts or over-irrigation. Where it is due to a lack of nitrogen, the application of manure will not handle the situation and the organic fertilizer must decompose before it becomes available. Use, rather, a quickly available commercial nitrogenous fertilizer. Formerly it was the practice to apply commercial fertilizer in a large dose in the spring; a better plan is to distribute the application over the year with perhaps the heaviest dosage in the spring.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

swarm the filth and the crime of our national household." May that prayer be speedily answered!

Representative Britten of Illinois, before the House Committee on territories the other day, expressed the opinion that if the homes of Japs in Hawaii were searched "you would find numerous plans for the destruction of our docks." Probably, also, if the Japs' places of worship, etc., in the mainland, particularly California, were searched other plans, and also arms, to aid Japan in its invasion schemes, would be found. And yet, the howl continues to decrease the personnel and the efficiency of this country's army and navy. If nothing else will, a Jap bombardment should, eventually, awaken the pro-Japs and other pacifists.

Unemployment reserves, as a sort of insurance against bad times, are being advocated by those who oppose applying the quota to Mexicans and other objectionable aliens and cutting down European quotas. When the demand is good, this class of employers hire foreign laborers in flocks fresh from the docks, and then, when the demand slackens, they promptly dump the foreigners on the communities to feed, house and clothe. Such a reserve has been building up in this country for several years, and as a result thousands, yes millions, of White American laborers are today without employment.

Fire insurance is a good thing, too, but does not prevent loss due to poor construction, and unemployment reserves cannot lessen the loss that necessarily results from unsound national and business policies. A bill is before the Federal Congress cutting down European quotas and extending the quota to immigration from Mexico and Canada. The United States Chamber of Commerce, always active in behalf of the big interests, is opposing the bill. Native and other real Californians should request, NOW, of this state's representatives in both houses of the Congress, that they support the bill, and thus assist in preventing the organized few from again getting the better of the unorganized many.

BOOK REVIEWS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

"ONE HUNDRED YEARS IN YOSEMITE." By Carl Parcher Russell; Stanford University Press, Publisher, Stanford University, California; Price, $3.50.

This romantic story of early human affairs in the central Sierra Nevada is most interesting and enlightening. A work that will add value and charm to any collection of Californiana, it presents authentic information concerning events and people conspicuously linked with the early history of American California, particularly the Sierra country, which embraces Yosemite. It centers attention on the discovery of the world-famed valley by White men. It is liberally illustrated.

The author, Carl Parcher Russell, field naturalist, United States National Park Service, declares in the foreword, "It is the purpose of this book to preserve and disseminate the authentic story of the discovery and development of the wondrous Yosemite region," and he is deserving of unstinted commendation for succeeding, excellently. "Much has been published on the history of Yosemite, but the data are scattered through more than one hundred publications, and even the published material is incomplete and disconnected. Here the published information has been organized, checked, and enriched with authentic data which have not previously appeared in print." He concludes with a plea for the proper preservation of much valuable history material which unquestionably reposes, unthought of, in the libraries (and attics) of innumerable homes in the West.

Reliable knowledge of the Sierra Nevada and the first inkling of the existence of Yosemite Valley resulted, according to the author, from an expedition, made in 1833, led by Joseph Reddeford Walker, a frontiersman. Walker's tombstone, in Martinez, Contra Costa County, bears the inscription, "Camped at Yosemite Nov. 13, 1833." In 1839 Zenas Leonard, clerk of the Walker party, published a narrative of their experiences, and this is declared to be the first authentic printed reference to the Yosemite region. James D. Savage is credited with being the most conspicuous figure in early Yosemite history.

An outstanding feature of "One Hundred Years in Yosemite" is the appendix, which includes nine historic documents, and a chronological outline of the history of the Yosemite region. Among the documents is the muster roll of the famed Mariposa Battalion—"Muster Roll of a Volunteer Battalion under the command of Major James D. Savage, mustered into the service of the State of California by James Burney, Sheriff of Mariposa, persuant to an order from his excellency, the Governor of the State of California, bearing date January 24, 1851, at Aqua Frio, February 10, 1851: James D. Savage, Major; M. B. Lewis, Adjutant; A. Brunston, Sergeant; Robert E. Russell, Sergeant-Major; Francis Laumiester, Quartermaster and Commissary; Theodore Wilson, Quartermaster Sergeant; Vincent Haylix, Guide."

In Memoriam

DR. VICTORY A. DERRICK, P.G.P.
JENNIE GOLDSWORTHY.

To the Members of Aloha Parlor No. 106 Native Daughters of the Golden West:

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has taken unto Himself two beloved members of Aloha Parlor No. 106, we bow our heads in humble resignation. The vacancy caused by the loss of our adored Past Grand President, Victory A. Derrick, and of our devoted sister, Jennie Goldsworthy, will never be filled.

The sweet character of our darling Past Grand President, Victory A. Derrick, will always stand out as a great beacon that will lead us to higher and nobler things. The happy memories of Sister Jennie Goldsworthy will always remind us of the "sunshine of her smile." Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of Aloha Parlor No. 106 extend our deepest sympathy to the daughters of Past Grand President Victory A. Derrick and to the husband and daughters of Past Grand President Victory A. Derrick and to the husband and daughters of Sister Jennie Goldsworthy. They are in our thoughts as we pay a lasting tribute to the two sisters who have answered their final rollcall.

As Victory A. Derrick and Jennie Goldsworthy gave love and happiness during their lives, may Almighty God bestow His unceasing love upon them. Victory A. Derrick and Jennie Goldsworthy, our love is wrapped with you in the cradle of the grave.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, that a copy be sent to their bereaved relatives and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE SIGN OF THE CROSS HAS, IN these United States of America, been superseded by the sign of the almighty dollar. From a God-fearing, honesty-loving nation, we have degenerated into a dollar-worshiping, dishonesty-idolizing people. Material wealth, regardless of how obtained, is today the measuring-rod of a man's worth as a citizen; moral wealth is scoffed at and frowned upon.

What we are pleased to term the "economic depression" is but the natural result of the moral decay which has penetrated every section of the country and every avenue of activity, not excepting government. As a nation, we are, in reality, but paying the inevitable price for shattering the high standards established by the founders of this republic, and for discarding the Ten Commandments as the rule of life.

Believe it or not, lasting prosperity cannot be purchased with gold, simply because the metal is emblazoned, deceptively in this year of our Lord 1932, "In God We Trust." The idols of dishonesty that have been set up in the temple of government must first be torn down and cast out, and we must, as a people, cease to worship at the dollar-throne. Honesty—right thinking, right living,—must be enthroned, or the tottering temple will become but a mass of ruins.

The frankest and most sensible comment, on the attempt to force the Federal Congress to pass the bonus bill, that has come to our attention appeared editorially in the San Francisco "Chronicle" under the caption "Let Demagogues Answer Their Bonus Army Dupes." The House of Representatives passed the bill, but it was defeated in the Senate. California voters should check the vote in both branches of the Congress on that vicious measure and ballot accordingly in November. Quoting from the editorial:

"The House knew the bonus gun was not loaded. So, in the hope of impressing veteran votes for next November, the House theatrically pointed the pistol at the heart of the Nation and pulled the trigger. Nothing—and the House knew it would be so—happened, since the Senate accepted the responsibility of safeguarding the country which the House had refused. . . . But what of the poor fellows of the bonus army, deceived by demagogue politicians and newspapers into believing a pot of bonus gold lay ready for them in Washington if they would march on the Capital and overawe Congress into handing it over?

"It is a damnable thing these demagogues have done to the bonus marchers and a damnable thing they would have done to the country had they succeeded in their design to blackjack Congress by an organized display of force. The individual veterans who marched did not, it may be assumed, understand the real meaning of their demonstration. . . . Had this demonstration succeeded it would have set a vicious and ruinous precedent. It would have opened an era in which national legislation would have ceased to be a deliberative function and votes in Congress would have recorded merely the will of whatever mob gathered outside the Capitol to demand tribute. . . . When the truth dawns on the misguided men of the bonus army they will turn their indignation upon those who so grossly deceived them and sent them on the hardships of what from the very nature of things was from the first only a fool's errand."

"There is need of revising the banking laws so as to place our banking structure on a sounder basis generally for all concerned," declares a plank in the Republican presidential campaign platform. The need is most apparent, for the inside record of this country's bigboy bankers which has been uncovered the past few months stinks like a dead mackerel rotting in the moonlight.

But, is there any possibility that the rotten conditions will be righted or that an attempt, even, will be made to correct them? The "prominent international bankers" of this nation have been proven to be bankers in name only; in practice, they are ordinary gamblers and high-powered thieves, operating within and protected by the laws of the country. The national administration and the Congress know the ruin these so-called "bankers" have wrought. No attempt, however, has been made to punish them or to curb their activities. Instead, they have been handed millions of The People's money to aid them to "carry on."

Opposing proposal to shift public-school support entirely to the state, the finance director of California is quoted as having said, "This is no time for tax revolution. It is a time for drastic economy all along the line."

How come the state administration is just now so interested in drastic economy? The depression has been depressing for some time, yet just recently salaries of state employes have been materially increased. Does the finance director imply that any legislation which would lessen the taxpayers' burden would be revolutionary? If so, then on with the revolution, for too long have the propertyowners of this state been legally robbed.

Samuel J. Hume of the "California Council on Oriental Relations," a pro-Jap organization looking longingly at yellow-dollars, is addressing various organizations in California in an endeavor to create sentiment favorable to placing Japan on a quota basis. When he cannot get an audience, he attempts to get his Jap propaganda over via letter. His argument, based on the overworked, in behalf of the Japs, theme, "Goodwill is contingent upon a nice consideration of such things as pride, national honor and the like," concludes with the assurance that, if the immigration-door is opened, the Japs will spend more of their money in California.

The answer to his pleadings is, are the people of this state desirous of sacrificing this White man's paradise for a few Jap-dollars? Granting the quota means an increased influx of ineligible-to-citizenship and undesirable Asiatic aliens. We have the Exclusion Law, but through numerous evasions for which they are noted, the Japs continue to come in, and in no small numbers. Given the quota, they will come in droves, to increase the force of reservists of Japan in this country, ready to act when the opportune time comes—and it is coming soon!

Japan is not worrying about the quota, from the numerical viewpoint. The underlying motive of the agitation for it is to inveigle this country into acknowledging racial equality. That is what Japan wants most, and when that is conceded it will make other demands, among them the naturalization privilege for its nationals. Japan's "peaceful invasion" program is far reaching, but "what is a century in the life of a nation?" Advocates of the quota for Japan are aiding materially in the accomplishment of the "peaceful invasion."

California's attorney-general has ruled that rubber-stamp signatures of county officials are legal. It is well, for a great percentage of those "servants of the people" are, in reality, the agents of, and officiate in accord with the dictates of, political groups concerned only with their own welfare. The ruling, therefore, is consistent, at least.

In Whittier, Los Angeles County, the State of California owns a noted landmark, the Pico mansion. Aside from its historical and sentimental value, it is of commercial worth, in that it attracts many tourists and other visitors.

For eighteen years this property has been in possession of the state but, according to report, not a single penny has ever been expended for its upkeep, although the attention of the authorities is repeatedly being called to the need for repairs. Unless something is done NOW, this landmark will likely collapse the coming winter!

A news item, appearing in the "Lompoc Record" of June 10, is called to the attention of the California attorney-general and the Santa Barbara County district attorney. The transaction appears to be a violation of the Alien Land Law, and if so the parties should be prosecuted. There have been numerous similar transactions in Santa Barbara County, but no prosecutions. In fact, the Alien Land Law is openly violated in practically every county of the state, and seldom is an attempt made to enforce the law—another reason for putting into office those who will enforce and respect the law. Here's the item:

"Signing of a four-year lease on the 90-acre Bissinger property in the lower valley took place this week, George Nishimura being the lessee, it was reported. Under the reported terms of the lease, Nishimura will pay yearly rent of $30 per acre, and will install a water well and pipelines preliminary to the production of vegetable crops."

In an address on the conditions existant in this nation, and which seriously threaten its stability, Dr. Arthur A. Briggs of Los Angeles rightfully declared: "Our present crisis is as much a moral as a financial one and we can solve our difficulties only by the re-establishment of those kinds of life which are compatible with the qualities of true and honorable character in individual men and women, as well as in our social organizations."

"The Republican party has always stood and stands today for obedience to and enforcement of the law as the very foundation of orderly government and civilization. There can be no national security otherwise." So humorous is that plank in the Republican platform, one would imagine Will Rogers wrote it for his joke-column. A plank equally as humorous will undoubtedly appear in the Democratic platform.

Instead of enforcing the law, "as they find it enacted by the people," a vast majority of the public officials, Republicans and Democrats alike, are breakers of the law. That is why "national security" has been destructively undermined.

The greatest need of this country today is for The People to ignore the old-line parties' platforms, overflowing with buncomb designed solely to deceive them, and have a thorough house-cleaning. Begin in the garret—the national branch—and continue through to the cellar—the township branch—of government, and get rid of the overload of dishonest, incompetent, and law-breaking public officials, both Republicans and Democrats. November's the time! If there be a will to do, a way will be presented! An independent, fearless, honest, law-respecting, uncontrolled statesman is wanted as a leader! Oh, my!

"The recent disclosures made before the Senate investigating committee regarding deals in the stock of" some nationally advertised corporations, says the "Sacramento Bee" editorially,

SHORES OF TAHOE

(JAMES NOBLE HATCH.)

Know you the shores of Tahoe
Where giants grim and old
In rank and file innumerable
Their ceaseless vigils hold?
Where fairies frolic all unseen
On the needle-carpet deep
When darkness draws the curtains down
And all is hushed in sleep?

Deep cradled 'mongst the mountains
The waters rest tonight,
A snow-white mist the counterpane
The stars a bed-time light;
And bordering the coverlid
Scarce moving in the breeze,
The shadows of the night hang down
In lace-like draperies.

Rare fragrance born of darkness
Comes through the whispering pines
And wakens thoughts that long have slept
In memory's deep confines;
Sweet melodies of ancient lore
Strange gladsome prophesies
All mingle in the mystic night
In silent symphonies.

And out across the placid lake
The brilliant stars still gleam
That sang together gladsomely,
As writ in ancient theme;
The same strange mystic pictures
That through the ages old
In every region, land and clime
Their wondrous tales have told.

So in the bord'ring shadows
Amongst the friendly trees,
I visit with the peaceful night
And learn its mysteries;
Those symphonies of silence,
Those pictures time-extolled,
With voices ear hath ne'er discerned
Their mystic tales unfold.

XTH OLYMPIAD

FLAGS OF FIFTY NATIONS WILL FLUTTER from the ramparts of Olympic Stadium, in Los Angeles, when President Herbert Hoover, speaking before a mixed multitude, proclaims open the games of the Xth Oympiad the afternoon of July 30. Two thousand athletes, representing the athletic prowess of every important country, will be in the line of march during the spectacular parade of nations. This will be the greatest representation ever seen at an Olympic celebration.

In keeping with the ancient Greek custom, the 1932 Olympic celebration will open with a dazzling flare of pageantry. A fanfare of trumpets will be heard, cannon will crash out the salute, the Olympic flag will rise slowly on the central mast, and a torch will blaze forth atop the massive peristyle. At the last crack of the cannon, thousands of homing pigeons will be freed to wing their way to their homes hundreds of miles away.

During the succeeding sixteen days and nights of the celebration, competitions will be held in fourteen branches of sport, namely, track and field athletics, boxing, wrestling, weight lifting, fencing, field hockey, cycling, modern pentathlon, yachting, swimming and diving, gymnastics, rowing, equestrian sports and shooting. Fine arts exhibits will also be held during the entire period of the games.

Preparations for this world event, the greatest international amateur sports celebration in history, have been under way for nearly ten years. The most elaborate plans ever made for an Olympic festival have been completed. In anticipation of the huge throngs that will overrun Los Angeles during the games, nine monster stadiums, auditoriums and water courses have been equipped with seating facilities for more than 400,000 spectators. In addition, an Olympic village has been built for the special use of the athletes, their trainers and managers. It is modern in every detail, and consists of 550 two-room houses.

The hub of the Olympic games will be Olympic Stadium, the largest structure of its kind ever built, having a reserved seating capacity of 105,000. In this great coliseum will be held the opening and closing ceremonies, track and field events, field hockey finals, gymnastics, finals of the equestrian sports, the national demonstration game of American football and the international demonstration of lacrosse.

The football game will be between a team selected from the graduating seniors of California, Stanford and Southern California, and a similar team from Yale, Harvard and Princeton. The lacrosse tournament will be between Canada, Great Britain and the United States, with the unofficial world's championship title at stake. The field hockey tournament will be featured by the world-famous team from India, which will defend the title won at Amsterdam.

Preliminaries in the equestrian events will be held at the Riviera Country Club, on the outskirts of Santa Monica, while at Long Beach Marine Stadium will be held the rowing races. This stadium has been described by rowing experts as one of the finest in the world. The yacht races will be staged at Los Angeles Harbor, off Point Firmin. At Pasadena Rose Bowl will be held the track cycling events, and at the University of California at Los Angeles the preliminaries in the field hockey tournament. The shooting events will be held at the rifle range in Elysian Park.

Nations that will participate in the games of the Xth Olympiad include: Argentine, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Estonia, Finland, France, Great Britain, Germany, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Holland, Hungary, India, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Mexico, Monaco, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Philippine Islands, Poland, Portugal, Rhodesia, Roumania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Union of South Africa, United States of America, Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

INDIANS FIND FRIENDS

SOME NATIVE SONS, VISITING RECENTLY at Pala Mission, had called to their attention the condition of the Indians on the reservations in San Diego County. It was claimed they were in great want, and that their plight was distressing. Believing the cause a worthy one, Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. of Los Angeles appointed an Indian relief committee—Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger, J. Harvey McCarthy, James P. Sex and Bernard Murray—to investigate and, if the condition of the Indians was found to be as represented, to make every endeavor to secure relief for these wards from the Federal Government. The committee made a thorough investigation and found conditions among the Indians even worse than originally reported.

Since January the Federal Government has also been investigating, but to date there have been no results, other than reports, and the 2,000 Indians in California South have not been relieved to any appreciable extent. The housing conditions are terrible, in many instances the Indians living in huts, the sides of which are flattened tin cans; the floors are of dirt. The Indians have little or no covering, and their principal articles of food are ground squirrels and acorns.

There appears to be a great misunderstanding as to what the Federal Government is supposed to do for these Mission Indians. "If ever a people needed and deserved the help of the White man, the Indians of Southern California are that people," wrote a San Diegan to Ramona Parlor's committee, which has been in telegraphic communication with Washington and will make every effort to bring about a humane and satisfactory adjustment of the terrible conditions.

June 3, this telegram was sent to Senator Hiram W. Johnson: "Indians at Pala Mission, San Diego County, California, starving, living on ground squirrels and acorns. Understand Government has made appropriation for Indians. Why no help in sight? . . . Delay means death of many children and older Indians. Please come to rescue." Senator Johnson immediately responded: "Answering yours, views set forth therein presented to Bureau Indian Affairs, recommending that needed relief be extended Indians."

June 4, the committee received from the Federal Interior Department a wire requesting a checkup with welfare workers, among them Margaret Watkins of the State Department of Social Welfare, and advising "assignment Red Cross flour authorized distributed San Diego Indians." The committee conferred, as requested, with Miss Watkins and June 10 sent this message to the Interior Department:

"Miss Watkins is long on Indian reports but short on methods to relieve hungry Indians. Red Cross distributed June third fifty-pound sack flour, which arrived April twenty-second, each family. Urgently recommend furnishing supplies consisting flour, beans and bacon at once to all Indians on reservations in San Diego County. Our investigation satisfies us Indians need help more than government investigation. Please get quick action!"

And so, the poor Indians, who have been consistently and thoroughly robbed and buffeted about from place to place for lo, these many, many years, have found friends, in their hour of direst distress, among the Native Sons of the Golden West.—C.M.H.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

"may well cause the general public to wonder what chance the legitimate investor in common stocks has for his money. Apparently in many cases he has no chance at all. . . .

"There is a great deal of talk about the need for 'confidence' on the part of the public. How can the public have any confidence in the face of deals like" those which have been exposed? "How can it have any confidence when it knows that its money when invested in the common stock of a business enterprise is likely at any time to be wiped out by the speculative activities of the very men who head the enterprise and are morally responsible for the safety of the investment?"

The family payroll racket has been quite popular among members of the Federal Congress. Senator Brookhart of Iowa, for one, had, it was discovered, two sons, a daughter and two brothers on the government payroll. Just recently, Brookhart lost out in the primary. Other states would do well to follow Iowa's lead.

Several well-known citizens of the country are climbing upon the Eighteenth-Amendment-repeal bandwagon, and naturally the repeal forces are delighted. Those people have not really changed their view on the liquor question, but are concerned about their pocketbooks. Just as soon as the Federal revenue-raising bill became a law they came out "forninst" prohibition. Their taxes will be considerably increased, and they imagine that if liquor be restored, sufficient tax-revenue will come from that source to make possible repeal of the special-tax act. Some people's minds, and also their hearts, are governed and regulated by their pocketbooks!

As heretofore remarked, the liquor propaganda that is flooding the country and glutting the parties-bound press is but a smokescreen to hide the corruption that exists generally. It is a case of the small minority making a big noise. Prohibition is of minor importance! Hours are devoted to that, however, but momentous questions are given not a moment's consideration. Little wonder this country is in such a sad plight!

AWAKE, NATIVE SONS

Chester F. Gannon

(HISTORIOGRAPHER N.S.G.W.)

OUR ORDER IS FAILING IN THE VERY mission for which it was founded: To perpetuate and preserve the glories and traditions of California's past. The reason is obvious. We are not centralizing our efforts to that end. Ours is a small Order, and we can only do one line of work, and do it well. We cannot divide our energies.

Unless this generation suitably marks historical places, the coming generation will have no knowledge of their whereabouts. The drifting years have already obliterated many of the historical spots in our state which should have been marked.

The site of Fremont's camp, for instance, where he waited in the shadows of Sutter's Fort for a few days just preceding the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma, is lost forever. In his biography Fremont wrote concerning this particular period, "I returned to my old camp site near Sutter's Fort and awaited developments." No living man can tell us even the proximate location of that camp site. Past Grand Lewis F. Byington can testify to the difficulty of placing the monuments at the site of the Broderick-Terry duel.

The "National Geographic," under date of May 1932, gives in picture and prose a history of the State of Ohio. In this article are the preserved landmarks of that state. From an examination of the article it would appear that Ohio is far ahead of California in this work and, as far as writer knows, Ohio has no organization similar to the Native Sons. For instance, the home of the founder and father of Ohio, General Rufus Putman, is preserved within a building. The old structure is completely enclosed for preservation within a costly, modern structure. We have shown no such fealty to California's past.

True, some of the missions have been restored, and a little headway has been made in putting suitable markers at different spots, but there are hundreds of unmarked spots in California which, as the trend now goes, will never be marked. If the restoration of Sutter's Fort had not taken place when it did, it is doubtful if today such a big work would have been undertaken. At that time, the Native Sons were loyal to their trust, and since that time they have wandered away to other endeavors.

In Sacramento, the Daughters of the American Revolution have, with bronze tablets, marked the terminal of the Pony Express and the grave of Alexander Hamilton's son, who died there in the early '50s. A bank has, by a bronze marker, marked one of its early offices where millions of dollars' worth of gold dust poured through the door. Thus, other organizations have marked these sites and places while we have done little. There are a few temporary wooden markers on historical spots in Sacramento which must either be replaced soon or they will be destroyed by the elements or human vandals. Sacramento is only one spot in a state filled with traditions to preserve.

So I say, awake, Californians to your fraternal destiny! Let us do our historical work, and when that is completed we can divert our energies into other channels.

OLD SPANISH DAYS FIESTA AT SANTA BARBARA

Clifford F. Rizor

(Chairman of Publicity, Santa Barbara Parlor N.S.G.W.)

AUGUST 18, SANTA BARBARA CITY will once more don fiesta garb to celebrate its ninth annual "Old Spanish Days," and revive the custom and manner of the days when Spain ruled California. It is, in essence, a vast costume drama, performed with the blue mountains and the Spanish architecture of Santa Barbara as a backdrop, in which thousands of actors, the good people of the community, take part.

The romancer and historian tell of the glamour and romance of California in the pastoral days, but here in Santa Barbara, during this colorful fiesta, they live again. In the moving panorama of parade and pageant a glimpse is once more afforded of the days "before the Gringos came," when the Conestoga wagon and the crack of the stage driver's whip were sight and sound of an alien world, a new world fast encroaching upon the gentler graces and slower tempo of the old. Hubert Howe Bancroft, premier historian of California, speaks of the Spanish period as being the golden age, and defines the spirit of the time in these words: "Never before or since was there a spot in America where life was a long, happy holiday, where there was less labor, less care or trouble, such as the old time golden age under Cronos or Saturn, the gathering of nature's fruits being the chief burden of life, and death coming without decay, like a gentle sleep."

So it is the intent of the "Old Spanish Days" Committee to recreate, for a few short days, the life and atmosphere and historic background of the old romantic age. As the social life of old Santa Barbara centered about the historic mission, so the activities of the fiesta are ushered in with appropriate ceremonies at that famous old church.

The historic parade is one of the most brilliant and colorful pageants in the world. All of the various phases are as historically authentic as possible, and the costumes and equipments are designed only after the most painstaking research, to accurately portray the time they are intended to represent. One may see Cabrillo, with his ship's company; Viscaino, who gave Santa Barbara its name, in company with his sailors and men-at-arms; Bouchard, the pirate of black deeds and ill repute; Portola, accompanied by the illustrious Junipero Serra, the one following the path of conquest, the other the high calling of his faith. The equestrian division is worth traveling miles to see, more than a thousand of California's finest horses appearing. Marching to the strains of that famous old song of the covered-wagon days, "Oh Susanna," appear a group wearing the blue uniform of the pre-Civil War era, the vanguard of Captain Fremont's troops, marching into Santa Barbara just as they did so many years ago. They are followed by stagecoaches, oxcarts, covered wagons, tallyhos and all manner of horse-drawn equipment used in the early days of Santa Barbara.

The pageant, "Romantic California," is another magnificent feature of "Old Spanish Days." Written and directed by Charles E. Pressley and performed nightly in Peabody Stadium, it is a vivid portrayal of life in old Santa Barbara, full of music and gaiety and the carefree spirit of the time. The various episodes of Santa Barbara's history make an unbroken panorama.

The grand officers of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will be Santa Barbara's guests during "Old Spanish Days," and as a feature of the program will dedeicate the city's new million-dollar Eastside junior high school. Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126 N.D.G.W. is cooperating with the Native Sons in arranging for the dedication, as well as in plans for participation in other events of the fiesta.

The Ruiz-Botello pageant, enacted in the sunken gardens of the Santa Barbara County Court House, is a beautiful music and dancing sequence in which many descendants of pioneer families take part. Director Maclovio A. Botello is an old-time member of Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116 N.S.G.W. No "Old Spanish Days" program is complete without this famous group of dancers. As midnight of the last day of the fiesta approaches troubadours and serenaders go about the streets strumming guitars and singing "Adios, adios, amores." It is a beautiful gesture of farewell to the many friends and visitors in Santa Barbara.

Upon a wall of the supervisors' room in the Santa Barbara County Court House appear these words, "Felicidad y pesos." It seems, even in the old Spanish days, that happiness and dollars were the two essential elements; yet it was evidently possible to achieve happiness without the possession of great wealth. Everything moved in the easy manner of the time, unhurried and carefree. For us, in the modern commercial scheme, it is hard to realize that "manana por la manana" was then the rule of life. Yet it is possible to see, in "Old Spanish Days," how one might forget cares, enter into the joyous part of the dance, and while away the hours of day into night.
